FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

At The Hague the arbitration committee of the peace conference adopted the first nine articles of the arbitration agreement, including the American mediation proposals.

The insurgents have withdrawn from their trenches in the vicinity of San Fernando, retiring to Mexico, ten miles to the northeast, leaving a few troops on outpost duty in front of the American lines. Seventy-six hours of continuous heavy rain has sent all the streams out of their banks, so that San Fernando is practically surrounded by water, and many miles of the country are flooded to a depth of three or four feet.

THE CLEVELAND STRIKE.

Explosion Wrecks a Car and Six Persons Are Injured—Conductor Kills a Boy.

Cleveland, O., July 24.—A Euclid avenue car, loaded with passengers, was wrecked by an explosion of nitroglycerin or gun cotton shortly before 11 o'clock Sunday night. Six persons were badly hurt. One of the victims, Mrs. Martin, will probably die. She suffered a compound fracture of the skull, had one arm broken and was otherwise injured. She was with her husband, who was also badly hurt.

In the vicinity of the Holmden avenue barns Sunday night there was continuous rioting for three or four hours. Every car that passed was attacked with stones and several pistol shots were fired at them. There was a lively fusillade at one time, the nonunion crews returning the fire. The only person hurt was a woman who was shot in the finger as she stood in her doorway. The police made 25 arrests in that neighborhood. Rioting continued all along Broadway at night, and it took three squads of police as many hours to escort three cars a distance of four miles to the barns. Fifteen or 20 of the rioters were taken into custody.

Four companies of the Fifth regiment from Cleveland, the First Ohio cavalry and the naval reserves are guarding the property of the street car company and patrolling the streets, assisted by a large force of deputy sheriffs and the full strength of the police department.

Cleveland, O., July 25.—Monday failed to bring any relief to the strike situation, which is regarded as serious. The state board of arbitration has practically abandoned its efforts to conciliate the strikers and their former employers. The resentment of the conductors and motormen who quit work and the more turbulent spirit of their sympathizers is held in check to a degree by the presence of the police and the militia, members of which ride in the cars or are held in readiness at the barns and terminals.

Small riots occurred during the day, but with one exception they were without serious results. In the death of Henry Cornweit, slain by a bullet fired by Ralph P. Hawley, a conductor on the Broadway line, is recorded the first fatality of the strike.

A repetition of the wrecking of a Euclid car was Monday evening attempted by strikers or their sympathizers, in Brooklyn, a suburb of Cleveland. An explosion took place under the car, but failed to injure it materially. There were no passengers aboard, and the conductor and motorman escaped unharmed.

With the exception of the Mayfield suburban, all the lines of the Big Consolidated were in operation Monday, although their movements were necessarily hampered somewhat.

New York, July 24.—The trolley car strikes, both in Manhattan and Brooklyn, seem to be practically at an end. General Master Workman Parsons says it is not, and Sunday at a meeting of the Central Federated union he launched a scheme for a new labor political party, and at the same time urged upon the delegates of the various trades unions in Greater New York the expediency of contributing to a fund to aid the strikers, and the delegates promised their financial support.

SOLDIERS FOR PHILIPPINES.

Fresh Troops Arrive at Manila—Gen. Otis Will Not Be Relieved.

Manila, July 25.—The United States transport Sheridan, which sailed from San Francisco June 25, with reenforcements for Gen. E. S. Otis, has arrived here. On July 16, a great waterspout was discovered directly in the course of the ship, and to avoid it, it was necessary to make a detour of several miles.

On board the transport Sheridan, the arrival of which at Manila is reported above, were Brig. Gen. Samuel B. M. Young, and aides, Col. Daggett, Maj. Quinton; companies B and H, of the Fourteenth infantry, 239 enlisted men and two company officers; troops A and F, Fourth cavalry, seven officers and 173 enlisted men; Lieut. Moss and 25 men of the Twenty-fourth infantry, eight hospital corps men and 41 members of the signal corps, as well as 1,248 recruits for the regiment already in the Philippines.

Washington, July 25.—The president has no intention of relieving Gen. Otis from the military command in the Philippines. He had seriously thought at one time of assigning an officer of high rank to command the forces in the field, leaving Gen. Otis to perform the administrative duties as governor general. The president had two propositions before him—one to make Lawton the commanding officer of the fighting forces, and the other to send Merritt back to his old place. The latter assignment would mean the subordination of Gen. Otis as governor general to Gen. Merritt, who outranks him by regular as well as volunteer title. Both ideas have now been abandoned.

LYNCHED.

Mob at Tallula, Miss., Hangs Five Sicilians Suspected of Conspiring to Commit Murder.

New Orleans, July 22.—Five Sicilians were hanged Friday by a mob at Tallula, a town of several hundred inhabitants in Madison parish, 17 miles from the river. The dead are: Joe Defatta, Charles Defatta, Frank Defatta, Sy Deferroch, Joe Cereno. The five victims were strung up to trees for supposed connection with a plot to murder Dr. Hodges, a prominent physician of the place, who on Thursday was shot and fatally wounded by one of the Sicilians. In addition to this several acts of lawlessness that have occurred in the neighborhood recently were attributed to the gang.

Old Rate Restored.

Detroit, Mich., July 21.—After riding for a week on three-cent fares, with universal transfers, Detroit people will to-day resume their former custom of paying five cents straight, or six for a quarter. The street railway companies announce that three-cent fares are at an end. It is considered quite possible that the old rate of five cents will be again charged. The Pingree people appear to have no plans for the immediate future for bringing about municipal ownership and three-cent fares.

WORK SUMMED UP.

Delegates to the International Peace Conference Tell What They Have Done.

The Hague, July 25.—The final act embodying the results of the international peace conference, after enumerating the names and qualifications of all the delegates, says:

"In a series of meetings in which the above delegates participated, inspired throughout by the desire to realize in the highest possible measure the generous views of its august initiator, the conference has drawn up for the approval of the respective governments the series of conventions and declarations appended:

"Convention concerning the laws and customs of war on land.

"Convention for the adoption of laws against the use of asphyxiation or deleterious gases from balloon projectiles, and for the prohibition of the use of bullets that easily expand in the human body."

"The conference considers that limitations of the military charges which at present oppress the world are greatly to be desired for the increase of the material and moral welfare of mankind.

"The conference expresses the opinion that the question of the rights and duties of neutrals should be inscribed on the programme of a conference to be held at an early date.

"The conference expresses the opinion that questions relative to the type and caliber of rifles and naval artillery as examined by it should be the subject of study by the different governments, with a view to arriving at a uniform solution by a future conference.

"The conference expresses the wish that an early convention be called to revise the Geneva convention.

"The conference has resolved that questions relating to the inviolability of private property in war on land and the bombardment of towns or villages in naval war be reserved for future conferences."

The Hague, July 25.—At the close of the peace conference the following message is sent by Mr. Andrew D. White, president of the American delegation, to the people of America:

"I consider the results of the conference better than many dared hope for at the beginning.

"The arbitration plan is not only good in itself, but lays the foundation for further results.

"In the cause of peace it will be the duty of future conferences to develop it.

"I believe the limitation of armaments will come later, but in the nature of things it is necessary that the principle of arbitration should be accepted first. It marks the first stage in the abolition of the scourge of war."

EPWORTH LEAGUERS.

Crowd Their Tent and Tomlinson's Hall at Indianapolis—Next Meeting Place.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 21.—The opening session of the international convention of the Epworth league, conducted simultaneously Thursday in Tomlinson hall and the Epworth tent, was attended by 10,000 people. Only 4,000 delegates had arrived, but Indianapolis people turned out and swelled the attendance to overflowing. Five hundred colored delegates from the southern states arrived just before the convention opened and mingled with their brother leaguers, exemplifying the obliteration of the line of division. The weather was very hot. The entire session was devoted to speeches.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 22.—The executive committee of the Epworth league occupied the afternoon in deciding on the meeting place for 1901, finally selecting San Francisco. Three cities were entered in the contest, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Denver. The former city secured the majority of votes on the first ballot, which stood: San Francisco, 6; Los Angeles, 3; Denver, 1. The vote was then made unanimous for the Golden Gate city. It is not known definitely how large the attendance is. Six thousand are registered, and with those unregistered the number was estimated at 8,000. The larger delegations are from Indiana, with 770; Illinois, 570; Ohio, 500; Pennsylvania, 160; Michigan, 150; Iowa, 106, and Kansas, 113.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 24.—The Epworth league convention formally adjourned Sunday night to meet in San Francisco in 1901. The work was practically ended Saturday night. The final session was devoted to addresses on "Missions." Incoming trains brought thousands of visitiors, and it was estimated that the number of delegates had reached the 20,000 mark.

GREAT ATHLETIC MEET.

International Events Between Yale-Harvard and Oxford-Cambridge Teams in London.

London, July 24.—Before one of the largest throngs ever gathered to witness an international athletic meet, the athletes of England's great universities and the amateurs representing Harvard and Yale contested Saturday on the Queen's club grounds. The weather was hot and moist when the men appeared to contest and the flags of Great Britain and the United States waved lazily in the slight breeze.

Following is the summary of the international university events:

One hundred yards—Quinlan (American); time, :10.

One-quarter mile—Davidson (British); time, :49 4-5.

One-half mile—Graham (British); time, 1:57 1-5.

Mile—Hunter (British); time, 4:24 1-5.

Three miles—Workman (British).

Hammer throw—Boal (American); 136 feet.

High jump—Rice (American); 6 feet.

Broad jump—Vassall (British); 22 feet 6 inches.

Total of events—British win 5, Americans, 4.

Three Negroes Lynched.

Bainbridge, Ga., July 24.—Three negroes were lynched during Saturday night near Saffold, Ga., and the mob is hunting for five more who are believed to have been members of a gang that robbed J. E. Ogletree, agent of the Plant system at Saffold, Thursday night, afterward binding him and assaulting his wife in his presence. Since the crime was committed hunting parties have been out in search of the guilty negroes.

Three Drowned.

Detroit, Mich., July 22.—A Free Press special from Port Huron, Mich., says: The schooner John Breden foundered off Lexington on Lake Huron Friday in the heavy north gale. Three of her crew were drowned. The name of only one, Jane Conners, cook, is known. The Breden left here Thursday morning for Bay City in tow of the tug Winslow. She was coal-laden from Ohio ports.

HIS DEATH WAS SUDDEN.

Col. Robert G. Ingersoll Passes Away at His Home Near Dobbs Ferry, N. Y.

New York, July 22.—Col. Robert G. Ingersoll died at his home, Walston-on-Hudson, near Dobbs Ferry, Friday. His death was sudden and unexpected, and resulted from heart disease, from which he suffered since 1896. In that year, during the republican national convention, he was taken ill and had to return home. He never fully recovered from the attack of heart disease, and was under the care of physicians constantly. For the last three days Mr. Ingersoll has not been feeling well. There was not even a sigh or a groan as death came. Doctors were hastily called, but their verdict was that death had come instantly.

Mrs. Ingersoll was the only person in the room with him when he died. Death came to him as he had recently expressed desire it should. He often in old times said he wished to die slowly, with a full consciousness, so he might tell those about him how it felt. Recently he experienced a change of desire to die painlessly and without warning.

Robert Green Ingersoll was born at Dresden, N. Y., August 11, 1833. His father was a Congregational clergyman. When Robert was ten years old the family moved to Illinois, where his boyhood was spent. After studying law he began the practice of the profession at Shawneetown with his brother Eben, who afterward went to congress. In 1857 the brothers removed to Peoria. In 1860 Robert was defeated for congress on the democratic ticket.

He was apointed colonel of the Eleventh Illinois cavalry in 1862. Soon afterward he joined the republican party. At the republican national convention of 1876 he nominated James G. Blaine for the presidency in a speech that attracted much attention and laid the foundation for his reputation as a political speaker in after-years.

He was offered the post of minister to Germany in 1877, but declined the appointment. He had taken part in many noted lawsuits in all parts of the country, and acted as counsel for the "star route conspirators," who were acquitted in 1883. He gained fame by his books, pamphlets and speeches against Christianity. Among his publications are: "Some Mistakes of Moses," "Prose Poems and Selections," "Modern Thinkers," "The Brain and the Bible," and many others.

DEWEY REACHES TRIESTE.

Trieste, Austria, July 21.—The United States cruiser Olympia, with Admiral Dewey on board, arrived here Thursday morning.

Upon her arrival here the Olympia fired a salute of 21 guns, which was returned from the fort and four Austrian and one Greek warship subsequently. Admiral Dewey received visits from the port authorities, the United States minister to Austria, Mr. Addison Harris, and the staff of the legation and the consuls of the United States in Austria. The foreign consuls were received by Admiral Dewey on board the Olympia during the forenoon.

Trieste, July 22.—The United States minister to Austria-Hungary, Mr. Harris, gave a banquet at night at the Hotel De La Ville in honor of Admiral Dewey. The guests were limited to 35 and included officers of the cruiser Olympia, members of the United States legation and American consuls to Austria-Hungary. The affair was strictly private.

"Trieste, July 24.—To Mayor Van Wyck, New York: Letters received and invitation accepted. Expect to arrive about October 1. Will cable definitely from Gibraltar. Have written.

(Signed) "DEWEY."

A DESPERATE BATTLE.

Americans and Filipinos Fight at Bobong, Island of Panay—Enemy Loses Heavily.

Manila, July 21.—News has been received here from Gen. Smith at Iloilo, Island of Panay, of a severe fight on Wednesday at Bobong between Capt. Byrne, of the Sixteenth infantry, with 70 men, and a force of 450 Babaylones, who surprised the American troops. One hundred and fifteen of the enemy were killed, as is shown by actual count, many were wounded and one was taken prisoner. The American loss was one man killed and one wounded. The fighting was mostly at close quarters, with bayonets and clubbed guns. A considerable stock of supplies and arms has been captured by Capt. Byrne, who is in command of the battalion operating at La Carlota, in the district of Negros.

Four Girls Drowned.

Wellington, Kan., July 25.—Edna Curtis, Millie Detrick, Inez and Mabel Neal, daughters of prominent Caldwell citizens, were drowned at Drury, a fishing and bathing resort six miles east of that place, Monday afternoon. The girls, in company with a number of other girls, were bathing in the river. One of them went in beyond her depth, and being unable to swim, cried for help. In the excitement three others went in beyond their depth, and all four were drowned.

Coughlin's Pal Arrested.

Chicago, July 25.—William Armstrong, wanted for alleged jury-bribing with Daniel Coughlin, was arrested at Port Angeles, Wash., at one p. m. Monday. The arrest was made by Detective Frank Tyrell, of State's Attorney Deneen's office, who took his prisoner to the depot and started with him for Seattle. With Armstrong at the time was his wife, who had arranged to meet him at Port Angeles, from which place they intended to sail for Japan July 27.

NICELY TAKEN IN.

He Knew the Ways of the World But Got Caught Napping.

The man in question used to say he knew the way of the world as a cat knows its own kittens, and laugh at the wiles of those who live on their wits.

He had been economizing at every turn for a long time, saving all that he could, for the holidays were near at hand. He left his station the other night in the teeth of a blizzard. The buses had stopped running, and he buttoned his coat collar about his neck with a determination to walk home rather than squander the price of a cab.

"Beastly night," said a tall, imposing man, as he tapped our friend on the shoulder. "Get into my carriage there; I'll be with you in a minute," and he dashed into the station after his bag. It was too good an offer to be refused, and the traveling man put in most of his time in thanking his benefactor, who politely insisted that the pleasure was all his.

"Just tell him where to drive to," he said, later; "I get out here. No, don't mention it. Glad of the opportunity."

Now, it was a horrible night, and he was using another man's carriage, so he could not do less than to treat the driver and give him a cigar to keep his nose warm. At last the economical traveler was at home, and he shouted a cheery "good night," as he slammed the door of the vehicle and started for the house.

"Here," cried the driver, "you've forgotten something."

"Thanks. What is it?" as he hurried back.

"Nine shillings."

"What?" as the harrowing conviction seized him. "Why, the other man."

"That other man be blowed. I don't know him from a crow. You took the cab."

Then our man drowned the voice of the storm while he was settling, and, going in, swore his wife to secrecy. That's the way it got out.—Pearson's Weekly.

Summer Costuming.

"I don't believe in girls a-dressin' in stiff clothes durin' the hot weather," said the adipose elderly lady with the large diamond earrings and finger rings at the boarding house breakfast table the other morning. "I make my two daughters dress in negligent costumes all summer, no matter where they're a-goin'." "Maw!" said her daughters, warningly, from the other side of the table, and the fox terrier pup turned a fit out in the basement vestibule.—Washington Post.

[LETTER TO MRS. PINKHAM NO. 26,465]

"I was a sufferer from female weakness. Every month regularly as the menses came, I suffered dreadful pains in uterus, ovaries were affected and had leucorrhœa. I had my children very fast and it left me very weak. A year ago I was taken with flooding and almost died. The doctor even gave me up and wonders how I ever lived.

PERIODS OF SUFFERING GIVE PLACE TO PERIODS OF JOY

"I wrote for Mrs. Pinkham's advice at Lynn, Mass., and took her medicine and began to get well. I took several bottles of the Compound and used the Sanative Wash, and can truly say that I am cured. You would hardly know me, I am feeling and looking so well. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me what I am."—Mrs. J. F. Stretch, 461 Mechanic St., Camden, N. J.

How Mrs. Brown Was Helped.

"I must tell you that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done more for me than any doctor.

"I was troubled with irregular menstruation. Last summer I began the use of your Vegetable Compound, and after taking two bottles, I have been regular every month since. I recommend your medicine to all."—Mrs. Maggie A. Brown, West Pt. Pleasant, N. J.

EXPANSION TALK

HOW IT STRIKES THE BOYS—NELSON AND THE TRUSTS.

How the Senator Weakened at a Critical Time—Vale, Alger! — General Pope, Who Works; the Press, Which Talks. The Lumber Trust "Prosperity"—The Coming Harmonious Democratic Convention.

Reform Press Bureau.
ST. PAUL, July 24, 1899.

The facts are slowly coming to the surface. In spite of censorship, in spite of concerted misrepresentation here at home, in spite of studied deceit on the part of those in authority, the truth as to the Philippine trouble and the wishes of the volunteers is becoming known. The newspaper correspondents at Manila shocked the expansionists with their plain, blunt statements as to Otis and the failure of his campaign. Now comes one prominent authority after another denouncing as false the statements so oft reiterated, by the president as well as by his followers, that the volunteers were willing to remain in the Philippines and fight the liberty-loving natives as long as the government deemed their services necessary. Captain Auldid of the North Dakota regiment is especially emphatic. He says that when the president told Senator Pettigrew that the volunteers did not want to come home, the president was telling a fairy tale; that if the volunteers don't want to come home he never saw anyone who did.

Nicholas Hanson, one of our own boys—a wounded member of the honored Thirteenth—is another witness. Writing to F. H. Russell of Eyota, under date of June 3, he thus describes the wishes of the boys, and somewhat earnestly pays his respects to those who ridicule the efforts made to have the men brought home:

"I hardly need tell you that the entire volunteer army is cheering over the prospect of a speedy return. Some of the expansion papers have intimated that the volunteers might like to stay until the fighting should cease. How those fellows prate about fighting when they are at a distance of 10,000 miles from the scene of the conflict! I sometimes wish that these intensely belligerent newspaper men would be organized into a brigade and sent over here to do the fighting. They talk about 'our soldierly honor' as if they ever had any; about 'quitting under fire,' as if they had ever been under fire; about 'shedding glory upon American arms'—all of which big sounding phrases they are willing to support most zealously by the artillery of their own mouths, but not by one drop of their own blood.

"The letter of Governor Lee of South Dakota to the president represents the sentiments of the volunteers pretty well. They feel that the purpose they enlisted for has been attained, and that if the United States decides upon an aggressive policy regulars should be secured as soon as practicable to support that policy. If we were still fighting Spain nothing would be said. As it is now, I doubt if enough men to form a single battalion can be induced to re-enlist and remain here."

Now what will the expansionist press have to say to this. Heretofore the "copperheads" have been confined, apparently, to those at home, but now we have the Funstons, the Auldids and even the crack Thirteenth marching right into the column of "imperialistic traitors."

During the extra session of the senate in 1898, the junior member from Minnesota, Mr. Nelson, offered an amendment to the tariff bill providing that all articles, the manufacture and sale of which should become subject to the control of a trust, be admitted "duty free." Such a clause would unquestionably be the means of destroying the trusts, and when the senator introduced it he was no doubt actuated by the same independence that led to his vote for the Mills bill when a member of the house some years before. But, alas, for the courage of would-be statesman! At the critical moment, when strict and manly adherence to his own resolution would have made him the idol of his constituents today, he weakened. Whipped into line by the strong arm of the trusts and their pliant tools, the republican leaders of the senate, he not only withdrew his amendment, but actually voted against a similar one—the resolution of Senator Pettigrew of Dakota. He did more. He apologized for his undue haste in tackling this giant evil and even went so far as to deliver a speech, denouncing as dangerous that which today is universally admitted, by leading Republican journals as well as by Democrats, as the people's only protection for the growing power of combinations. The opportunity was his to show his loyalty to the people's cause, but instead of availing himself of it he lined up on the other side; chose the side of the strong against the weak, of the wealthy few against the struggling many. Had he it to do over, it is safe to say he would gladly recall his former action, now that the people are aroused, but the record is made up and by that he must be judged.

Vale, Alger! The imperialistic press and the scared disciples of Hanna have yielded to the voice of the people, apparently, by making their scapegoat of Alger and forcing his resignation.

This is mere palliation. The people demanded a cure. They wanted the scandal-cancer that is eating away the heart of national honor removed by the roots. Surface applications may deceive the eye, but the voter-surgeon, who is just now making a most careful diagnosis, will skillfully remove the tentacled monster and to cure will bandage the necessary incisions with spotless '76-spun, well-medicated linen of the weave "Constitution."

Talk about calamity howlers! Just hearken to the jingo daily press wail because Minnesota has a "bank examiner who examines." General Pope should take into consideration the feelings of the men who are the power behind the press and otherwise behind "prosperity" which smiles so complacently above the closed and curtained doors of looted banks. General Pope should move more deliberately; in other words, should wait until a few favored depositors assist the managers in making away with the strong (?) box before letting the public into the "private" affairs of these gentlemen, and allowing said public to draw unto itself the small fraction of its deposits still "touchable." The bank examiner is a puzzle to "these gentlemen." He goes right ahead with his work and pauses not to assure the astute newspaper man that he "will explain" things. It must be that he intends to allow his actions to explain themselves before the just tribunal of public judgment.

The next national convention of the reformed Democracy will be a glorious ratification of the one held in Chicago three years ago—a sort of anniversary celebration of the greatest day in the history of the party, a day when old leaders and bosses were dethroned and the people themselves, the rank and file of the party, asserted their rights. It was not so much the triumph of silver that made that convention memorable; it was rather the triumph of the people over the elements which had dictated platforms and dominated conventions in the past. Silver happened to be the question uppermost in the popular mind. Next year the money problem may again be the chief point of contention and it may not. Trusts, expansion or the un-American tendencies of the present Republican administration—any one or all of these may take its place. But whatever the issue, whether it is silver or not, the politicians of the Republican persuasion may rest assured that it will involve questions in which the people are most deeply interested and upon which they will be prepared to take as determined and aggressive a stand as they did for silver in 1896. Furthermore, the issue will be made up, not be a clique of individuals, but by the great masses of the party, earnest in their convictions and loyal to the fundamental principles of a true Democracy.

The Minneapolis Journal recently remarked that the continual increase in the price of lumber was "causing some uneasiness." We met one one of the largest lumbermen of the Flour City the other morning and asked him how business was. "Booming, simply booming," was the reply, and the millionaire dealer in pine gleefully rubbed the palms of a man who seemed to be enjoying the situation immensely. And well he might. At a meeting of lumbermen held only a few minutes before it had been decided that Sept. 1 must mark an additional boost in the price of $1, and as the combine has already succeeded in bringing about an arbitrary advance of $2, the lumberman in question had every reason to feel a trifle elated. Add to this $3 raise, brought about solely by combination, the $2 provided for by the tariff and we have an artificial arbitrary boost of $5, or more than it actually costs to buy the logs and manufacture them into the finished lumber. In other words, the people simply make the lumbermen a present of all the stock they have on hand, and as a result of their folly go without houses and buildings themselves.

The Republican editors who are filling their papers week after week with groundless abuse of Governor Lind, would do well to take heed of the humiliating experience of Senator Miller. The senator, before making his charges of dishonesty, undoubtedly reasoned, as do all others who take so easily to slander, that high public officials, as a rule, find neither the time nor the inclination to take notice of newspaper criticism, that the chief executive of a state could hardly afford to enter into a controversy with the editor of a little country newspaper, and that charges of corruption could therefore be made with little danger of having their character questioned or their author held to a strict accounting for the falsity of his assertions. But for once the editorial-senator was mistaken in his man. John Lind has behind him a record for honesty in private and public life, capable of withstanding the closest investigation, and it is not in the character of the man to have that record besmirched at will by every narrow minded politician who thinks he sees in abuse and vilification a chance for partisan advantage. Some men there are who hold their public acts as sacred as their private deeds, and to the people of the state it will be a source of great satisfaction to know that their present chief executive is one of them.

J. Adam Bede has declared himself in the Sixth district. Bede is a very able man and in some respects perfectly competent to hold down a seat in congress, but sore disappointment is in store for his ambitions. In the end he will find how doubly ungrateful are those with whom he so recently cast his political lot. The Republicans have been willing to use him, just as they were willing to use the gold Democrats throughout the Union in order to accomplish the election of McKinley, but they stand ready to drop Bede and all the rest without a pang as soon as their party needs are over. Scarcely anywhere in the country has one of this stripe of Democrats been recognized or rewarded, and it is hardly to be expected that Bede will prove an exception.

Commendation of the selections made by Governor Lind for members of the board of grain appeals is universal. The list includes some of the best equipped and most cinscientious grain men in the state.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

State Fair Notes.

J. D. Gillispie of Morris has been selected as assistant to Secretary Randall during the fair. Mr. Gillispie has served satisfactorily in that capacity before and is well known to exhibitors.

In the horse department, R. A. Stone has been selected as clerk of the course and D. K. Stacy as assistant in the speed department. Both these are reappointments fairly earned at previous fairs.

C. C. Lyford, of Minneapolis, has been designated as official veterinarian of the fair, and will have an office in the building with the superintendent of live stock departments. It will be his duty to determine whether animals offered for exhibition are sound, or otherwise, and he will also be within call in case the service of a veterinarian is needed.

Those interested in creamery, dairy or print butter should note that exhibitors get an increase in pro rata premiums quite worth struggling for this year, from the fact that all entry fees in the dairy department are to be added to the sum to be pro rated among exhibitors. This amounts to a large increase in these premiums, and makes it certain that the exhibit will be larger than ever before.

Climate and Crop Bulletin.

The hot weather early in the week was followed by a general rain the 12th and widely scattered showers in southern counties since then. In the middle west a small area seems to have had very little rain. South of the center of the state the rains were locally heavy, and south of the Minnesota valley, and eastward from Blue Earth and Faribault counties, the rains are said to have been very heavy, and accompanied by high winds, so that the small grains were laid flat on the ground over large areas, and in some cases without the probability of their rising sufficiently to fill well. In northern counties the early sown spring wheat is much better than the later sown. The heat, moisture, lack of wind have been more favorable for the growth of rust than in previous weeks, and reports of some rust come from nearly every direction. Notwithstanding these drawbacks, the condition of wheat in most of the state is still very promising. Winter wheat is being cut in southeastern counties.

Checks for the Soldiers.

Checks are being sent members of Minnesota National Guard who enlisted at Camp Ramsey and served as volunteers. Under the law the pay of guardsmen is $1.50 per day. They will receive the difference between that and the allowance by the regular army. The payments thus far have been made to members of the Twelfth and Fourteenth regiments. The members of the Thirteenth will not be paid until that regiment returns from the Phillippines. Of those enlisted in the two regiments now at home, 1,250 men have been paid sums aggregating $9,638.84. Where the men are located in the same counties as the companies in which they enlisted, they sign a pay roll in charge of their captain, but they have scattered all over the world. Fourteen applications have been received from Havana, Cuba, from former members of these regiments, who went to the island as members of the hospital corps or upon other duty. Other applications come from all parts of that island, and even from the Phillippines they come.

A Suicide.

B. Claude Hinnant, assistant cashier in the construction department of the Northwestern Telephone company, shot himself and several hours later his body was found in the woods on the southwest shore of Lake Harriet, about ten yards from the boulevard, and some 300 feet back from the shore. A 38-calibre revolver was found by his side and a bullet hole just below his heart explained his death. When found there was nothing which revealed his identity. An old newspaper was found in his pocket with a farewell note written on the margin. His identity was not established, however, until Mrs. Emma L. Hanna called at the morgue and recognized the remains, Hinnant having boarded at her house since October last.

Bananas.

As a consumer and shipper of bananas, Minneapolis has a record to be proud of. In the list of receiving and distributing cities of the United States Minneapolis stands sixth, and the increase she has made in the past ten years stands probably without a parallel in the history of any city in the world. Fifteen years ago a carload of bananas was an unknown phenomenon in this market. Ten years ago the receipts were fifteen cars during the entire season. This year they are estimated to reach fully 350 cars, as the receipts already foot up considerably over 200.

News in Brief.

Olaf Bakken, while working in a Minneapolis lumber yard, was the first victim this year of sunstroke.

Kenneth Brill, the 15-year-old son of Judge Brill, of St. Paul, was badly hurt by a toboggan at Wildwood.

Gov. Lind received a telegram from Manila stating that the Thirteenth Minnesota regiment desired to muster out at San Francisco.

Gov. Lind has announced the following appeal: Minneapolis board, Alex McKinnon, Polk county; Charles Malmquist, Sibley county; F. L. Greenleaf, Hennepin county; Duluth board, J. K. Stone, Chippewa; Hans Byogne, Otter Tail; A. H. Smith, St. Louis.

While Herman Greenwalt and Herman Sanders were driving, about one mile west of Dumont, the team became frightened and ran away, throwing Greenwalt out of the wagon. He fell between the wheels and a wire fence and was dragged for some distance along the wire, cutting him seriously about the legs and body. He will die.

Three new teachers have been appointed at the state school for the deaf—Miss Bandegrift, who is a graduate of the National College for the Deaf at Washington, D. C.; C. E. White, of Kansas, and Miss Barnes, of St. Paul.

Wm. Forrester, a painter at Winona, was bitten by a kissing bug.

The Lake Superior Consolidated company paid the state $2,687.50 on state mineral leases.

The general land office has issued patents for swamp and overflow lands inuring to the State of Minnesota in the Duluth land district, embracing 11,959 acres.

SUCCEEDS ALGER.

Elihu Root, of New York, Is Tendered and Accepts Secretaryship of War.

Washington, July 24.—Elihu Root, of New York, has accepted the war portfolio in President McKinley's cabinet. The telegram of acceptance was received shortly after noon Saturday.

The tender of the war portfolio was made to Mr. Root Friday night after the conference at the white house.

The tender of the war portfolio was made to Mr. Root Friday night after the conference at the white house.

The announcement of Mr. Root's appointment was made at the war department. It was stated that Senator Platt came to Washington Friday evening, armed with authority from Mr. Root to accept in his name the war portfolio. It is not expected that the acceptance will make any change in the plans of Secretary Alger, and he will remain on duty here until the end of the present month, being assisted by Mr. Meiklejohn.

Elihu Root was born February 15, 1845, at Clinton, Oneida county, New York. He graduated from Hamilton college, in the class of '64, and entered the New York university law school. He was admitted to the bar in 1867, since which time he has been in the active practice of his profession in New York. He was United States attorney for the southern district of New York from March, 1883, to July, 1885. He was vice president of the Association of the Bar of the city of New York for a number of years; vice president of the New York Grant Monument association, and at one time president of the Republican club, and the present president of the Union League club. He has been a trustee of Hamilton college since 1883, and has served as president of the New England society in the city of New York. He was one of the most prominent members of the last New York state constitutional convention, where he served as chairman of the judiciary commission.

RECIPROCITY WITH FRANCE.

Long Pending Negotiations Are Finally Completed and Treaty Is Signed.

Washington, July 25. — The long pending reciprocity treaty negotiations between the United States and France were brought to a successful close at the state department last Monday afternoon, when Ambassador Cambon, in behalf of France, and Commissioner Kasson, in behalf of the United States, affixed their signatures to the reciprocity treaty. It is by far the most important treaty concluded under the reciprocity provisions of the Dingley law, and the only one affecting the trade with a large commercial nation. The negotiations were marked by rather sharp and long continued discussions, which continued up to the time the signatures were placed on the document. In the end a spirit of compromise prevailed, and each side yielded something. As a whole, both sides express satisfaction with the general results secured, for while the compromise necessitated some minor sacrifices, the general effect of the treaty will encourage commerce between the two countries.

The treaty will result in placing the products of the United States on the same basis in France as products of Great Britain and Germany. At present these countries have the minimum French rate, while the American goods, with few exceptions, have had to pay the maximum rate.

TALKS ABOUT WAR.

Ottawa, Ont., July 24.—A violent criticism of the American position concerning the Alaskan boundary question by Sir Charles Tupper at Saturday morning's sitting of the house brought forth a statement from Sir Wilfrid Laurier. He said:

"It is clear that there are only two ways by which the difficulty now may be settled, arbitration or war. I have no hope at this moment that we can settle the question by compromise. No one wants war. We must exhaust every means of removing the difficulty by peaceful methods. I have not given up hope that it is possible to agree to arbitration. Negotiations are still going on. We must find some means of bringing about a peaceful settlement."

Sir Charles Tupper said the United States had pursued an unjustifiable course in this matter, and spoke of the attitude of the American press in telling their readers that Great Britain and the United States would of themselves have been able to reach a satisfactory conclusion, but that Canada stood in the way. The United States in refusing to submit the subject to arbitration well justified, in his opinion, the decision Great Britain and Canada had reached to decline to allow the other questions to go before the high commission. His belief was that the government and commissioners of the United States had lost confidence in their own claims to this strip of territory.

Shuts Down Mines.

Pana, Ill., July 25.—Secretary C. T. Penwell, of the Penwell Coal company, received instructions from his father, George V. Penwell, of Chicago, president of the Penwell company, to have all fires drawn from under the boilers at the shaft and close down the mine immediately. Secretary Penwell obeyed orders by instructing Engineer Hawker to extinguish all fires and close the mine. It is Operator Penwell's intention to indefinitely abandon his mines and mining interests in Pana, claiming that under present conditions with granting of locked-out miners demands would prove a greater loss to him than the abandonment of his mines.

Cannon to Pay a Fine.

Salt Lake City, Utah, July 21.—Judge Morrill imposed a fine of $100 upon Angus M. Cannon, the defendant having by his attorney on Tuesday last pleaded guilty to the charge of unlawful cohabitation

NARROW-TIRED WAGONS.

They Are the Greatest Enemies of Good Roads Next to Surplus Surface Water.

The proposed automobile race between an American and a French machine has brought the attention of the public to the wretched condition of American roads. The French automobile has shown an average speed of 30 miles an hour for a long distance, while the best the American machine has been capable of is a little over 16 miles. The difference is ascribed to the bad roads over which the American machine was compelled to travel. Referring to this, Chairman Otto Dorner, of the L. A. W. highway improvement committee, speaks of one of the causes for the miserable highways. He says:

"Next to water, the greatest enemy of good roads—yes, of all roads—is the narrow-tired wagon. Narrow tires and water, acting together, have given our country roads a third dimension. They are not only so many miles long and so many rods wide, but they are deep—so deep, alas, at times that travel over, or rather, through them, is next to impossible.

"A heavily loaded wagon always leaves its tracks on the highway, and the depth of these tracks depends upon the material of which the road is built, the weight of the load and the width of the tires. The rut formed by the passing wagon forms a trough for the rain, which, instead of running off to the side, as it should do, remains to sink into the roadway and soften it. The next wagon, finding the ground softer, digs its wheels deeper into the surface, and so the work of demoralization and destruction continues.

"A wide tire, on the other hand, instead of forming a rut, will roll and harden the road surface. By the use of wide tires, every loaded wagon can be turned into an effective road roller and made to improve the roadway instead of helping to destroy it. All that is necessary to make the best road in the world is to make it solid and to give it a hard, smooth surface. Nothing so much tends to accomplish this as the frequent use of road rollers. Wide tires are road rollers, and therefore, road makers. Narrow tires are road destroyers. If wide tires could be adopted for general use, every loaded wagon, which to-day helps to cut up and destroy country roads, would become an active factor in their improvement.

"Experience has repeatedly proven that hauling on wide tires requires less tractive force than is needed for the narrow-tired wagon under the same conditions. Director Waters, of the Missouri agricultural experiment station, who has made very extensive tests on the subject, characterized especially by their scientific accuracy, declares that six inches is the best width of tire for a combination farm and road wagon and that a large number of tests show, without a single exception, a difference in draft in favor of the broad tires ranging all the way from 17 to 100 per cent.

"The principle of wide tires is so generally acknowledged in Europe that laws have been passed in each country prescribing their use. Austria requires tires of at least four and one-third inches width, increasing as the load to be carried exceeds three and one-half tons. In France all freighting and market wagons are turned into road rollers by being required to have tires from three to ten inches wide. Germany requires four-inch tires for all wagons used for heavy loads, and Switzerland requires that they shall be provided with tires of six inches. These regulations have been adopted for the protection of the high-class European roads built during the present century.

"Now that the adoption of state aid has solved the financial problem connected with road improvement in the United States, care should be taken that the roads we build are not destroyed by narrow tires. Country districts receiving financial aid for road purposes out of the state treasury should do all in their power to encourage the use of wide tires. This has been accomplished in some places by exempting all wide-tired vehicles from taxation."

SPLENDID WIRE REEL.

For Uncoiling Barbed Wire, Its Inventor Seems to Think, It Is Without an Equal.

For unrolling barbed wire, my rack, as illustrated, is made of three by three inch scantling mortised together. Uprights, a, are three feet long, and cross-pieces, b, 18 inches. The two pieces, c, are 12 inches long and notched at the top so the bar on which the spool is hung can rest as shown. Lever d regulates the speed of turning or paying out wire by pressing against the roll. The whole outfit is set in the ground at an end of the proposed fence, spool put in place and a horse with singletree attached to end of wire. The horse can be ridden or led by a man, while a boy operates the lever.—R. G. Melson, in Farm and Home.

ABOUT FEEDING CALVES.

When Skim-Milk Is Used as a Food It Should Be Sterilized First of All Things.

Sterilized skim-milk is good for scours. Heating of the milk seems to produce chemical changes that help to prevent scours, and at the same time enable the feeder to keep the milk in good, sweet condition. Milk delivered at the creamery contains large numbers of lactic acid germs. Unless these are destroyed by sterilizing, the skim milk will sour in a few hours. When sterilized and cooled to the temperature of well water, skim milk may be kept sweet from 36 to 48 hours. Feeding sweet milk at one meal and sour at another is very apt to cause scours and stunt growth.

The stomach of a calf is delicate and sensitive, and any change of feed should be made gradually. Do not change from whole milk to skim milk faster than a pound a day, allowing ten days to two weeks for the change. Before turning on pasture in the spring, it is better to feed a little green feed and gradually increase the amount until the limit of the calf is reached; otherwise the calf may suffer severely from scours by the sudden change to pasture.

Several complaints have reached us about skim milk intended for calves souring, even when placed in tubs of cold water as soon as received from the creamery. Sterilized skim milk will not sour until it is cooled to about blood temperature. A can of hot milk will warm a tub of water to about that temperature, and as the milk is cooled at the same time, the best conditions are offered for the development of lactic acid germs. The tub of water only helps to keep the milk at blood temperature. Under such conditions the water is worse than nothing. If hot skim milk is cooled in a tub, it should be done by running water. A much better way would be to use a cooler and then place the can of milk in a tub of cold water in order to keep it cool.—D. H. Otis, in Country Gentleman.

HANDY CAR FOR BARNS.

Can Be Used as Ensilage Carrier on a Dairy Farm and for Many Other Purposes.

The illustration shows a very useful device. It was formerly described in Farm, Field and Fireside by a New York correspondent, who says he has seen it in practical operation on a dairy farm as an ensilage carrier and in a stable as a manure carrier. Thinking the idea useful to the readers of this paper, I give an illustration and abbreviated description of this really useful device. It consists of a track of iron, A, A, A, such as is used for barn doors, the carrier wheels and hangings and the box, B. The track is fastened to the ceiling either in front or behind the cows, according as it is intended for use in feeding or in stable cleaning, running the whole length or entirely around the stable, the carrier being constructed in a manner to permit the wheels to turn on a curve in the track. The four carrier wheels are bolted in pairs to the blocks, C, C, which run close to the track to prevent the wheels jumping off. The blocks are bolted to a heavy scantling, D, D, under them, only one bolt being used in each block, so that the wheels will turn a curve in the track as mentioned. The car (B) is hung by rods, E, E, to the crossbar, F, which is connected to the timber between the wheels by a heavy swivel. There may be a rod from the crossbar, F, to the rear end of car to hold it steady until ready to dump. By the handles at the front end, the car is readily moved upon the track in either direction, even when fully loaded, holding about one-fourth of a wagon load. —J. G. Allshouse, in Ohio Farmer.

Profit in Thinning Fruit.

The practicability of thinning fruit and its feasibility from a commercial standpoint have been pretty well demonstrated in the last few years. In western New York it has generally proved profitable wherever tried. Mr. John Craig reports, in the publications of the (Canadian) central experimental farm, some results in thinning peaches and plums which corroborate the notes given from Mr. Beach and others. He concludes that, when a large crop of fruit is set, thinning peaches is highly remunerative for the following reasons: (1) It increases the weight of the yield. (2) It largely increases the size of the fruit. (3) It reduces the number of matured seeds, thereby considerably lessening the drain on the vitality of the tree. (4) It renders the crop less liable to rot. Thinning plums likewise proved altogether worth while.

The Dairy Type Cow.

Careful experiments show that the dairy type cow yields on an average 6,500 pounds of milk yearly, while the cow with beef heredity and tendency yields 4,500 pounds under similar conditions. When milk brings a dollar a hundred, as is now the case, the net income from the butter from the dairy cow, whose milk averages four per cent. fat, is $45, while that from the cow of beef type and whose milk only averages 35 per cent. fat, is only $27. The feeding value of the skim milk giving four per cent. butter is worth one-seventh more per pound than is the milk containing 35 per cent. Adding the actual value of skim milk of each cow to the net returns for butter we get from the dairy cows $55 and from the other $33.—Farm, Stock and Home.

Club Foot in Cabbage.

"Club foot" in cabbage results mostly when cabbages are raised on the same land year after year. A change of location is always desirable. The free use of wood ashes, chopped in around each plant, is a remedy, but it is not always effectual. The potash of the ashes destroys the maggot which does the damage, and an excellent mode is to mix the ashes in water, make a few holes with a stick around the plant and pour the mixture in, which is a laborious operation, however, where there is a large field devoted to the crop.

Still More Counterfeiting.

The Secret Service has just unearthed another band of counterfeiters, and secured a large quantity of bogus bills, which are so cleverly executed that the average person would never suspect them of being spurious. Did you ever See a Snow Storm in Summer?

We never did; but we have seen the clothing at this time of the year so covered with dandruff that it looked as if it had been out in a regular snow-storm.

No need of this snowstorm.

As the summer sun would melt the falling snow so will melt these flakes of dandruff in the scalp. It goes further than this: it prevents their formation.

It has still other properties: it will restore color to gray hair in just ten times out of every ten cases.

And it does even more: it feeds and nourishes the roots of the hair. Thin hair becomes thick hair; and short hair becomes long hair.

We have a book on the Hair and Scalp. It is yours, for the asking.

If you do not obtain all the benefits you expected from the use of the Vigor, write the doctor about it. Probably there is some difficulty with your general system which may be easily removed. Address,

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, July 28, 1899.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Dr. Niven, Waverly, Aug. 5 and 6.

—Dr. Niven at Delano, Friday, August 4th.

—Roastingears now form a part of the average Delanoite's diet.

—E. M. Bohn with the assistance of August Seiloff and Louey Brandser laid some new shingles Tuesday evening.

—People living in the country, and in neighboring villages, find the Delano meat wagons quite conveniencies these hot days.

—The new gasoline engine for the round elevator arrived yesterday and is awaiting permission from J. J. Hill's officials before being located for use.

—Read "Political Issues" in this and last weeks GAZETTES. The article was too long for one week so we run it in two weeks. It is well worth reading.

—A very gentle shower Sunday night laid the dust for a few hours and moistened growing crops, to the joy of the husbandman.

—The Delano Cemetery is being newly staked; many of the old stakes having rotted, or been misplaced. The grass has been mowed and things look better about the grounds.

—On Tuesday, the ministers holding meetings in the tent baptised Mrs. Harrison Williams and Chester, Allen and Marion, and Miss Sturman. He expects to baptise more next Sunday.

—Early risers on Wednesday morning got a glimpse of two trains of Ringling Bros. circus as they hurried toward Litchfield where they were billed to show that night. It is a great circus.

—Delano is supposed to be going to have an extra good school this coming winter. Things look that way. Let every young man and woman who can, arrange to attend at the first day and every day till graduated.

—The village Council met Monday July 17, all present but T. B. Rader. A motion carried to stop bicycle riding on sidewalks; and fast riding on streets; also, baseball on streets. $15.75 was allowed the firemen for runing to a fire caused by a firecracker an July 3d.

—Tuesday evening's blow was the hardest of the season. Two big window panes and a piece of sash went out of the Roosen Opera House, and many branches of trees strewed the ground. Electric lights went out early in the evening wires dangling loose next morning.

—Some of our citizens don't seem to be aware that when a birth or a death occurrs in their family they must report before ten days to the Health Officer or be subject to a fine. The Secretary of the State Board has suggested that the local officers use the law once.

—That Pound Master is said to have started to empound two cows and a calf, all in one day lately; but as pounding seemed likely to involve himself, gave it up, for that time. If your animals are loose in the streets in future yon are likely to have to pay to get them out of the pound.

—A special train loaded principally, we understand, with Jim Hill, went through town yesterday on its way to Huron. If the village authorities would make Mr. Hill observe village ordinances when riding through our village it would be right. And perhaps Mr. H. would know when he reached Delano.

—Preparations are being made for an exciting bicycle race tomorrow. The course is to be around the triangle from the Rail road bridge to Third street and down Third to Maxfield's old residedce; thence up River Street to R. R. Ave. The course is about a mile and a half long and is to be run around often enough to make 15 miles.

—Mrs. J. D. Young's Minneapolis friends have sent her a nice invalids vehicle. She has been obliged to travel on crutches for some time on account of a lame knee. If she had got her wagon a little sooner we don't know but she would have tried to run in the 15 mile bicycle race tomorrow. She and old Dan didn't use to take dust for ordinary folks.

—Considerable oats was cut this week. There seems to be a tendency to begin harvesting a little earlier than in former years. A few years ago we prevailed upon a man to start in on his wheat about four days before he was ready. The neighbors made so much fun of him that after cutting a short time he waited until others began. We chanced to come by as he was stacking his grain, he showed us some fine wheat and said those were the first bundles I cut, I wish I had cut it all that day.

—To satisfy himself, John Steffes tells us he wrote to the post master at San Francisco, asking him if it was true that the mail for the 13th Minnesota had been held up there. He says his answer was that none had been forwarded since the 18th of June. That is wrong. Two ships left there for Manila which we were told was to bring the boys home. Those vessels have reached Manila, and all common sense would say that they should have had mail for the 13th aboard. There has been rank mismanagement enough in detaining the boys in the Philippines, without depriving them of their mail, when boats are making trips every few days. It's wrong.

—The Board of Education is to meet a week from tomorrow. Some changes will be made in the organization.

—People make no bones about saying if the presidential election was to be held now Bryan would win with a big majority.

—An ugly hole in the gutter on Second street near Dyer's ice house, and some poor side walk in the same vicinity needs fixing.

—We are told that Prof. Carleton has suggested that the basement of the school house might easily be arranged for a play room. A good idea.

—Vegitable gardens seem to have thrived better this summer than for a long time. Much fine garden stuff has been consumed hereabouts this year.

—We had supposed the Eagle had dropped the "jack rabit" but this week it has found a new word, and claimes that the Princeton Union wants to beat "jacklind" with Bob Dunn.

—The Delano Crickets were defeated by the Waverly Juniors Sunday by a score of 3 to 28.—Wayerly Tribune.

We hope their dose will be at least doubled every time they play on Sunday.

Personal.

Dell Young made Delano today in his travels.

W. H. Cutting, of Buffalo, passed through Delano yesterday.

Rev. Farber drove to Montrose yesterday to attend 4th Quarterly Conference.

Mrs. Charles Carlton and Mrs. Tom Lanway have returned home from the berry patch.

Willie Mowatt was an early passenger Wednesday for Minneapolis to visit a few days.

C. A. Brunkow took a couple of days off this week, to be sick. He is again in the store.

Michael Jacobs, Independence's blacksmith was marketing some grain in Delano Wednesday.

Miss Alice Arnold and Catherine Kelley two last years teachers visited Delano friends this week.

Rev. Kenniston, of Rockford, preached Sunday afternoon to a small audience at the tent, on S. Third Street.

George Crandall and two children drove over from Rockford yesterday afternoon and met Mrs. C. and son who had been visiting at Pipestone.

County Cullings.

Alger has resigned as Secretary of War and Uncle Sam breathes a sigh of relief.—Buffalo Standard.

J. W. Walsh, of Waverly, and Jim Johnson and C. M. Wooley, of Howard Lake were passingers east Wednesday morning.

Otto, the 5 year old son of Henry Stuhr, of Maple Lake, was drowned while attending a Sunday School picnic at Clear Lake Wednesday.

Contrary to expectations of some the community about Howard Lake seems to have quieted down and things to be moving as usual since the return of those interested in the trial of the Boxell case at Buffalo last few weeks.

Even Wright county politics has begun to sizzle for 1900. The candidacy of H. S. Swanberg for Sheriff is announced. This, of course, means the present incumbent will not be a candidate. Mr. M. S. is an early bird; but he should remember that "The early bird gets the worm."

The County Commissioners met July 10. The Board vacated the Ed Zeibarth road; Flannigan voting, no.

Viewers were appointed to meet Aug. 1, at Ole Anderson's, in Cokato, to see about a ditch.

School petition of Emil Streich, to be heard Sept. 22.

Committee to view Winsted and Waverly road to meet at J. F. Lauzer's Sept. 11. Hearing Sept. 22.

Committee is to meet at H. A. Weyand's Sept. 19, concerning county road. At Torger Olsen's Sept. 20. At Frank Rochek's Sept. 21. Hearing for all on Sept. 22.

Expenses for 1900 estimated at $23,650. County Auditor instructed to levy taxes for 1899. County revenue $17,000; roads and bridges $6,000; bonds and interests $1,000.

Tax abatements recommended: Sam Houser, Ferd. Mielke, E. C. Brown and J. T. Alley. Petition of Geo. S. Sherer laid over to next meeting.

Jury lists were selected.

Committee appointed to count funds in treasury reported a total of $49,304.40.

Bills were allowed: J. C. Nugent, Sheriff fees, $674.61. J. H. Wendell, for legal services in assisting in the prosecution of Joseph Boxell, $500. Eagle Printing Co., printing and supplies $178.55, and a lot of bills less than $100. Claim of New Prague Manufacturing Co. for extras, rejected. Claim of McGill & Warner on account of J. E. McKelvey, laid over.

Adjourned to meet special session, Sept. 22.

WANTED—SEVERAL TRUSTWORTHY PERsons in this state to manage our business in their own and nearby counties. It is mainly office work conducted at home. Salary straight $900 a year and expenses—definite, bonafide, no more, no less salary. Monthly $75. References. Enclose self-addressed stamped envelope, Herbert E. Hess, Prest., Dept. Political Issues.

I am surprised at some of our democratic friends when they say: "We should modify the Chicago platform; things that were important issues in '96 are dead letters today, especially is that so of the silver craze". Decoy ducks. It becomes more manifest day by day that the most important question still before this county is the monev question. Every man woman and child is engaged in the effort to earn money, for 'tis the only agent that furnishes the necessaries of life in the most convenient way, and one's success or failure stands in proportion to his or her opportunities to acquire the "one thing needful", so Mr. Bryan, in his deep and searching analysis of the situation since "73" plainly and positively puts the matter before the people in a most masterly manner, and Mr. Bryan is feared politically by the opposition more than any other man, or combination of men. Mr. B. stands firm on the Chicago platform, with the true idea of expansion in the platform, by the addition of any measure that will advance the true interest of the people. How strange it is for gold democrats and g. o. p's. to tell us we're "clasping a corpse to our bosom; better bury the thing, it stinks to Heaven". Surely the dear souls who have the right of franchise and are individual sovereigns, so the 4th of July orators told us, will not forget that the uncertainty of values is the direct result of the crime of '73, and more, while they say the money issue is dead, behold! how crowds of bankers are roaming about the country, calling meetings with closed doors, to devise some means to further their designs against the currency of the nation. They tell us 'tis no account; still are mighty anxious to retire the government from the privilege of creating money. And they also tell us through the papers daily, what the standard money of the future must and shall be. Every day we hear that it is the intention of those interested to make the single gold standard the money of the future. When the God's truth of the matter is, there is no authority for gold dollars as the unit of value. If not taking up too much valuable space let me quote from the law of 1792, Sec. 9. "And be it further enacted that there shall be from time to time struck out and coined at said mint, coins of gold, silver, and copper of the following denominations, values, etc., viz:

Eagles—each to be of the value of ten dollars, or units, and to contain 247½ grains of pure or 270 grains of standard gold.

Five dollar, and also quarter eagles, $2.50, containing the requisite amount as above.

Now comes the dollars or units by which all values are measured.

Dollars or units, each to be of the value of a Spanish milled dollar, as the same is now current, and to contain 371 4-16 grains of pure or 416 grains of standard silver.

Half dollars, each to be of half the value of the dollar or unit and to contain 185 10-16 grains of pure or 208 grains of standard silver.

Quarter dollars, each to be one fourth the value of the dollar or unit, and to contain 92 and 13-16 grs. of pure or 104 grains of standard silver."

Now the great question over which so much breath was wasted, and caused so many angry disputes was to know what really was the standard dollar, or unit by which the value of all commodities was measured, and is supposed to be now! Could anything be plainer than the above, which most emphatically says that the silver dollar is the dollar to measure values by. It declares it shall be made of 371 and 4-16 grains of silver, so you see no gold dollars are provided for, nor ever were. Those modern economists, bankers and money loaners who say they are peculiarly adapted and situated to be the purveyors of the people for the quantity and quality of money the people shall have, has been trying hard to blind us with their gold dollar-standard money-honest money. Nonsense.

The Mohammedans say: "There is no God but God, and Mohammed is his prophet."

So can the followers of that great financial scholar, W. J. Bryan, exclaim: There is no standard money but the silver dollar, made and provided for our use in 1792, and Mr. W. J. Bryan is the peereless educator of the people on this matter. He is not fazed by the guady show of skillful erudition, nor the Belshazzarin feast at the tune of $10 per feast. Remember, you traducers of Mr. Bryan, that he could have lined his pocket and had fat hand the remainder of his days, if he had listened to the crowd that made up the above memorable feast.

Thank God in these days of political depravity, that there is one man who from his soul said "this is my own my native land" and the cross of gold nor the crown of thorns shall not be forced upon this people, WILLINGLY. 16tol.

Lind and Prosperity.

Labor Commissioner McHale, after making a trip throughout the state, comes back with the news that never had the working-men been in better condition so far as employment is concerned. He says there are less men out of work, and better wages than ever before. This from a Democratic official should go far towards ending that joke about the non-appearance of prosperity. It's here, says Editor VonVleck, of the Lake City Republican.—Buffalos Standard.

And so is Gov. Lind. Before election papers like those quoted claimed it would not be possible to have both! How do they reconcile?

CHASE.—in Minneapolis, Friday, July 21, Mrs. Lizzie Chase.

Deceased was mother of Mrs. Herbert Morse formely of Delano.

HOPPE.—At Rockford, Sunday, July 23, Peter Hoppe.

Mr. Hoppe was a soldier in the war of the rebellion. His funeral was held at the Catholic church in Delano, Tuesday.

"Round Robin."

The "round robin" turned out to be a variety of screech-owl. Its shape and its pert manner were at first misleading.—Duluth News Tribune.

Isn't that a sorry comment on the noble efforts of correspondents in the Philippines to aid patriotic people in getting their American rights? By what authority was communication cut off between our soldiers in the Philippines and their friends at home? In such imperialistic actions and the upholding of them we see the greatest danger to our free institutions. Shame on the Duluth News Tribune.

"OLDEST AND BEST"

With the SPECIAL CABLES

OF THE NEW YORK HERALD

COPYRIGHT 1898 BY COSMOPOLITAN MAGAZINE

THE delights of an evening spent around a well-lighted reading table are not half understood. An illustrated magazine with its wealth of illustrations, its stories of adventure and love, its descriptions of travel which carry you to the remotest ends of the earth, and its instructive articles for young and old—these are the first requisites for your own enjoyment and the entertainment and proper education of your children.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

Both Together One Year for Only $1.80

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. For three years The Cosmopolitan has undisputedly claimed that it reached the largest clientele possessed by any periodical, daily, weekly or monthly, in the world. It was The Cosmopolitan which sent Julian Hawthorne to India to let the world know the real horrors of famine and plague. It was The Cosmopolitan which established at its own cost a great Free Correspondence University which now has over 20,000 students on its rolls. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $3,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.

St Paul Dispatch

25c per month for Daily. 75c per year for the Weekly.

The St. Paul Dispatch is the best Twin City daily; it has no equal in the Northwest as to size or quality.

The DISPATCH excels in Northwestern news, having a correspondent in every Northwestern town.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

All Three Together for Only $2.25

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

Three Together One Year for Only $2.35

THE Cubans are getting anxious to know when that promised independence will be theirs.

PRESIDENT DIAZ, of Mexico, has been formally invited dy Mayor Gray, to visit Minneapolis, after his visit to Chicago in October.

GEN. ANDERSON claims what is wanted in the Philippines is Statesmenship. Our Administration don't seem to have any surplus of that.

JUST wait until Congress meets again and Speaker Reed gets possession of his share of the lines that guide the g. o. p. elephant, and then see what will happen.

FARMERS say that after a few years sowing grain runs out. Thev, and Gov. Lind evidently agree that the same is true of Ware House and Grain Inspection Commissioners.

EDWIN S. REISHUS has been elected by the Grain and Ware House commission as Chief Grain Inspector. The resignation of Mr. Clausen made it necessary for another to be chosen.

New York World: It is now announced that in Washington that Gen. Otis's authority in the Philippines may be divided. Aguinaldo seems to have been dividing it fairly well already.

KATE CHASE SPRAGUE, wife of a former Governor of R. I. and the daughter of Salmon P. Chase, a noted woman of Washington died July 31, at her home in the Capital City. Aged 59 years.

YELLOW FEVER has been carried from Cuba it is thought, to the National Soldier's Home, at Hampton, Va. Several deaths have occured, and measures have been taken to prevent a spread of the disease.

WE acknowledge the receipt of a complimentary season ticket to the State Fair, also grand stand tickets. This is the 40th annual fair for the Minnesota Agricultural Society, and is to be a little better, of course, that any of its predecessors.

DO any of the people buying lumber now at the advanced prices, believe that they would have to pay $1 50 more per M this week than two weeks ago were it not for the Page Morris lumber tariff? And do any of them believe that the government gets any of the $1.50 rise?

EVEN Thomas Cochran, Chairman of the 13th Auxiliary Association has got tired waiting on the inaction of the powers that be in regard to returning the 13th Minnesota to its home. He has telegraphed a protest against other regiments that went to Manila after the 13th being brought home before them.

AFTER a re-election to the office of Chief Grain Inspector, by his associates on the board, A. C. Clauson has resigned his office. The Board will, most likely, in the very near future be made up of an entirely new set of members. From the last year or twos reports the farmers will be well satisfied to have it so.

IT is claimed that out of 28 deaths among U. S. army officers in the Philippines 16 were caused by Filipine bullets. This is said to be a much greater percentage of officers than men shot. This would go to prove that the report of Aguinoldo ordering his men to shoot only officers as much as possible, might have been true.

IT seems strange that the expansionists should confine their denunciations of the way the Philippine campaign has been conducted, to Gen. Otis while Secretary of War Alger and President McKinley, Commander in-Chief of the army are congratulating the same individual and sending him messages of confidence in his doing the correct thing. Really after all hasn't Otis been doing just what he has been ordered to do?

WE recieved by mail three copies of Dan Lawler's 4th of July oration. It is, most of it very good. But although he wants to be patriotic he is willing that our boys be kept in the Philippines for months after their time is out, against their wills, and against their principles, fighting against patriotism. This way of upholding the hands of party leaders of incompetent and designing public servants "right or wrong" is played out in this country.

ADVERTISE and SUBSCRIBE.

WHAT'S the matter with Thomas Cochran, of St. Paul; isn't he the man that wanted the 13th to stay in the Philippines as long as McKinley wanted them even if their time was out?

OUR experience in listening to talking about the Philippine question is that the loudest mouthed howlers for subduing them; for exterminating the race; are those who could not be drafted

ISABELO ARTACHO, whose he? He is trying to get Aguinoldo's forces to desert him, according to late reports, and is upheld by who? Otis and others. Wonder if he would be recognized any more after he had, than Aguinoldo was after he got loose from Spain? What a war! What statesmanship!

WHAT the people of Minnesota want is that their citizens, even though they were enlisted as soldiers, and their time has expired months ago, have the commonest rights of an American citizen. That they be brought home and mustered out. Given their liberty. It is nothing else than a burning shame, a disgrace to the country to have them misused as they have been.

BEFORE retiring from his office of Secretary of war, Gen. Alger is said to have armed himself with a lot of copies of official documents, which will, when necessary, be fired off at the heads of the administration when they attempt to lay blame on him. They may be used at long or short range; rapid fire, or 13 inch projectiles. They are supposed to be at least as well preserved as embalmed beef. So no hurry about using them.

WHAT'S the use for gold bugs to quibble over the ratio for silver folks? If we had free coinage of silver again the same as we do of gold, wouldn't we have enough primary money so that it couldn't so easily be cornered by wealthy syndicates? Wouldn't gold then assume its former relative value in regard to silver, wheat and other things? Wouldn't gold and silver assume their former respective places as money and the ratio adjust itself. Instead of silver mine owners growing wealthy, wouldn't the whole country get on the firm basis from which they have been sliding since '73?

THE pent up news that has been suppressed by the Servants of the people of this glorious and free country, at our Nation's Capitol, concerning wars, and other important matters, is now breaking out in thunder tones and with Vesuvian vastness the molten lava threatens to submerge many of the suppressers in oblivion as dark as their deserts. Where the people are sovereign the people are entitled to know what their servants are about, and what the plans of the country are How else can a sovereign voter cast his ballot intelligently? Intelligence seems to be just what the powers that be don't want the people to have.

They tell them, without reason why, to vote for Gold Standard; for protective tariff; for imperialism; for military domination over other countries, and as soon as possible over this, for everything the people who stop to think know we do not want. They seem to want freedom and liberty to be rooted out of this country.

Recruiting Slow.

Butte, Mont., Special. Aug. 1.—Recruiting for the new Philippine regiments is proving a failure in Montana. Capt Detchmendy of San Francisco was sent here three weeks ago and opened offices in Butte, Helena, Great Falls and Anaconda, but the total number of recrutis so far enlisted does not excede a dozen. The first few days there were many applications, but since then there have been few or none. It is believed that the influence of labor organizations is responsible for the lack of interest taken in the recruiting business. Capt. Detchmendy, however, says he will be able to secure Montana's full quota of recruits.—Pioneer Press.

Ingersoll's Last Letter.

What is claimed to be the last letter written by Robert G. Ingersoll, and bearing the mailing post mark of one hour after his death is being published as follows:

"Editor of the Clarion: My Dear Sir:—I enclose a clipping from your paper. Of course you copied it from some exchange. The words attributed to me I never uttered or wrote. I have one sentiment for soldiers, cheers for the living and tears for the dead. This is mine, but all the rest is by some one else. It is true that I think the treatment of the Filipinos wrong, foolish. It is also true that I do not want the Filipinos unless they want us.

"I believe in expansion if it is honest. I want Cuba if the Cubans want us. At the same time I think our forces should be immediately withdrawn from Cuba and the people of that island allowed to govern themselves. We waged the war against Spain for liberty, for right, and we must wear the laurel unstained. Yours always,

R. G. INGERSOLL"

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28, 1899.

That the administration fears Alger and the disclosures he may make after next Tuesday, when he will turn the War Department over to Mr. Elihu Root who will become Secretary of Wargo that day, is shown by the frequency with which leading supporters of Mr. McKinley's policy are giving interviews to newspapers jollying Alger along as the victim of persecution, and predicting that time will vindicate him and his administration of the War Department. The object of these interviews is to keep Alger's mouth shut. Whether the ruse will succeed only time can tell. For months Alger's personal friends and hangers-on have been making threats as to what he would do if he was forced out of the Cabinet, and intimating that he could tell things that would shift responsibility which he has been made to bear to other shoulders.

It is now up to Alger and he must show whether there was foundation on for those threats or whether they were merely a part of a bluffing game he played to try to remain in the cabinet, after he knew that he was expected to get out. Another scheme is also being worked to keep Alger quiet through the pockets of himself and friends. It has been hinted to him that some Cuban and Porto Rican business deals in which he and his friends are financially interested will be knocked out if he attempts to smirch the administration, while they will be left alone if he keeps mum about administration secrets.

The Navy Department seems also to have some fake experts. In order to prevent the battleships Ohio, Missouri, and Maine, now being built, drawing so much water that they could not enter half of our largest seaports, it has been found necessary to change their plans, by substituting 11 inch for 12 inch armor and 12 inch guns for 13 inch guns.

Representative Clayton, of Ala., attended the recent meeting of the Democratic National Committee, of which he is a member, and while in Washington, this week, he talked very interestingly of political matters. For instance, he said: "I learned while in Chicago that Bryan would be a delegate to the next National Democratic Convention, and I do not violate any confidence in saying that if future developments should give a peculiar emphasis to any public question, and should lead a majority of the delegates to regard any other faithful democrat as better fitted to lead the party, Mr Bryan will arise in his place in the Convention and support that candidate. I know that he has no selfish purposes to serve, and regards victory for the party as paramount to any ambitious which he may have. I look upon Bryan's renomination as a foregone conclusion. He has the confidence of the common democracy of the country, as no other man has or could have. The democratic masses support him without regard to section. He is stronger than any faction of the party, and can come nearer to uniting all the elements of the party than any other man."

If Secretary Root is to be only the legal adviser of the War Department, who is going to direct its military affairs? That is likely to become an important question when operations in the Philippines begin again. Gen. Miles would be the proper official, but there is nothing in sight to indicate that he is to be allowed any more authority than he was wielded since Adjutant General Corbin began, at the opening of the war with Spain, to perform the duties which properly belonged to the Commanding general of the army. It was supposed that Alger directed Corbin, and it has been intimated that Mr. McKinley will do so in the future. Mr. McKinley was doubtless a brave soldier, b it the historians neglected to record the campaigns in which he commanded an army. Of course, every school boy knows that the Constitution makes the President commander-in-chief of the U. S. armey and navy, but that authority has usually only been exercised to direct a general policy, leaving military operations to be directed by trained soldiers. Perhaps Mr. McKinley intends giving the country an innovation by actualy assuming command of the army and navy.

The newspaper censorship of Gen. Otis can not be duplicated in this country, but perhaps Mr. McKinley intended to show his sympathy for the method when he ordered that no newspaper men should be allowed in the special train which carried him and his party from Washington to the shores of Lake Champlain, where he will remain for an indefinite period

This is the first time that any president has objected to being accompanied by newsmen, when going from Washington on a pleasure trip.

Before leaving Washington, Mr. McKinley made a positive promise to Gen. Garcia that as soon as the Cuban census was completed he would issue the necessary orders for the holding of municipal elections all over the island, preparatory to the establishment of independent home rule.

NEED HELP GREATLY

Gen. and Mrs. Henry Plead for Best of Aid for Porto Ricans.

Are Anxious to Become Americans—Can Be Won by Affection and Sympathy—Education Needed First of All.

Mrs. Guy V. Henry, wife of Gen. Henry, United States army, who was with her husband in Porto Rico during the time that he served as military governor of that island, addressed a large meeting of downtown business men of New York city the other night.

"Business is at a standstill in that island," said Mrs. Henry, "and the people are very poor. The sugar mills have no one in them except half a dozen people. The women are poor and idle. There is no work for them to do. There are many women in Porto Rico who were supported by pensions from the Spanish government. That has been taken away from them and there is much poverty in Porto Rico.

"The question now is: 'What shall we do with our new colonies?' Send them, I say, our very best. Let us not look to Great Britain to see what she has done in India. Let us send the very best of everything that we can give—the best of every profession, the best of everything in a commercial sense. I want to say to you that we must do this at once; that it can be done by putting our shoulders to the wheel, the same as the aid society did down in San Juan.

"I have been told that I must not say they are starving in Porto Rico, but you may find out that before I get through. When Gen. Henry and I went to the capital of Porto Rico, San Juan, we found that there was desperate need for help there, and we decided to start an aid society. We sent our appeals to the army and navy men and women down there. In response to our appeals some 20 or 30 women assembled for the purpose of organizing a relief or aid society."

Mrs. Henry then went on to tell how this aid society had raised money, bought goods and made clothes, and relieved the distress of the people as far as its resources would allow.

Gen. Henry supplemented his wife's address by the brief statement that the great need of the Porto Ricans was education and the opportunity to help themselves. They wanted to become Americans, he said, but they did not want to be Americanized. They were willing to be governed by the laws of this country, but they did not want to be overrun by carpet-baggers. The people of Porto Rico could be won by affection and sympathy, and they were looking to this country eagerly for the means of improving their condition.

DEATH OF VINEGAR DRINKER.

Christ Schurman is dead at the St. Clair county farm, St. Louis, a victim of his appetite for vinegar, which he drank as other men drink beer or whisky. Schurman lived at the county farm 16 years. He contracted the habit shortly after being admitted. He had been a regular user of intoxicants. At the farm he could not obtain the stimulants he had been accustomed to. He sought for a substitute. In the cellar storeroom he found the vinegar barrels and drank greedily. The stuff produced a sort of mild intoxication. The superintendent could not imagine how Schurman got anything to drink.

After that at intervals his condition showed that he had been drinking large quantities of something, but it could not be discovered where he got it. He was employed in the kitchen and was known to the other inmates as "Kifchen John." He had free access to the cellar, where the vinegar was kept.

Finally one day he was caught draining a measure of vinegar and the mystery was explained. After that he was watched, but he was so useful in the kitchen that his services could not well be dispensed with and in spite of all vigilance he occasionally got on a vinegar drunk. When he could not get to the vinegar barrel he would drain the vinegar cruets. His indulgence brought on nephritis, which caused his death.

DRIVEN INSANE BY A DREAM.

Missouri Woman Has a Vision of Her Husband Being Ground to Pieces.

Mrs. John Williams, of Sedalia, Mo., has become mentally deranged and is in a critical condition as a result of a dream. In her sleep, she declared, she saw her husband's train wrecked and himself ground to pieces. So realistic was her vision that she awoke with a scream. Mrs. Williams and her husband, who is a brakeman, are both believers of Christian science, and after exhausting all the endeavors of the local believers in her behalf a message was sent to St. Louis, and she is being treated by the absent method. She continues to grow steadily worse. Williams was badly injured in a wreck in 1886 and he claims that after months of suffering he was permanently cured by a Kansas City healer.

Another Triumph of Surgery.

Surgery has successfully achieved the feat of restoring lost memory and speech. A blow on the skull from a falling piece of timber rendered Eugene Brazee, of Geneva, N. Y., partly paralyzed on the right side, as well as causing the trouble mentioned. An operation revealed rupture of one of the blood vessels of the brain. The removal of over half a pint of blood clots effected an entire recovery of the patient.

HOBSON AT HONG-KONG.

Naval Constructor Hobson has broken his long and mysterious silence by a brief and formal report from Hong-Kong. He is now the only constructor on the Asiatic station, his senior in the corps, W. L. Capps, being on the Olympia with Admiral Dewey. Hobson is intrusted, therefore, with the important work of repairing and overhauling the ships in the Asiatic waters, and with restoring the prizes for service in the navy. Hobson has been working under Dewey's direct orders, and since the admiral's departure from Manila Secretary Long has decided it would be in the interest of promptness if the general work on the station were carried on with as little correspondence as possible. The present report from Hobson is in regard to the Isla de Luzon, Isla de Cuba, and Isla de Austria, for each of which he recommends a refrigerator plant. The suggestion has been approved by the navy department, and the necessary appliances will be purchased at once. It is likely that much if not all of the apparatus can be procured on the station. Neither ship requires much else to put it in efficient condition.

Naval officers of Hobson's corps say he has not been treated fairly by officers of the line, and they resent the insinuation that Hobson has been snubbed by Dewey and other officers on the Asiatic fleet. They say, moreover, that Hobson was cruelly misrepresented while he was in this country, and some of them go so far as to assert that there was a combination against the famous constructor to injure his chances of getting into the line. It was figured out that if he were transferred to the line as lieutenant commander he would attain the highest grade in the navy and occupy it for a long period. It developed that there was much antagonism to Hobson among naval officers and his ambitions and the recommendations of the secretary were successfully opposed.

ONLY LEGACY WAS A CURSE.

Dr. Hinkle's Father Kicked Him and He Never Forgave the Indignity.

When the will of Dr. Harry Conrad Hinkle was filed for probate at San Francisco it was found to contain this novel and extraordinary bequest:

"I leave to J. M. Hinkle my undying curse for the wicked kick which he gave me to-day. May God give rest to my weary soul. In the name of God, amen."

Father and son were members of the National Surgical company here and did a business of $35,000 a year. Dr. J. M. Hinkle lives at 1604 Franklin street, Oakland. About three years ago they quarreled. The younger man went to Victoria, B. C., married and settled down to practice his profession. His father again and again postponed settling up the business and in February, 1897, Dr. H. C. Hinkle returned here to compel a settlement. The men came to blows. The son declared his father had kicked him with fearful violence. Immediately thereafter the son became ill and he died July 13, 1897.

His widow, a sensitive woman, did not wish the quarrel to be known. To have tampered with the will, to have obliterated the curse, would have been to destroy its validity, so she readily agreed with her husband's family that she would not file the will if they would hand over to her her husband's property. But a few days ago she learned that an agent of her father-in-law had applied for letters of administration on her husband's estate, swearing that there was no will and that his family were his heirs.

Then the will was filed and then the skeleton in the Hinkle closet was discovered.

NOW FOR STRANGLING BUG.

Philadelphia Tells of a Hostile Insect That Is Visiting Us from Africa.

A formidable rival to the kissing bug, which has put in an appearance in Philadelphia, is known as the strangling bug. William J. Burris, 1267 North Tenth street, was attacked by a species of the pest late at night. According to Burris the bug appeared and began to circle around his head. He attempted to drive it away, but it kept up the attack, and finally he succeeded in killing it by a blow from his hat.

The bug is nearly three inches in length, while its wings from tip to tip measures five inches. It is of a brownish color and resembles somewhat a huge locust.

A few nights ago such an insect attacked a dog, and after it had been killed was examined by Norwood Todd, of New York, an African explorer, who declared it to be a strangling bug and said that in northern Africa the bug attacks the throat, sucking the blood until it is filled.

Not Quite Unique.

Two months ago a collector paid the extravagant sum of £130 for a copy of Rudyard Kipling's earliest known work, "Schoolboy Lyrics," and hugged it to his bibliophilist breast in the belief that it was, as the catalogue stated, "absolutely unique." But the realization of so astounding a price for these youthful effusions, says the Liverpool Courier, led to the ransacking of other libraries, with the result that no fewer than three other copies have been unearthed and sent to the auction room.

Machine to Cure Stammering.

In a Pennsylvanian's device for the cure of stammering a pair of slotted metallic plates are connected by a narrow neck and bent into close proximity to be placed on either side of the tongue the neck having an adjusting screw to clamp the plates in place.

Adopt American Tactics.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 31. — An officer of one of the volunteer regiments in the Philippines has written the following letter to the Associated Press:

"Manila, June 27.

"The arrival of the rainy season finds the insurrection as vigorous as it has been any time since the outbreak.

The insurgent armies are well recruited, notwithstanding their heavy losses and are well fed and clothed.

They have profited by their five months' of warfare against the Americans. They are fast adopting American tactics and are becoming better disciplined and more skilful in the use of their weapons every day. One hundred thousand soldiers should be here ready for business by the beginning of the dry season in November. Garrisons could then be stationed at strategic points.

"A continuous warfare can't be carried on in this evervating climate by the same troops. Frequent reliefs are necessary. "Troops should not be kept here longer than necessary. Men from a northern climate retain their native vigor for six or eight months after arriving here, and then begin to succumb to the various ailments of tropical weather This is exemplified in the cases of the volunteers and those regulars who have been in the Philippines since last summer. The most of them are saturated with malaria, many have rheumatism and all are greatly debilitated. They are unfit for futher duty and recuperation seems slow and unsatisfactory. As it is with them, so it is likely to be with their successors.

"The eight millions of Filipinos are as highly civilized as twelve million of Mexico.

"If the American people will imagine the United States have acquired Mexico against her will and engaged in an attempt to put down a universal rebellion of Mexicans with 20,000 troops they will have a duplicate picture at close range of the situation in the Philippines, with the exception that the climate of the Philippines is from 10 to 15 degrees more tropical than that of Mexico."

This year's production of beet sugar in the United States is estimated at 122,000 tons from 144,100 acres, a fourfold increase in one year.

Out of the 1,200 who belong to the Twentieth Kansas, the famous regiment which followed the daring lead of Gen. Funston, but 18 are of foreign birth, and more than half of the regiment are sons of Kansas farmers. It is a typical regiment of American volunteers.

The Ferris wheel of the Chicago world's fair is to be outdone at the Paris exposition. R. E. Sherman, a Yankee genius, will build a gigantic umbrella 350 feet high. To the end of each rib of the umbrella will be attached a car, which will convey the sight-seers up and down.

A wise plan is to be adopted for the purpose of keeping paupers out of the Klondike, so that there will be no repetition of the suffering and starvation of poorly supplied miners. Newcomers will have to have $700 in cash, or six months provisions and $200 in cash, before they are permitted to enter Dawson.

Dr. Felix Brunet, a surgeon of the French navy, has perfected a means of removing tattoo marks. Many who bear these marks grow tired of them, and, with advancing years, desire their removal, but, heretofore, they have found it expensive and difficult to do so, and in some cases ordinary methods fail altogether.

At Aberystwyth, Wales, a wedding was solemnized lately in which all the parties concerned bore the name of Jones. The bridegroom was Richard Jones, and the bride was Elizabeth Jane Jones. The witnesses were John Robert Jones and Anne Jones. The minister was Rev. R. E. Jones and the registrar Rev. William Jones.

Something new in the way of municipal government is the report of the city American administration of the city of Cienfuegos, Cuba, showing a surplus revenue of $12,000 for the month of June. This is the first time in the history of Cuba that any city has shown a surplus. Spanish rule abhorred a surplus as nature does a vacuum.

Nicholas Lebrun, the composer of the Lincoln dead march, written on a week's notice for the funeral of the great war president, was borne to his grave in St. Louis recently to the strains of that solemn requiem. The playing of the dead march at President Lincoln's funeral in Springfield, Ill., by a band of 100 pieces, in which a chorus of 1,000 voices took up a chant at intervals, was personally directed by Lebrun, who was then in the prime of life. He was over 80 years of age at the time of his death.

According to a tabulated statement just issued by the treasury department the exports of manufactures from the United States have increased 110 per cent. in the past ten years. This is far ahead of the gain made in any other country. Germany shows an increase of 13 per cent. in that time, France of 10 per cent., Switzerland of 6 per cent. and the Netherlands of 3 per cent. England in the ten years has made no gain in exports of manufactures. The United States is gaining a strong foothold in the markets of the leading nations of the old world.

Canada may keep her Klondike! We do not want it, if the reports now coming from Alaska concerning the rich gold fields in the Cape Nome district are even approximately correct. And the best of it is that Cape Nome is so remote from the Canadian line that even the most enterprising land claimer can find no possible ground for disputing Uncle Sam's title. Of course the stories of almost fabulous wealth are subject to some discount, but even if they are 25 per cent. correct it is evident that a wonderful new source of wealth has been opened up.

What is the matter with this old world any way? What is the secret of all this mysterious activity in its internals? Vesuvius is belching, Aetna has broken out, earthquakes are shaking Rome, typhoons are tearing about in the orient, Mauna Loa is vomiting lava at such a rate that the fate of Hawaii is in question, southern California is shaken up every day or two by earthquakes, new geysers are spouting in the Yellowstone park, and old ones are throwing up rocks and hot water from new apertures. Will the scientists tell us what all this means?

IT IS YELLOW FEVER.

Washington, Aug. 1.—The latest official advices received up to eight o'clock Monday night show a total of 37 cases and seven deaths from yellow fever at the soldiers' home at Hampton, Va. One new case occurred at the home Monday. Thus far the disease has been confined to the home, but all surrounding towns are excited and a vigorous quarantine is being maintained. Dr. Wasdin, of the marine hospital service, is in charge of affairs at Hampton, and is working in cooperation with the local board of health. He has strengthened the cordon about the town of Phoebus, which he reports is in a very bad sanitary condition. The fact that only one new case appeared Monday is encouraging to the officials here, who are taking every measure to prevent a spread of the disease. They feel that the fact that the affected locality is in the hands of the government and under one management will be of great value in dealing with the scourge, and enable better results to be obtained than where epidemics break out in commercial places.

Dr. Wasdin in the official report of his examination of the existing conditions at the soldiers' home sums up the history of the contagion as follows:

"Early in July an 'old soldier' entered the home for a short rest, and soon afterward appeared at the dispensary, where he informed the physician in charge that he was but recently from Santiago via a transport to a northern port; thence he started for Manila via San Francisco; beat his way to the home on a freight train and entered with his baggage. He complained of dumb chills and fever, and was prescribed for. He mingled freely with the inmates of the home, and a short time ago disappeared. From this as a possible cause the outbreak is as follows: Preceding Friday, the 21st instant, there had been noticed nothing of a suspicious nature. The weekly death rate was as usual. But on the 21st and 22nd there became ill during the night, with sharp or less chill, high fever, some eight or ten inmates, men of usually good health. These seizures, although noted as peculiar, had occasioned no alarm until about Thursday, the 27th, when a death occurred, the man becoming distinctly yellow some time prior to death. On or about the same day another one died without having attracted particular attention; he also turned quite yellow. Autopsies were held on both by the resident pathologist. It was then, or a little later, that the telegram was sent you asking for an expert. I found there was 3,500 inmates, and that 35 had been taken ill since the 21st."

HANNA SELLS OUT.

The Ohio Senator Disposes of Valuable Properties to the National Steel Company.

Cleveland, O., July 28.—A big transaction involving the transfer of property worth several millions of dollars from M. A. Hanna & Co. to the National Steel company, was consummated Thursday. The sale, according to the best information obtainable, includes the iron mining property of M. A. Hanna & Co., in Michigan, as well as its fleet of vessels on the lakes. The list of the property is as follows: The famous Chapin mine, at Iron Mountain, Mich.; the lands of the Winthrop Iron company, of Ishpeming, Mich., including 160 acres of mining land; the Mutual Transportation company's fleet, which includes the steamers Coralia, Corsica, Corona and Cambria, and the Menominee Transportation company's boats, which are the steamers Grecian, Roman, German, Saxon and Britain. This transaction, which is one of the largest of recent years, means that M. A. Hanna & Co. are to retire from the mining and transportation business. It is also known that the firm is negotiating for the sale of its coal mining property in the Pittsburgh district to the recently formed soft coal trust.

Fatal Boating Party.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 29.—A special to the Sentinel from Evansville, Ind., says: August Mattingly, 17; Pearl Cheaney, 14, and Marion Onana were drowned in the Ohio river in front of the city Friday night, and three of their companions narrowly escaped. About five o'clock p. m. Mattingly, in company with John Cheaney, William Cheaney and Pearl Cheaney, of this city, and Misses Teresa and Marion Onana, of Henderson, Ky., started out for a hay ride, and reaching the river at 7:30 o'clock, decided to take a skiff ride. They were out about an hour when their boat was caught in the current and capsized in front of the mail line wharf boat. Fifty or more people were on the wharf boat, but none offered to go to the rescue.

Want More Pay.

Milwaukee, July 28.—A special from Ironwood, Mich., says 500 miners employed in the big Norrie mine, owned by the Oliver Mining company, have made a demand for an increase in wages amounting to about 20 per cent. The company is given three days to consider the proposition. The company claims that the men agreed to ask for no further raise for a year when their last raise was given in December. It is thought an agreement will be reached without any trouble. It is said the miners are taking advantage of a scarcity of men. In all, 2,600 men are employed in the Norrie.

Defends Himself.

Washington, Aug. 1. — One of Secretary Alger's last official acts before turning the office over to his successor was to prepare a statement covering several matters regarding the conduct of the war which have been the subject of criticism in the public press, particularly with reference to the appointment of staff officers in the volunteer army.

Ruin by Hail.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 1.—A special to the Times from Hamilton, N. D., says: At 4:30 Monday afternoon a hailstorm swept over a stretch from Tynes, between Cavalier and Hamilton, to Glasston, 12 miles long and five miles wide. The destruction is total. The damage amounts to $250,000 and is in one of the finest wheat sections in the state.

Successful Balloon Voyage.

London, July 31.—Percival Spencer, the famous aeronaut, with a companion named Pollock, started in a balloon from the Crystal palace at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, and arrived at Dieppe, France, a mile and a half inland, at eight o'clock in the evening. The balloon reached an altitude of 12,000 feet. The trip was without incident.

CALAMBA CAPTURED.

Gen. Hall, with 1,000 Men, Takes an Important Town on Laguna de Bay.

Manila, July 28.—Brig. Gen. R. H. Hall, with 1,000 men, has captured Calamba on Laguna de Bay. The loss to the United States forces was four killed and 12 wounded.

After the fight a dozen men holding up their hands and shouting "Castillanos," met the American cavalry. Even Spanish soldiers embraced the Americans hysterically. There were 50 Spanish prisoners at Calamba, of whom some were civil officials and some were soldiers. They had been given the choice of joining the Filipino army or becoming servants to Filipinos, and chose the army, intending to surrender at the first opportunity. Most of the civilians reached the American lines during the fighting, but the insurgents took others away with them in their retreat.

Thursday Gen. Hall brought to Manila the Spaniards whom the expedition had released from captivity of more than a year.

The force comprised 400 of the Washington volunteers, 450 of the Twenty-first infantry; 150 of the Fourth cavalry, and two guns of the First artillery.

Calamba is a town on Laguna de Bay about 30 miles southeast of Manila. It is much farther south than the United States troops have yet penetrated on land. It is in the province of Laguna. It has a population of 11,476, and is 27 miles from Santa Cruz on the eastern shore of the bay. Its capture is not considered of any strategical importance, except as a part of the plan to harass and worry the insurgents.

POISONS A FAMILY.

Mrs. George Crabtree Confesses an Awful Crime at Carmi, Ill.—Brother Dead; Parents Sick.

Carmi, Ill., July 28.—Mrs. George Crabtree, 16 years old, confessed Thursday to having put poison in coffee with deliberate intent to murder her stepmother and father, Walter S. Warthen. The result of the act was that her brother was killed and her parents and a neighbor were made deathly sick. Mrs. Crabtree said she did not mean to kill her brother. She expressed little regret as to her father and stepmother, saying that her father objected to her visits to see her child, which is in possession of her husband. Mrs. Crabtree confessed to having put rat poison in the coffee and afterward poured some of the poison on the cabbage. She is said to be the victim of an ungovernable temper and has threatened to end her life several times since her separation from her husband. It is said by the neighbors that she has been considered a wayward girl, and her father sought to hold her in restraint, at which she took offense. She is a kleptomaniac.

LIST OF FATALITIES.

A Total of 736 Deaths Among Americans in the Philippines Up to June 2, 1899.

Seattle, Wash., July 29.—The Times prints what purports to be a full list of fatalities in the American army in the Philippines up to June 2. The list was furnished by Fred E. Eitell, a representative of the Manila Freedom, who claims to have obtained it from the records of the surgeon general's office at Manila. The total number of fatalities is 736; 23 officers, 699 privates and 14 civilians, attached to the army. A remarkable feature of the record is found in the statement that the number of officers killed in battle is out of all proportion to the number of privates killed. On the other hand, fewer officers died from disease proportionately than privates. Out of the 23 officers dead, 16 were killed in action, two were drowned and five died of disease.

Congress Is Ended.

The Hague, July 31. — The international peace conference held its final sitting Saturday, when it was announced that 16 states had signed the arbitration convention, 15 the other two conventions, 17 the declaration prohibiting the throwing of projectiles or explosives from balloons, 16 the declaration prohibiting the use of asphyxiating gas and 15 the declaration prohibiting the use of expansive bullets. A letter was read from the queen of Holland to the pope, asking his moral support of the conference. The pope's reply, which was read, promised cooperation, recalled the fact that he had many times performed the function of arbitrator, and assured her majesty that, in spite of his present abnormal position, the pope would continue to seek the advancement of civilization.

Three Drowned.

Ashland, Wis., July 31.—During a sudden storm on Chequamegon bay W. C. Ott, of Chicago, Mrs. Boynton and Miss Nellie Boynton were drowned by their boat capsizing. The overturned skiff, the oars and the cushions were all found floating near a dock Saturday morning. Mrs. Boynton and daughter were prominent residents in Ashland and well known. The bodies of Mr. Ott and Miss Boynton were recovered.

Will Be Dedicated September 20.

Chattanooga, Tenn., July 28. — The Wilder monument in Chickamauga park has been completed, and the Wilder Bridge association, composed of old federal soldiers in Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky and Tennessee, will dedicate the monument on September 20. Gov. Mount of Indiana has accepted an invitation to deliver an address.

Bank Absorbed.

Louisville, Ky., July 31.—After an existence of 56 years the Bank of Louisville, the oldest financial institution of this city, is to be absorbed by the Southern national bank. An agreement between the directors of the two banks has been reached, but the terms of the absorption were not made public.

Landslide Causes a Wreck.

Port Jervis, N. Y., July 31.—In an accident on the Erie railroad growing out of the landslide a mile east of Lackawaxen Saturday night the fireman and engineer of the derailed engine of the west-bound Chicago express, which turned over on the track, were killed, and 20 passengers were injured.

LAW AND ORDER WINNING.

Mayor Farley Pleased with Situation in Cleveland Strike—Messengers' Strike Ended.

Cleveland, O., July 29.—Slowly and surely law and order are triumphing over lawlessness and disorder, and the city is beginning to resume its old-time appearance. Friday the street cars were well patronized, especially during the busy hours of the morning and evening. This is said to be the best indication that the government is winning in the struggle. Mayor Farley is well pleased with the situation, but he has not relaxed his vigilance one whit, and will not until the last vestige of disorder is wiped away.

A car returning from Euclid Beach park was blown up by dynamite about 11 o'clock Friday night while returning to the city. The explosion took place a short distance north of the Lake Shore railroad, about two miles east of the city limits. The front truck was demolished and the floor of the car shattered. There were no passengers on board, and the motorman and conductor escaped without injury.

The boycott movement is spreading rapidly. It is not only being put in force against retail merchants, but wholesalers also. In some sections of the city persons who are known to ride on the Big Consolidated cars cannot purchase articles of food from butchers and grocers.

Cincinnati, July 29.—The strike of the messenger boys, after a run of one week, is practically over. Neither the Western Union nor the Postal made any concessions. After the companies operated with new boys for the past two days, most of the strikers applied for reinstatement to-day but they are compelled to take their turns with recent applications and the recently organized union will not be recognized by either company.

TRADE REVIEW.

Conditions in Business and Industrial Circles as Seen by Leading Commercial Agencies.

New York, July 29.—Bradstreet's says: "Weather conditions exercise their natural effect upon the volume of current business, which is, however, larger than a year ago, and restrict speculation, therefore limiting the volume of bank clearings, without, however, exercising any particular influence upon prices, which display nearly all their old firmness and, in fact, show still further advances in several lines. Special activity in the iron and steel industry is reported at Chicago, where heavy advances have been made in finished products, and numerous shipments are reported not only to Ohio and Pennsylvania, but as far east as Boston. Every blast furnace in the Birmingham district is expected to be in operation by the advent of autumn, but the production for the latter part of the year 1899, which promises to be enormous, has all been booked. The glass trade is reported particularly active, and conditions in that industry are said to be the best for years past. The cereal markets note little change in price, but trade opinion seems to favor steady demand and few fluctuations, in view of admittedly large necessary takings by foreigners. Liberal rains at the south, particularly in the Atlantic coast states, have improved cotton prospects and a slight shading in price is to be noted for the week."

IS A CANDIDATE.

Toledo, O., July 31. — Samuel M. Jones, mayor of Toledo, has finally decided to enter the race for the Ohio gubernatorial seat as an independent candidate. Mayor Jones, in an open letter to the voters of the state, says that he will never again affiliate himself with any political party, but will make "equal rights for all the people" his one principle. He dwells at length on the fact that both the chief political bodies have ignored the workingmen's demands and agrees to devote his time to the campaign if assured the support of a representative number of citizens.

Gov. Candler's Appeal.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 1.—Gov. Candler has issued an appeal to the people of Georgia to join hands and put an end to mob violence in the state. The governor believes that the only way to restore a condition of peace and tranquillity and to bring an end to the lawlessness that has been manifested in different parts of the state is for the people to uphold the courts, aid them in bringing to speedy justice all criminals, and by the strong force of a virile public sentiment bring punishment to lawbreakers of all kinds.

Kentucky Populists Meet.

Frankfort, Ky., July 28.—The populist state convention Thursday named a full state ticket. John G. Blair, of Nicholas county, was nominated for governor by acclamation. The platform adopted indorses Wharton Barker, of Philadelphia, for president and Ignatius Donnelly, of Minnesota, for vice president. It reaffirms the former populist national platform and declares in favor of government ownership of all public institutions as a means of stamping out trusts, emphasizing the government ownership of railroads.

Damage by a Storm.

Omaha, Neb., July 29.—A special to the Bee from Clear Lake, Deuel county, S. D., says: A hail and windstorm struck this vicinity about four o'clock Friday afternoon and did considerable damage. The storm covered a strip of territory four miles wide and ten miles long, wiping out wheat fields that would have yielded 25,000 bushels of grain. Several farmers have lost their entire crops. Considerable window glass was broken and stock somewhat hurt by the hailstones, which were of large size.

Ordered to Manila.

Washington, July 29.—The navy department has ordered a battalion of marines, 358 in all, to proceed to Manila and take station at the Cavite navy yard, to reenforce the small contingent now there. The war department will furnish transportation for the marines, carrying them on steamers leaving San Francisco on the 8th and 15th of August.

McLean Out for Governor.

Columbus, O., July 31.—The positive entrance of John R. McLean into the Ohio political arena as a candidate for governor continues to influence the active minds of democratic manipulators. McLean has authorized the announcement and Lewis G. Bernard, a Cincinnati regulator of political affairs, has opened headquarters at the Palace hotel in that city.

Some Inside Information by a Waiter from the Bowery Who Helped Serve It.

One of the waiters at a popular local restaurant is a bird of passage from the Bowery and was a member of the small army that served the famous "Dollar Dinner" in New York last April. A good many stories have been told of that memorable event, but none of them surpass his own in point of picturesqueness and inside detail. "It was the funniest push I was ever in in me life," he says, confidentially. "The kitchen was so small they had to cook everything on the outside, and when it got there it was dead cold. The second course was haddock, and each fish come served in a linen bag, so we could put 'em in tubs of hot water and warm 'em up—see? Well, some of the boys got rattled and served 'em bags and all, with egg sauce over th' outside. Say, you'd of died laughing seeing them fellers tryin' to carve their fish. 'This is the toughest auld haddock I iver tackled in me life,' says one Tammany man at the head table; 'it's got a skin like a rhinoceris,' says he. In the kitchen there was a riot all night long. It was so small the waiters couldn't reach the dishers-up and they got to scrapping for front places in the line. One man was knocked stiff with a turkey, and when they picked him up I thought he was dead. I did, on the level. But it wasn't blood. It was only cranberry sauce. Another flunkey fell into the salad and one of the cooks put a can of ice cream in the oven, thinking it was brown gravy for the beef. That's on the square—just as I'm tellin' you! But the worst of all was when we came to the wine. It was 'Merican champagne in half pints, without ice, and of all the kicking and hollering! One fresh gent told me it was the only thing he had had that night that was good and warm, and he had hardly said it when a waiter that was a little jagged accidentally poured about a quart of boilin' coffee down the back of his neck. Say, you ought of heard him cuss! Between you and me, a good many waiters got to hitting the wine, and they found one of 'em with 15 empty bottles in his pants leg. That's honest. I saw it myself. It was the hottest banquet I was ever at."—N. O. Times-Democrat.

The Battle Field Route.

The Veterans of sixty-one and five and their friends, who are going to attend the 33rd G. A. R. Annual Encampment at Philadelphia in September, could not select a better nor more historic route than the Big Four, Chesapeake & Ohio, with splendid service from Chicago, Peoria and St. Louis on the Big Four, all connecting at Indianapolis or Cincinnati and thence over the Picturesque Chesapeake & Ohio along the Ohio river to Huntington, West Va., thence through the foot-hills of the Alleghanies, over the Mountains, through the famous Springs Region of Virginia to Staunton, Va., between which point and Washington are many of the most prominent Battlefields: Waynesboro, Gordonsville, Cedar Mountain, Rappahannock, Kettle Run, Manassas, Bull Run, Fairfax, and a score of others nearly as prominent. Washington is next, and thence via the Pennsylvania Line direct to Philadelphia. There will be three rates in effect for this business: 1st. Continuous passage, with no stop-over privilege; 2nd. Going and coming same route with one stop-over in each direction; 3d. Circuitous route, going one way and back another with one stop-over in each direction. For full information as to Routes, Rates, etc., address J. C. Tucker, G. N. A., 234 Clark St., Chicago.

His Strike.

"Did you know that Jimcox had returned from the Klondike?"

"Yes."

"He made a big strike, I guess."

"Why do you think so?"

"I met him out at one of the gardens. He was blowing the boys off to a good time and was telling them some great stories about the country up there."

"Oh! Then you must have run across him just after I had been fool enough to let him have five dollars with which to get a new start in life."—Chicago Times-Herald.

The Kidnaping Trust.

"What have you done with the child?" asked the chief kidnaper.

"Just boxed his ears," replied the eighth assistant accomplice.

"Good!" exclaimed the chief. "Now, address the box to that yellow journal, and write the editor that we will furnish exclusive clews to the whereabouts of the remainder of the child for $10,000, less two per cent. for spot cash."—Standard and Catholic Times.

CAN'T BALK REFORM

BUT GOVERNOR LIND WILL REORGANIZE THE GRAIN DEPARTMENT.

"Forward, March!" the State and National Word of Command—The Fiasco of the Re-Election of Grain Inspector Clausen—Summary of Results of the Great Chicago Meeting—Next Year's Campaign Forecast in Burning Issues That Will Move the People—Dubbing McKinley "Emperor"—The Secret of W. J. Bryan's Power—Sir Moreton Frewen and News from Hon. C. A. Towne—Strikes and "Good Times," Fifty-Cent Wheat and Four-Cent Cotton—How "Business Conditions" Decrease Property Valuations—Twin City Note and Comment of the Week.

Reform Press Bureau.
ST. PAUL, July 31, 1899.

The state political event of the week, and of the whole administration in fact, to this point, has been the open attempt of two members of the grain and warehouse commission to thwart reform in that department by the re-appointment of Chief Inspector A. C. Clausen. The issue of reform has been drawn at this line for so many years, and it had been so taken for granted that Clausen would go, especially after his condemnation by the Republican legislative investigating committee, and by the state press regardless of party, that his sudden reappointment created a sensation in most quarters. The exception was with those having inside knowledge of how futile would be the efforts of the enemies of reform.

While at this writing definite results cannot be stated, it is perfectly safe to reassure all who might fear that Governor Lind would not be able to reorganize the department. To those who know the governor it will be sufficient to say that he promptly imformed the grain and warehouse board that under no circumstances would he consent to Mr. Clausen remaining at the head of the department. If the two members had reappointed Mr. Clausen, in order to express their personal feeling toward him, as a mere compliment, the governor had no objection; but he informed them flatly that he should insist upon the displacement of the Inspector by one at least in sympathy with the purposes of the administration.

Governor Lind's determination to permit nothing to interfere with the pledge to the people for this reform, if within his power to accomplish it, recognizes the fact that this has been the political aim of the reform forces of Minnesota for a number of years. In 1892 and 1894 it was represented in the campaign made by Hon. S. M. Owen, whose defeat was then accomplished by means resembling those to which current report ascribes the present effort to retain Inspector Clausen. That Governor Lind recommended and Commissioner Ringdahl supported ex-Senator Reishus for Clausen's place, besides recognizing his ability and fitness, was no doubt largely in recognition of his connection with the long struggle that has been made for such reform.

Our friends, the enemy, have given circulation to all manner of misleading reports, but they will all react upon their own heads. And when all the facts can be made known, which will depend upon how far Mr. Clausen's supporters may have the courage and bad judgment to go, the whole story will be entertaining to the people.

Governor Lind's letter to Senator Miller demonstrated, as nothing else could, with what careful scrutiny and deliberation every bill was considered that came up for executive approval. It demonstrated, too, that in John Lind the legislative schemers had to deal with a man of eminent ability, a lawyer as well equipped to determine the scope and pass upon the merits of a public measure as any in the state. No mere passage through two both houses went with him. It had to be good law and good legislation or it wasn't signed.

Now does anyone think the people are going to fail to appreciate the value of that kind of a man?

To put into a few lines an adequate summary of the spirit and results of the Chicago meeting of last week, would be a difficult task for the most gifted. Suffice it to say that there was a representation of the allied forces, outside the Democratic organization, representing quite as many states as the national Democratic committee was represented by, the latter being general. While not a dissenting voice was heard throughout the committee's deliberations, the other forces, equally harmonious, expressed their sentiments toward the new Democracy, by unquestionably tendering their aid and co-operation. This was done by a committee of the Silver men, consisting of one from each state, Minnesota being represented. The great popular event was the Auditorium meeting, which for numbers, character, enthusiasm and spirit, is said to have rarely, if ever, been equalled, even in that city of great meetings. In fact the meeting ran away from its managers, overturned the set programme which provided for covering the various sections, including Minnesota, and feasted on the national celebrities present. Our great leader, Bryan, was the grand, central figure, while ex-Governor Altgeld, as the author of the Chicago Platform, received such an ovation as would repay years of almost martyrdom in a holy cause. Thanks to the masterly tactics of Mr. Bryan, the great Altgeld-Harrison factional fight shrinks into small consequence, with each faction pledged to the same thing for next year—to deliver Illinois.

Unswerving devotion to the Chicago platform, declaration of war on trusts, uncompromising opposition to imperialism, militarism and all foreign alliances and entanglements, the fixed determination to hold the McKinley administration to strict responsibility for mal-administration and inefficiency, with an enthusiastic devotion to Bryan which accepts his leadership as God-given; such is the forecast of the campaign of 1900.

Among falsehoods industriously circulated by the Republican press, none are more vicious than imputations against ex-Governor Stone of Missouri. He is loyal to Bryan, as he is loyal to the Chicago platform and to the issues that have since arisen. Expressive of the confidence in him he was made vice chairman, the office having been created for that special purpose. Governor Stone is one of the ablest men of country, and when the time comes for calling a Southern man to lead Democracy, the governor's friends will be heard from.

It is a just but strange comment, that not a daily paper in the Twin Cities, except the Globe, has correctly presented the spirit or action of the Chicago meeting. To such extent are the reports of the associated press misleading.

The same is true regarding Editor Devlin of the Press Bureau. He was neither deposed nor censured except by implication for taking sides in the Altgeld-Harrison troubles, and continues to issue the National Bulletin. Upon the return of Chairman Jones a press committee will be appointed to have charge of all such work. Plans for the whole are now under consideration by Hon. George H. Shibley and Willis J. Abbott, the able journalist, until recently editor of the New York Journal.

Never did Mr. Bryan seem so great, in the opportunity of comparing him with other able national characters. What is the secret of his power? The National Watchman well answers that it is his absolute honesty. He makes no mistakes because he resorts to no subterfuge of speech. It is the power of truth eloquently spoken, by one who is as pure of heart as he is able and courageous, that brings the hearts of millions in rapport with Bryan.

"Well," said our great leader, in parting with several of us, "you go back to your fighting, and I'll go on with my preaching."

The epigrams contained in Mr. Bryan's Auditorium speech challenge comparison with anything the times have produced in political polemics. Thus condensed was given the arraignment of the trust and description of its evils, the suggestion of direct and certain remedy, the impeachment of the party under whose legislation and administration the trust has risen, and the demonstration that the people can hope for no relief from the party in power, because its success in retaining power is to be attained by money furnished by the trusts and specially protected interests.

Speaking of imperialism, the Auditorium audience was convulsed, and cheered the hit, when a stentorian voice greeted a reference to McKinley with the shout of "Emperor! Hurrah for the Emperor!"

One of the personal pleasures of the Chicago gathering was meeting with Sir Moreton Frewen, the great English bimetallist. Mr. Frewen's personality is as delightful as his battle has been able and brave for the cause of bimetallism. Mr. Frewen said that he had been in company with Hon. C. A. Towne for some time before leaving England; that Mr. Towne is now in Brussels, and may be expected home early in September.

Mr. Frewen, who is a large stock raiser on his English estates, commissioned one of the Minnesota delegation to ascertain rates and prices for shipment of refuse wheat from the Minneapolis mills which he may export as feed for his stock.

While St. Paul gold standard "Prosperity" is two more banks less than it was, that of Minneapolis is marked by a decrease of $2,000,000 in the valuation of personal property for taxation over what it was in 1898. The latter is due, The Times says, to "changed business conditions." The Journal doubtless holds that, along with strikes and other disturbances, it is only another sign of "prosperity."

For one who is expecting a nomination for congress by the party of trusts, and their gold standard, J. Adam Bede is publishing some strange anti-trust matter in his Budget. Watch the Trust party lay out Jadam.

Hold you breath! Attorney General Douglas is about to pull the Tawney gun on the millers' trust. Watch it kick!

Embalmed beef, Shafterism and Sampsonism, Eagan, Cuban jobs, contractor stealings, poodle doctors, Corbin, Alger, Otis and the truth supressers—whew! Take that garbage pail into the next alley!

In order to proceed, let us all concede that Knute Nelson, junior senator, came here "at the age of six."

Was ever partisan fanaticism in calling white black, and black white, better illustrated than in the Minneapolis Journal's editorial disquisition, that strikes and labor troubles are an evidence of good times and prosperity? This was even too much for its colaborer, The Times, which impales the false logic thus:

"For the victims of monopolizing trusts which have raised the flag of enforced idleness in towns and whole communities in order that moneybag may be piled on moneybag by curtailing production and forcing a demand greater than the supply? Good times for these people?

"May God pardon such logic in the face of such troubles as are brewing in a state of ebullition, for nobody else will."

Immaterial.

"Hello!" said the voice at the other end of the telephone, "is this Grindle?"

"Yes."

"Did you write up that story of the man who had inherited a million dollars and was going to try his luck in grain speculation?"

"Yes."

MINNESOTA NEWS.

St. Paul Factories.

After a thorough inspection of the manufacturing establishments of St. Paul the state labor bureau is able to announce the following totals:

Number of establishments, 542; number of employes, 5,109; total number of non-manufacturing establishments, 68; total number of employes, 3,348; grand total of manufacturing and non-manufacturing establishments, 610; number of employes, 8,457.

The department has found that 4 per cent of the male adults are possessed of technical education, and 9 per cent are home-owners. The percentage of Sundy labor is less than one-sixth of 1 per cent, exclusive of street railway employes, based on a six-day schedule.

The percentage of males in the manufacturing establishments is 77, females, 22.4 and children under 16 less than six-tenths of 1 per cent. In non-manufacturing establishments the percentage of child labor is 3 per cent, giving for the combined manufacturing and non-manufacturing a percentage of 1 3-10, representing the child labor employed.

The Crops.

U. S. Department of Agriculture—Climate and crop bulletin of the weather bureau—Minnesota section.

There have been no rains during the week except very light showers in the extreme north on the 21st and 22d and elsewhere on the night of the 23d. The temperatures have been high, especially in the daytime, when the thermometer reached 90 degrees or higher, on nearly every day of the week, in the state. The dry, warm weather has been very favorable to the corn and potatoes; for finishing the hay, rye and winter wheat in the central and southeastern counties; for the cutting of barley and for the rye harvest in the southwest. Haying has advanced to the northern counties, and further south an excellent crop as regards both quality and quantity is being secured. A few fields of rye have been threshed with good yields. The winter wheat area is smaller than when the crop was seeded, owing to winter killing, but the yield of the present area promises well. Early barley is ripening rapidly as far north as Norman county; late barley is poor in the extreme north and the berry is somewhat colored in the southeast; some pieces of rye and barley have been threshed with satisfactory yields. Oats are ripening rapidly.

Bold Robbery.

Late at night the Milwaukee depot at Faribault was entered by four masked men who covered the night operator, Ed. Erickson, with revolvers. He was making out his reports when he was startled by a revolver held at his head from the outside through the window by one of the robbers, who told him to hold up his hands, which order was complied with. In the meantime three other men entered the office door and proceeded to rob the money drawer, from which they secured $37.19. They also had intended to rob the safe, as they were well supplied with tools for that kind of work, but were probably frightened away. After the money was secured from the cash drawer the robbers locked the operator in a box car. A little later a freight train came in and the conductor soon saw that things were wrong. After searching for a short time the operator was found.

A Big Oil Mill.

There is promise that Minneapolis capitalists, among them W. D. Douglas, G. F. Piper and H. F. Brett will soon build a big linseed oil mill, the cost to be in the neighborhood of $225,000. The plant will be located at Midway and will have a greater capacity than all the other mills in Minneapolis combined. The mill will consume from 2,500,000 to 3,000,000 bushels of flaxseed annually. The elevators will be able to handle 10,000 bushels a day and there will be five steel storage tanks for seed, each with a capacity of 100,000 bushels. All the machinery will be of the latest design and it is thought that the new company when it begins to manufacture will be able to produce oil and oil cake cheaper than the oil trust mills. Employment will be given to 100 men.

Brief Notes.

The Johnson-Wentworth Lumber Company of Cloquet has bought for $60,000 one section of pine land in section 54, township 55 and range 13. The pine will be sawn at Cloquet.

The house occupied by Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien, at North Mankato, was set on fire and burned during the night. The inmates escaped only by jumping out of the window.

No ore will be mined this year on state lands, and all the money to be received on royalties has now been paid in. There are but two opened mines on state land, Oliver and Minnewas. The latter has been idle since 1893 and is likely to so remain some time longer.

A woman giving her name as Mamie Brown was found masquerading in man's clothing at the Lafayette hotel, at Moorhead. She was arrested, fined $10 and ordered out of town.

While operating a mower in the hayfield, A. W. Smeezing, of Meire Grove, Stearns county, was struck by lightning and instantly killed.

R. M. Evans, of the Evans house, Faribault, was robbed about midnight of about $60. The back doors of the hotel were open all night, and the theft was perpetrated by some one who knew Evans' habits and the ways of the hotel.

Ham Sing, a Chinese convict at tht prison, died of typhoid fever. He was received at the prison eight years ago from Moorhead in company with Ham Hong, another Chinaman, to serve 25 years for murder in the second degree. They killed a Chinaman, and it was generally understood that they were members of the California highbinders association.

RULE OF CUBA.

Principle of Self-Government Maintained in a Plan Evolved by President McKinley.

A civil governor for the island of Cuba who will be vested with the veto power.

Legislative bodies composed entirely of natives, their enactments to be subject to the approval of the governor.

Military occupation of Cuba by the forces of this government to be reduced to a minimum.

All municipal offices, including the post offices and customs bureaus, to be filled by natives.

The appointment of a chief justice to whom appeals can be made.

The status of Cuba to be precisely identical with that of a territory after congress has passed an enabling act admitting such territory to statehood, pending the submitting of the constitution to the people.

This form of military and civil government as evolved by President McKinley partakes strongly of home rule. All suggestions to congress for necessary legislation to carry out this scheme have been practically determined upon and they will be outlined in the president's message to congress, unless a change in conditions should make it necessary to modify the plan.

ADOLPH LUETGERT DEAD.

Joliet, Ill., July 28.—Adolph L. Luetgert, alleged wife murderer, ended his life sentence in Joliet penitentiary Wednesday morning, being found dead in his cell. Luetgert Wednesday was in his usual health and mind and went about his duties with regularity. He arose with the other prisoners Thursday morning and marched down the corridors to get his breakfast. When the men were called out to work officers heard an unusual noise in Luetgert's cell and investigating found Luetgert writhing on his bed as if in great pain. Before anything could be done for him he died, without making any statement. Heart disease was the cause. Luetgert maintained his innocence all through the time of his imprisonment. The records state that in answer to the question: "Is you wife living?" Luetgert responded: "Yes." He was convicted of killing his wife May 1, 1897, boiling her remains in a vat in his sausage factory. He has been in prison since March 5, 1898, and was 53 years old.

BOILER EXPLODES.

Disaster on a Michigan Farm in Which Six Men Are Killed and Two Injured.

White Cloud, Mich., Aug. 1.—Shortly after a threshing crew had started to work Monday at Big Prairie, eight miles east, Engineer Crabtree noticed that the water in the boiler was low. The fire was raked out and the engineer turned more water in the boiler. Almost instantly the boiler exploded, killing Charles Haight, Alfred Haight, Charles Crabtree, Bert Salter, Cecil Priest and Raymond Howe, instantly. George Overly was so badly injured that he cannot recover. Oscar Evans had his leg broken. Three of the men left families. The explosion blew the engine 150 feet, driving it through a barn and carrying half of the separator through the barn with it.

ARRIVE SAFE AND SOUND.

President and Mrs. McKinley Reach Lake Champlain—Will Seek Rest and Quiet.

Plattsburg, N. Y., July 28.—President and Mrs. McKinley arrived at Bluff Point station at 8:45 Thursday mornnig, exactly on time. The president and his wife were driven to Hotel Champlain. As they entered the grounds the president's flag was hoisted to the top of the flag pole, where it will remain during his stay here. Mrs. McKinley stood the trip as well as was expected, but she looked pale as she walked up the hotel steps.

The president said to the press correspondent that he had made no plans for his stay here except to get as much rest as he possibly could.

Disgusted with "Fake" Interviews.

Trieste, July 31.—Admiral Dewey was shown the alleged interview in which he is made to say: "Our next war will be with Germany." He indicates his disgust with the "faking," and says: "I have no time to read, let alone affirm or deny, all the lies and irresponsible rubbish which have been printed about me since my arrival in Trieste." Those of his officers who enjoy his confidence, if anybody does, say that as he never made such remarks in private it is unlikely he would do so in an interview.

Alliance Against United States.

London, Aug. 1.—The Morning Post's Rome correspondent says: According to news received here the victory over Spain and the growth of imperialism in the United States has led the large South American republics to talk of an alliance against the United States, and it is alleged that the preliminaries of such an alliance have been concluded between Brazil and Argentina.

Mrs. Sprague Dead.

Washington, Aug. 1. — Mrs. Kate Chase Sprague, wife of the former governor of Rhode Island and the daughter of the late Salmon P. Chase, governor of Ohio, United States senator and chief justice of the United States supreme court, died at her homestead, "Edgewood," in Washington's suburbs, early on Monday morning. She was 59 years old.

Death of a Bishop.

Washington, Ga., July 31.—Bishop Thomas A. Becker, of the diocese of Savannah, died here at 8:30 Saturday night. He came to Washington some time ago to take charge of the summer school during the absence of Father Riley in Europe. The bishop was taken seriously ill Thursday night and continued to grow worse. The end was quiet and peaceful.

Elevated to Peerage.

London, Aug. 1.—It was officially announced that Sir Julian Pauncefote, British ambassador to the United States, who was head of the British delegation to the international peace conference at The Hague, has been elevated to the peerage.

SUMMER FIREPLACES.

The Modern Housekeeper Keeps Them in Perfect Order and Leaves Them Open.

The summer fireplace is frequently a vexation to the housewife. Soot and dust blow down it if it is left open. In old-fashioned times the huge fireplace was closed in summer by a board, and chimney swallows built their nests on the inside. These birds, which are not true swallows, but swifts, live chiefly on the wing, and are more nearly allied to the humming bird than any songster we have. Where they inhabit old chimneys the flutter of their wings descending and ascending to their nests may usually be distinctly heard through the fireboard.

The modern housekeeper instead of concealing her fireplace keeps it in perfect order and leaves it open. She furnishes it with the andirons, fender and other picturesque fittings of the "god of fire." In order to keep the soot and dust of the chimney from flying about the room there should be a close damper in the chimney that can be shut when the fireplace is not in use and opened or removed when it is desirable. Such a damper, which will answer all purposes for shutting out the soot, can be made of heavy, dark pasteboard, and fitted into the chimney where it is out of sight. A great many chimneys have a damper of iron, but of course these do not close the flue tightly, and need to be filled out with heavy paper to prevent the dust from blowing down.

Where it is considered desirable for any reason to put away the andirons, fenders and other fixtures of the fireplace, the space may be partially filled with a palm and ferns from the woods planted in flower pots or boxes. The gloom of the fireplace is good for these shade-loving plants. In this case, however, the chimney flues must not be stopped up, but left open. In place of the old-fashioned fireboard a curtain of matting or some heavy material, decorated with a suitable design of gay, picturesque plants, or a regular stained-glass fire screen may be used. A fire screen of this kind should be framed in brass and set with an artistic pattern of glass in attractive colors.—N. Y. Tribune.

A LITERARY STATESMAN.

He Knew All About the Boy That Stood on the Burning Deck.

Not every literary man is a congressman, and by the same token not every congressman is a literary man.

There is one southwestern congressman, yet in the thirties, who not long ago was spending the night in Washington with an agricultural-department friend of his who knows much more about politics and office-holding than he does about the divine afflatus, and by some chance they let their talk drift into literature.

"By the way," said the member as the conversation moved along, "who was it wrote the poem about the boy standing on the burning deck? Wasn't that Longfellow?"

"Course not," dissented the friend.

"Well, of course I don't mean when he learned how; but didn't he write some sort of a verse one time when he was a kid in school? Seemes to me I've heard something about something of that kind, haven't I?"

"Oh, you're thinking about that one about a little girl that had a little curl that hung right down on her forehead and was torrid."

"Red-headed, eh?"

"I guess that was about the size of it. Anyway, Longfellow never wrote 'The Boy Stood on the Burning Deck.'"

"All right," submitted the congressman; "anything goes, old man, that you say. Now if it's all the same to you, and just to show you haven't any ill-feeling about the matter, suppose you tell me who in thunder did write 'The Boy Stood on the Burning Deck.'"

"That's easy," responded the friend with startling promptness. "John Hay wrote it."

"What! not the secretary of state?"

"The same."

"Aw, come off!"

"True as preaching. You've heard of 'Little Breeches,' haven't you? Well, that's it." And the congressman was so astonished that he accepted it without a dissenting voice.—W. J. Lampton, in Judge.

Codfish Pyramids.

Soak one pound salt codfish for several hours in cold water, changing the water twice during that time. One hour before serving peel and wash six medium-sized potatoes, place them with one teaspoonful salt and one pint of cold water over the fire to boil. In the meantime pick the codfish into small pieces, place it in a saucepan over the fire, cover with cold water; let it come to a boiling point; then drain off the water, rinse with cold water, return the fish to the saucepan, cover with cold water, heat till nearly boiling; pour the fish in a sieve to drain; melt one teaspoonful butter in a saucepan, add one teaspoonful flour, stir and cook two minutes; add half cup milk, one even teaspoonful salt, a quarter even teaspoonful white pepper and the fish. As soon as the potatoes are done drain off the water and mash them fine; add half teaspoonful butter and the codfish; mix all well together; add the yolks of three eggs; form this into balls the size of an egg and then shape into pyramids; dip into beaten egg and bread crumbs and fry light brown in hot fat. —Brooklyn Eagle.

Fried Stuffed Eggs.

Boil eggs 20 minutes; put them immediately into cold water; when cold remove the shell; cut them in half lengthwise; carefully remove the yolk; rub them very smooth. To six boiled eggs add one teaspoonful of melted butter, one and a half tablespoonfuls of very finely chopped ham or tongue, salt and pepper; fill the hollow of each white, having the surface level; press one half to another; dip in egg, then in crumbs, then in eggs, then in crumbs again; fry in hot deep fat; remove, drain on a piece of paper, arrange on a hot platter; serve with a cream sauce made with one tablespoonful of butter melted, one of flour; cook together; add one cup of milk, salt and pepper; let it boil five minutes.—St. Louis Republic.

HE WAS REJECTED.

But He Stuck to His Job and by a Lucky Hit Won the Coveted Prize.

"It was such a good joke on me," said the girl in the gray velvet toque to the girl in the blue velvet shoulder cape, as they stirred their hot chocolate, "that I must tell you.

"You know how John has been proposing to me at regular intervals ever since he was out of knickerbockers. Well, he did it again the other night, and, with his usual facility, chose an occasion when I was very cross.

"He did it a little more awkwardly than usual, too, deliberately choosing the old-fashioned method of offering me 'his hand and heart.'"

Here she paused to drink some chocolate, and the girl in blue asked breathlessly what she said.

"Oh!" remarked the other, in the tone of one relating an event of no importance, "I told him that I believed I was already provided with the full quota of bodily organs, and that I wouldn't deprive him."

"And what did he say?"

"Well, Belle, that's the funny thing. He seemed to brace up, and said, politely, that at any rate there was no doubt about my having my full share of cheek! And I was so delighted to find a man capable of even that much repartee on being rejected—that I accepted him."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

FLINGS AT WOMANKIND.

A girl is visiting in town who has a dress trimmed with four miles of lace, and her hostess is thinking of giving a reception for it.

A woman who knows how easily the men can be fooled tells everyone who kisses her that it is the first time she was ever kissed by a man.

It occurs to a man with some wonder that his wife never got up as much enthusiasm over him when she was a bride as she gets up over the new little red baby.

When a woman doesn't know of anything else nice to say about another woman she says she has such "cute little ways."

Every unhappy woman takes pleasure in thinking of the time when he will come back, and it will be too late.

A good many girls have the notion that some day they may be compelled to sell their hair and pay off the mortgage on the family homestead, as the story books relate. An Atchison girl who had very beautiful hair became very poor and agreed to sell it for three dollars. After the hair had been cut off the purchaser refused to take it, saying she could get a switch for two dollars in Kansas City that would answer.—Atchison Globe.

Rich—Yet Starving.

Doctors frequently have very wealthy patients who are starving to death. They have money to buy food, but their stomach has not the strength to digest it. It lies there a heavy fermented mass, the sole cause of dyspepsia, nervousness and biliousness. The surest remedy to cure a weak stomach is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It will restore vigor to the digestive organs. Nothing is "just as good." See that a private Revenue Stamp covers the neck of the bottle.

Eggs and the Drama.

"After mature reflection," wrote the editor of the Locustville Star of the West and Voice of Truth, "we have decided not to publish any more notices of extraordinary large eggs. We find that the notices tend to create the impression that Locustville is not a good theater town."

A Dash of Gayety.

The doomed man feared the people who waited along the way to the scaffold.

"See how they stare at me!" he cried, agonizingly.

"Yes, that's what you might call rubbering it in!" observed the executioner, playfully, deeming it not amiss to inject an element of gayety into this otherwise somber affair.—Detroit Journal.

The Conclusion.

"And you say the idiot of a teacher told you that you had an extravagant fool of a father?"

"That's what he meant?"

"But what did he say?"

"He said it was criminal folly to waste money on the education of such a chump as I am."—Indianapolis Journal.

Mrs. Col. Richardson
SAVED BY MRS. PINKHAM.

[LETTER TO MRS. PINKHAM NO. 72,896]

"You have saved my life, snatched me from the brink of the grave almost, and I wish to thank you. About eighteen months ago I was a total wreck, physically. I had been troubled with leucorrhœa for some time, but had given hardly any attention to the trouble.

"At last inflammation of the womb and ovaries resulted and then I suffered agonies, had to give up my profession (musician and piano player), was confined to my bed and life became a terrible cross. My husband summoned the best physicians, but their benefit was but temporary at best. I believe I should have contracted the morphine habit under their care, if my common sense had not intervened.

"One day my husband noticed the advertisement of your remedies and immediately bought me a full trial. Soon the pain in my ovaries was gone. I am now well, strong and robust, walk, ride a wheel, and feel like a girl in her teens. I would not be without Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; it is like water of life to me. I am very gratefully and sincerely your well-wisher, and I heartily recommend your remedies. I hope some poor creature may be helped to health by reading my story."—MRS. COL. E. P. Does Your Head Ache?

Are your nerves weak? Can't you sleep well? Pain in your back? Lack energy? Appetite poor? Digestion bad? Boils or pimples? These are sure signs of poisoning.

From what poisons?

If the contents of the bowels are not removed from the body each day, as nature intended, these poisonous substances are sure to be absorbed into the blood, always causing suffering and frequently causing severe disease.

There is a common sense cure.

AYER'S PILLS

They daily insure an easy and natural movement of the bowels.
You will find that the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

with the pills will hasten recovery. It cleanses the blood from all impurities and is a great tonic to the nerves.

DELANO, FRIDAY, Aug. 4, 1899.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Berry picking is about over for the year. Delano's many pickers are returning home.

—A train load of sheep from the west bound for the cities passed through town yesterday.

—The Village authorities say there will be no Sunday show in Delano on Sunday. Good for the authorities.

—Rev. J. L. Farber announced as his subject for next Sunday evening's sermon, "Where we go to when we Die."

—The new Board of Education will hold its first meeting tomorrow night, and organize for the ensuing school year.

—Our local lumber dealers recieved notice, yesterday, of a rise of $1.50 per thousand on lumber; 50 cts per thousand on lath.

—The bicycle race took place through some of our principle streets Saturday. Epple, Nelson and Bergstrom was the way they finished.

—The school rooms should be fumigated washed, scrubbed, and a fire made in the furnace and the house well aired before school is opened up.

—Prof. Carleton, of New Ulm, our new High School Principal is expected, with his family, to occupy S. S. Ball's residence on N. Third Street, about the 15th inst.

—The Round Elevator engine house is being built. Jim Hill ordered that it would have to be where the old one was, and not in place of the horse power, where the elevator people wanted it. And all after 26 days delay in awaiting his answer.

--If people want money in their pockets now-a-days they must learn to say No! to the myriads of advertisements received, and to the hundreds of callers at their doors with every imaginable device for tempting them to part with their hard earned pennies.

--Joe Niestroy, who lost his eyes last fall by an accident, and who has been at the Faribault school for Blind is at home for his vacation. He has learned to make hammocks, and is busily engaged at the work now at home. His brother sells them for him. Every Delonite in need of a hammock ought to give Joe a chance to make them one to order.

—When the Eagle editor read that the Nebraska regiment had returned as far as San Francisco, and that but one man had re enlisted, while twenty five had remained to go into business, in Manila he must have concluded that his story about the boys being just as willing to remain in the Philippines and shoot "Jack Rabbits" was one of his mistakes, or mistatements.

—Recorder Peterson has been away from home a little lately and found that things don't run at so loose ends in every place as in Delano. In Glenco he says streets are not blockaded by cars so that people going to the depot have to take to the ditch. He says, also, that according to mutual agreement every store in town closes at 8 P. M. Allowing merchants and their clerks a short time in the evening they can call their own.

—Frank Swadner met with an unfortunate accident Monday afternoon while running the planing machine, he caught his right hand in the planer and had four fingers cut off, so that they had to be amputated, the three smaller ones at the knuckles and saying about half an inch stub for the forefinger. This will lay him up for a while and interfere with some branches of his work considerably. He has the sympathy of many friends.

—When a farmer, or his son, or mayhaps his daughter can drive around the fields of golden grain all day and leave it at night in piles' ready to be shocked up, doing as much work alone as a few years ago was done by six or seven men, it is not to be wondered at that harvest hands are not much in demand. For the balance of the family can easily shock up the grain while it is being cut, and most families, at least by exchanging work with neighbors soon have as fine stacks as one can see anywhere. When the farmer saves hiring this lot of men, and feeding them, he ought to make more on his grain if his bindingtwine don't cost too much and he houses and cares for his machinery.

A Hard Trip.

Through the kindness of our fellow townsman Otto Marr we are enabled to publish the following from his son, who is on the steamer Newark, in the Pacific ocean:

U. S. S. NEWARK, VALPARAISO, June 26.

Though we were not shipwrecked we had bad weather on our trip round Cape Horn, and were much delayed. About 600 miles from Valparaiso we ran short of coal, so we landed on an island 200 miles from the coast and started a wood chopping expedition which I joined. We cut about 120 cords wood; but when we had it on the ship it did not make steam enough, because it was green. Meanwhile our provisions ran short too. So we started two boats to the coast for coal and provisions, which we got, at last, from the Chilean government. I was a few hours in Valparaiso, to buy some necessities. It is a place like the Spanish towns, dirty, and foul smelling. It was pretty hard for me to get what I wanted, but I succeeded. We go to Callao, and, I believe from there to San Francisco Cal. I lost 13 pounds on that trip, but I will soon get that back.

TRIP TO OMAHA.

On the Burlington Route.

BY JOHN J. CATLIN.

GALESBURG, Illinois, July 27, 1899.

DEAR FATHER:—I arrived here this morning at 9:15: cannot get away before 5:25, this afternoon, when I will take the Denver flyer which will land me at Pacific Jct. where I can get another train for Omaha and arrive at 11:15 tonight. Pretty fast time. At least that is what I am told here. It is nearly as far as from St Paul to Galsburg but will go in half the time, and we run a great deal faster last night than the G. N. does.

I and Willie Mowatt run all over Minneapolis Wednesday and that night at 7:20 I started. Got to the train too late to have my valise checked so had them send it by the next train, and made a run, just got there as the train started. Changed cars at Savanna, and Bairstow. Changed at Savanna about 4 o'clock in the morning and while waiting for the other train, contrived to manipulate myself onto the exterior of some of the grub Mary put up for me.

I have been almost all over this town. I should judge it has about 15,000 inhabitants, quite a little city. That may not be the population as my experience in guessing the population of cities is rather limited.

I am kind of tired and sleepy, being awake nearly all night and sitting in the cars so long, so the day passes very slow. I'ts only 2 o'clock now.

The train I came on as far as Sayanan was a fine one. Rigged out for the comfort of the travelers in every way. I made as good connections as possible as this road doesn't expect to carry passengers from Minneapolis to Omaha and consequently doesn't have the Omaha trains connect here with trains from the North. I crossed the Mississippi once, so far, the train having backed over to Clinton, Iowa. I don't think the "big muddy" could be much dirtier looking. We are in sight of the Mississippi almost all the time, as far as Clinton.

Grain is all cut and shocked here. Wheat and all. Corn is taller than it ever gets in Minnesota.

I noticed some apple trees along the way, in Illinois. The fruit is just turning.

I just asked the hotel boy what the population of this town is. He said 32,000. I guess he is closer than I. I noticed a Congregational church here about as big as Wesley, in Minneapolis. I noticed several other large churches but never went up to them. I have not been out in the residence districts, as I feel a little tired. They have street cars here. I am not very much struck on Illinois. The land is low, flat, and a great deal of it seems to be marsh or at least wet. There are hills, but they look more like a row of big mounds. The farmers cut hay off of them as they are too steep for cultivation.

Well I will stop here and write when I get to Omaha and get a good sleep and my valise.

Your son.

J. J. CATLIN

Visits the Exposition.

Dear father: I arrived in Omaha this morning at 6:00 o'clock.

The Denver flyer took me as far as Pacific Junction, and I had to sit in the depot 2½ hours waiting for my train; the Kansas City St. Joe and Council Bluffs.

I like Iowa a great deal better than Illinois. It is a better looking country, according to my notion. It has been quite cool all the time since I left home, not over 80. But they say it is only a temporary change.

Iowa looks like a fine state to live in. It has more hills and looke more like Minnesota, except some of the hills are higher and more knoll shaped. The farms look better, and better kept. Also have numerous fine orchards.

Yesterday, after I wrote that letter I went out again and looked over Galesburg. It is bigger than I first supposed.

There are a number of fine churches, and a hospital and large railroad works. etc.

Omaha is a fine looking City. The residence portion is more hilly than Minneapolis but the business portion is quite level. The Burlington depot beats anything in Minneapolis or St. Paul.

July 30, 1899. I forgot to mail this letter a couple of times so will add a little more to it and send it. I was in the Expo twice. It is fine, although they say it is not as good in some ways as last year, but better in others.

The Government has a fine display of big cannon, field guns, machine, and gatling guns swords of noted commanders, and some from European nobles etc.

I also went through the fine arts building. They have some fine paintings etc. collected from all over the country. I saw one from the public library in Minneapolis.

There are a couple bands on the grounds, plsying all day and evening.

Dan Godfrie's band, from London, and an Indian band.

I have been on the go ever since I got here. Yesterday afternoon I was over to the round house and also in swimming in a lake near the Missouri. Last night we all took a trip up the Missouri on a big three deck steamer, leaving before dark and landed about eleven o'clock. It was fine. I and Hattie are going to church so I will have to close here.

Your son,

JOHN J. CATLIN.

P. S. Tell me when the 13th startes. I don't get any Minneapolis papers here.

County Cullings.

Several cases of glanders is reported among horses in the town of Stockholm. Persons putting up at livery and other barns need to be on the look out.

Irene Dostal, aged two and a half years, daughter of Winslow Dostal, and adopted by H. C. Morneau was accidentally burned so that she died at the Waverly Hotel last Saturday.

It is a little early yet to say who the democratic candidate for Congress from the Sixth district will be; but C. A. Towne has proven himself a stayer and we wouldn't wonder if he would stay in the race till he wins.

It is wonderful how Gold bug J. Adam Bede, aspirant for Page Morris' place in Congress, is scratching the back of John Nugent, Wright county's Sheriff, who, as a delegate to the state convention in '96, voted to keep Dan Lawler and other Gold bug men in the convention.

Wright county Democracy has been led by the nose to destruction year after year, for so long, that most of the younger men who aspire to office, and the old timers who are democrats from principle, have tired of the farce.

Seeing the same individuals manipulate all the political conventions of whatever party in the county to their own selfish benefits is enough to disgust all honest democrats. Even the g. o. p. in Wright is awakening to the fact that they have been in bondage to bosses, lo! these many years, We predict a change.

A Cutting Retort.

The assistant attorney hired by the county for $500, for the State, in the Boxell murder case, had just finished a fine spun argument. He felt, evidently, that he had just completed the effort of his life, so far. He took a front seat on the rostrum, elevated his feet, and comfortably fixed himself to fill the gaze of the admiring audience, the crowded Court House.

Unfortunally for him, he had alluded to a witness for the defense, as a "paid attorney on the outside of this case." The attorney to close for the defense took advantage of circumstances, He said: We do not wish to attack witnessnesses; but the attorney on the other side said that Carl Luhman was a paid attorney on the out side of this case. "Now we would set Mr. Luhman up against the paid attorney on the inside of this case."

The effect was wonderful, especially in the appearance of the attorney who had assumed the pompous air. His coat appeared too big for him. He seemed to shrink wonderfully and a turkevred, nearly, illumined all of the "paid attorney on the inside" above the coat. The retort was decidedly Cutting.

Among Our Exchanges.

County Line: It must gall the traveling men to now organize to fight those interests for which they spouted last campaign.

Norwood Times: J. W. Craven was in the city Wednesday and bought the other half interest in the Times plant from F. H Bauermister.

Litchfield Independent: "No man is good enough to govern another man without that other's consent. When the white man governs himself, that is self government, but when he governs himself and also governs another man, that is more than self-government—that is despotism. Our reliance is in the love of liberty which God has planted in us. Our defense is in the spirit which prizes liberty as the heritage of all men in all lands, everywhere. Those who deny freedom to others deserve it not for themselves, and under a just God cannot long retain it."—Abraham Llincoln.

Duluth Herald: Gen. Anderson expresses the belief that the greatest statesman in the United States is needed for governor of the Philippine islands. 'This" says the Chicago Record, "amounts to saying that a careful investigation of the condition and requirements of the islanders should precede and accompany all acts of government. It is also equivalent to saying that restrictive red tape and domineering militarism do not meet the necessities of the case. If properly handled the Philippine problem will solve itself, while mismanaged it will simply go from bad to worse, ending disastrously for all concerned."

Aitkin Age: Secretary Root says he will recognize Miles. That's lucky; and it may be he will recognize miles of difference between running the war department and practicing law in New York.

St. Cloud Times: The Journal Press and other Republican papers are kicking because Bank Examiner Pope is after St. Paul's insolvent banks. His predecessor did not interfere with them, and the result was rotten failures of rotten banks, and great loss to depositors. There cannot be too close watch kept upon banks. It is in the interest of the people, and the people will approve it.

Only Death Can Stop Him.

JACKSON, Miss., July 30.—"Nothing but death can prevent Bryan from being the next democratic nominee, and nothing but the intervention of the Almighty will keep him from being elected." declared Congresman Champ Clark of Missouri in an interview today "Democratic chances have improved 50 per cent in the past four months and are now brighter than they have been in any presidential campaign in the past twenty years."

Some Ideas.

And there was a certain begger named Lazarus which was laid at his gate full of sores.

And desiring to be fed with the crumbs which fell from the rich man's table: Moreover the dogs came and licked his sores.

Has this scriptural text any application to things of the present time in regard to the rich and poor?

In Scripture we read of but one Lazarus, and it even seemed as though they thought one was a great plenty. But in these modern times we have them in every state and county.

"And in hell he (the rich man) lifted up his eyes being in torment," some claim this a literal hell, while others say it is only figurative we leave the reader to form his own conclusion. Beb Ingersoll's version would be no hell at all, but finally it seemed Lazarus had a much better place than the rich man, but there first came a change in government affairs.

It is claimed there has been about 35,000 traveling men thrown out of employment since 1896 and every one of these fellows in '96 was howling for a high protective tariff and a single gold standard, now they are on the street looking for a job and desiring to pick up the crumbs that fall from the rich man's table. Some of them have found a Lazarus house, they was told better but their zeal exceeded their knowledge,

I am glad this cannot be laid at the feet of the Democretic party, for ever since the days of Cain it is claimed the Democratic party has done all the mean things, above beneath and upon the earth. By the throwing of these men out of employment so much money has been taken out of circulation the Hotel's have lost heavily, for they paid their bills and lived on the fat of the land. But our goods have not been cheapened any as yet. They said a single gold standard would insure every man and woman a job and some of our press claim it has.

Read in last week's Eagle the poem entitled Minor Chords, tells all about the drummer.

Read in week before last Eagle an extract taken from the Duluth Herald about a labor famine out west it says yesterday an order was placed with the National employment agency of this city for 1,800 farmhands to go to the Dakotas, the order is from the general Passenger agent of the Soo Rail road.

Can you see anything in this? The rail roads want to get what money these fellows have for taking them out west and then get about all they make for bringing them back, this same thing has been going on for years. There is plenty of men and to spare this thing is all a fake. The Eagle in commenting on the above, says, when the Democrats were in office the streets of Duluth, Minneapolis and other large cities were lined from end to end with idle and starving men. But the Democrats did not inaugurate a war for the purpose of booming prices and putting money in circulation. killing our brave boys and plunging the nation, millions upon millions, in debt. All of which was uncallde for. And if the President had been let alone I doubt very much if there had been any war.

But some of those fellows thought their opportunity was ripe, and to inagurate a war and plunge the Nation in debt would be a fine thing, but the end of this thing is not yet, time and opportunity will bring all things to light.

Who is paying a high tax? The people of the United States, for what, to carry on a war against the Philippines and to put more money in the pockets of the rich by taking it from the Poor.

You are taxed directly or indirectly on every thing you eat, drink or wear and the end is not yet. Some people think they are building up a business in this country but when the collapse comes (and that is only a question of time), they will then find out they have builded a modern hell and the smoke of their torment ascended up forever.

St Paul Dispatch

25c per month for Daily. 75c per year for the Weekly.

The St. Paul Dispatch is the best Twin City daily; it has no equal in the Northwest as to size or quality.

The DISPATCH excels in Northwestern news, having a correspondent in every Northwestern town.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

Three Together One Year for Only $2.35

THE name of William L. Windom, of Duluth is mentioned by Republicans as a candidate for Congress. What will become of goldbug Bede?

LOTS of talk has been wasted about how the 13th will get home from San Francisco. Just muster them out and it want take long to find out they will get here.

THE Nobles County Democrat comes to us this week as a sixteen page magazine. This is a new departure in the newspaper buisness. We are not prepared to say, bnt believe that we like a larger sheet with fewer pages better.

Senator Reishus has been appointed chief grain inspector, vice A. C. Clausen, resigned. The new inspector will be expected to grade everything No. 1 hard from this time out.—Aitkin Republican.

We think the Republican must be in the minority in this expectation.

THE 13th Reg. is supposed to be on the road home, aboard the Sheridan, one of the best and fastest transports in the business. Still there is an opportunity for Senators Johnson, Wilson and others to go over and bring our country's flag home, unsullied, if they have the "patriotism" to under take it.

AN effort is on foot to have the 13th Reg. turned over to the State authorities as State militia, as soon as the boys receive their discharges at San Francisco. This of course, would necessetate the states securing transportation for them home. Many of the boys have seen all the army life they want for some time.

IT has been widely advertised that Ex Grain Inspector Clausen has kindly consented to post the new appointed, M. Reishus, on how to grade grain. We presume Mr. R. now knows how to weigh grain and now to distinguish between good and bad grain, and further knowledge to be acquired from the Ex G. I. might not redound to the interests of the farmers.

WHEN one reads, that whiskey, sold unlawfully, to Indians in our own state, caused the death of Maj. Wilkinson and others. That whiskey caused the death of a 15th Reg. boy, and the imprisionment of several others and a stigma on the Reg. That a few days ago a battle between regulars and volunteers in Georgia occurred on on account of liquor, and a number were wounded several of whom are expected to die, and numerous other similar cases he wonders why Uncle Sam don't stop such disgraceful business.

THE news from the Philippines gives the impression that Gen. Otis' plan of campaign, "taking them in reverse" is succeeding. For instance it is claimed that a vessel has been captured and burned and the crew made prisoners by the Filipinos. That 80 Spanish prisioners and three American prisioners were hauled by water right under Otis' guns from Cavit to a safer place by the Filipinos. That an escaped prisioner says that from an American vessel that drifted ashore the Filipinos secured a lot of canned goods and some soldier's uniforms, that they are well supplied with guns and ammunition. After the rainy season with seasoned troops, well equipped and well entrenched, Aguinoldo's forces will surely be in better shape to defend their country against American regulars many of whom are inexperienced than they were last year against the volunteers.

THERE is nothing like being honest The disgraceful quarrel among officers in the army in the Philippines might have been averted by being honest. If any of the officers didn't believe the shooting down of the natives right, they should have said so, and offered this as their honest excuse for resigning office. On the other hand if commanders found officers playing coward instead of heralding the fact broadcast they should have taken steps havet, had them discharged for cowardice and then this disgraceful runpus would not have so many sides to it It looks quite evident that if colonels were cowards that Generals were negligent of their plain duties. Bandying of words don't settle such disputes.

ADVERTISE and SUBSCRIBE.

MOST likely Otis will be ordered home now that a British officer has pronounced him incompetent.

ON account of three days typhoon the sailing of the 13 th Reg has again been delayed, This time until Friday the 11 th.

WHO has, so far, got any honor out of the war being carried on in the Philippines? The officiers are wrangling among themselves. The men are tired of the business and want to get home as soon as possible. Is it a necessary war? Wouldn't it be better to allow the natives to try their hand at running a free republic for awhile? If we succeed in exterminating the last of the Filipinos at the cost of hundreds more of as brave soldiers as the world ever saw; and many millions of money to be raised from increased taxation of what use is the victory to this country, or to any other? We are told that where Illinois, one of our most prosperous states, has 68 people to a square mile the Island of Luzon has 78 inhabitants. Why then should we go thousands of miles to exterminate a race that could take care of itself? Or, if, as, some say the Philippine Islanders are a pack of ignorant savages what are we going to do with them when we have broken their patriotic spirits, subdued them? Will we use that "forcible aggression would be criminal," argument of our President? will we annex, and make citizens and voters of these millions? and will their votes all be counted to perpetuate the party in power in this country?

William J. Bryan Speaks.

Gold bugs are loosing no opportunity to have you believe that Free silver is dead. That even Mr. Bryan has deserted the corpse. As we have few dailies in the country but what are catering to monopoels and antogonistic to Mr. Bryan and his beliefs everybody don't know just how Mr. Bryan stands. For the benefit of our readers we quote from the National Watchman what it gives as a report by the Indianapolis Sentinal of a part of a speech by William Jennings Bryan delivered at Greenfield Indiana, July 27, Read it and judge for yourselves if the gold bug organs are telling the truth or trying to mislead the people on the question of Free silver and Mr. Bryan:

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen—I realize that you are listening this afternoon under rather difficult circumstances. It is very unpleasant to have such a crowd at a funeral, and yet, wherever the silver question is being buried, the people will gather together. If you feel some of the discomforts that are felt in a crowd of this kind just remember that there is a way that we can avoid crowds. All we would have to do is to depart from the Chicago platform and we will have no difficulty about crowded houses and crowded meetings. I am glad that the Democratic party has rdopted a platform that is popular enough to bring so many people together, and I hope that in this audience this afternoon I have a great many Republicans' as I would rather talk to Republicans than to those who agree with me.

"It seems to me that now is the time when we should consider public questions and try to forget that their are such things as parties and remember that there is such a thing as our country. I am going to do the very best thing possible for our country and I am going to ask them to believe me when I tell them that if events prove that the policies advocated by the Republican party are best for this country I shall rejoice as much as any Republican in the result of the last election.

"What I objected to in 1896 was that the republican party was not willing to leave the money question to the American people, but they wanted to leave it to the leading commercial countries of the world to do what they thought best. For my part, my fellow-citizens, I am not willing that the smallest question of interest to my country shall be left to people who have not so much as sworn allegiance to our country."

Litchfield Independent. The frog business here seems to be assuming considerable proportions. Shipments are made almostdaily from this place On last Wednesday 835 dozen were at the depot for shipment on the after noon train. Probably over twenty men or boys are engaged in the business of catching or shipping. Prices paid here to catchers are from 2½ to 4 cents per dozen, according to size. Frog's legs, st Minneapolis, are quoted at 3 to 8 cents per dozen.

Waseca Herald: A Republican politician says: "In the opinion of the Baltimore Sun, the instant the silver plank of the Chicago platform is reaffirmed, the election of a Republican president in 1900 becomes an absolute certainty." Very well, if that be true, why are the Republican politicians so unhappy about it? There is every reason to believe that the Chicago platform will be reaffirmed and that Mr. Bryan will be re-nominated. Of course, the "absolute certenty" asserted, by the Sun is not generally believed, even by Republican politicians; for if it were they would not feel as nervous as they do now.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 4, 1899.

Will there be a change in the Philippine policy of the administration? That question has been asked quite frequently since Senator Burrows made the ill-fated declaration that McKinley's reelection was largely dependent upon the successful ending of the Philippine war before the Presidential campaign.

There is no doubt that the administration fully realizes the correctness of the statement made by Mr. Burrows, but so much was not intended to be made public, so early in the game, and, while nothing has been openly said on the subject, there has been much private abuse of Burrows in administration circles for having let suct a troublesome cat out of the political bag. Although Secretary Root has yet done nothing openly to confirm the talk about his being instructed to win Gen. Miles over to the administration side, by allowing him to have the direction at the Washington end of future military movements in the Philippines, there are many who think there is foundation for the talk. The plain truth of the situation is, that unless a satisfactory peace-satisfactory to the people at large, not to the office-holding brigade, who will express satisfaction at anything done by the administration-is brought about before the Presidential campaign, Mr. McKinley will not have a ghost of a show for reelection; and those most familiar with the situation do not believe that a continuation of the military methods of Gen. Otis will do it. The people will overthrow any administration that stands for a perpetual war in the Philippines, or anywhere else.

The deficit for the first month of the new fiscal year was close to $3,000,000. Officials speak of this as a satisfactory showing, but it remains to be seen what the people will think of a showing, which if maintained during the remainder of the fiscal year will mean a deficit for the year of more than $165,000,000. That certainly will not be satisfactory.

The very mild nature of the statement made by Mr. Alger just before he left Washington, and which he was pleased to call a vindication of the charges against his administration of the War Department, indicates that he was persuaded not to attack the administration publicly, but whether he will be of the same mind after talking with Pingree, who is nothing if not a straight-from-the-shoulder fighter of everything that gets in front of his plans, remains to be seen. Members of the administration are hugging the belief that Alger will not give away the secrets that he knows.

In the absence of more important news the suppression of a Cuban daily paper in Havana and the arrest of its staff, by order of Gen. Ludlow, military commandant of that city, has been much discussed. At the War Department it is said that Gen. Ludlow acted without any orders from Washington and that no further explanation of his action has been received than was contained in the press dispatches. On general principles the average American believes in a free press and free speech and for that reason nearly everyone who speaks of the matter condemns the suppression of the paper by Gen. Ludlow. Gen Garcia who is still in Washington talked freely of the matter, as he sees it. He said: "The suppression of the Havana Reconcentrado was, in my judgment, a serious mistake. It was the Spanish custom you know, to arrest editors and suppress their papers for daring to criticise Spanish methods, and it would seem from Gen. Ludlow's action that he is pursuing the Spanish policy which has so justly and so rightly been denounced by the U. S. Again this act on the part of the military authorities will be constructed by many Cubans to mean that the civil authorities are mere figureheads and will no doubt produce bad feeling. There can be no independence or personal liberty without free speech and a free press. What would the people of the U. S. say if the authorities should suppress a newspaper for abusing justly, or unjustly, the administration? I imagine there would be a great outburst of popular resentment against any such proceedings. The people of the U. S would not tolerate it. Of corse, I do not know all the facts, but I do know that to be consistent Gen. Ludlow will have to suppress other papers that have the temerity to criticise the officials appointed by Gen. Brooke; also that he has established what is likely to be a troublesome precedent."

Late News.

MANILA, Aug. 2.—(via Hong Kong) —The gunboat Napidan last week shelled Paete, on the lake, near Santa Cruz. The town was full of people who had been encouraged to return after Gen. Lawton's expedition, having been assured that they would not be molested if they peaceably attended to their business.

Lieut. Copp, who was in command of the Napidan, heard that the insurgents had reoccupied the town, and steaming close in, opened fire with his six pounders without warning. The people seeing the boat approaching fled to the hills in a terrified condition and with barely time to escape. One child was killed and many buildings were damaged. The authorities express great regret on account of the incident.

After the taking of Calamba by the Americans, Gen. Lawton ordered that Capt. Otis, of the Washington regiment, be relieved of his command and placed under arrest on account of slowness and seeming reluctance of the companies under his command in obeying the order to disembark from the cascoes and wade through the marshes under fire. The men say that a majority of them have been sick and unfit for duty, and were given to understand that they would not be asked to do any more fighting.—Dispatch.

Tomah a Truthful Man

But He Had to Catch a Bull Moose With a Rope to Prove It.

GABRIEL TOMAH, a member of the Princeton (Me.) branch of the Passamaquoddy Indian tribe, is a guide by profession. On Monday, June 5, while he was paddling in his canoe up through the Dobsis Lake thoroughfare bound for his camps on the upper lakes, he saw a very large cow and bull moose quietly feeding on a small island in the center of the stream. The island covers less than five acres, is near the mouth of the lake, and in some places is less than five rods from the shore. Tomah had waiting for him a party of hunters who had sailed up as far as the white house in the little naphtha launch Muriel to avoid a long lake journey. So he spent but little time in watching the movements of the animals. He was obliged to pass the island quite close to where they were grazing, and expected that his presence would frighten them away, but in this he was mistaken. As he paddled along noiselessly the big bull raised his head, and, after sniffing the air a few times as if to identify something, walked down to the beach and out among the reeds straight toward the canoe until it was less than 20 feet away. There he stood like a statue and watched until the intruder had passed around the bend out of sight.

When Tomah arrived at the White house landing he found his party with their canoes and luggage on the shore. While the dunnage was being placed in the canoes he began to tell the story of his meeting with the moose. Some members of the party expressed a desire to see a real live moose running wild in the woods, and one of them, Paul Hardiman, of Montreal, ventured to ask the guide to place him within rifle range, offering to pay $25 for the chance and to take his chances as to the law. Tomah believes in the Maine law for the protection of game animals and refused to guide the party to the spot, except on the condition that they should leave their arms behind. His refusal caused the hunters to murmur and exchange winks. At the same time they proceeded to make uncomplimentary remarks about Maine guides and the big lies they have learned to tell.

"I don't believe that there's a moose within 50 miles of here," said John McDonald, of Boston. "I've been in the Maine woods two weeks every season for the past 16 years, and no guide can fool me with gush. I've come here to fish and not to hear fairy tales. Get a move on! Let's get started."

Tomah was vexed at this remark, as he prides himself on being a truthful man.

"Urh? Ah! fairy tale. Me a lie! Ah!" he said. "You say I'm not see it? You do, ah? You call me a liar, ain't yer? You stay where you are and you just wait for me come back here again. I can prove you 'f I'm lie or you. I prove you, too, ah!" and without another word Tomah pitched the dunnage from his canoe, pushed off and was soon skimming back in the direction whence he had come.

THE ANIMALS WERE FEEDING ON THE EEL GRASS.

In the bottom of the canoe was a coil of rope which the Indian had agreed to deliver to Mercer's river drivers at Grand lake stream. This was the only thing in the way of a weapon he had with the exception of the paddle, and with this he proposed to capture one of the moose. When within sight of the island he noticed that both animals were in the shoal water feeding on the eel grass, and as the wind was blowing from the island toward the approaching canoe and the moose were both headed in the opposite direction he felt himself sure of a successful job. He made a slip-noose at one end of the rope and started to get near the moose. The moose while feeding would plunge their heads under water for nearly a minute at a time while pulling the grass. Then they would raise them and chew the grass as contented as could be. Tomah paddled along while their heads were under water and when they were raised would lower himself in the boat and remain silent, letting it float. In this way he was enabled to make fair progress without being detected. The moose goes by smell more than by sight or hearing, and so the guide was sure that his chances were good.

When within 50 yards of the moose Tomah laid his paddle away and stretched down in the bottom of his canoe and paddled with one hand when the heads were under water. Carefully he proceeded until his little birch was close to the big bull moose's side, between the animal and the shore. Then Tomah rose to his feet, ready to throw the big rope snare when the moose's head came up. When it did come the lasso was thrown.

There was a wild time then. The moose made a desperate attempt to escape, but the Indian held on for dear life. Away they went up the shore into the bushes, with the coil of rope spinning out and Tomah clinging to it. Several times he attempted to snub the moose, but in every case was thrown and dragged about until he was nearly bruised to death. At one time, while the moose was making a dash across a small clearing, Tomah fell down and the maddened animal made a return charge, evidently with the intention of ending the chase. As the moose charged he draggged the rope around the trunk of a birch tree. Tomah took advantage of the animal's bad judgment, and, holding on to his end of the rope, ran around in the opposite direction until he had made a fair hitch, and then he began to run around in a circle, tantalizing the creature, till the moose had wound himself up close to the tree. Then Tomah tied the remaining end of the rope to the antlers and his work was accomplished. He then went to the shore and found that his canoe had filled with water during the struggle. He soon had it emptied and was on his way down the lake to find the men who doubted his word.

"That Indian don't like to be called city names," said another, while a third said:

"We have lost a guide, sure."

While they were speculating on the best plan for future operations, provided the guide had deserted them, the black flies and mosquitoes began to feast upon them with such ferocity that it was found necessary to kindle a fire for a smudge. The little steamer had gone down the lake, and the only thing to do was to prepare for a stay or employ a new guide. After an hour or more of fighting flies and boxing mosquitoes, it was voted to employ a new guide and proceed up the lake. One member of the party was detailed to go to the only house in the neighborhood, the white house, 2½ miles away, for that purpose. He was gone several hours, and fears were entertained that he might have lost his way or taken the wrong road.

There the hunters sat and smoked and fretted until it began to look like a walk or a bivouac for the night. Just before the sun had set over the off side of old Porcupine mountain Tomah was seen in his canoe making his return trip. He was standing up, paddling with all his might and main and skimming along at a rapid rate. As he neared the shore it was plainly evident that he had been in a hard tussel with something. His face was covered with blood, his hunting jacket gone, and his trousers torn to ribbons, while the sleeves of his shirt were missing and his large muscular arms were crimson with blood. He paddled straight for the clump of bushes on the shore near the smudge fire, where the astonished party had been seated. The hunters met him with open mouths, ears and eyes. Tomah landed and rushed into the group and, shaking his blood-spattered head and arms in the faces of the men, shouted:

"I am no lie teller! I prove to you! Every man here. I prove him so! Every one man of you. I prove you I am no lie. You follow me. Take a birch canoe, everyone of yer," and with another shake of his head he turned and was soon sailing away on the lake again.

"That man is crazy!" said one.

"No, I think he has killed a moose," said another.

One by one they got into the canoes until five of them were skimming along in a hot race with the guide. It was nearly dark when they reached the island. Tomah pulled his birch up on the shore and made his way over to a knoll, where he stood and waited till all were landed and close to him. When all were present he pointed to a clump of birches and said:

"Am I a lie teller?"

"I'm no lie," he said again. "There's a live moose. I'm show you how he looks when he run."

Then Tomah went to the opposite of the tree, and with one slash of his knife the bull was set free, while Tomah himself went into the limbs. The animal made one leap, lifted his head in the air, gave a bellowing yell, and made a charge at the men before him.

Never did a Spanish bull in the arena make a more glorious charge. The men flew in all directions in mad haste to make clear his pathway. McDonald and Hardiman both received a ducking in the lake, while one of the others was found where he had wedged himself between the ground and a windfall. The bull kept a straight course to the lake and swam to the mainland, and was soon out of sight. Tomah received the $25.—N. Y. Sun.

Misdirected Zeal.

"Why the dickens don't you stop?" asked the angry householder. "The fire is all out."

"I allow it is," admitted the leader of the village hose company, "but they is three winders not broke yet."—Indianapolis Journal.

Halibut in Alaskan Waters.

One of the most remarkable things on the North Pacific coast is the large number of halibut in Alaskan waters. Small steamers catch cargoes in a few hours' time, and it is no strange thing to see 100,000 caught in from two to three days.

Massachusetts Manufactures.

In Massachusetts more money is invested in cotton mills than in any other manufacturing industry, but the making of boots and shoes yields the most valuable product.

No sooner is Du Paty de Clam out of trouble in France than we learn that De Smet de Nayer is likely to get into trouble in Belgium.

During a recent shower in Manila 7.39 inches were recorded. The July rainfall for 15 days was 20 inches. It is evident that dust is not one of the summer drawbacks in the Philippines.

Those who are demanding that the name of the horseless carriage shall be shortened in this country will be surprised to learn, perhaps, that in Germany they are perfectly contented to call it an "automobiletaxameterdroschken."

In the estimation of coin collectors the most valuable of all the American coins to-day is the perfect silver dollar of 1804. The highest auction price is $1,000, and there is a record of $1,200 having been paid for one at a private sale.

The sultan of Sulu ought to be a great orator. He is certainly happy in his choice of similes. "The Americans are like a box of matches," he says. 'You strike one or two and they all blaze up." He could hardly have done better unless he had likened us to a bunch of firecrackers.

From the first week in May, when the summer European passenger service is presumed to commence, up to the first week of July, when it practically is over, just two months time, over 40,000 tourists sailed from these to foreign shores at an outlay of nearly $15,000,000 of American money.

Five members-elect of the Fifty-fifth congress have died this year. Nelson Dingley, of the Second Maine district, died January 13; William E. Greene, of the Sixth Nebraska, died March 11; Samuel E. Baird, of the Fifth Louisiana, died April 23; Richard P. Bland, of the Eighth Missouri, died June 15, and Lorenzo Danford, of the Sixteenth Ohio, died June 19.

The Cramps have received an order to build a great trans-Atlantic liner that will be 700 feet long. The new vessel will be the largest afloat and will be even larger than the Great Eastern, the famous ship that was finally broken up because she was thought to be too large for use. She was too large for those days, but we have learned a thing or two since then.

President Charles J. Glidden, of the Erie system of telephone companies, has offered $1,000,000 in cash for a telephone repeater and a telephone quadruplex covered by patents, the instruments when used on telephone circuits to produce the same results, telephonically speaking, as the telegraph repeater and quadruplex in the working of a telegraph circuit. If you do not take advantage of this offer don't say again that you have never had a chance to become wealthy.

The world certainly do move! Even the empress of China has become a convert to reform. She has been studying the writings of Kung-Yu-Wei, the reformer whose head she so greatly desired a few months ago, and now approves many of his ideas. With so strong a woman as the empress on the side of progress there may be some hope for China yet. She'll make her subjects turn from their barbarous ways or know the reason why, even if she has to order out the imperial sniekersnee.

A sad case of a parent's cruelty to his son is reported from Indianapolis. Monroe Hedges, who has heretofore borne an enviable reputation as a kind father, knocked his boy, Hiram, down with a cane the other day because the son came home slightly under the influence of strong drink and the hot weather. The severity of the punishment is all the more to be condemned because the son is a careless young fellow of 70. The father, who is 106, should have taken the boy's youth and inexperience into consideration.

The late Mrs. Kate Sprague Chase was one of the most brilliant women in natural and acquired gifts this country has produced. Through the early death of her mother she became when a girl the head of her father's household and was noted even then for her ease of manner and fascinating qualities. She was a natural politician, intensely ambitious, and it was her greatest disappointment that her father failed to reach the presidency after having been governor, senator, secretary of the treasury and chief justice.

The question of a name for the horseless carriage seems to be as vexed as the world-old question of naming the baby. If the horseless vehicle is the success it seems likely to be; if, in years, it shall have superseded, for all purposes but those of private pleasure, the carriage drawn by horses, the term which refers to its manner of propulsion will drop naturally into disuse. We shall speak of the bus, the truck, the dray, the victoria, precisely as we do now, and it will be taken for granted that we mean the vehicle which is most generally in use.

The peace conference has closed. It was called to consider the question of disarmament, which was dismissed to consider the question of arbitration, which was not formally indorsed. That is, it has left no positive results. It was a series of meetings for an exchange of opinions. Drafts of plans for arbitration were made and discussed, and while not rejected they were not approved. It is something, however, that the opinions of the representatives of all the influential governments in the world are in favor of efforts to arbitrate before going to war.

The interurban street car line between St. Paul and Minneapolis is soon to be the most thoroughly equipped in the country. The cars, which are as big as railroad coaches, are double-tracked and run at a very high speed. They are equipped with air brakes, and there is a warning whistle which is blown by compressed air. Each car carries a telephone and 50 feet of wire, and every quarter of a mile there is a telephone plug for making connections, so that communication with headquarters can be secured in a very short time. Street railroading is a regular science.

A FATAL ACCIDENT.

Heavily Loaded Trolley Car Falls Forty Feet from a Trestle.

Twenty-Nine Persons Killed and Many Injured—Score of Excursionists Drowned at Bar Harbor, Me.

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 7. — Many persons were killed by an accident on the Stratford extension of the Shelton Street Railway company at four o'clock Sunday afternoon when a loaded trolley car went off the trestle over Peck's millpond at Oronoque, about six miles north of Bridgeport, and sank in the flats 40 feet below. Twenty-nine people are known to be dead and a dozen or more injured.

Only Two Escape.

Only two persons are known to have escaped unharmed. It is believed that there were 43 passengers on the car, but the indicator was removed by a conductor of another car and spirited away, so that it is impossible to state accurately the number aboard.

The scene of the accident is midway between Shelton and Bridgeport. The car was north-bound, running toward Shelton. It was in charge of Conductor John Carroll, of Bridgeport, who was among the killed, and Motorman Hamilton, of Bridgeport, who escaped by jumping.

Plunged from the Trestle.

The trestle is 440 feet long, made of iron, with stone foundations, and was not protected by guard rails. South of the trestle is an incline, down which the car ran at a high rate of speed. After it ran onto the trestle for about ten feet the trucks left the rails and then the car continued on the ties for about 75 feet when it went off the trestle and dropped into the pond below, overturning completely and upending. When the car struck the fourton motor and the heavy trucks crushed into it, instantly killing many of the passengers.

Three physicians who were passengers on a car a short distance behind arrived quickly on the scene and rendered all possible assistance to the injured. Word was sent to Bridgeport and three ambulances and a police wagon were hurried to the scene and the injured were taken to Bridgeport general hospital. A morgue was improvised in the main room of the town hall at Stratford, and in a very short time 23 bodies were laid out awaiting identification.

The accident was witnessed by Miss Frances Peck, who resides about 400 feet from the bridge. She was upstairs at her home as the car was passing, and she says that it was running at an unusually fast rate. Frank Cramer, who was bathing near the bridge, states that the passengers were all singing and in the most joyful mood as they passed him. The road, which is practically controlled by the Bridgeport Traction company, was opened for traffic last Thursday.

THROWN INTO THE WATER.

Score of Persons Perish at Mount Desert Ferry, Me.

Bar Harbor, Me., Aug. 7.—A score of persons were killed Sunday by the collapse of the gang plank of the Mount Desert Ferry. Seventeen were drowned and three died from the terrible experience of immersion in the water and injuries while struggling for life. The Maine Central railroad ran excursions to Bar Harbor from all sections of its line in Maine, the attractions being the warships which were expected Sunday. All the morning long trains packed with excursionists were rushing to Bar Harbor. The train which left Bangor at 8:25 consisted of 12 cars jammed with people. At Mount Desert Ferry, the terminus of the line, the train left for the boat, for an eight-mile sail to Bar Harbor.

Gang Plank Gives Way.

When the excursion train from Bangor arrived at the ferry there was a rush for the steamer Sappbet. The first few passengers had crossed the gangplank safely, and it is estimated that 200 people were massed upon the plank. Suddenly they felt the plank give way beneath them. The long timber supporting the plank broke in the middle. The hinges held up one end and the chain the other, while the broken end of the plank dropped, and a struggling, screaming mass of humanity was plunged into the water, 15 feet below the wharf.

A Death Grapple.

After the first moment of stupefaction the work of rescue began. Ropes and life preservers were thrown to the crowd, but in the panic the people in the water clutched one another, and many sank thus in groups in a death grapple. Many taken from the water were unconscious and were revived with difficulty. Doctors were summoned from all directions, but it was half an hour before the first arrived. The freight house at the ferry was turned into a morgue, the bodies being taken there for identification as fast as recovered.

Killed While Preventing a Suicide.

Des Moines, Ia., Aug. 8.—Fred Hunnell, a carpenter, undertook to commit sucide at his home Monday evening by shooting himself. His son, Archie Hunnell, undertook to wrest his revolver from him. The gun went off and the son fell dead, shot through the heart. A crowd was attracted to the house and tried to arrest Hunnell, but with a knife and gun he stood off a score of men, drove them away from the place and then tried to take his own life. He slashed himself viciously with the knife, but the police came and arrested him before he was able to end himself. He will probably recover and is undoubtedly insane.

Stockholders Must Pay.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 8.—J. L. Hudson, receiver of the defunct Third National bank, has received notice from the comptroller of the currency that a further assessment of 16 per cent. has been ordered upon the capital stock. The first assessment was declared in February, 1894, soon after the bank closed, for a total of $252,000. The new assessment is for the remaining $48,000, and brings the total up to 100 per cent., which is the limit of the law.

The Shamrock Sails.

Glasgow, Aug. 4.—Sir Thomas Lipton's challenger Shamrock, accompanied by the owner's steam launch Erin, sailed from Fairlie at five o'clock Thursday evening, an enthusiastic crowd lining the shore and cheering as the vessel was cast off.

DREYFUS TRIAL BEGINS.

Court-Martial of the Famous Prisoner Begins at Rennes, France—Loudly Declares Innocence.

Rennes, Aug. 8.—The proceedings of the court-martial before which Capt. Dreyfus is on trial opened at 7:10 o'clock Monday morning and a few hours later adjourned, after deciding to sit behind closed doors to-day and as many of the following days as are necessary for the examination of the secret dossier. The next public session will probably take place on Saturday. Capt. Dreyfus entered the courtroom with a firm step, though his features were pallid. He is partly bald, and what hair he has is gray and close-clipped.

He answered the formal questions of the judge as to his name, age, etc., in a clear, determined voice. He sat facing the judges with his hands resting on his knees, an impassive figure. The trial opened, so far as Rennes is concerned, in an atmosphere of perfect tranquillity. The population is apparently indifferent.

The scene inside the courtroom was most animated. Every inch of space was filled a quarter of an hour before the proceedings opened.

A very dramatic scene occurred when Col. Jouaust handed the prisoner a long strip of cardboard upon which the bordereau was pasted.

"No, my colonel. I am innocent. I declare it here, as I declared it in 1894. I am a victim." His voice here was choked with sobs, which must have stirred every spectator in court. The voice of the prisoner did not seem human. It resembled the cry of a wounded animal.

As he ended his reply with the words: "Five years in the galleys! My wife! My children! My God, I am innocent! —innocent!" Col. Jouaust said: "Then you deny it?"

Dreyfus replied: "Yes, my colonel."

FULL BLOODS DEFEATED.

Buffington Elected Chief of Cherokee Tribe of Indians by 2,000 Majority.

Vinita, I. T., Aug. 8.—Incomplete returns from the Cherokee election, held Monday, indicate the defeat of the national ticket, which had the support of the full-blood element in the nation, and the election of Buffington for principal chief by 2,000 majority. The Downing ticket, which was headed by Buffington, was elected all the way through. This defeat of the full-bloods makes it certain that the treaty with the United States will be revived, or a new commission appointed to make a treaty with the Dawes commission. The successful party went into the campaign on a platform favoring the allotment of tribal lands and the revival of the Dawes treaty.

YIELD OF GOLD.

The World's Production for the Year May Reach $295,000,000—Africa Leads.

Washington, Aug. 5.—The director of the mint has nearly completed his estimate of the world's gold production for the year 1898. The data at hand seem to warrant the conclusion that the production will amount to at least $294,000,000, and possibly $295,000,000. Africa leads all other countries with $80,300,000, with Australia second, with $67,000,000, and the United States third, with $64,463,000. Russia is credited with $25,000,000, Mexico with $10,000,000, and Canada, including the Klondike, with $14,000,000.

Would Build a Hospital.

Des Moines, Ia., Aug. 8.—The Methodist conferences of the state have given approval to the plan of building a great Protestant hospital in Des Moines. The statement is made that while the Catholics have splendid hospitals in all the large cities, the Protestants have but one in Iowa. All evangelical denominations will be interested in the proposed institution. A half million dollars will be raised, of which $100,000 will be invested in buildings and equipment, the balance in a permanent endowment fund. Already many large subscriptions are reported.

Grape Crop Destroyed.

Ashtabula, O., Aug. 8. — Prof. J. S. Lowe, of Ashtabula, T. S. Clymonts, of Cleveland, and S. F. Higley, of Geneva, members of the Northeastern Ohio Grape association, have just completed their inspection of a large number of vineyards in the lake shore grape belt. They find that grapes in this section are almost totally destroyed by dry rot, entailing a loss of $1,000,000.

Under Control.

Newport News, Va., Aug. 7. — There were no deaths or new cases of yellow fever at the soldiers' home Sunday, and the authorities feel certain that they have succeeded in effectually checking the disease. No other cases of yellow fever have been reported at Phoebus. It is thought now that quarantine restrictions will be modified this week and that they will soon be removed altogether.

Population of Kansas.

Topeka, Kan., Aug. 7.—Official figures show Kansas is making a steady, healthy advance in population. The enumerating made by assessors for March, 1899, compiled by the state board of agriculture, gives a total of 1,423,112 inhabitants which is a net increase over 1898 of 34,143, or 2.5 per cent.

UPRISING IN SANTO DOMINGO.

Cape Haytien, Hayti, Aug. 8.—Gens. Pablo Reyes, Ramon Pacheco, Clena Navarro, Jose Polo and Jose Jiminez have taken up arms in Santo Domingo in favor of Don Juan Isidro Jiminez and occupy the plains of Chaguei and Curabo as far as Jose de Las Matas, as well as the towns of Guayabin, Sabineta, Manzanillo and Dajabon, abandoned by the troops of the government of Santo Domingo. More than half of these troops are said to have gone over to the camp of Gen. Pacheco, who is reported to have more than 800 well-armed men under his command.

Gen. Guellito, governor of Monte Criste, who, it is claimed, has already lost half his troops, who have gone over to the enemy, is in a desperate position and unable to attack the revolutionists. It is added that he will be obliged to capitulate.

Numbers of Dominicans are arriving in Hayti by sea in order to join by crossing the frontier the camp of Gen. Pacheco.

Puerto Plata, Santo Domingo, Aug. 8.—Senor Alvarez, the minister of finance, and Senor Cordero with 100 men went to Monte Christi Sunday. They united there with 700 men who had been assembled in behalf of the government for the restoration of order. Armed steamers are watching the coast to prevent the landing of an insurrectionary expedition, should such a thing be attempted.

The governor of Monte Christi has 3,000 men under arms for the preservation of the peace.

MORE MEN FOR MANILA.

Otis to Be Reenforced by 46,000 Soldiers Before Dry Season Begins.

Washington, Aug. 7. — A statement prepared at the war department shows that by October 22 there will be at Manila or on the way to the Philippines 46,000 men. They will all reach the island before the beginning of the dry season. The troops to be sent from this country are ten regiments of volunteers, amounting to 13,090 men; recruits for skeleton regiments organized in the Philippines, 1,900; recruits for regulars, 3,500; eight troops of cavalry, 965; marines, 400. Beginning to-day and up to October 22 there will sail from the Pacific coast 17 transports with a carrying capacity of 693 officers and 17,370 men, which will include nearly all the organizations above named.

"Secretary of the Navy—Nazro, the commander of the Manila on July 11, reestablished lighthouse at Cape Melville, Balabac, Philippine islands; hoisted flag with appropriate honors. July 13, in his return, 13 Moros under arms were found to be in possession of the lighthouse. Landing party commanded by Ensign E. L. Bissett, encountered resistance. No casualty in our party. Loss in killed, one officer and one man of the enemy. Dieago Manalo, chief of the Balabac Moros, was killed, seven taken prisoners, two escaped. Chief of party was very unpopular with the people of Balabac, Philippine islands, owing to fear of him. Light has been restored. Manila has landed force. Charlestown is on her way to Balabac; will render all assistance possible.

(Signed) "WATSON."

Kills Daughter and Self.

Greentown, O., Aug. 7.—Ruth Swartz, aged 16, was killed by her mother, Mrs. Catherine Wise, Sunday morning. The murderess then went a mile and a half and threw herself into a pool of water at an abondoned stone quarry. Her body was fished out by neighbors Sunday afternoon. The facts brought out by an investigation of the county coroner are that the young girl had loved in an unfortunate way. The distracted mother declared she would find some way to save her daughter. During the night the mother arose, went downstairs and slashed her daughter's throat with a razor which was left lying on a table in the room. In her struggle for life the girl threw up her hands, which were cut with the razor.

Fever Under Control.

Washington, Aug. 5.—Official reports to the marine hospital service from the soldiers' home at Hampton show that the yellow fever situation there continues favorable. Surgeon White reports to Dr. Wyman that there is nothing suspicious in the town of Hampton. There were no new cases and only two deaths at the home Friday, according to a report Dr. Vickery, the surgeon at the institution, sent to the surgeon general. Dr. Vickery expressed the opinion that the immune help on their way there should be sufficient, as the epidemic seems to be checked.

Busy Day for President.

Plattsburg, N. Y., Aug. 8.—The president had a busy day Monday. He witnessed the yacht races in the afternoon on board the yacht Elfrida in company with Vice President Hobart and Mrs. Hobart and party. Later he took a short drive with Vice President Hobart. In the evening he held a long conference with Secretary of War Root, who arrived on the 7:15 train. Mrs. McKinley continues to improve slowly.

Will Erect a Peace Chapel.

The Hague, Aug. 8.—The American delegates to the recent peace conference have offered on behalf of the United States to erect near the English church a peace chapel, with a stone to commemorate the conference. The offer has been gratefully accepted.

The Battle Field Route.

The Veterans of sixty-one and five and their friends, who are going to attend the 33rd G. A. R. Annual Encampment at Philadelphia in September, could not select a better nor more historic route than the Big Four, Chesapeake & Ohio, with splendid service from Chicago, Peoria and St. Louis on the Big Four, all connecting at Indianapolis or Cincinnati and thence over the Picturesque Chesapeake & Ohio along the Ohio river to Huntington, West Va., thence through the foot-hills of the Alleghanies, over the Mountains, through the famous Springs Region of Virginia to Staunton, Va., between which point and Washington are many of the most prominent Battlefields: Waynesboro, Gordonsville, Cedar Mountain, Rappahannock, Kettle Run, Manassas, Bull Run, Fairfax, and a score of others nearly as prominent. Washington is next, and thence via the Pennsylvania Line direct to Philadelphia. There will be three rates in effect for this business: 1st. Continuous passage, with no stop-over privilege; 2nd. Going and coming same route with one stop-over in each direction; 3d. Circuitous route, going one way and back another with one stop-over in each direction. For full information as to Routes, Rates, etc., address J. C. Tucker, G. N. A., 234 Clark St., Chicago.

Fee Strangely Earned.

It was on the night of the Jeffries-Fitzsimmons prize fight, and a man reached the West side apartment house in which he lived about two o'clock. A search of all his pockets failed to bring forth his bunch of keys. He rang the bell repeatedly for the janitor, but could get no response. He was exceedingly tired, there was no hotel in the neighborhood, and, besides, there were family reasons why it was indivisable for him to spend the rest of the night away from home. The sight of a physician's night bell gave him an idea. He pushed the button hard for 30 seconds or more. In due season the physician came to the door and opened it.

"What is your fee for night calls?" asked the locked-out individual.

"Four dollars," was the astonished reply.

"All right, here you are. I was locked out and couldn't get in. Sorry to trouble you," and he began his weary march upstairs, happy in the thought of the evils he had escaped.—N. Y. Tribune.

A Shoppy Announcement.

A Kansas printer in making up the forms one day in a hurry got a marriage and a grocer's notice mixed up so they read as follows: "John Smith and Ida Quay were united in the bonds of holy sauerkraut which will be sold by the quart or barrel. Mr. Smith is an esteemed codfish at ten cents; while the bride has nice pigs' feet to display."—Michigan Lyre.

Miss Susan Wymar.

Miss Susan Wymar, teacher in the Richmond school, Chicago, Ill., writes the following letter regarding Pe-ru-na. She says: "Only those who have suffered as I have, can know what a blessing it is to be able to find relief in Pe-ru-na. This has been my experience. A friend in need is a friend indeed, and every bottle of Pe-ru-na I ever bought proved a good friend to me."—Susan Wymar.

Mrs. Margaretha Dauben, 1214 North Superior St., Racine City, Wis., writes: "I feel so well and good and happy now that pen cannot describe it. Pe-ru-na is everything to me. I have taken several bottles of Pe-ru-na for female complaint. I am in the change of life and it does me good." Pe-ru-na has no equal in all of the irregularities and emergencies peculiar to women caused by pelvic catarrh.

Remember that cholera morbus, cholera infantum, summer complaint, bilious colic, diarrhoea and dysentery are each and all catarrh of the bowels. Catarrh is the only correct name for these affections. Pe-ru-na is an absolute specific for these ailments, which are so common in summer. Dr. Hartman, in a practice of over forty years, never lost a single case of cholera infantum, dysentery, diarrhoea, or cholera morbus, and his only remedy was Pe-ru-na. PLEDGES REDEEMED

GOVERNOR LIND'S PROMISE KEPT TO THE LETTER.

The Grain Inspection Department in the Hands of the Producers—Clausen's Forced Retirement—His Successor, Edwin S. Reishus—Guarantees of Honest and Able Administration — Let the Galled Jade Wince—Other State Departments — Insurance Commissioner O'Shaughnessey "After 'Em"—Game Agent Beutner's August Chickens. Echoes of National Politics—National Committeeman O'Brien on "Issues." Gold Standard Prosperity Echoes. Trust and Combine Arrogance; Their Prices Up, Producers Prices Down—McKinley's Placid Euchre Games at Plattsburg—Note and Comment of the Week.

Reform Press Bureau.
ST. PAUL, Aug. 7, 1899.

The assurance given in this letter one week ago that Governor Lind would not be balked in his purpose of reforming the inspection department was made good with rapidly occurring events of the first days following. No sooner was Inspector Clausen made aware of the situation, than like Davy Crockett's coon, he "came down," and his resignation and the election of Senator Reishus quickly followed. There was never at any time the slightest question but that Gov. Lind would redeem his pledge to the people of the state, in this regard. The only question was as to what ends those who have all these years manipulated the department would have the effrontery to go, and therefore what action the governor might be required to take ere he could take these first steps necessary to reorganize and habilitate an utterly discredited branch of the public service.

Edwin S. Reishus, State Grain Inspector.

Inspector Clausen's successor, Edwin S. Reishus, is of Norwegian parentage, though American born, having been born in Dane County, Wisconsin, March 4, 1852. When 2 years of age his parents removed to Filmore county, this state, where his boyhood was spent. He was educated in the public schools and the state university, which he left in 1872. Three years later he married and settled in Lyon county, where he has since resided, and become a prosperous farmer and successful business man. His family are wife and two children. For years prominently connected with public affairs, he has been a leader of his section of the state upon those economic questions which have received most attention. He held the office of county clerk of Lyons county for four years, and subsequently served two years in the state senate, session of 1895-7, representing the Peoples Party. All who know him commend him as an able, active, honest man, and he comes to the position with the confidence of all such that he will give the grain raisers, as well as the market men, a satisfactory, because an able and an honest, administration.

The general Republican theory that no one but A. C. Clausen could conduct the state grain department, has reminded a good story teller at the capitol, of the shrewd German, whose manager "struck" for more pay.

"But John," said the proprietor, "I was baying you pretty vell, already, eh, John?"

"Yes," said the manager, "but I have been with you a long time and made your business do well. I feel that I ought to have more pay now."

"Ya," said the other, "but you have had goot money all the dime, John. Is it not so?"

"I am not complaining," said John, "but you know I commenced as office boy and have risen to manager, and I feel that I am worth more to you than any other man you could get. I feel that I am worth more than I am getting."

"Vell, but John," said the boss, "subbose that you should tie, some day. Vat den?"

"Oh," admitted John, "I suppose the business would go on, all the same."

"Vell den, John," said the proprietor, "shust consitter dot you vas dead."

And the business went on.

The consolation drawn in so copious drafts from Governor Lind's over-generous compliment to the "ability" of Inspector Clausen should not be marred, perhaps, by the reflection that it is the trait of a noble man to be generous to a fallen foe. Everyone concedes Inspector Clausen's ability, but the difference between possessing the ability to do and the actual doing of a duty is as wide as the boundless sea. The lack of confidence which Governor Lind expressed is but that felt by the whole state. Clausen's administration was condemned. Governor Lind redeems his pledge to change it, and he awaits the outcome with perfect confidence as he believes the people may also do.

The vigor with which Game and Fish Executive Beutner is administering his department is shown in the fact that he has turned loose a force of nearly 100 extra deputies to patrol the state during the present month to protect agains killing of prairie chickens in advance of the regular period, Sept. 1. Agent Beutner is making a good record in his office.

And, in line with action of the other departments, in enforcing laws for the protection of the people, comes Insurance Commissioner O'Shaughnessey, with a raid on bogus and other unworthy insurance schemes. One of these, the Farmers' and Merchants' Protective Union of Glenwood, formerly the Commercial Life, struggling along with twelve live policies, was found to have collected some $8,000, of which all but about $1,000 went for "expenses" and commissions. Connected with the concern is the celebrated Realty Revenue Company, which recently sued Farm, Stock and Home for $70,000 libel. Through Commissioner O'Shaughnessey, the attorney general is expected to commence suit against the insurance company for violation of state laws. The other concern has a species of crop insurance, but claims to be doing no business in Minnesota. It was recently barred from North Dakota.

Now hear the G. O. P. press roar at the "injury to the Insurance business," as it howled at the refusal of Examiner Pope to permit rotten banks to continue to absorb the good money of depositors.

Minnesota's Democratic National Committeeman, Hon. Thomas D. O'Brien, in an interview in the St. Paul Globe, sees in the stand taken by Senator Burroughs, criticising the Philippine policy of the administration, a foreshadowing of a feature of the coming presidential campaign, when the test will be applied as to responsibility for the sad business into which the nation has been brought under McKinley. It appears to Mr. O'Brien that while no true Democrat has changed his mind on the issues of 1896, still it may very easily happen that the people may be concerned still more, at the moment, with other questions. This will come, as he suggests, in holding the Republican administration to a strict accountability. This would also apply to the trusts as well. Mr. O'Brien confirms the belief now fast becoming general, that the administration has no intention of stopping short of the absolute ownership of the entire Philippine archipelago, regardless of the extent to which the subjugation of the present owners outrages our boasted American principles.

Among the week's echoes of gold standard prosperity are a fifth boost for lumber, by the combine, continued advance of all trust controlled merchandise, further drop in wheat, cotton, corn, oats, potatoes; continued strikes, those beautiful Republican evidences of the happiness of the people, government troops still administering local government in Idaho, as state troops continue to edify the people of Cleveland, while in that city the boycott rages, and discontented labor continues to send cablegrams to Boss Hanna in his Parisian retreat. As a mere incident the Chicago railroad lines have met and increased the eastbound rates on wheat, corn, oats, etc., by way of emphasizing the continued fall in those and other products of the soil. In the Philippines, where nothing but the land stage of water and lack of soldiers hinders progress of our war of foreign conquest, the said stage was only four feet or so on the level, though more rain was falling.

But let no one be discouraged. Fot Alger is out and the "Emperor" is recuperating his "nerve" with the seductive game of euchre at Lake Champlain.

Wonder if while "Emperor" McKinley is playing euchre at Plattsburg, it ever flashes across his Hannaized thinking apparatus that it was at Plattsburg in 1812 that some of our forefathers gave British soldiers an exhibition of our faith that "government derives its just powers from the consent of the governed."

The revenue stamp has come to stay. Without it we must necessarily be deprived of the misleading bulletins from Otis, and to fail of receiving these would indeed be a hardship. They constitute an expensive luxury to be sure—some $200 or $300 a bulletin—but just think of what they give us in return for our money! Glorious accounts of wonderful battles without material results! Confirmation from day to day of the rumor that Manila is still ours! Estimates as to the strength of the natives sufficiently low to furnish surprise at the ginger they put into the fight on the following day! Casualty lists, long and interesting! Other reports, deceptive, perhaps, as the bulletins sent out on the night of election, but for all that exciting and full of cheer to the blinded advocates of a benevolent and Christianizing expansion! Let us not complain, therefore, if the end of the revenue stamp is not yet in sight. We must have news though we have to go to the trouble of making it.

Twelve hundred men walking the streets of Anderson, Ind., are a trust incident of the closing of four of the large nail mills. Eight hundred of the 1,200 had wages reduced from 12 to as much as 42 per cent during the past year. When they struck, the trust yielded, but the men are waiting the time of resuming work, until they get ready.

"When they get ready." That is the way the retail merchants are treated by the combines, in filling their orders. They must put up the cash on the spot when ordering, and the trust delivers when they "get ready." How do you like it, Mr. Shoe dealer, Mr. Dry Goods merchants, Mr. Hardware man, and all the rest?

"When they get ready." It is the way with the lumber combine. Up go the prices for lumber whenever they get ready, and the "readys" number five or six, already this year. And in the last raise, while it was to have been but fifty cents per thousand, the thing was so easy to do, that they made it a whole dollar, and done with it. How do you like it, Mr. Builder, Mr. Carpenter, Mr. Farmer and all the rest? G. S. C.

Elasticity of English.

Where does the slang of the day originate? When a new verbal monstrosity comes into currency its origin is as mysterious as its effect is startling. On a roof garden last night a weary-looking youth in a straw hat that had seen better days and with tell-tale puffs beneath his eyes, released two straws from his mouth long enough to remark, languidly, that he was suffering from a horrible case of the "dingbats." His companion, who looked like a vaudeville lady, had just remarked in a tone loud enough to be heard by her neighbors, that one of the performers was "a useless bunch of trousers." One meant that his head ached, the other that the object of her criticism was professionally incompetent. It's a great language.—N. Y. Commercial Advertiser.

The One Exception.

He—To hear you tell it, one would think I never told a single truth before we were married.

She—Well, you did prevaricate to a considerable extent, but I'll give you credit for having told me the truth once.

"Indeed! And when was that, pray?"

"When you proposed. Don't you remember you said you were unworthy of me?"—Chicago Evening News.

Lawyer—"You say that you were in the saloon at the time of the assault referred to in the complaint?" Witness—"I was, sir." Lawyer—"Did you take cognizance of the barkeeper at the time?" Witness—"I don't know what he called it, but I took what the rest did."—Boston Courier.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Five-mile Handicap—Amateur.

Crop Report.

U. S. Department of Agriculture—Climate and crop bulletin of the weather bureau, Minnesota section:

Wheat and oats are being cut as far north as a line drawn from Chisago county to Lac qui Parle county. The indications are that the crop is a good one generally, but there are reports of injury by fly in Jackson, Traverse, Big Stone and Yellow Medicine counties, and blight in Meeker, Benton, Morrison, Freeborn and Blue Earth counties. Wheat is filling well in the Red river valley, especially the early sown. Oats are badly lodged in Watonwan, Rice, Dakota, Mower and Brown counties, and considerable areas are so tangled and down that they will have to be mowed. Flax is somewhat spotted, but on the whole a good crop; it is ripening in southern counties. Corn continues to grow splendidly, and promises a large crop.

Fly Wheel Bursts.

The bursting of a one-thousand pound fly wheel in one of the engine rooms of the Co-operative Barrel company, Minneapolis, did about $1,000 damage, will be the cause of about 85 men taking a lay-off until the damage wrought can be repaired.

The flywheel was about six feet in diameter and was attached to a four-horse power engine which ran the drying machine in one section of the plant, and the printing machine in another. When it let go it flew into a dozen pieces, each one seemingly going in a different direction. The force with which the wheel burst was sufficient to throw pieces of the spokes distances of more than a block after first hurling them through the roof and sides of the engine room.

Wonderful Well.

Harry Hurl, a farmer living five miles from Stephen reports that his hired men were digging a well on his farm and had got down to a depth of 44 feet when the bottom suddenly fell in and one of the men was thrown into a whirl of water and disappeared and has not been seen or heard of since. The other man when he felt that the ground was giving away under him, caught onto the rope that was used in hoisting the dirt up and was drawn to the top. Mr. Hurl then got a rope and chain about 100 feet long and attached a weight to it and dropped it in this well but it did not touch bottom and was washed rapidly west, showing that a large body of water was underneath.

A Triumph.

Miss Florence M. Austin, daughter of Dr. Marshall P. Austin of Minneapolis, and a lady whose performances on the violin gave her friends every confidence in her ability to ultimately achieve great things in that line has triumphed in a manner exceedingly agreeable to her many friends in this state. Miss Austin has been awarded second prize in the yearly concour of the Conservatoire of Liege, which was held July 12 and 12.

Grain Inspectorship.

At a regular meeting of the Railway and Warehouse commission, A. C. Clausen was re-elected chief grain inspector of the state. Inasmuch as Mr. Clausen was not in accord, politically, with the chief executive of Minnesota he declined the office. At a subsequent meeting of the commission, E. S. Reishus, of Cottonwood, was elected to fill the vacancy.

News in Brief.

The postoffice at Ellis, Cass county, has been ordered removed one-eighth of a mile southwest.

Jerry Reedy, a farmer near Glyndon, aged 70, was kicked to death by a horse.

The grain inspection bureau has reported to the state auditor earnings for July of $12,500.

A state bank is being organized at Hoffman, Grant county, by L. H. Shellback and others, with $10,000 capital.

The appointment of Olaf Gyllstrom as boiler inspector of the Fifth congressional district has been sustained by the supreme court.

F. L. Greenleaf, of Minneapolis, was elected chairman of the grain board of appeals, and F. W. Eva, of Duluth, secretary.

John McCabe, a boy who was sent to the training school at Red Wing from Hennepin county, made his escape by crawling through a ventilator. He was captured by the Winona police in a box car.

The state fish hatchery at Willow Brook was burglarized, and a beautiful doe and 40 chickens stolen.

The Swedish Lutheran church at Dalfo was struck by lightning and destroyed.

The little son of Professor Stanton who was injured while playing on the Great Northern turn table at Sauk Center died twelve hours after the injured limb was amputated.

THE FLORIDA STORM.

Only Nine Houses Left in Carrabelle —Train Blown from the Track —Shipping Suffers.

River Junction, Fla., Aug. 5.—The most disastrous cyclone that ever visited this section of Florida completely annihilated Carrabelle, McIntyre and Lanark Inn, south of here, Thursday. At Carrabelle only nine houses remain of a once beautiful and prosperous town. Communications from the mayor state that 200 families are without homes and shelter and many are completely destitute. Of McIntyre only two mill boilers mark the place of the town. Lanark Inn, the famous summer resort, was blown into the gulf. The Carrabelle, Tallahassee & Georgia railroad is washed away for a distance of 30 miles. A passenger train was blown from the track more than 100 yards. Many passengers were injured, but their names are unobtainable. Mary Williams (colored) was killed at Carrabelle. Numerous others had legs and arms broken. Daniel Neel, of Apalachicola, had his back broken and is not expected to recover. No fatalities are reported from McIntyre or Lanark.

Fifteen ships lying at anchor in Dog island cove and upper anchorage are now all high and dry on St. George's and Dog island. Twelve were loaded with lumber and ready for sea. Nothing remains of them but a mass of wreckage. When the Italian bark Cortesia struck she split in two from stem to stern. Three pilot boats and the steamers Oila and Capitola and 40 boats of under 20 tons were lost. Six lumber lighters, loaded, are gone. Not one of the entire fleet can be saved. Five unidentified bodies were recovered Friday, supposed to be sailors. Tugboats have gone from here to the scene of the wreckage and all possible aid is being given. Fifty destitute sailors were brought here and are being cared for.

A mass meeting of citizens was held here and all possible aid will be given the Carrabelle destitute. One million dollars will not cover the loss. The insurance was small.

OUTLOOK IS GOOD.

New York, Aug. 5.—Bradstreet's says: "All signs indicate the maintenance of general trade and industry in an unprecedented midsummer volume. Specially indicative of this are the continued very heavy bank clearing returns, largely increased railroad earnings, reflecting a traffic in grain and merchandise generally far in excess of a year ago; reports of activity in numerous lines of manufacturing industry, notably in all branches of iron and steel and kindred lines, woolen goods, boots and shoes and cotton goods, and advices from leading markets of a satisfactory opening of the regular fall demand, with heavy shipments of goods on orders. With the exception of food products the prices situation is generally one of maintained strength, advances being most numerous in the line of manufactured goods or in raw materials for manufacturing industry. Cereals are all lower on the week, reflecting the generally favorable crop outlook and also some indifference as regards foreign buying of wheat, though export demand for corn has been apparently stimulated by recent price reactions. All classes of iron and steel are either firmly held or tending upward, notable in this respect being all grades of pig iron and steel rails, structural material and bar iron and steel. Western and northwestern trade advices tell of expanding fall trade. Shipments on fall account from Minneapolis tax the facilities of the jobbing houses. Lumber is very firm and scarce at that center, and advices as to crop conditions point to stories of damage by storms and hot winds being in some respects exaggerated. Increased demand is noted at Chicago, and business with jobbers is reported never better at this season of the year."

QUIET AT CLEVELAND.

The City Is Now Practically Without Military Protection—More People Use the Cars.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 8. — For the first time in over two weeks the city is practically without military protection. All of the troops were relieved from guard duty. Two of the Sixty-fourth regiment companies now guarding the barns of the Big Consolidated Street Railway company were relieved from duty entirely. The other four companies were withdrawn from the barns to the central armory.

The withdrawal of the troops leaves the civil authorities to again cope with any disturbances that may take place. More people apparently used the Big Consolidated cars in order to reach the business portion of the city Monday morning than on any other day since the present strike began.

Struck by a Train.

Humboldt, Ia., Aug. 5.—A Northwestern passenger train ran into a wagon and team east of this city Friday, instantly killing two men who were in the wagon and injuring the third one so that he died in a short time. There was nothing on their persons or in the wagon to indicate who the men were or where they came from. From the outfit in the wagon it is inferred they were on a hunting trip. They were all young men, none of them appearing to be over 25 years of age, and the youngest about 17.

Crickets Come in Swarms.

Galesburg, Ill., Aug. 5.—Crickets swarmed into the city Thursday night in such vast numbers as to be a great nuisance. They were so thick that electric lights were concealed. Along Main street the fronts of stores and sidewalks were densely covered, and pedestrians could not escape killing them by scores. In front of hotels no one could stay, while cafes and restaurants were greatly plagued. Friday morning bushels were swept from the walks into the gutters.

Thousands Are Idle.

San Francisco, Aug. 4.—The steamer Charles Nelson arrived from St. Michaels via Dutch Harbor Thursday, 31½ days from St. Michaels. The Nelson carried 111 passengers and the wealth of her passengers is estimated at about $150,000. The news from Dawson is not the most encouraging. Thousands of men are idle, loafing on every street corner and in every saloon. The government has already sent many back to their former homes.

Bronks Bicycle Record.

Mineapolis, Minn., Aug. 4. — The world's bicycle record for 1,000 miles, held by T. A. Edge, of London, England, and made over an ordinary turnpike road, has been broken by A. A. Hansen, king of American long-distance riders, who has just succeeded in covering the distance in 92 hours 44 minutes. The time made by Edge was 105 hours 19 minutes.

M QUAD'S VEIN OF HUMOR

IT WAS A PICNIC.

First came a farmer's wagon with one man driving and two others lying on the straw at full length. Then there was a man on foot with his right arm in a sling, a second pedestrian limping badly, and another wagon with three men on the straw. These had passed when a bare-headed woman hove in sight. She was walking rapidly and looking neither to the right nor to the left, and was followed at a little distance by a man with a double-barreled shotgun over his shoulder. He had one hand tied up in a handkerchief, and the blood stains showed that he had been hurt. The colonel descended the steps of the hotel veranda and held up his hand to the man and said:

"My friend, there seems to have been trouble somewhere down the road."

"Yes, a little scrimmage over at Gordon's Grove," answered the man.

"You seem to have been hurt?"

"Yes, got shot in the hand, though it didn't amount to much. Here you, Mariar!"

"Mariar" was the woman ahead of him, evidently his wife, but she continued her pace without looking back.

"What was it at Gordon's Grove?" asked the colonel.

"Oh, jest a Sunday school picnic. We have one there every year, you know."

"And there was a scrimmage, as you call it?"

"There was. Had to be one, sah. Never had no Sunday school picnic yet without a scrimmage. Yes, sah, had a right smart scrimmage."

"And there was shooting?"

"Fur suah. Can't have no scrimmage without shootin'. Yes, sah, there was shootin'—heaps of it."

"Lord! Lord! You had a Sunday school picnic and shot at each other!" gasped the colonel. "Some one must have been killed."

"Of co'se."

"And I have seen four or five wounded men pass here."

"Reckon you have, sah. Joe Bailey and Jim White and Henry Davis and Tom Pool all left befo' I did."

"And how many were killed?"

"Didn't count 'em, sah. When I got a bullet in my hand Mariar reckoned it as time to go home, and so we started."

"But I can't understand it, man—I can't understand it," continued the colonel, as he threw up his hands. "You assemble for a Sunday school picnic. You begin to shoot. You—you—"

"It's jest as easy as rubbin' coon's fat on a sore heel," interrupted the man, as a smile lighted his face. "We assemble for a Sunday school picnic. Old man Aaron Sykes was there; young Pete Hendricks was there. They glared at each other and called names. Then they began shootin'. Then Aaron's friends mixed in, and Pete's friends mixed in, and everybody had a high old tie. Some got killed, some got hurt, and some got away, and there you are. Can't be no trouble to understand that."

"But it was a Sunday school picnic!" shouted the colonel.

"Of co'se. Don't reckon a can do all our shootin' at church and camp-meetin's, do you? Yes, it was a Sunday school picnic, and some got killed, some got hurt, and some got away; and now I reckon I'd better be movin' along arter Mariar, and get this hole in my paw plugged up."

THEY ALWAYS GET THERE.

"The New York and Chicago cabdrivers ought to take a few lessons from the French, and particularly the Parisians," observed the Cincinnati woman who had just returned from Europe. "I had been shopping and took a fiacre to return to the hotel. We had scarcely gotten under way when we knocked down a pedestrian and I pulled the strap and said to the driver:

"'Did you not see that you ran over a man?'

"'Very plainly, madame,' he replied, 'but he should not have been in my way.'

"Five minutes later a hind wheel came off, and I pulled the strap and asked:

"'Why don't you stop? Can't you see that you have lost a wheel?'

"'I see, madame,' he replied, 'but we have three wheels left.'

"We went scraping along for a few minutes," said the lady, "and then the other wheel came off. I thought the man would stop then, but as he didn't I pulled the strap and said:

"'We have lost both hind wheels.'

"'Ah! yes, madame,' he answered, with a smile; 'but we have not lost four!'

And he whipped up his horses and dragged along for a quarter of a mile and brought me up to the hotel with a great flourish. When I got out I asked him what he would have done if the other two wheels had parted company, and he waved his hand towards them and shrugged his shoulders and replied:

"'It is impossible, madame. I never lost but two wheels in carrying a beautiful lady!'"

Imitated His Mother.

He criticised her pudding and he didn't like her cake; she hadn't made the biscuit like "his mother used to make." She didn't wash the dishes, and she didn't make the stew; and she didn't mend his stockings "as his mother used to do." O, well, she wasn't perfect, but she tried to do her best, until at length her time had come to have a little rest; so when one day he growled and whined the whole day through and through, she turned him up and fanned his pants "as mother used to do."—Glasgow Echo.

Alternative Hypotheses.

"I love you," he whispered.

Ernestine trembled, and regarded him perplexedly.

"Do my ears deceive me?" she asked herself. "Or does my complexion deceive him?"

An Exception.

Mother (hearing Ethel say her prayers)—And let us all live to a good old age—

Ethel—I'll not pray for aunty to live to a old age.

Mother (astounded)—Why?

Ethel—'Cause she's ashamed of her age now.—Puck.

THERE IS A LIMIT.

The Fourth Gentleman Severely Strained the Bounds of Human Credulity.

"You may not believe it, gentlemen," remarked one of an after-dinner group engaged in smoking cigars in front of a hotel, "but I have used a fountain pen constantly for four years, and have never had the least trouble with it."

"That is indeed remarkable," rejoined another. "Nevertheless I am the father of six children and have never had to walk the floor by night with a single one of them."

There was a silence, lasting a minute or so. Then another spoke up: "I don't doubt it in the least," said he, "for I can testify to something stranger still. I have a bright little four-year-old boy at my house, and I've never repeated any of his smart sayings to my most intimate friends."

"Gentlemen," observed a fourth, after a protracted and somewhat painful pause, "I am fond of hearing young women practice their scales on the piano after I have retired to rest. It lulls me to sleep."

One or two other members of the group made more or less feeble attempts to say something, but falteringly gave it up. It seemed to be generally felt that the extreme limit of human credulity had been reached.—London Telegraph.

A Good-Luck Cross.

A cross recently discovered in the grave of the beautiful Queen Dagmar is supposed to keep away all evil influences. There is no more evil influence than ill health, and there is nothing which has so great a power to keep it away than Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It is worth a hundred good-luck crosses to the man or woman afflicted with dyspepsia and indigestion. A private Revenue Stamp should cover the neck of the bottle.

Locating the Trouble.

"Dear me, the circus isn't what it used to be."

"Now, John, stop; the circus is all right; it is you that has changed. You know you couldn't climb a pole, turn a double somersault or skin the cat to save your life."—Detroit Free Press.

Why They Are Nervous.

A correspondent says that those who dine with the queen are usually painfully nervous. Perhaps they are tortured with doubt of the propriety of praising the pie, not knowing whether her majesty or the cook made it.—Denver Post.

[LETTER TO MRS. PINKHAM NO. 93,284]

Mrs. Johnson Saved from Insanity by Mrs. Pinkham

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—For some time I have thought of writing to you to let you know of the great benefit I have received from the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Soon after the birth of my first child, I commenced to have spells with my spine. Every month I grew worse and at last became so bad that I found I was gradually losing my mind.

"The doctors treated me for female troubles, but I got no better. One doctor told me that I would be insane. I was advised by a friend to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial, and before I had taken all of the first bottle my neighbors noticed the change in me.

"I have now taken five bottles and cannot find words sufficient to praise it. I advise every woman who is suffering from any female weakness to give it a fair trial. I thank you for your good medicine."—MRS. GERTRUDE M. JOHNSON, JONESBORO, TEXAS.

Mrs. Perkins' Letter.

"I had female trouble of all kinds, had three doctors, but only grew worse. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills and used the Sanative Wash, and cannot praise your remedies enough."—MRS. EFFIE PERKINS, PEARL, LA.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

What does it do?
It causes the oil glands in the skin to become more active, making the hair soft and glossy, precisely as nature intended.
It cleanses the scalp from dandruff and thus removes one of the great causes of baldness.

It Prevents and It Cures Baldness

Ayer's Hair Vigor will surely make hair grow on bald heads, provided only there is any life remaining in the hair bulbs.
It restores color to gray or white hair. It does not do this in a moment, as will a hair dye; but in a short time the gray color of age gradually disappears and the darker color of youth takes its place.
Would you like a copy of our book on the Hair and Scalp? It is free.
If you do not obtain all the benefits you expected from the use of the Vigor write the Doctor about it.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, Aug. 11, 1899.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Watermellons, good ones, have arrived and are being sold in town.

—The shrill whistle of the threshing engines is heard in every direction now and the wheat is being marketed.

—Mrs Dannehr, and Mrs. Hilder brandt have been under the doctor's care during the week; both are improving.

—Roosens Opera House now has a couple of panes in the front not calculated to break if hail does beat upon them ane winds blow against them. They are of sheet iron.

—We are in receipt of fine little pictures with the compliments of Bramblett & Bevgeh Engravers, Boston Block, Minneapolis and 320 Wabasha street, St. Paul. Thanks.

—The job of kalsomining and repainting the wood work at the school house has been let to J. M. Borril for $100. The work to be done in time for school to begin on time in September.

—Loren, John, William, Andrew and Thadeus joined the M. E. S. S. long enough to have a fine time at the picnic. The children were pleased to have them along, and would be glad to have them attend Sunday school regularly. Come on boys.

—Quite a lot of new wheat has been marketed here this week, some goes No. 1. some No. 2. The largest load we have seen was on Wednesday morning, hauled by Cyrus Chapman. 86 bushels and 55 pounds: 5215 pounds; or or 2 tons, 1215 pounds, about three ordinary loads. A big load for one team.

—Rev. Kennison, of Rockford, preached at the tent Tuesday evening, in reply to Rev. Farber's Sunday evening sermon on "Where we go to when we die". On account of a threatening storm and rain the services were brought abruptly to a close before finished. All seem to agree that heaven wherever it may be, is a good place to go.

—We were pleased to have a short letter from our friend B. F. Christlieb, at Los Angeles, Cal. He says his health is not the best, but he is thankful to be able to move about and do some traveling. We would be pleased to receive a longer lette from him for publication. His many friends in Minnesota like to hear from him occasionally. He wants the GAZETTE another year.

—The state Fair managers are offering the same premiums for either beef or dairy cattle not pedigreed or pure-bred cattle, all breeders of pure bred cattle being barred from competeing. Now is your time. Write to Secretary Randall, Hamline, Minn., for premium list and take down some cattle, Wright county, is making considerable pretentions of being a dairy county. Advertise it still more by having some of our cattle at the State Fair.

—The Delano Cemetery Association, at its regular meeting on the first Monday evening of the month resolved itself into a committee of the whole to visit the cemetery on Monday afternoon August 14, and arrange prices on the lots, and look into the work of the committee on fixing up the grounds. This would be a good time for people intesested in the cemetery to meet with the board and make any suggestions they may have to offer concerning the management of affairs.

—If the Delano High School is to be up to present expectations quite a number of our young people ought to embrace the opportunity of graduating next spring. By starting in at the first of the term and being diligent many could secure diplomas at the end of the school year. Such diplomas are, according to the latest ruling, to admit the bearer to the University without an examination. Even thought pupils cannot, for any reason, attend the University, they should possess High School diplomas when possible.

—The Eagle intimates that it would be a fine thing for the farmers in this vicinity to club together and build a flouring mill. It sounds very nice but, dont the Eagle know that Delano has a good flouring mill? that Watertown, Montrose and Rockford, our three nearest neighbors each have one? and that the McIntyre syndicate has already got control of several of the Minneapolis mills and that the probability is that they will soon, crush out of the trade all small mills? Don't they know these good "trust times" are not very favorable for farmers to go to expanding their trade? And don't they think really, it would look better if they would rather advise farmers to patronize their home mills, as far as possible, than to join together and help the flour trust break them all up in business, and then themselves become easier victims to the gigantic flour trust? If farmers wish to experiment with the flour market we would suggest that perhaps they could get our local mill, which makes good flour, to grind up a few carloads for them, and they could appoint one of their number as agent and see how the business works, before spending their hard earned dollars in building a costly mill. Some of the people in this neighborhood distinctly remember some advice in financeering the old bird gave them once upon a time, whereby, several surpluses were materially reduced. They remember investing in a Minneapolis Building and Loan Association.

—Stone, the blacksmith, has a new shingled roof on his shop.

—Threshing began last week. Buck Bros. threshed out their fathers grain. They claim about 20 bushels to the acre.

—Rev. Farber will continue his sermon of last week on "Where we go when we die," at the M. E. Church next Sunday evening. This seems to be becoming quite a question with a few of our citizens quite lately.

—The Boston Bloomers, base ball club, pitched their fence on Charley Epple's farm North of town last Sunday and played a game with a picked up nine from all about the county 16 to 10 in favor of the Boston Bloomers.

—The M. E. S. S. picnic held on Wednesday, at Lake Independence was a grand success. Many of the scholars teachers and friends enjoyed the long drive, on the fine day and good roads. Mr. Murray, at the lake furnished boats, and aided materialy in seeing that his visitors wsre entertained.

—Rev. Farber had quite an audience Sunday night which he kept interested with his discussion of where we go when we die. Rev. Kenneston of the A. C. Church, offered to debate the question with him at their tent, Rev. F. said he might, if he found it necessary pursue the subject farther in his own church; but accepted no challenge.

—The old Board of Education met and adjourned Sine die, on Saturday evening. The new Board afterwards met, except Dr. Shrader who was absent, and organized by electing O. A. Burnes President; M. A. O'Hair, Secretary and J. E. Borsch, Treasurer, for the coming school year. Mrs. Tupper and Miss Quinn, two of the teachers, were present with some samples of books they wished to introduce into the school instead of some of those that have been used. The books were left for examination and future action by the board. The Board was announced as a committee to visit the school house at 11 o'clock Monday and look through the rooms as to what is needed in the line of repairs, etc., etc.

The Treasurers bond was, on motion, fixed at $3,000.

It is hoped that the present will be one of the most prosperous school years our village has yet seen. Everybody wants a good school.

Personal.

Prof. Gerdson was in town Saturday.

Rev. J. R. Dyales, of Excelsior, visited Delano Monday.

Gorge Ruppelius, of Rockford, was a Delano visitor Sunday.

John Mooney, of Waverly, was a Delano visitor Wednesday.

Mrs Tupper, teacher of the Grammer room, was in town Saturday.

Hon. John Cunningham, of Greenwood was a Delano visitor today.

Mrs. J. M. Stone, and Loren went to Hastings this week to visit friends.

Mrs. James Stodart, of Rockford, transacted business in Delano Wednesday.

A. E. Johnson and family visited friends at Cokato the fore part of this week

Fred and Charley Bock have gone to the Black Hills country to look for business openings.

P. Shrader, of Rochester, N. Y., is visiting with his sons the M. Ds. here and at Watertown.

John Brenner has ordered his GAZETTE sent to Spring field Minn. where he has gone to work.

A. F. Corey and Miss Annie R Quinn attended teachers examination at Howard Lake Monday and Tuesday.

Mrs. H. M. Coffin, of St. Peter is visiting with her sister Miss Mary, and her brother Dr. Catlin, for a few weeks.

Williman Breushaber's goods arrived from Minneapolis Saturday and he is now established in the new home on N. River street.

Mrs C. M. Conzet drove to Buffalo Wednesday to visit her grandmother Putnam who is sick. Maud accompanied her as far as Rockford.

County Cullings.

The Maple Lake Messenger arrived at our office on time this morning. Mr. Hamilton announces, as we expected, that a little thing like being burned out, want stop the Messenger. He has secured S. L. Rank to get the paper out for awhile, and the probabilities are that it will be a factor in politics when the next campaign rolls round.

The outcome of the Boxell trial means that Alex McVelty will not be nominated for sheriff next year by the republican party. John Nugent if he takes the nomination will be elected. He makes a modle officer.—Wright County Times.

The Buffalo Standards political news don't deny but the people are for Mr. Bryan now, but says: "But wait and see how much the people of this state admire him in 1900."

At the present rate of increase of admires it looks as if it would be a large majority.

The Howard Lake Herald thinks officers of home guard regiments enlisting as volunteers became, as a rule, unpopular. It says of the Second guard regiment that seven officers who were candidates for political places last fall were defeated.

Those who wish to camp on the grounds during the State Fair will be given the usal facilities, and now that the evenings are to be full of excitement and amusement, the camp feature is likely to be more popular than ever. For full particulars write direct to Secretary E. W. Randall, Hamline, Minn.—State Fair Bulletin.

John Pressley should have commited his crime in Wright county if he wanted to go free. The Stearns county officials have gobbled him already, although he was so near Wright.

The Cokato Enterprise says two horses with glanders have deen killed, by order of health authorities near that place. It is a very contagious and dangerous desease and people should be on their guard, to prevent its being spread over the country.

The Maple Lake Messenger office was burned Friday morning of last week. The fire is thought to have been of incendiary origin. It is expected that the Messenger, will continue to be published, and that, the people will patronize their enterprising editor, Mr. Hamilton, better than before.

TRIP TO OMAHA.

BY JOHN J. CATLIN.

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 7, 1899.

DEAR FATHER:—As I have been down here now about a week and a half I thought I would write a little about the city and exposition.

In appearance the city greatly resembles Minneapolis, with its broad and clean streets paved with asphalt or brick. Omaha has more paving than Minneapolis because the soil is not as sandy, and the streets would be impassable in wet weather. (By the way they have been having their share of storms down here this summer. Since I have been here there has been a couple of first class electric storms accompanied by high wind. The thunder artillery is grand; keeping up a crash and roar all night and the wind blows a perfect gale).

As there is no waterpower here as in Minneapolis everything is run by steam, consequently the city is enveloped that is the business part, in a cloud of smoke, as it is a great railroad center, and has numerous factories and one of the largest smelters in the Union. When the smlters are in operation you will get the sulphur fumes a quarter of a mile away, which of course sets anyone not used to it into a violent fit of coughing. The packing house and stock yards are in South Omaha about five or six miles from here, while the waterworks plant is five miles North at Fulton. I am going to visit both before I leave. I was going to Fulton with Loun. Saturday, but did not on account of a wreck on the road, and Loun had to go on the run Sunday on account of it, with his engine. The Missouri has three large bridges across it here, one which is lower than the others is a turn bridge so as to let the steamers pass. The water is a light slate color from the sand; The river is swift and full of whorl pools, and currents turning in all directions.

The exposition grounds are four blocks from here; the main entrance about eight. The gsounds are laid out in fine shape, somewhat on the plan of the World's fair at Chicago. The main part is centered about the lagoon. Surrounding this are the Government building, fine arts, liberal arts, mining, auditorium, machinery hall and a couple dominus inuominata, at least I have forgotten them. The Midway is about a mile long.

My pasa takes me into everything. All you have to have is a little brass. I have been into almost everything on Midway, on the streets of Cairo, Hoochie croochie, Moorish Palace, shoot the chutes, Scenic railway, merry go round, high diving, Hagenback's trained animal show, one of the best in the world of its kind, Cyclorama of Missionary Ridge, sinking of Merrimac, and so many others I can't think of them all, and all of them private concerns at that I was only refused admittance on it in one place, a ten cent show, "Congress of beauties," and that is so bum I guess they didn't want any press representative to see it. There are three attractions just opened that I havn't been into yet, the Cuban and Porto Rico village, Hawaiian village, and Philippine village, some of the streets of Cairo, are as little towns, with stores and everything and people from those countries living in it, and different places of amusement in the town. The Philippine village is not openen yet I saw some of the Filipinoes. They just arrived last week, as they were detained by the government at San Francisco, for a month because the War department said they were coming here to work, which seems to be against the law. The main opposition was against the Philippine band. I forgot to mention that Viola, and another young lady and I rode a camel in the streets of Cairo. My two weeks is no here Friday but if I start from here then I may get into Minneaqolis Saturday evening too late for the train and have to stay over all day Sunday. I also got the GAZETTE this morning and see you are getting along first rate, so don't think a little longer stay will hurt the effectiveness of the paper very much. I will not start this week. If you are in a big rush for me to come answer this by return mail and I will get it Thursday morning or Wednesday afternoon, and I will have plenty time to get ready and leave Friday morning.

Your son,

JOHN J. CATLIN.

World: It is not sufficient to say that the forcible annexation of the Philippine Islands is a benevolent undertaking entered upon for the good of the Filipinos. Lincoln pointed out that this has always been the argument of kings. To use his words, "They always bestrode the necks of the people, not that they wanted to do it, but because the people were better off for being ridden."

Among Our Exchanges.

World: What would happen if Thomas B. Reed should not resign after all?

World: The President bows to people in all circumstances at Lake Champlain. Next year he will perhaps bow to circumstances themselves.

Star News: There is no mistake about prosperity being here, and now the wise man will prepare for the inevitable depression that is bound to ultimately follow.

Nobles County Democrat: Free trade and wide open ports will kill the trusts. But free trade and open ports will never come under a Republican administration.

Star News: It is true that legal matters move slow, but it would not be at all amiss to see a little more vigor put in that test case against the McIntire flour trust.

Maple Lake Messenger: Archbishop Ireland, who has been visiting different places in the old world returned to America last week. In speaking of the masses he says the poor in this country are happier and a hundred per cent better off here than in England or any European country.

County Line: An exchange says that a level headed cotton manufacturer of Boston fails to see the wonderful advantage of "extending our trade" by annexing the Philippines where he says: "One yard of cotton cloth will furnish the complete wardrobe of an entire family."

County Line: The man who will vent his spite upon a dumb animal because of a fancied grievance against the owner thereof (an instance of which we have right here at home) is too contemptible for any use on earth. A coat of tar and feathers would be an ornament to a man of that stamp.

County Line: The attention of our imperialistic brethern is respectfully called to the following sentence in President McKinley's Message to congress in 1897: "I do not speak of forcible annexation, because that is not to be thought of, and under our code of morality that would be criminal aggression."

Backbone: Some Prohibitionists need to be reminded that from now on the Democratic party is likely to be quite as lively a bidder for votes which should come to the Prohibition party as is the Republican party, especially if the monopolies should still further fasten their hold upon the Republican party and the Democratic party should champion the cause of antimonopoly.

Litchfield Independent: Hon. Henry Keller, Sauk Center, invented has a threshing machine for which great claims are made and wich he says will revolutionize threshing as it is now done. It is composed of a separator and a gasoline engine mounted in a compact form on a single truck, and being light, can be hauled by two horses. The machine is now being tested and it isclamed that under favorable circumstances it will thresh from 1,000 to 1,200 bushels of wheat in ten hours.—Morris Sun.

Nobles County Democrat: No one complains because Otis conceals his intended army operations from the enemy, if indeed, he does conceal them. The complaint is that he does not let the folks at home know how many of their brave boys are confined with illness inhospital wards; how many have been prostrated with the terrible heat of the Philippines; and why it is he does not report the true situation of affairs there. These things he might allow to be told, and the enemy would not be advantaged thereby.

The Live Stock men of Minnesota are showing great interest in the State Fair and there will undoubtedly be the largest show of well-bred Minnesota stock ever brought together at any fair. Farmers who are not breeders of pure bred stock have a fine opportunity to show grade cattle in a class from which breeders of pure bred stock are barred, the bremiums being the same as for pure bred cattle. This class ought to be a great show in itself for it is really the grade cattle that are of the most practical value to farmers generally.—State Fair Bulletin.

St Paul Dispatch

25c per month for Daily. 75c per year for the Weekly.

The St. Paul Dispatch is the best Twin City daily; it has no equal in the Northwest as to size or quality.

The DISPATCH excels in Northwestern news, having a correspondent in every Northwestern town.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

All Three Together for Only $2.25,

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

Three Together One Year for Only $2.35

IMPERIALISM.

Go stand where the sun god sets,
Go tent where he wakes again;
Go fence in earth with bayonets
And corral the tribes of men.

Go tread in the tracks of Spain,
Of Rome and the dead empires.
Till, drunk with the blood of millions slain,
Ye light your funeral fires.

Ye may dig—no odds how deep,
Ye may delve—no odds how long,
Ye may sin till conscience falls asleep,
And ye think it righ that's wrong.

Ye may camp by the heathen's hearth,
Ye may waste his life and lands;
Ye may seize the utmost ends of earth,
And mock him where he stands.

Aye, these and more will ye dare
In quest of the tinsel stakes,
Till your proud conceits shall melt in air,
When the breath that made unmakes.

God gave us the fruitful West,
And strengthened our arms of yore,
But fixed our bounds at His high behest
With the oceans, shore and shore.

He planted us deep and well,
He builded us strong and great,
From the best of earth our ranks to swell
He fashioned his chosen state.

And He wrought in Freedom's name;
He gave us Liberty's light;
Shall we barter these for a butcher's shame
And a heathen's poor birth-right?

PAUL PICKNEY,
In Southern Home Journal.

GEN BROOKE is to report in person to the Secretary of war, so report says, with a probability of not returning to Cuba, but of being superseded by Gen. Wood.

FROM reports William W. Astor has learned that the Prince of Wales, even if he does put up with a lot of todyism in Americans, can snub his mother's subjects.

THE blow about McKinley being in Minneapolis to meet the returning volunteers seems like some more of the news. Had it been censored less, it would be censured less.

THERE are some ugly charges and counter charges flotting around concerning officers of the 13th Reg. Minn. Vol. Nobody seems to know Beans about the Ames of the regiment.

THERE ought to be no difficulty for the administration to secure a regiment of expansionist editors. Then things could be expanded to perfection a news censor wouldn't be in it with them.

SOME of the newspaper howlers about "cowards" in the 13th Reg. are the same individuals that have been howling for McKinley to keep the 13th in the Philippines. Such "patriotic" howlers ought to go over and howl at the Philippines a little while for a change.

POLITICIANS are claiming that the Republicans are afraid that the Democrats wont nominate Bryan, on a free silver platform. They need not loose any sleep over that question. Bryan and the Chicago platform go together. And both will, doubtless, be adopted by the National democratic convention.

THE Minnesota State Editorial Association proposes to take an outing of a week, to Omaha and Denver, in September. This will be a splendid trip and a week of enjoyment to many a poor editor who can coax his delinquents to pay up enough to furnish him the wherewith or defray necessary expenses of the trip.

IOWA Democrats have endorsed the Chicago platform of '96, and nominated a ticket with Fred E. White, of Keokuk, for Governor. The Populists have endorsed their work. So much so good. It looks more and more as if the democrats would have no trouble in nominating Mr. Bryan and in having him elected too.

"WAR" in the Philippines still wages warm. The latest reported a wordy war between Generals Haly and Otis, in which Hale threatened to have Otis arrested for cowardice, must have been interesting. Who, we would like to know, is gaining any glory out of the Philippine row?

THE gold bug "democrats" appointed to office throughout the state are showing themselves loyal to "party" by retaining in office, wherever possible, the men appointed previous to the present Governor's taking his seat.

"Birds of a feather flock together" and it looks as if the "Gold bugs" were no exception to the rule.

MAYOR GRAY seems to have struck upon the plan to raise $1 contributions enough to pay the carfare of the 13th home. Just why the 13th should have its carfare home paid any more than the 12th, or 14th, or 15th don't appear.

THE Saint Paul Trade Journal, annual number, is a hummer, as most things are under that veteran editor, H. P. Hall. The Journal, besides being a directory to the business of the city, is a storehouse of valuable information on several subjects connected with the business affairs of the city.

EX GOV. Boies, of Iowa, and a few others who claim to be Democrats are trying to split up the party by saying that we must not adhere to the 16 to 1 plan of coining free gold and silver.

There is one good reason for adhering to that system it would save recoining what silver is already in use as money. If it appears to those who don't see the necessity of adhering to a fixed ration that ratio makes no difference, why split hairs about it. Let the 16 to 1 fellows have their way. They can see a difference.

THOSE Democrats that are trying so hard to find an eastern man to supersede Mr. Bryan as candidate for President, had as well take sides with McKinley, as they did last time and be done with it. The whole country has become aroused, and every liberty loving, patriotic American knows what he wants and the sooner those who intend voting for the Democratic principles of the Chicago platform settle down to business, and quit there catering to every wind that is wafted from New York or any other disaffected quarter the better for the whole country.

Glad to hear it Mr. Teas. If the administration will continue the good work of shipping our soldiers home, where they belong, and muster them all out, and allow other countries the same privileges for which our illustrious forefathers fought, without interference from us, we think the Dr. and a large majority of the people of the United States will be as good, and as patriotic American citizens as they have always been.

INDICATIONS are that the "war" against the Filipinos will be ended soon. The best qualified authorities insist that 100,000 men will be needed to subdue Luzon, and hold it. The most the authorities claim to be able to furnish is half that number, or less.

Then, of course, the chances of success would be even smaller than last season. The anti-expansionists in America are increasing rapidly in numbers and strength. Even the G. O. P. is threatened with Tom Reed as a candidate, on that question, against McKinley. That would be a deadness on the G. O. P Congress meets in a short time and it never would answer for party interests to permit another debate on that question. Something has got to be done; and done soon.

Peace must be made on honorable terms, as war has never been declared it wont be necessary to declare peace.

But just kind of keep still, and let peace come.

OUR gold bug friends are up a stump so soon, as to what to do to get rid of Bryan, as a candidate for President, on the Chicago platform of '96 They have failed on every line they have tried. They have roped in the National democrats of '96 to help them get Gorman, who helped butcher the Wilson bill, kill Grover Cleveland, politically and disrupt democracy. Or a New York man not much matter who, any body to beat Bryan. and Bryan's friends Hogged the boom in embryo. They have trotted out several used to be democrats to discourage the 16 to 1 plank They have cried out with a loud voice, that Free Silver is dead. Bryanism has passed into oblivion. They have sought to make Trusts, or Imperialism the issue. Any old thing would do but Bryan and the platform of '16. They have miscalculated. They have found a statesman, a man who has convictions, and who dares stand off all with what he belives, or knows to be, right or wrong. Mr Bryan is not making his run on the Wilson bill, with its friends and its enemies He is not bowing down to exploited idols; he is not cringing beneath the paws of the Tiger nor humiliating his followers by comprising his and their principles for the sake of self aggrandizement, or political preferment. He is acknowledged even by his enemies to be a man of principles; and honest man and a man who if elected President has back bone enough to do his best to administer the laws of the land according to the teachings of our constitution and the desires of a Majorty of our people.

A Give Away.

Col. Bryan's latest photographs show that he has aged greatly in the last three years. He has not exactly been exposed to "The constant light that beats upon a throne," but he has been trying to get there, and the anxiety appears to be wearing upon him.—Minneapolis Tribune.

Papers like the Tribune called Mr. Bryan the Boy Orator, three yeary ago. Will they now admit that he is old enough to be President?

Patriotism Preferred to Party or Personal Interests.

Hon. Joe. Bailey, of Texas, seems to know more about foreign entanglements of the National administration than about Texas sentiment towards his own Senatorial aspirations. Better turn your gigantic intellect loose upon home affairs, Joe.—Buffalo Standard.

The true mark of a Statesman and a patriot. If we had more men who would consider our National interests above their own, is would be better for our country. The Standard's advice to Mr Bailey is of the g. o. p. kind. Look out for party interests first, last and all the time. Such coaching may do for some of the Standard's own party, but it need not waste time nor space with such stuff on democrats If Mr Bailey is a great statesman and a capible advisor on things of nation al importance, the Texans will, most likely, elect him to the U. S. Senate much sooner than if he were to get out and work only for Joe Bailey.

He Salted the Calf.

Hawarden Republican: One of our young boys recently hired out to a farmer and went into the country to work. The next morning he was told to go and salt the calf. It was new work to the boy but he remembered reading a peice in the Republican stating the great benefits to be derived from rubbing the salt on the outside.

The boy took about a quart of salt, rubbed it all over the calf, working it into the hair. A gang of colts in the pasture scented the salt and got after the animal. They licked the hair off its back and tried to lick the hide off too. The farmer tried to catch the calf and wash it off, but the creature thinking he wanted to lick it too, kept out of the way. The boy, calf and farmer are all unhappy. The colts are the only ones who got any fun out of it.

McKinley's Special Advisors.

This has been, in truth, an Administration of Commissions. While the war has been largely accountable for the President's remarkable record in this direction, he has, aside from this, gone far beyond the average in the appointment of special advisors.

He has appointed twenty-one seperate commissions, with an aggregate membership of nearly 100 and an aggregate expense of more than $2,000,000 devided up as follows:

William J. Calhoun, Special Commissioner to Cuba, $10,000; Monatary Commission, $50,000; Queen's Jubilee Commission, 25,000; Special Commissioner, Paris Exposition, $10,000; Reciprocity Commissioner (Kasson), $20,000, Commission to Japan in connection with seals (Hamlin), $10,000; Commissioner to Russia in connection with seals (Foster), $10,000; Paris Peace Commission, $150,000; Cuban and Porto Rican Evacuation Commissions, $50,000; war Investigation Commission, $100,000; Philippine Commission, $150,000; High Joint Commission, $100,000; Commission to Disarmament Conference, $35,000; Samoan Commission, $25,000; Nicaraguan Canal Commission, $250,000; Isthmian Canal Commission, $1,000,000; Hawaiian Commission, $25,000; Paris Exposition Commission, $50,000; Tariff Commissioner to Cuba (R. P. Porter), $5,000; Industrial Commission (per anum), $100,000; Insular Commission, $25,000; total, 2,190,000.—National Watchman.

Convinced We Have No Right to the Philippines.

New York, Aug. 13.—The Herald tomorrow will say: Richard Crocker, at the Democratic Club last night said:

"I was wrong in the statements I made before I went away concerning the Philippine Islands. I based my belief that we should not give up a foot of soil our soldiers have won on information that was not complete.

"Publicly I made the statement that I did not believe we should give up the Philippines, which had cost us so many lives. I am not ashamed now to say to the public that I was wrong.

"I am not playing a political game through that interview. While I was in Europe I talked with some of the best informed men there on the subject of colonial conquest. I made investigation for myself. I reached the conclusion that we have no right at all to keep the Philippines. We were wrong in the first place to pay $20,000,000 for them.

I am convinced that humanity, as represented by the votes of American citizens at the next presidential election, will record its horror and execration of the men and the party who are for private gain putting bloody pages into history. Believing these things now I go straight to the public and frankly say that I was wrong."

Bedes Budget: We are still of the opinion heretofore expressed, that our people have before them fifty years' work in civilizing, developing and modernizing the Philippine Islands.

Willmar Tribune: There is no reason to fear that the pabulists will desire fusion with any Becker and Wharton Style of "democrats."

KEEP A SONG UP ON DE WAY.

Oh, de clouds is mighty heavy
An' de rain is mighty thick;
Keep a song up on de way.
An' de waters is a rumblin'
On de bowlders in de crick,
Keep a song up on de way.
Fu' a bird ercross de road
Is a-singin' lak he knowed
Dat we people didn't dare
Fu' to try de rainy air
Wid a song upon de way.

What's de use o' gittin' mopy,
'Ca'se de weather ain' de bes'l

Circus Train Hoodoo

An Engineer's Story of Air Brakes That Would Keep Getting Set.

"WE were up against a queer kind of a lunch the other Friday night," said the fat engineer to a circle of his friends. "It was the night of the big circus in town and we had the job of towing the circus train over the division. When I met Murphy, my side partner, in the round house that night, he says to me:

"'Say, Bill, are you superstitious? Do you believe in signs?'

"'Nary,' I said; 'not unless it's a restaurant sign or a sign for the pay car.'

"'I've had all sorts of queer things happen to me to-day,' he says. 'First, I got up on the wrong side of the bed, and then I got my shirt on hind side foremost. I took it off and changed it, and my wife says that's the worst thing I could have done. She said if I wanted to break the hoodoo I should have left it on. But I didn't want to come down-town looking like a ferry-boat and have people ask me which way I was going. Then to keep the good work going I broke a looking glass this afternoon, and everything seems to have been going wrong all day. I've got a creepy feeling like I uster have when I buried cats in a graveyard at midnight to kill warts. The folks wanted me to lay off this trip, but I thought it was all foolishness, so here I am.'

"'Huh,' I said; 'you didn't see a cross-eyed black cat with a crumpled tail or a fat nigger with white spots, did you?'

"'No.'

"'Or dream your mother-in-law was dead?' He answered in the negative. 'Well,' I says, 'I guess we'll go through O. K. with nothing more serious than bustin' a water glass.'

"'What train we going to catch out to-night?' he asked.

"'Circus train,' I answered, 'as that's about our turn out.'

"'Gee whiz!' he said, 'I knew we'd be up against a hoodoo. That's the worst that could happen. Circus train and Friday night.'

"'Oh, gowan,' I broke in, 'maybe the number of our train orders will be 13 and we'll have 13 cars. You give me a pain in the neck with your hoodoos.'

"'I wish you were a giraffe, so's you'd have that pain good and hard,' was his rather unkind remark.

"My guess had been correct, and about 11:30 we got orders to proceed down to the yard for the circus train. We got down there all right and the show people were all ready to start. It was a good heavy train for one engine, and I said to Murf: 'I'll take the creepy feeling out of you before we get very far with this train.' We got away, and after we'd passed out of the yards I commenced to swing 'em along pretty good. I felt a little drowsy, and like all good, trusty engineers, with my hand on the throttle and my eyes on the track, thinking of home and the old, oaken bucket, I dropt into a doze.

"I was about half asleep when phut! phw-i-s-t! I heard something go and I brought up in the front of that cab and hit my head on the door frame. I shut her off and we stopped very sudden, just like we had broken in two or the train air hose had separated, setting the air brakes. The head brakeman came running up and says:

"'Wot'l you think yer doin'? Tryin' to play snap the whip?'

"'You tend to your biz and I'll look out for the locomotive,' says I. 'The air pipe has busted somewhere near the engine; I heard her go?'

"'This train's branded with a hoodoo,' said Murf. 'I wish I had laid off to-night.'

"'Yes, by thunder, I wish you had!' I thought. 'You make me feel like a walking dreambook.'

"The brakeman gave me a signal to go ahead.

"'It's all right,' he hollered; 'hose just parted between the fourth and fifth cars.'

"I tried the air, and as it worked all right in a minute we were off again and hitting it at a respectable clip.

"'Wonder what made the hose part?' Murf hollered over to me.

"'Dunno,' I answered. 'I suppose those darn nincompoops in the yard didn't have them connected good. They'——

"But my little speech was here interrupted by my head bringing up against the cab window again. Murf stuck his head clean through the glass on his side. The fire was flying from the set brakes like a Dewey celebration. I shut off steam, and we made another Rough Rider finish.

"'Train pipe has parted again, and I guess the way we stirred things up this time must have made the fat lady glad that Providence has been so good to her as to give her a soft place to land on,' says I.

"Murf's teeth were chattering, and he says: 'Bill, I never expect to get home alive again. There's a hoodoo on this train.'

"'Better get your grub pail and lunch, so's you won't pull away hungry. It's more likely a hobo trying to get fresh cutting the train pipe,' says I.

"This time the pipe had separated between two cars about 20 car lengths back from the engine. They soon had it connected again and we were off once more. But we hadn't gone very many miles further when, kerslam bang! we brought up on all fours again. I was getting pretty mad now because I knew there was some one separating that train pipe which set the air brakes and brought us up short. I determined not to budge out of that spot till we found out what it was. We had made such a sudden stop the last time that we routed out everybody and the side-show freaks were prancing around in the chill, early morning air without much clothes on. They presented an uncanny sight, and I didn't wonder at Murf's saying the train was hoodooed. The train hands and myself started in to make a thorough inspection, and we had quite a few spectators from members of the circus who occupied three sleeping cars at the rear of the train. They would offer us suggestions now and then.

"'This his a bloody, blooming, blarsted country,' said the English ringmaster. 'Hover in hold Hengland we wouldn't 'arve sech goin's hon as this. If the hair brakes won't work, why don't you use the 'arnd brakes?'

"'Say, there was no ropes on yer stayin' in hold Hengland was there?' says the head brakeman. 'If you don't like the way we do things why don't yer go back? They probably have never heard of hair brakes over there.'

"All this while we had been looking the train over, and finally we reached the caboose without finding any defect in airbrake hose. Every time the brakes had been set the pipe had been found uncoupled between two cars. Certainly that pipe didn't fall apart itself. We had about made up our minds to start and try once more when one of the brakemen, who was about half way up the length of the train, yelled:

"'Here it is, boys! It's a monkey, sure's I live. He's hiding here on one of the trucks of this car.'

"We all made a run for that car, and sure enough there was a monkey sitting on one of the rear trucks.

"'How are you going to get him out of there?' asked the man who had made the discovery. He made a movement toward his monkeyship, and whist! the monkey went dancing along on the under braces of the car. We had the divil's own time getting that monkey. First he would appear in one place, and when his pursuers would get near he would disappear and in a second show up some place else. He appeared to enjoy this game of hide and seek, but was rather coy of acting in front of the crowd. At last, by dint of much strategy and the use of a handful of nuts, one of the animal keepers succeeded in corralling him on a brakebeam, and it was all over. The filibustering monkey was placed in the car with the rest of his race and chained up for safety.

"In the hustle and bustle of loading the animals on the train he had got away and hid himself on one of the car trucks, and when the train started he meandered around. He probably uncoupled the train pipe the first time by accident, and seeing he had caused quite a hubbub tried it over and over again, with more satisfactory results. When we got going nicely again I yelled over to Murf and says:

"'The next time you get your shirt on wrong you leave it that way, no matter if they take you for a fleet of ferry-boats.'"—N. Y. Sun.

The charge that the copper penny is a disease-carrier and must go comes very late. Years ago, when the cent was as big as a half dollar, there might have been some objection to it, but not on the ground of a disease-carrier. The disease-carrying fad may be carried to extremes.

Kansas, Colorado and Nebraska have decided to unite in a war on the festive grasshopper. Prof. Lawrence Brunner, the Nebraska state entomologist, is to manage the war, and it will probably be carried on by inoculating grasshoppers with some disease fatal to their tribe and turning them loose to spread the epidemic.

In the far-famed Mount Auburn cemetery, near Boston, is a grave marked by a cross of white marble. Carved fern leaves decorate the stone, and at the base is the simple inscription: "Fanny Fern." This tribute to the memory of Mrs. Parton, who was a prominent figure in the literary world 40 years ago, was erected by Robert Bonner.

Speaking to a woman's convention, the governor of Colorado remarked: "When the Israelites were broken with dissension God gave a woman to judge them. Deborah ruled them for 40 years—and, the Bible adds, then they had a rest. I have never been clear whether the rest came as a result of her rule or because her reign was ended."

Cornell college is performing a valuable service for the country in the work of the chair for forestry. Prof. Gifford, who has charge of this department of study, has returned to Ithaca from the Adirondacks, where he has been making improvements upon the 30,000 acres of land owned by the college. Just a year and a half ago a party of 13 fortune hunters left Boston for the Klondike, and went around the Horn in a sailing vessel. It took them 165 days to make the journey, one man was lost in a terrible storm encountered near the Horn, they found little gold in Alaska, all were taken sick with the scurvy, they lost their ship in Resurrection bay, and now they are coming back broke. They should have known better than to start with 13 in the party.

All the contributions of the school children of this country toward the erection of a La Fayette monument in Paris in 1900 have been received, and they amount to $45,694. Every state in the union is represented in the fund, but to the children of Illinois belongs the credit of subscribing the largest number of pennies. The contributions from Illinois were $6,461. Ohio gets second place with $5,499. Besides this fund, it is expected to realize at least $100,000 from the La Fayette souvenir coins. This is indeed a very creditable showing.

The remains of seven of John Brown's raiders which have been moldering in graves near Harper's Ferry for more than 35 years have been exhumed and taken to North Elba, N. Y., and placed beside their sleeping leader, John Brown. The grave of John Brown is in a beautiful spot and a large stone has been erected to mark the grave. Nature, too, has placed an immense rock at the place, and an iron fence has been set around to prevent the devastation of relic hunters among the summer tourists and other curious people who visit the spot.

The island of Cyprus, which, it is said, a syndicate of American Hebrew capitalists wishes to buy with the idea of using it as a Hebrew colony, has had a stormy history. It is about 148 miles long and 38 miles wide. It has belonged successively to the Persians, Egyptians, Romans and Greeks. During the crusades it was captured by Richard I. of England. Later it passed into the hands of the Turks, passing back into English control in 1878. In 1887 it was formally ceded to Great Britain. The present population of the island is 200,000.

Terrible Loss of Life Wrought by a Storm in Porto Rico.

Number of Victims Will Aggregate 1,000—Scenes of Terrible Destruction in the Cities and Villages.

San Juan, Porto Rico, July 12.—Five hundred bodies lie in improvised morgues at Ponce awaiting identification. The deaths in the vicinity of Ponce will aggregate 1,000. Couriers from the south who have brought the governor news of the state of affairs say that the city of Ponce is a scene of awful destruction.

People Crazed with Thirst.

The flood of salt water has polluted every cistern in the city, and mobs crazed with thirst besiege Gen. Davis, commanding the American forces in the island, at every hour of the day, demanding water, food, clothes and shelter.

At Humacao, which is 47 miles from San Juan, over 100 of the 6,700 inhabitants perished. The news of the disaster at Humacao reached this place by a courier who came to ask for assistance. He said that besides the terrible loss of life the city was practically almost destroyed. All the churches are reported in ruins.

Guayama's Great Loss.

At Guayama, a village of 4,500 people, 49 miles from San Juan, on the south coast, seven were killed. Twenty were killed at Cayey, which is a little village 14 miles from Guayama, and the wagon road connecting the two cities is flooded with water and blocked with the debris of the destroyed buildings.

The dead in Arroyo, in the southeast part of the island, and five miles from Guayama, number 16.

Four Towns Entirely Destroyed.

The couriers bring word that four important towns have been destroyed entirely by the hurricane—Guayanilla, a town having 600 inhabitants, 14 miles from Ponce; Guanica, a village of 1,000 inhabitants on the southern coast six miles from Yauco, which was also destroyed, and Tallaboa, which lies between Guayanilla and Ponce.

Porto Rico Devastated.

Ponce, Aug. 12.—The worst storm ever experienced here struck this place Tuesday morning at nine o'clock and lasted two hours. It came from the northeast. Ponce was flooded at midnight and at least 300 persons were drowned.

Two hundred bodies, mostly those of poor people and including many children, have been recovered.

All the buildings are damaged, and hundreds have been destroyed.

Loss of Life Elsewhere.

San Juan de Porto Rico, Aug. 12.—Arroyo, on the south coast, has been destroyed, 16 lives were lost there, and the town is still submerged in water.

At Guayamo the houses are still standing. Seven persons were killed there. A number of houses were pillaged. Squads of soldiers were unable to maintain order, and starvation threatens the population.

Porto Rico, Aug. 14.—Three hundred bodies have been buried in the city of Ponce, and it is estimated that 2,000 persons were drowned in the Ponce district during the recent hurricane. The number of people of the lower classes lost is not known, but it is certain that there were few fatalities among the persons of the better class and none among the Americans. The work of clearing away the debris progresses slowly.

Worse Than First Reported.

Washington, Aug. 12.—The war department Friday received a cablegram from Gen. Davis, giving fuller details of the damage done in Porto Rico by the hurricane.

Gen. Davis says a famine is impending, and asks authority to issue rations to the destitute.

To Send Relief at Once.

Washington, Aug. 12.—The war department has taken prompt action on Gen. Davis' report.

The army transport McPherson has been ordered to sail from New York to San Juan and Ponce with supplies to relieve the destitute in Porto Rico. Acting Commissary Gen. Weston has ordered the purchase in New York of 600,000 pounds of rice and 600,000 pounds of beans to be shipped on the McPherson. Such other food supplies as may be obtained at the time the McPherson sails will be sent on that ship.

Montserrat Completely Devastated.

St. Thomas, D. W. I., Aug. 11.—The island of Montserrat, British West Indies, was completely devastated by a hurricane Monday. All the churches, estates and villages were destroyed and nearly 100 persons were killed. In addition many were injured and rendered homeless and terrible distress exists among the sufferers.

At La Pointe-a-Pitre, Island of Guadeloupe, immense damage was wrought, and according to a report not yet confirmed, 102 persons were killed. In the Island of St. Croix, the largest of the Virgin islands, the destruction was appalling. It was chiefly wrought at the west end, where the smaller houses are a tangled mass of wreckage. Thirty persons were killed, and the inhabitants are in great distress.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 15.—The business men's anti-boycott committee, which was appointed as a result of the meeting held the other day, met Monday afternoon and decided to hire lawyers to prosecute merchants and others who violate the civil rights in compliance with the demands of the boycotters. They also agreed to hire detectives to hunt down and arrest dynamiters, who have been placing explosives under street cars. The business men have pledged a fund of $10,000 to meet the expense of the crusade against the violators of the law.

Is Practically Ended.

Newport News, Va., Aug. 11.—The yellow fever epidemic is practically at an end. The quarantine established by this city against Hampton and vicinity was raised Thursday night. The local quarantine against Norfolk will be raised Saturday evening. The record of the scourge to this date shows a total of 43 cases, of which 11 resulted fatally. Twelve cases were discharged as cured and 20 convalescents remain in hospitals at the soldiers' home.

HISSES FOR MERCIER.

Rennes, Aug. 14.—One of the most interesting features of the session of the Dreyfus court-martial on Saturday was the testimony of former President Casimir-Perier regarding the diplomatic correspondence in which Emperor William required of the French government that the German embassy in Paris be acquitted of having sustained relations with Dreyfus.

Gen. Mercier was on the stand for four hours. His evidence was a repetition of the old charges and accusations against Dreyfus. He repeated again his war-scare story to the effect that the Dreyfus affair had brought Germany and France to the brink of conflict.

At the end of his evidence Gen. Mercier said he believed that the only motive of Dreyfus' treason was that Dreyfus had no feeling of patriotism. This cruel utterance brought forth hisses from the audience, whose blood had been sent up to fever heat by the witness' savage attack on Dreyfus.

Rennes, France, Aug. 15.—The shooting of M. Labori, leading counsel for Capt. Alfred Dreyfus, robbed the morning session of the Dreyfus court-martial of its paramount interest. The murderer apparently chose Monday for the attempt, because it was anticipated that M. Labori would crush Gen. Mercier, the former minister of war, with his cross-questioning.

The news of the shooting of M. Labori caused an immense sensation in the court-room, where the usual audience had assembled. Col. Jouaust, president of the court, when the news reached him suspended the sitting of the court-martial until 7:15 a. m.

DEROULEDE ARRESTED.

Paris, Aug. 14.—M. Paul Deroulede, founder of the League of Patriots and a member of the chamber of deputies for the Angouleme division of Charente, was arrested at four o'clock Saturday morning at his estate at Croissey, near Paris. A number of members of the Anti-Semite and Patriotic leagues were also arrested.

MM. Deroulede, chief of the League of Patriots, and Marcel-Habert, a member of the chamber of deputies, were arrested on the evening of February 23 last on the charge of inciting soldiers to insubordination in connection with the election of President Loubet.

On May 31 the prisoners, who had been on trial before the assize court in Paris, were acquitted, although during the proceedings M. Deroulede admitted he wished to lead a brigade to overthrow the parliamentary republic, that his action was fully premeditated and that he would not cease his attempts to overthrow parliamentarism. He acknowledged he was guilty of all the charges except the allegation that he wanted to lead the soldiers astray without a leader.

When an attempt was made to arrest M. Guerin, president of the Anti-Semite league, he refused to surrender, and barricaded himself in his house. He says he is prepared to hold out for three weeks, having a good stock of food and fire-arms.

HAILSTORM WORKS RUIN.

Losses to Crops in North Dakota and Minnesota Estimated at Over $1,000,000.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 11.—A Fargo (N. D.) special to the Pioneer Press says: Two million bushels of wheat are estimated to have been lost in Thursday's hailstorm, which partially destroyed the crop on nearly 250,000 acres of land in the state. The total loss will be over $1,000,000.

Losses are estimated all the way from 25 to 100 per cent. of the crop. The acreage lost in Cass and Traill is placed at from 100,000 to 200,000 acres. Many conservative estimators say that 50 per cent. of the crop on 120,000 acres are not too large figures for the destruction in Cass and Traill. The former seems to have suffered slightly worse than the latter in acreage. In the northern part of the country the storm seems to have begun as far west as Erie and Galesburg, and gone directly east on the county line between Cass and Traill to Red river, and then over into Minnesota.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 11.—A Pioneer Press special from Ada, Minn., says: This county was visited by the most disastrous hailstorm in its history, and thousands of acres of grain are now lying a total loss, many farmers being entirely hailed out. The storm was general throughout the county, and as far as reports can be obtained, traversed the entire length and breadth of the county, doing considerable damage to a large area of grain on the Dakota side before crossing the river into this county.

DR. BARROWS DEAD.

New York, Aug. 11.—Rev. Dr. Josiah Strong on Thursday received telegrams announcing the death at Mackinac Island, Mich., of Rev. Dr. Walter Manning Barrows, of Greenwich, Conn., who married Perry Belmont and Mrs. Sloane. Dr. Strong said in an interview: "Dr. Barrows was an extremely sensitive man and the misrepresentations and criticisms on his action in performing the Belmont-Sloane marriage ceremony preyed upon his mind, robbed him of sleep and reduced his vitality." It is the common conviction in Greenwich that it was an important if not the primary cause of his death.

To Cut Much Lumber.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 12.—A special to the Times from Houghton, Mich., says: Ex-Governor W. H. Upham, of Marshfield, Wis., will put in lumber camps on Isle Royale to cut at least 10,000,000 feet this winter and will build a large saw mill there in the spring. Isle Royale is the largest fresh water island in the world and covered with dense forests scarcely touched hitherto.

Another Car Wrecked.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 12.—Explosives were again resorted to Friday night on the Euclid avenue line near the corner of Case and Euclid avenues. The car was bound east. There were 25 passengers on board, but no one was injured. Several women tried to jump from the car, but were restrained by cool-headed ones. The car was so badly smashed that it was necessary to send for the wrecker.

WHIPPED THEM AGAIN.

American Troops Engage and Defeat Another Band of Filipino Insurgents.

Manila, Aug. 14.—A reconnoissance Saturday by troops of Gen. Samuel B. M. Young's brigade, with the object of discovering the whereabouts of the enemy near San Mateo, northeast of the San Juan reservoir, about ten miles from Manila, resulted in the occupation of San Mateo. The American loss was three killed and 13 wounded, including a lieutenant of the Twenty-first infantry.

Manila, Aug. 15.—A force of United States troops from Quingua, four miles northeast of Malolos, and from Balinag, near Bustos, about six miles northeast of Quingua, encountered a body of insurgents, estimated at about 500, half way between Bustos and Quingua. In the engagement that ensued the Filipinos were severely punished and scattered. The Americans lost one man killed. The insurgent force is believed to have been under the command of Gen. Pio del Pilar and to have had in view tearing up the railway at Bocave and Bigaa, about three miles northeast of Bulacan. A battalion of the Twenty-first infantry will be sent to those points to strengthen the railroad guard and to reconnoiter the country in the direction of Norzagaray and on the Bustos road. Gen. Wheaton, with the troops at Calulut, made a reconnoissance on Angeles, about four miles to the northwest, where he found 500 of the enemy. He silenced their fire and then returned to Calulut.

Washington, Aug. 15.—The secretary of the navy has received the following from Admiral Watson at Manila: "Escaped Spanish prisoners report Gilmore and 13 other Americans—eight sailors and five soldiers—confined at Vigan July 27. Four sailors in hospital with sore legs. Gilmore well treated."

ENORMOUS REDUCTION.

Employes of the Cambria Steel Company Suffer a Cut in Wages of 70 to 80 Per Cent.

Johnstown, Pa., Aug. 14.—What is probably the record for a big reduction of wages goes into effect in the structural department of the Cambria Steel company this morning. The reduction ranges between 70 and 80 per cent. The straighteners of the large beams will have their wages cut to about three dollars, while the holdups will be paid on a scale that will average them about $1.50 per day. The workmen declare that straighteners have been making an average of $15 or $16 a day, and that the holdups averaged from six to seven dollars for their work. They claim that they were not overpaid, even at that rate, for the beams are very heavy and the work is so severe on the men that they can endure it for only a few years. A general strike of the straighteners and holdups is looked for.

Whaling Season a Failure.

Port Townsend, Wash., Aug. 14.—Advices from the Aretic whaling fleet, brought here Sunday by the schooner J. M. Coleman, 25 days from Port Lawrence, are not encouraging. The season, it is stated, has been a complete failure. The captains of the whalers Jeannette, Karluk and Alexander report it the worst during the past 20 years.

Three Girls Drowned.

Bremen, Me., Aug. 14.—Mabel and Lizzie Weston, aged 18 and 15 years respectively, and Lizzie Dodge, aged 14, daughters of farmers in this town, were drowned while bathing.

PLIGHT OF A BASHFUL MAN.

He Would Have Gone If He Could Have Summoned Up Courage to Ask for His Hat.

"I always was a bashful sort of a fellow when I was young," said Ananias Fisher, as he passed his plate for the third piece of pie. He was dining out with friends and wished them to understand his temperament.

"But I was broken of that habit before I was 25. It was either a case of get over it or stay all night, and I got over it," he said, as his plate was returned with a good sized piece of pie such as Topeka housekeepers make. "I was calling, out on Fillmore street, and when I went in I forgot all about putting my hat on the rack in the hall, and carried it into the parlor with me. I put it on a sofa, and when the lady of the house came in she said 'how-dye-do' and sat her 290 pounds down on that hat.

"'I beg your pardon,' I said.

"'Why, what's the matter?' she asked, for I guess I looked kind of bewildered.

"'O, nothing,' I answered. 'I just got a stitch in my heart.'

"We went on talking, and I thought that when she got up I could sneak that hat, but she talked and talked.

"It got along to nine o'clock, and I knew I ought to go, but I was too bashful to say anything, so I just waited. Then the clock struck ten, and I knew I was staying too long, but I could not get that hat.

"'Is it moonlight?' asked the 280-pound lady.

"I said it was, and knew she wanted me to go, but I did not have the nerve to ask for that hat. Just as the clock struck 12 she blurted out: 'Why don't you go?'

"'I will if you will give me that hat,' I said.

"'What hat?'

"'My hat.'

"'Where is it?'

"'You are sitting on it.'

"'Me?' and she jumped up.

"There was my hat, and it looked much sat upon, but no more than that woman. I have never been bashful since then."—Burlington Hawkeye.

The Battle Field Route.

The Veterans of sixty-one and five and their friends, who are going to attend the 33rd G. A. R. Annual Encampment at Philadelphia in September, could not select a better nor more historic route than the Big Four, Chesapeake & Ohio, with splendid service from Chicago, Peoria and St. Louis on the Big Four, all connecting at Indianapolis or Cincinnati and thence over the Picturesque Chesapeake & Ohio along the Ohio river to Huntington, West Va., thence through the foot-hills of the Alleghanies, over the Mountains, through the famous Springs Region of Virginia to Staunton, Va., between which point and Washington are many of the most prominent Battlefields: Waynesboro, Gordonsville, Cedar Mountain, Rappahannock, Kettle Run, Manassas, Bull Run, Fairfax, and a score of others nearly as prominent. Washington is next, and thence via the Pennsylvania Line direct to Philadelphia. There will be three rates in effect for this business: 1st. Continuous passage, with no stop-over privilege; 2nd. Going and coming same route with one stop-over in each direction; 3d. Circuitous route, going one way and back another with one stop-over in each direction. For full information as to Routes, Rates, etc., address J. C. Tucker, G. N. A., 234 Clark St., Chicago.

A Profane Silence.

A story is going the rounds of a golf match between Rev. Dr. Sterret and Justice Harlan of the United States supreme court. The incident occurred at Chevy Chase Golf club, one of the prominent organizations near Washington, during a meeting between these two ardent golfers. The doctor discovered that his ball teed up in tempting style for a fine brassie shot, and, with the utmost deliberation, he went through with the preliminary "waggles," and with a supreme effort—missed the ball. For fully a minute he gazed at the tantalizing sphere without uttering a word. At length Justice Harlan remarked solemnly: "Doctor, that was the most profane silence I ever listened to."—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

An Optimistic View.

"The lies the blamed newspapers publish about us," said one politician to another, "is enough to drive a man to drink."

"Yes, that's so," replied the other, "but still we have no cause for complaint."

"Why not?" asked the first, in surprise.

"Well, it might be much worse," was the reply. "They might publish the truth."—Chicago Evening News.

"In w-what way, M'Maria?"

"A long time coming home."—Chicago Evening News.

Wouldn't Take Any Chances.

A certain Nauvoo woman assured her husband that she never told him a lie and never would. He told her that he did not doubt it, but would hereafter cut a notch in the piano when he knew she deceived him. "No you won't!" she screamed; "I'm not going to have my piano ruined."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

An Excellent Combination.

The pleasant method and beneficial effects of the well known remedy, SYRUP OF FIGS, manufactured by the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO., illustrate the value of obtaining the liquid laxative principles of plants known to be medicinally laxative and presenting them in the form most refreshing to the taste and acceptable to the system. It is the one perfect strengthening laxative, cleansing the system effectually, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers gently yet promptly and enabling one to overcome habitual constipation permanently. Its perfect freedom from every objectionable quality and substance, and its acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels, without weakening or irritating them, make it the ideal laxative.

In the process of manufacturing figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinal qualities of the remedy are obtained from senna and other aromatic plants, by a method known to the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. only. In order to get its beneficial effects and to avoid imitations, please remember the full name of the Company printed on the front of every package.

GUNPOWDER GOSPEL

SIGNIFICANT DEVELOPMENTS IN NATIONAL AND STATE POLITICS.

The Rapidly Rising Tide of Opposition to Imperialism—Mr. Bryan on Gunpowder Gospel—Certain Trend of Organized Anti-Imperialists to His Standard. State Politics—Culmination of Republican Manipulation of the State Boards. The Soldiers' Home Affair Is the Straw to Break the Camel's Back—The Beckerian Flunk—Some Plain and Pointed Facts—The People Aroused—Grain Elevator King "P. V." Finds a Lost Acquaintance—The Returning Volunteers—Twin City Notes—Mayor Gray Routs the Coal Barons—Note and Comment of the Week.

Reform Press Bureau.
ST. PAUL, Aug. 14, 1899.

The opposition to imperialism in all parts of the country has been emphasized by numerous events of the past week. First, perhaps, is the apparent determination of the administration to go ahead with its policy of conquest, shown in the preparations for a still larger increase of the armed forces, as fast as the new secretary of war is able to procure them. This, however is likely to be slow, judging from the fact that a full month has not yet completed the 10,000, leading to the belief that a draft may be necessary before we are done with the case. The contined uncompromising attitude of Mr. Bryan is crystalizing the opposition movement, and his article in the last New York Independent has been another effective agent. This is characterized as his "Gunpowder Gospel," and all the organized anti-imperialists are giving it a wide circulation. The pith of that article is the following:

"It is not sufficient to say that the forcible annexation of the Philippine Islands is a benevolent undertaking entered upon for the good of the Filipinos. Lincoln pointed out that this has always been the argument of kings. To use his words: 'They always bestrode the necks of the people, not that they wanted to do it, but because the people were better off for being ridden.' It is surprising that any believer in self-government should favor forcible annexation, but still more surprising that any one who believes in the Christian religion should favor the substitution of force for reason in the extension of our nation's influence.

"If we adopt the gunpowder gospel in the Philippines, how long will it be before that principle will be transplanted in American soil?

"So long as our arguments are addressed to the reason and the heart our progress is sure. But can we, without danger to Christianity, resort to the ancient plan of injecting religion into the body through bullet holes?"

That the organized anti-imperialists are more than likely to be found supporting Mr. Bryan's election next year is daily more probable although they are so largely former Republicans. In private letters received by the writer from Secretary Winslow of the Boston and Washington organizations, he writes:

"In his article in The Independent Mr. Bryan seems to stand on our platform with both feet. Mr. Bryan seems to be growing stronger and stronger on anti-imperialism."

The recent upheaval in the grain department has brought to light numerour stories of stealing and fraud in the department, which, while not as yet in shape to be officially investigated, are still most delightfully sweet morsels of Republican rascality. One thing is certain, that in the honest administration of Inspector Reishus there will be an end to open swindles by the usual routes of false weights, excessive dockage, unemptied cars, false bottoms to elevator hoppers and the like. See if there is not.

On the day Clausen is supposed to have won his victory we were accosted by a friend near the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce, who asked if we would like to see some of the state inspection officials and how they were rejoicing over Clausen's triumph. We entered a saloon near the Chamber, and in a rear apartment five men were in an extremely hilarious condition. Four of them were inspectors of the "skilled" variety. The friend informed us that they spent the remainder of the day in a drunken rejoicing, and the night somewhere else!—all at the expense of the state grain department, and yet an attempt to change such state officials is to inject too much politics into the department. Bah!

And a friend recalls the celebrated Holcomb case of a few years ago, in which Holcomb, an employe of the Union, one of the Pillsbury system of elevators, was indicted and placed on trial for stealing 70,000 bushels of wheat. The proof was conclusive, it being shown when shipments were made and where the grain was sold. When it came to the defense, Holcomb's counsel demanded an inspection of the books to show whether from the books there had actually been any grain missing from the elevator. Such an examination showed that instead of any grain being missing, the 70,000 bushels were there and 20,000 bushels more, so that Holcomb's stealing of 70,000 was more than offset by the amount the elevator was ahead, through weights and other processes, best known to the elevator, through which the farmer had been mulcted. Holcomb went scot free. Oh, no, there has never been anything wrong with the Minnesota grain and elevator system!

The action of the soldiers' home board, in continuing the policy of leaving the state boards still in Republican ring control that has scandalized the whole state, has caused a perfect storm of protest from the people. It is, as it were, the last straw to break the camel's back.

It has been the same from the beginning of the Lind administration—the prison boards, the grain department, the reformatory board and all the rest—always some so-called "Democratic" member has been found to act with the old Republican ring and at the last moment thwart the demands of the people and the wishes of Governor Lind. In the soldiers' home case the commandant, McMillen remains, and Secretary Beebe, both of whom have held office, under various degrees of criticism, more or less personal in character, for so many years that both have grown fossilized. There has been, and is now, the loudest demand for a change, but the Republican trustees, securing the hold-over "Democratic" member, Pearshall, to act with them, reappoints the fossils. The deal by which it was accomplished was to give Pearshall the quartermastership for a personal friend. The adjutant was changed and the appointment given to Frank J. Mead, who distinguished himself in the recent campaign by organizing the Hennepin county old soldiers for Eustis, and in conducting the Eustis press bureau for the state Republican committee. Thus, the soldiers' home management remains Republican, with all the stench that has followed it for years, and yet the Republicans, laughing in their sleeves, prate of Governor Lind's attempt to introduce politics. The soldiers' home, as managed for years, has been nothing but a Republican machine, and an ill smelling one at that.

No politics. Indeed. Not only the rankest of politics has prevailed in each and every board or department, but each attempt of Governor Lind to reform them, while futile, makes clearer the deals and schemes by which Republican ring rule is continued and nepotism is practiced. The business is done by controlling the so-called "Democratic" members under former Republican appointment. In the state prison board this has prevented a successor to Wolfer, the odium of which has wrongfully fallen upon Governor Lind's head. In the reformatory board it retains Houlton and the rest. In the grain department, General Becker being such "Democratic" member, Judge Mills and he manage so as to retain their personal relatives, the nepotism in whose cases exceeds the sum of $10,000, that relatives and the two members draw from the state annually. And so on to the end of the chapter. There is a rising tide of public sentiment which bids fair not to be satisfied until there is a complete exposure of the influences prevailing in the various boards, the result of which would certainly be a complete sweep if there is power in the executive to accomplish it. It is a safe statement that there is not a board or department where Republican politics does not prevail, in the manner stated, and where nepotism is not practiced to a degree amounting to public scandal.

The "Beckerian flunk" is Editor Lamphere's terms to designate the act by which supposed "Democrats" on the various boards, act with the Republican members in preventing reforms of the boards or departments. The term is apt. Up to date the Beckerian flunkers, aside from General Becker himself, are B. F. Nelson of the prison board, Captain O. C. Merriam of the reformatory board, and Pearshall of the soldiers' home board. Distinguished beneficiaries of the said Beckerian flunk, besides the $7,000 a year drawn by General Becker and relatives, are Warden Wolfer, Republican; Tams Bixby's brother, Republican; Superintendent Houlton and relatives, Republicans.

At last the Thirteenth is on the briny deep, en route home. A glad welcome for our brave sons, and tears for those who will not hear the joyous greetings—the sadder that they have fallen in so wicked and so needless a war.

Elevator King Peavy, discrediting Governor Lind's appointees on the new boards of appeal, declares that he has no knowledge of Greenleaf, the governor's Republican appointee on the board, or of Malonquist, another appointee. Well, alongside of the elevator king, can be found a score who can testify to Mr. Greenleaf's ability. For over 20 years he has been a dealer in wheat, a close and shrewd observer of happenings on 'change, at times a practical miller, an elevator man, and an all round, good judge of grain. In the opinion of those competent to judge he is regarded as ideally fitted for the appeal board, as any man whom the governor could have named.

As to Mr. Malonquist, does Mr. Peavy recall the circumstance of opening an elevator, some years ago, at Winthrop, in competition with a Mr. Malonquist, whose securing five bushels of grain from farmers, to one by Peavy, soon caused the latter to close up? Well, this is the same gentleman, if we are not mistaken. To know him Mr. Peavy has but to connect him with the Winthrop grain buyer of a few years ago. Mr. Peavy, as the only Minneapolis grain man to defend the Clausen administration, will probably be very grateful for assisting him to discover that his acquaintance with Governor Lind's board of appeals is not as blank as he at first supposed.

Mayor Gray has tackled the coal combine with the same courage that he vetoed the fast train ordinance, and been sustained by the Minneapolis city council. The coal barons tried on the mayor the same old scheme with which John Goodnow feathered his nest, before called higher in the Republican service. If successful, the coal combine would have divided a nice sum, and the success of their scheme would have stimulated them to bigger raises on the general public. Mayor Gray is continually gaining in public confidence and esteem.

WORK OF ASSASSINS.

M. Labori, Counsel for Dreyfus, Is Shot in the Back.

Two Men Spring Upon Him While He Is on His Way to Court at Rennes—Murderer Escapes.

Rennes, Aug. 14. — Two men ambushed Maitre Labori, counsel for Dreyfus, and one shot was fired, hitting Labori in the back. Maitre Labori left his house alone for the court at about six o'clock Monday morning. His residence is situated in the suburbs of the town, about a quarter of an hour's walk from the Lycee, the route being along a solitary road beside the river Vilaine. He had reached a point half way on his journey when two men who had evidently been lying in wait for him rushed out of a narrow lane, and one of them fired a single shot from a revolver. The murderers were only a couple of yards behind their victim, and the bullet struck Maitre Labori in the back. The wounded man uttered an agonized cry and fell flat on his face. The murderers immediately fled through the lane from which they had emerged, and both escaped.

Lie in Wait for Their Victim.

Only two or three laborers going to work witnessed the shooting of Maitre Labori. The spot was well chosen, as the murderers could not be seen by M. Labori until they rushed out upon their victim, the entrance to the lane being hidden by bushes. Moreover, they were afforded an easy means of escape by passing back through the lane, which led to the country.

It appears that M. Labori received only Sunday two letters threatening that he would be shot, but he treated them as he had treated others of a similar nature which he received frequently for months past, with contempt.

Slightly Improved.

The doctors in attendance are very anxious and fear that even if M. Labori recovers his left leg will be paralyzed, as he has been unable to move it since he was laid in bed. He is conscious and talks to his wife freely, but all his remarks are about the court-martial.

Sole Topic of Conversation.

The outrage is the sole topic of conversation in Rennes and abhorrence of the deed is expressed by friends and foes of the wounded man alike. The local papers are issuing frequent editions containing the latest details in regard to the affair.

LEAVES HONOR TO DEWEY.

President Will Stay Away from New York Reception, Leaving Him a Clear Field.

Plattsburg, N. Y., Aug. 15.—President McKinley will decline the invitation to attend the reception to Admiral Dewey in New York on the ground of pressure of public business. His real reason will be the conviction that his presence at the ceremonies would be likely by a division of public honors to detract from the glory which rightfully belongs to the victorious admiral. It was not until Monday that the president determined upon his course. Every possible inducement has been held out to him to attend. His own judgment, his own sense of justice and propriety, his natural inclination to give Dewey all the credit due him, weighed more heavily in the balance than all the pleadings, arguments and inducements.

Vessels and Lives Lost.

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 12.—Details of the loss of two vessels in Australian waters are brought by the steamer Miowera. The bark Carlisle Castle, bound from Liverpool to Freemantle, was totally wrecked off Rockingham. All on board, 11 in number, were drowned. The ship City of York, in command of Capt. P. H. Jones, laden with a general cargo, including 744,000 feet of redwood lumber, from San Francisco, consigned to the West Australian Shipping association, Freemantle, went ashore at Rottness island July 12. Eleven were drowned.

Otis Will Stay.

Washington, Aug. 11.—Maj. Gen. Otis will remain in supreme command of the Philippine islands. Should he request to be relieved Maj. Gen. Lawton will be assigned to duty as his successor. It is said on high authority that this is the decision reached by the president and Secretary Root during their several conferences at Lake Champlain. Secretary Root made no secret of the intention of the president to retain Gen. Otis in command at Manila, and so informed Gen. Miles at a lengthy conference, during which the Philippine situation was discussed.

Five Negro Children Burned.

Jackson, La., Aug. 11.—Five negro children were burned to death on McKowan's plantation, near this place, at night. The parents locked them up in their house and went to church. On their return the charred remains of their little ones was all that could be found.

Well-Known Actress Dead.

Farmington, Minn., Aug. 14.—Lillian Lewis, an actress of national reputation, died here of consumption. Interment is to take place at her old home in Pennsylvania.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Crop Report.

U. S. Department of Agriculture—Climate and Crop Bulletin of the Weather Bureau—Minnesota section: Wheat and oat harvest is general in all parts of the state south of the Red river valley except in a small area from Washington to Chisago counties west to Kandiyohi and Renville counties, and from Nicollet and Steele counties north to Wright and Anoka counties, where harvest is practically finished. South of the Minnesota river the rains have delayed harvest seriously—in some places making the fields so soft that the binders could not work. From all directions come reports that the wheat stems are very tender and that they are crinkling down; for this reason a great deal of wheat has been cut green; where the rains were heavy much wheat and oats are so badly down and tangled that great labor is necessary to gather the crop, but it is said that the binders gather all of the grain and that the heads are generally well filled. Barley is a good crop, though the grain is discolored; most of it is in stack.

Examinations Abolished.

At the annual meeting of the state high school board it was decided to abolish the examinations to which state high school graduates have been subjected in the past before they could enter the university. The subject was brought up at the June meeting by Gov. Lind, who suggested that these examinations were a great nervous strain upon the pupils, and that the graduates of state high schools should be qualified for admission to the university without undergoing this ordeal. A committee consisting of President Northrup of the university and State Superintendent Lewis was appointed to devise some system by which the examination might be abolished and at the same time the standard maintained. George B. Alton, inspector of high schools, presented his annual report after which the question of state aid to the high and graded schools was discussed.

A Murder.

Frank Millman, found dead in a pool of blood under a bridge near the railway station at Wayzata was murdered. At the time of the finding of the body it was supposed Millman had been fatally injured in an attempt to board a moving train and had crawled under the bridge to die, but at the post mortem examination Deputy Coroner Erdman discovered a 38-caliber bullet lodged in the dead man's head near his left ear. The nature of the wound proved conclusively that it was not self-inflicted, and the police were at once notified that a murder had been committed.

Cases of Hog Cholera.

The rumor that diseased pork was being sold in Winona started the local board of health on a tour of investigation with the result that a number of porkers were found that were evidently suffering with hog cholera. It was found that the animals were dying at a lively rate and that the local glue factory was receiving on an average of four a day. This state of affairs was found to exist in a quarter of the city inhabited by Poles, and in several instances portions of the dead animals were found in the ice boxes ready for consumption.

Soldiers' Home.

The board of trustees of the soldiers' home at its annual meeting elected the following officers:

Thos. McMillan, commandant.
J. H. Beebe, secretary.
Frank J. Meade, adjutant,
Dr. O. S. Pine, surgeon.

News in Brief.

The body of little Roy Bebo was discovered in the Mississippi river at Minneapolis. The little fellow was drowned in Bassett's creek April 16. All there was possible to identify the remains by was a shoe on the left foot.

Milaca has been advanced to a presidential postoffice.

Mrs. Margaret Fitzgerald has started an action against the city of Rochester for the sum of $1,000 for injuries received on June 18.

McRae's general store and Dr. Chalmer's drug store at Eagle Bend were burned. Loss, $5,000; insurance, $3,000.

Thirty-nine cars of raw silk and one car of cocoons were received at Duluth via the Great Northern from Japan, consigned to New York importers. A trainload of tea was also received for a local wholesale firm, and several more for the east. The receipts of oriental goods, bound east, are steadily increasing and are reported to be causing some uneasiness among Chicago lines.

Lightning struck the residence of William Moore, in Vermillion. Mrs. Moore is reported as having received serious injuries.

Fred Healey, a plumber, was badly injured by the explosion of a lamp at Faribault. He had a lighted lamp in his hand in the basement of Bird's drug store when the explosion occurred. He remained and extinguished the flames, though terribly burned about the hands and face.

Justis E. Stiles was recommended for appointment as postmaster at Wells. H. A. Honney is recommended at Comfrey, Brown county, and Thos. King at Yorg, Nobles county.

Gov. Lind has appointed Walter S. Johnson, second lieutenant of Company F, to be first lieutenant, vice Lieut. Clark, transferred. Martin E. Tew, who was wounded in the battle of May 17, is appointed second lieutenant of Company F.

A new bank has been organized at Long Prairie with sound financial backing. A. Rhoda, C. W. Faust and others are the interested parties. B. H. Harkens will be the cashier.

The women stenographers of Minneapolis are to have a union, or association. This much was decided on at a meeting when a number of them gathered in the office of Miss Mamie V. Griffin and perfected a temporary organization.

ARBITRATION NOT POPULAR.

It is of interest to learn that during the seven years' war it was proposed to form a European court of arbitration. But it is still more interesting to become acquainted with the views of the greatest ruler Prussia ever possessed with regard to that proposal. It was in the third year of that war (in 1758) when the conviction began to gain ground in France that all efforts to conquer Prussia would be useless. The battles of Prague, Rossbach and Leuthen had spoken too emphatically, while France was being threatened by England, in her colonies, in the Mediterranean and even along her coasts. The resolution was, therefore, formed at Paris to submit proposals of peace to the king, but, owing to the fact that France was the ally of Austria, it was impossible to do so in a direct way.

A circuitous method was adopted, the margrave of Ansbach, the brother-in-law of the king, being asked to intervene. He had to submit proposals to the king and at the same time to endeavor to create the impression that those proposals emanated from himself, offering also to do the same to France. After the various conditions for the reestablishment of peace had been set out the document (dated July 12, 1758), closed as follows:

"In order to make this peace lasting and 'forever,' it is expressly determined that in case a quarrel or dispute should arise, whether it be between the empress-queen, her heirs and successors, and the king of Prussia and his heirs, or the kings of Prussia and Poland, none of the said powers should ever take to arms, but that, by treaty, a court of arbitration (France, England, Sweden and Russia) be appealed to, which in accordance with fairness, justice, customs and the imperial constitution is to decide on those differences and in such a manner that the power which attacks the other without waiting for the decision of the court of arbitration is to be constrained by it to make immediate compensation, for which purpose the powers forming the court of arbitration will intervene with all their might and all their forces, without being able to urge any excuse for their release."

In his answer of July 28 the king thanked the margrave for his good intentions, but doubted whether or not any benefit would come from those proposals, as the chief causes of the war were not touched thereby, and concluded by saying: "Finally, I must not omit to observe that neither myself nor the queen-empress could ever submit to a court of arbitration as proposed by the project, which attacks directly the rights of every ruler, would bring in its train no end of difficulties, and to which no sovereign power would lend a hand."

Once more the margrave, on August 24, after enumerating the various points of the proposed peace, reverted to the question of arbitration, by saying:

"My intention was not to convey that the proposed court of arbitration should form the chief point; my view is that the parties should have a free hand therefrom." This question of an international court of arbitration was put aside, and the king wrote in reply: "If the French, Austrians and Russians have anything to say let them speak out, but as far as I am concerned I shall confine myself to defeating them and being silent."—Chicago Chronicle.

Forest Areas in North America.

The forest area of all the British possessions in America is estimated at about 800,000,000 acres. The settler has cut his way into the fringe of the vast woodland, but his depredations are nothing as compared with the terrific scourge of fire which has rampaged through it at different times. The United States has about 450,000,000 acres of forest, but this is being rapidly depleted by the ax and by destructive fires. The government is now investigating means to prevent or control the latter.—Chicago Chronicle.

Bible Printed on Asses' Skins.

The most costly book in the Royal library at Stockholm is a Bible. It is said that 160 asses' skins were used for its parchment leaves. There are 309 pages of writing and each page falls but one inch short of being a yard in length. The covers are solid planks four inches thick.—N. Y. Sun

A GREAT ENTERPRISE.

But Great in Contemplation Only, as It Never Came to Be Established.

A worthy American citizen, having made a fortune, fared forth to see the world. European business ways and habits thoroughly disgusted this nervously keen expert in money-making, and he poured forth his scorn to some friends he met in Paris. One of them, knowing the ignorance of the old gentleman on subjects without the circle in which he lived, ventured on a joke.

"I agree with you," he said; "I agree with you thoroughly. Why, do you know, sir, I was last week in a city of 125,000 inhabitants—and I was overcome, sir—overcome to find they hadn't a livery stable in the city."

"No—you don't tell me!" answered the victim. "Gentlemen, see there! Just consider that!" Then jumping to his feet as the thought struck him. "Why, gentlemen, a fortune's awaiting someone there! Where's the place? What's the name of it?"

"Venice," said the joker.

"Good! I'm tired of this place anyway. I'll go right down there to-morrow, and put a little horse-sense into the town. Gentlemen, you're in this good thing with me, if you choose."

They were all in it, and they invested their friend with powers plenipotentiary. The story has no dramatic point, save that it is a historic fact that Venice was visited. No one ever heard an account of that visit, but for long afterward no participant in the joke could get within hailing distance of the self-appointed pioneer of American enterprise.—Harper's Round Table.

A FAIR DEMONSTRATION.

They Were Satisfied the Thing Could Be Done, But by Some One Else.

Mark Twain and his friend, Rev. Joseph H. Twitchell, once planned a bicycle ride from Hartford, Conn. (their home), to Boston, and wrote beforehand to an acquaintance in the latter city, telling him their line of route and what time he might expect to see them arrive. The appointed time was an ideal one for a long run, and the two friends started quite early in the morning. But neither of them was accustomed to long rides, so after 12 or 15 miles had been ridden, it became apparent that each of the riders was waiting for the other to say something. Finally Twain said, as they came in sight of the railway station in a small town they had entered: "Let's take the train the rest of the way."

Of course Mr. Twitchell agreed, and so the acquaintance in Boston was surprised by seeing the two friends walk up to his door about one o'clock in the afternoon. He had not expected them till evening, but he greeted them warmly, and addressing Mr. Twitchell, said: "Well, you made pretty good time, didn't you?"

"Oh, fairly good time for novices," was the reply.

"What time did you leave Hartford?" he asked of Mr. Clemens.

"About seven a. m."

"What, you don't mean to say that you have ridden all the way from Hartford to Boston on your bicycles!"

"No," replied Mark Twain, "but we rode far enough to demonstate that it could be done."—Detroit Free Press.

[LETTER TO MRS. PINKHAM NO. 92,649]

"I feel it my duty to write and thank you for what your Vegetable Compound has done for me. It is the only medicine I have found that has done me any good. Before taking your medicine, I was all run down, tired all the time, no appetite, pains in my back and bearing down pains and a great sufferer during menstruation. After taking two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I felt like a new woman. I am now on my fourth bottle and all my pains have left me. I feel better than I have felt for three years and would recommend your Compound to every suffering woman. I hope this letter will help others to find a cure for their troubles." — MRS. DELLA REMICKER, RENSSELAER, IND.

The serious ills of women develop from neglect of early symptoms. Every pain and ache has a cause, and the warning they give should not be disregarded.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, Aug. 18, 1899.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

-Dr. Niven at Delano, Aug. 29.

—Read account of Dreyfus affairs on the inside of this paper.

—Rev. Pinny preached at the Presbyterian church last Sunday afternoon.

—Recent rains have pleased the proprieters of corn fields wonderfully.

—John Kuka, cousin of R. R. John, plead guilty to assault and paid $5. 00 and costs in Justice Frazee's court.

—The drug store at Rockford, was burned a few nights ago. Fires seem of more than usual frequence lately.

—The I. O. O. F. hall at Maple Plain, with the drug store on first floor a neighboring building, lumberyard etc. were burned Monday night.

—The round elevator, on account of putting in a new engine did not take in wheat for a few days this week. The Cargill elevator did a rushing business.

—William Mowatt, Jr. did a job removing weeds from the I. O. O. F.'s lots this week. There are more weeds in town that need attention. Some on the Streets.

—The Street Commissioner has had the Streets nicely cleaned since fair day; and has had a lot of unsightly weeds mowed down. Let the good work proceed.

—The round elevator has got its new gasoline engine in working shape. Its no wonder Jim Hill wondin't have it on his side of the building. It is a horse frigtener.

—Saturday's Fair Day was not so largely attended as some of its predecessors. But it seemed to be a business fair, and most people went home early to finish work.

—If you are interested in the creamery business secure a Pioneer Press for Monday, Aug. 21. It will, according to its advertisement have a fine article on the subject.

—The regular service of the Advent Christian Church, adjourned from the tent, will be held in the Odd Fellow's hall Sunday, Aug. 20th, 8 o'clock P. M You are cordially invited.

—The A.C. tent which has been used for church purposes here for several weeks past was taken to Annandale Monday to be put up for use during the A. C. camp meeting at that place.

—Rev. Farber had a larger audience than usual last Sunday evening. Quite a few are interested in where they will go when they die, and are searching the Scriptures, and trying to learn.

—Three or four wagon loads of Gypsies, or other nomadic people creat considerable excitement on our streets Tuesday; especially among the children who followed them about to watch them.

—It is expected that the new school authorities will see to supplying the pupils with drinking water, when needed during the coming year.

—If all the fires taking place lately were of incendiary origin, as most of them are claimed to have been, it would be well for our officials to be on the look out and try and apprehend some of the offenders.

—If school districts can get new books, up to date, and better adapted to teaching in exchange for old worn out, and out of date books, it is their duty to do so, especially when the exchange is an even one.

—James Quinn, a mile North of Delano, lost his large barn by fire, on Tuesday. Most of his this year's wheat and hay was burned and a lot of farm machinery, a calf, and other things. This is a severe loss for Mr. Quinn.

—A number of young friends, of Miss Hattie Colby and Miss Lydia Bergren surprised them at the home of Miss Mary Epple Wednesday evening. The usual routine of enjoyments was gone through and a good time reported.

—The Delano Cemetery Association officers with, one exception, met at the Cemeterey Monday afternoon, and looked the grounds over. People who have friends burried there must be well satisfied that the board is doing its duty as no one out side of the board was present.

—A visit to the power house, a few evenings ago showed us that electrician Muckey and his assistant N. K. Coffin are keeping things up in apple pie order, about the premises. But somehow the newest lights are not as good as the first we had, for most people.

—City water has been so green and dirty lately, as to be very unpleasant for watering animals, or even for vegetation. A good clean well to furnish city water would do away with many shallow wells in town and the water would do for fire and other purposes also.

—Thresing is being rapidly done in this part of the country. Good turnouts of grain are reported. People in this vicinity have been blessed above many in other places for a quarter of a century a total failure of crops has not occurred. Besides Wright county is coming to the front as a dairy county.

—Some of Delano's citizens will visit the State Fair which opens Sept. 4 and runs a week. The grounds are to be lighted, and evening entertainments made a feature of the week's festivities.

—Tramps are quit plenty again. Marshall Merriman entertains eight or ten some nights, at the village lockup. If all the crimes committed throughout the land are to be attributed to tramps, and there are many as vile crimes as the murders, arsons and such that has befallen Wright county and gone unpunished, within a few years, tramps are likely to be as unsafe as negroes are in the south when crimes are committed.

—Justice Frazee and Constable Belt severley object to the Eagle version of the John Marsolek and son Frank difficulty. Justice Frazee says "the Eagle lies." while Constable Belt modestly says the news papers ought not be allowed to publish such athing as the Eagle did. Both claim that John Marsolek had a written permit from his father to get his wheel and clothes and that he did not go for them before his father had settled the costs $8.00. If the Eagle knows better she should follow up the matter and trace down the guilty parties. But that 'aint her style.

—The new gasoline engine at the round elevator is a handy, hot, noisy curiosity. Handy, most of the hands in town have been over to offer advise, free; mechanical, scientific, professional, legal, theological, or what not. Hot, Prof. Probst, engineer extraordinary succeeded in heating the pipes until the "fireproof" covering burned Noisy, when first started several horses es were scared most out of their harness, and, a small girl dropped a paper of salt on the sidewalk bursting the paper and salting the sidewalk. (A sure sign of a fight). Curiosity every body wants to know what that strange noise is. It is even worse than was "Fiddler Fred" in his palmiest days of learning to play the violin. However most of the surplus music is being barreled now. Things are expected to quiet down some soon.

—The Eagle takes exceptions, in her characteristic style, to our criticism on her advising farmers to build a mill at Delano. She says: "The Eagle never advocated anything of the kind, but simply mentioned that such a project was being discussed." The Eagle started out in the issue of Aug. 3, with: "Since our millers do not seem disposed to push the manufacture of flour past the local demand the question is being discussed to some extent, "etc. Thus getting the present mill out of the road. Then she proceeds to give the roseate view "by some who have given the matter attention" Then, she says: "That flour can be disposed of to good advantage and as fast as it can be manufactured there is not any room for doubt." Then comes the wonderful success of Mr. Campbell, at Watertown, after which the Eagle article closes with, "it looks as though a very paying business of a like nature could be established here if taken hold of in the proper way." Now if the Old Bird didn't mean this for advice why didn't she label it.

Cokato Enterprise: France is an enviable model of a republican form of government in Europe, then what is the world coming to?

The death of Mrs. Ben Peterson of Cokato is reborted to have occurred Tuesday at a Minneapolis hospital where she had gone for treatment, for dropsy.

No Democratic convention ought to send delegates not fully in harmony with the Chicago platform to our next State convention. The way to accomplish this is to be at the primary election and send delegates to the county convention, whom you know to be all right and honest. If people want a chance to vote for their choice for President they must attend primary elections and see that delegates favorable to the cause represented by democracy are chosen to represent them.

Voters who don't think it necessary to attend primary elections and vote for delegates to honestly represeet them in county conventions, ought not to complain of the ticket put up by their party if it don't suit them. They have frittered away their opportunity, oftentimes of changing the complexion of the delegation; and their delegation may hold the balance of power in the convention. Never miss a chance to vote at a primary. If you can't go to but one election in the campaign make that a primary election.

The editor, Senator Johnson, of St. Peter, don't seem to know just where he's at on the Philippine question. Not much better than does Gen. Otis. He says people are making themselves ridiculous, asking that the volunteers be sent home. Preposterous! How can it be? Except for the humiliation of begging from a free and independent Government's servants the just rights of American citizens? That might be ridiculous. As for the friends at home making the regiment ridiculous, how can they? The regiment has nobly done what has been demanded of it, though knowing they were being kept after their term of service had ended. How then can any one make them ridiculous? If any one is being made ridiculous in connection with the affairs of the 13th Reg. it is the quivering, quavering writers and talkers for as have appeared in the Herald or have fallen from the lips of the Senator editor, who would consign the volunteers in the Philippine Islands to eternal slavery to a lot of greedy politicians, or to death. Are not the boys on the 13th, who bravely enlisted when their country called for volunteers to fight for liberty and who faithfully served during the war, as much entitled to their liberty as the patriotic? Johnson? The patriotic? Senator should come out and tell us, if he knows whether he is a gold bug expansionist, or simply an agnostic.

Among Our Exchanges.

Minneapolis Tribune: "Boss Croker found that he couldn't down Bryan any other way, and so he has come out as Bryan's eulogist. If that doesn't kill the colonel politically, he may be regarded as invulnerable.

Litchfield Review: The St. Cloud Journal-Press has made itself the special champion of Judge Collins' boom as to the latter's candidacy for the principal position on the state ticket.

It speaks without definite word from the Judge, but states on its own responsibility that he will be a candidate when the proper time comes, and advises his friends not to be misled by any rumors of an alleged withdrawl.

Collins will soon be smoked out.

Litchfield Review: Redwood Falls has something new, also something novel, in a Recreation Association just organized. The Association will rent a room, furnish it with a shuffle board, bowling alley, and other forms of amusement, writing tables, lounging rooms, wash rooms, etc, which will be placed at the disposal of harvest hands and other laborers that congregate in that city every Sunday and on other days when, because of rain or for other reasons, they are unable to work. The object is to keep the men out of the saloons. The experiment will be watched with interest.

Manilla Advances. London, Aug 12.—Manila hemp rope rose 10 shillings in London this morning, being quoted at £30. 10s. Large quantities were bought at that price on the prospect of a further rise, in consequence of the unexpected resumption of hostilities in the Philippines and the belief that the military operations will drive the natives from the fields and that the world's supply will be practically cut off.

Farm Stock and Home: To know how to make use of what we know is a vital point, and if we can make use of what some other follow knows we are still more benefited.

Minneapolis Tribune: Roger Q. Mills is not saying very much about the free silver issue just now. He has recently sold a portion of his farm to an oil syndicate for $350.000. Prosperity has struck Roger so hard that he has very little use for 16 to 1.

Democratic Bulletin: If the people wonder that Governor Lind could do no more than acknowledge the "ability" in inspector Clausen, let them read, as at least one reason for not possessing "confidence" in him, following finding of the legislative committee of last winter, composed of a majority of republicans:—

That Committee found.—THAT THE GRADING OF WHEAT HAS NOT BEEN UNIFORM. THAT PRIOR TO THE MONTH OF OCTOBER THE NEW CROP OF WHEAT HAD NOT BEEN GRADED, SOLELY ON ITS MERITS IT BEING THE POLICY OF THE DEPARTMENT TO GIVE LOWER GRADES THAN LATER. THAT THE WEIGHING OF GRAIN AT TERMINALS IS CARRIED ON IN A LOOSE MANNER. THAT IT APPEARS THAT SOME OF THE INSPECTORS HAVE BEEN INCOMPETENT AND CARELESS.

Many of the people who complained so bitterly because Gov. Lind wanted the Thirteenth regiment returned from Manila, are now making themselves and the regiment ridiculous by a zeal far greater than any manifested by the governor. There are a whole lot of people who still believe that the regiment should not have been hurried home, but retained in Manila as long as their services were needed. If it was patriotic and proper to go there orginally, it was not especially patriotic to come home before the war was over.—St Peter Herald.

Says the Coming Nation: Our forefathers at Boston, rather than submit to a tax of three pence a pound on tea, disguised themselves and destroyed a whole cargo. This act is now alluded to as the "Boston Tea Party," and is told in every school history as proof of the manly spirit of independence which actuated the patriots of a century ago. A mob which would now destroy trust property rather than submit to paying a tax to trusts two hundred times as great and equally as unjust as King George's tax on tea, would be treated as outlaws and shot down like rebels! —County Line.

Uses for Cornstalks.

It really seems that liquid air and cornstalks are running a race as to the number of uses each are to be put to.

It is now said that besides cellulose, which, as soon as water touches it, swells and works automatically in stopping leakage in ships—card board, a fine grade of paper, a cattle food, glue, and a foundation for dynamite are taken from the stalk. It is claimed that when course meal made from corn stalks, is cooked and sweetened with molasses, it makes an excellent food for cattle. If all these uses materialize a new source of profit is in sight for the corn grower, and cornstalks may have still another use in supplying a grease to slip the mortgage with. —Farm, Stock and Home.

St Paul Dispatch

25c per month for Daily. 75c per year for the Weekly.

The St. Paul Dispatch is the best Twin City daily; it has no equal in the Northwest as to size or quality.

The DISPATCH excels in Northwestern news, having a correspondent in every Northwestern town.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

STILL they come. Nebraska and Mississippi have nominated state officers and endorsed the Chicago platform of '96 and W. J. Bryan as the able exponent thereof. It looks as if things are coming out about right.

THE St. Paul Globe quotes silver certificates at 60 cts on the dollar. How many has it to sell at that rate? And why does it quote them so when it knows there are none for sale at that price?

BULLETIN No 62. Division of Agriculture. University of Minnesota has been recived. It gives a vast amount of information about our great stable product wheat. Every farmer ough to have one.

ADMIRAL DEWEY is reported to have said, among other things, in London, concerning the Philippine question: "I have never been in favor of violence toward the Filipinos. The islands are at this moment blockaded by a fleet and war reigns in the interior. This abnormal state of things should cease. "I should like to see autonomy first conceded, and then annexation might be talked about. This is my opinion."

BRYANISM is making rapid strides toward the front now a-days. Even the New York World has concluded so. The World has been a pretty fair Democrat for a long time but a trifle shaky on Bryan. In its issue of Aug. 18, under the head of "Mr. Bryan Faces Forward" it admits that Mr. Bryan is for the Chicago platform of '96, with what additions are necessary. Good for the World, when it learns that Mr. Bryan is on the straight road to the White House. He is on the very same track he has been all the time. Mr. Bryan is a true American

MCKINLEYS Cabinet has changed so often and so much that few people have kept track of it. Since this administration we have had Secretary of State, Sherman, Day, and Hay. Every member of the cabinet but three have been changed, so that only Gage, Long and Wilson of the first appointed remain. So that our readers may know who our cabinet officers are, we give the names as at present:

Secretary of State, John Hay. Agriculture, James Wilson. Navy, John D. Long. Attorney General, John Griggs. Secretary of Interior, Ethan Allen Hitchcock. War, Elihu Root. Treasury, Lyman J. Gage. Post Master General, Charles Emory Smith.

WE read of Moses and the children of Israel going through the Red Sea on dry ground; and of their pursuers, the Egyptians venturing to follow, and of there not being so much as one of them to escape. To the Lord is ascribed the fact that these things are so.

In the Philippines we are told that the average rainfall in June is 14 inches, that this year, while the inhabitants were being pursued, the rain descended, as not before, to 41 inche. Carrying away bridges considered safe, and otherwise detaining the pursuers. Was this also caused by the Lord? And was it to protect innocent people from those seeking to become taskmasters over them?

OUR American citizens who are of German parentage, many of whom were inclined to be Republicans in 1896, because they thought that a gold standard would be better than a bimetallic standard of gold and silver both, the same as our countries had for nearly a century; and who seemed to think that if we had both metals for money that silver would not be worth actually as much as gold, have now struck another snag, in American politics, and one to them much more dangerous than the bimetallic standard, even of 16 to 1, and that is imperialism. When the Republicans sought to take in other countries and, against their wishes, administer their affairs, the Teutonic heart began to boil. The patriotism, the love of free institutions came to the front. And, now they are ready to vote for Democracy.

IF the gold bugs could but succeed in their efforts to make it appear that William J. Bryan had forsaken the Chicago platform of '96, and taken up as an issue for the next campaign, imperialism, how soon they would end the trouble in the Philippines, even though they didn't keep even a coaling station, in order to rid themselves of that incubus, and then how they would crow "that there is no difference between the parties" and "it is a poor time to swap horses". But with all their wiggling and twisting about in reports of Mr. Bryan's speeches, wherever the truth is told Mr. Bryan is found as immovable as the rock of Gibraltar. He is found advocating that the campaign be made on the platform of '96 with what additions may be necessary concerning imperialism, trusts, and kindred goldbug ideas.

Uncle Sam's Sultan.

The Mohammedan Sultan of Sulu, the possessor of a large and varied assortment of wives, is now an officer of the United States. The Sultan is a despot and his subjects are serfs. The American flag floats over the islands, and the Sultan's government has become a part of our system. Under the treaty of Paris the President of the United States has no authority to interfere with the local government of the Sultan, but is pledged to contribute a large sum annually to his support. General Bates is on the islands with ten thousand Mexican dollars to deliver to the Sultan as the first installment. The extent of the sovereignty of the United States upon the islands is confined to certain trading privileges.—National Watchman.

The University of Minnesota will open Sept. 4; registration will begin on Sept. 5, and close Sept 12. at 8:30 a. m., Sept. 12, all classes will be called and regular work begin. This does not include the Medical Department which opens Sept. 19.

For the accommodation of new students the University Young Men's Christian Association opens its building to them.

At their building they will conduct an information bureau; will have a complete list of suitable rooms and boarding places for students; will conduct an employment bureau for deserving students who want work and will do everything in their power to start the new student in college life. Upon arriving at the University the student should go directly to the Y. M. C. A. building. No charge whatever is made for their services.

They also publish a Students' Hand-Book of the University which will be mailed free to all who are coming as students if they will apply to L. T. Savage, General Secretary, Y. M. C. A., University of Minnesota.

Tariff Tinkerings.

The tariff rates levied by the republican party prohibit foreign competition, consequently our factory owners combine to fix prices at their will. As no law will hinder such combination, the prohibitory tariff rates have so far to be reduced, that foreign competition can enter as soon as our industrial trusts take inordinate profits. The republican editors, experts in throwing dust into our eyes, call everybody who wants to reduce these exorbitant tariff rates a free trader, and because they do not like to discuss the tariff rates they cry: "Free trade England has trusts too." Of course it has. The greed of the money power is all over the same. But the trusts in Europe run mainly in such goods as coal, heavy ironware, where the freight from other countries counts, but free trade or low tariff rates hinder these trusts to take inordinate profits. Besides in some countries they are compelled to deposit some of the profits for the benefit of the laborers. Nobody wants freetrade but it is worth while to look at that paraded bugbear, free trade, a little closer.

Radical free trade is the abolishment of all indirect taxes, supplanted by the progressive income tax. That is, a net income from $300 to $1,000 pays 1 per cent, from $1,000 to $2,000 1½ per cent and so up till 2½ per cent.

Our indirect taxation brought in 1898, $400,000,000 which makes on each family $24 taxes. A rich man may use 10 to 20 times more taxable goods as a common taxpayer, so he would pay from $240 to $480 indirect taxes. The progressive income tax would tax an income of $10,000 with $2,000; an income of $100,000 with $25,000 and an income of $300 with $3. Those who have investigated their money in protected industries take more in inordinate profits out of our pockets than they pay into those of Uncle Sam. Our member of Congress prided himself about the tax on lumber, though that was wind, that this tax benefited the American laborer because the lumber kings are not compelled to use only American labor. Our lumber kings buy the logs as cheap as the Canadians and I do not believe they steal less than them. They have the advantage of floating their logs direct to the sawmills which are located in the central distributing points of sawed lumber. So that fearful rise in lumber goes all as inordinate profit from your pockets into theirs. This system of taxation is the most beneficial for the money power on the earth. O. M.

ADVERTISE

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 18, 1899.

Frequenters of the War Department, which continues to be the busiest of them all, are reminded by the present situation, of the adage about the difficulty of teaching old dogs new tricks. There's a new head to the department, but the machinery is just the same that it was during the Alger regime, and there is the same disinclination to tell the public anything that can be hid. Although it is well known that more men have already been enlisted than will fill the original announced number of Philippine regiments of volunteers, and that enlistments are still being made as rapidly as possible, War Department officials say that no official decision has been made to increase the number of regiments, and that no additional call for volunteers is likely. This is nothing more than quibbling. It is so certain that more regiments will be organized that lists of their officers have been made out. As to issuing a new call for volunteers, none is necessary to continue the recruiting up to the limit fixed by Congress 35,000 men. As a matter of fact, no call was issued when the present recruiting was begun—a simple order of the Secretary of War was issued.

Senator Clay expresses the belief that there will be an anti-expansion republican Presidential ticket in the field next year, and that such men as Tom Reed and ex-Secretary of the Treasury Boutwell, of Mass. will support it, and that its vote in New England will be large enough to throw the electoral votes of those States to the democrats.

That nearly all of the negroes trouble has its origin in bad advice, given some time thoughtlessly and not a few times with the malicious intention to make trouble is known to those who have taken the time to study the race problem. A Washington lawer deserves a place among the bad advisers of the negro. He stated, in an argument in defence of a negro who was charged with being disorderly and found guilty and fined, that his client would have been justified had he shot the policeman who arrested him. If some negro desperado who heard that statement should kill the first officer who attempted to arrest him for some petty crime, wouldn't that lawer be an accessory to the murder?

The administration crowd is really becoming alarmed at the extent of the "nigger" animosity to Mr. McKinley, and the word has been passed around to the "nigger" office holders to whoop it up for the administration at every turn, and especially to try to counteract the anti-McKinley talk at the gathering, in Chicago, to be known as the Afro-American Council. The negro voters of Ohio have it in their power to make it impossible for the McKinley-Hanna candidate for governor to be elected; consequently, they are being "jollied" by everybody connected with the administration, but some of those "niggers" are just smart enough to make it plain that an officer with a good salary attachment is the only sort of a jolly they will take from the administration.

The revival of the story alleging the intention of ex-Czar Reed to remain in Congress and lead the fight against expansion, on the floor of the House, probably had no more substantial basis than a desire to worry those republicans who for one or another reason welcome his retirement from Congress. Even if he remained in the House, he would not lead the fight on imperialism; that Patriotic duty will be performed by a democrat.

Representative Bankhead, of Ala. Was in Washington this week. He was indignant because of a publication several days ago that he attended an anti-Bryan meeting at Saratoga. Speaking of it, he said: "I have'nt been in Saratoga and it is well known that Alabama is a Bryan State. We will send an instructed Bryan delegation to the next national convention. Bryan is the logical candidate, and will be unanimously nominated, and he will be elected, too."

The Sampson clique taking advantage of the absence of Mr. McKinley and Secretary Long, is again scheming to get orders issued by the Navy Department for Sampson's squadron to go to sea to meet Admiral Dewey and escort him into New York harbor. Sampson isn't satisfied with his attempt to rob Schley of honors bravely won, but has the nerve to try to share in the honors that will be bestowed on Dewey, and unless the clique is called down by Mr. McKinley or Secretary Long, he may succeed in getting the desired orders. Already Acting Secretary Allen has ordered Sampson to prepare plans for the participation of the navy in the reception of Dewey.

Forgot He Was a General.

One of Funstan'smen writes that in the latest engagement near San Fernan do the general went into battle at the head of his brigade, composed of the Kansas, Montana and Utah troops. When the fight started, however, General Funstan forgot that he was in command of a brigade, and leaving his staff, orderly, horse and all he joined the Kansas boys on foot and personally gave them orders as he led them to the charge.—Pioneer Press.

The People Are With Him.

Senator Morgan, of Alabama, who a short time ago sought to shunt the Democratic party off the free silver and Bryan track, has now followed Croker, of New York, in executing a flip-flop into the Bryan camp. Bryan seems to be having it all his own way in his own party just now, but that doesn't prove that he will be a strong canadate before the people: —Minneapolis Tribune.

The people were with him in '96 and they are still with him. If the gold bugs keep on flopping, Mr. Bryan is sure of an election in 1900.

A Local Paragraph

By Edgar Temple Field.

"THE time has come for the American people to act. Shall 50,000,000 patriots sit supinely by and let conscienceless rascals tear the stars of glory from the flag they love and trample its proud folds of crimson and white into the mire of national dishonor? Not while the deeds of '76 still shine through the mists of years in unexampled splendor. Not while the memories of '61 yet live in the hearts that thrilled with the stress of that heroic struggle. Not while—" Joel Snively, editor of the Meloogic Monitor, laid down his pen with a sigh.

Outside the dusty little window the green waters of the bay were sparkling in the sunshine. A keen north breeze was driving great huddling masses of white-shouldered clouds over a field of dazzling azure, and only a man who loved the sport with the whole-souled earnestness that filled his entire being could know how the fish must be biting on such a morning! Oh, to be out on that gleaming expanse, armed with rod and line, with only the sun and clouds for company and a thousand pounds or so of gamy finned vertebrates playing about within reach of his cunning hook.

But also, it was Friday morning. On Saturday some 200 impatient subscribers would expect the weekly dish of personal, political and intellectual pabulum which his facile pen had long served up to them on that day, with more or less punctuality, according to the season. His duty clearly held him to his post at such a time, however much his inclinations might have led him elsewhere.

So, with another lingering glance at the scene without, Mr. Snively took up his pen and resumed the stirring appeal which was to awaken 50,000,000 patriots to action, and incidentally convince the republicans of Meloogic that it was their duty to vote for Joe Gridley for poundmaster.

So engrossed did the editor become in this pleasing task that he did not hear a step upon the creaking stair a little later. If he had he would have known at once that it was a woman and a lady that was approaching, for long and awful experience had enabled Mr. Snively to determine with unerring accuracy what sort of a person was climbing the somewhat perilous ascent to the editorial sanctum almost as soon as his foot touched the first step.

But for once the editor did not hear the soft footfall on the stair, so he was very much surprised and not a little disconcerted when a fresh, sweet voice, almost at his elbow, said: "Good morning, Mr. Snively," and looking up he beheld his neighbor, Mrs. Tracy, her plump figure buttoned into the trimmest of blue serge yachting suits, her smiling face shaded by a wide-brimmed hat and in her hand a fish pole, jointed, brass-tipped, elegant—the very perfection of dainty uselessness.

Without waiting for a response to her greeting she briefly made known her errand. She was anxious for a day's fishing, and had been told of an Elysian spot, where the fish were so plentiful they were actually to be had for the asking. Unluckily, however, her own boat had not come, so she had ventured to ask if, in case he was not using it, Mr. Snively would be so kind as to lend her his yawl, it being impossible to hire one in the village.

Mr. Snively was delighted. Mrs. Tracy was a pretty widow of uncertain age but no uncertain charm, who had taken the cottage next to the editor's own six months before. In the course of a rather desultory acquaintance the genial bachelor, whose ideas of the fair sex were those common to his kind, had discovered that his fair neighbor was a cheery little body of sound political views and excellent literary tastes (from the first she had been a prompt and paying subscriber to the Monitor), but beyond that his imagination had not soared. Now, however, behold the pretty widow invested with a wholly new interest. She was fond of fishing!

Eagerly Mr. Snively assured his visitor of his pleasure in putting his boat at her disposal and gave her exhaustive directions as to the means of obtaining it. A delightful half hour of conversation followed. As though it were a magician's wand the dainty fish pole had placed the editor and his guest at once on terms of the most charming intimacy and the former didn't remember ever to have enjoyed a conversation so much in his life, albeit the talk was wholly of reels and rods and spoon hooks and other instruments of slaughter.

All things, however, are bound to come to an end, especially in an editorial office, so it wasn't long before Mrs. Tracy took her leave, escorted down the stairway by her delighted host.

At the door they were met by a spicy breeze straight from the pine woods across the bay. Mr. Snively sighed.

"Where is this wonderful place you are going to?" he asked.

"Ah, that's a secret," she replied, gayly. "I promised I'd never, never tell."

"Oh, well, then I suppose it's a crime to even guess." And once more the editor sighed as he glanced out at the sparkling waters.

"But you've been so kind," exclaimed the widow, noting the sigh and immediately filled with compunction. "It seems ungracious of me to keep it from you who love so to fish." And then as she saw him give another wistful glance bayward she burst out, impulsively: "Promise not to betray me and I'll tell you—it's Patchang lake!" "Patchang!" cried Mr. Snively, in surprise. "Why, I never heard of a fish down there in my life."

"That's the charm of it," she rejoined, gleefully, "and the man who told me about it (such a dear, dirty, old fisherman he was) was fearfully afraid some one else would find it out; so don't betray me." And she hurried away with a parting smile that made the dusty office seem duller than ever when he got back to it and reluctantly commenced setting up his editorial, for Mr. Snively constituted the whole working force of the Monitor.

And his task, too, seemed harder than ever after the interruption. Thoughts of his pretty visitor kept intruding themselves into the minds of his most impassioned appeals to the voters of Meloogic.

How blue her eyes were and what bewitching little rings of hair the wind had blown up under the big hat.

And then the fishing.

The editor of the Monitor shook his head. Could it be possible any man living could have a soul so lost to honor as to play a joke on a woman who looked like that? It seemed impossible, and yet Mr. Snively was sure there wasn't a fish within a mile of Patchang.

Perhaps even then Mrs. Tracy was sitting in that yawl vainly waiting for the bite he felt certain she wouldn't get if she sat there till the United States got an honest government. And he was actually staying at home and deliberately abandoning a friend to such a fate!

As this agonizing thought occurred to Mr. Snively he dropped his type and started for the door. But once there he paused and slowly returned to his form, only to find it more and more impossible to keep his mind on his work.

At last he gave up in despair.

Taking a hasty survey of what he'd already accomplished he found his columns tolerably full, with the exception of perhaps a single paragraph on the local page. By hard work the following morning he might hope to set up his pages and would trust to luck for the missing paragraph.

Like all fishermen, Mr. Snively was a firm believer in luck. He was also a man of action when he chose, and within five minutes of this calculation he had locked up the editorial department and was on his way to Patchang lake.

THE EDITOR TO THE RESCUE.

When he reached that shallow sheet of water a little lady in blue serge sat in a boat in the center thereof, with an expression of virtuous indignation on her sunburnt features.

"What luck?" called the editor from the shore.

"Luck!" cried the fair sportswoman, dolefully. "There is not enough water in this lake to catch cold in, much less a fish. All I've got for my trouble is a mighty poor opinion of fishermen in general and one dirty one in particular."

"Come over here," said Snively. "I know a pond not a thousand miles away where the fish bite like mosquitoes. If you'll try it I think I can raise your opinion of fishermen before I'm a day older."

"I can't," confessed the widow, blushing with anger and mortification. "I'm stuck—in the mud."

One moment the man of letters hesitated on the bank, and then, with an inward prayer that he might at least be spared to get out that week's paper, he waded boldly into the expanse of treacherous mud that rolled between him and the beauty in distress. * * *

The next morning the editor walked into the Monitor office clad in his Sunday clothes. With his accustomed methodical neatness he pulled off his coat, hung it behind the door, and carefully drew on over his linen sleeves a pair of black alpaca ones. Then he lighted his pipe and took his place at the form.

There, just as he had left it, was the vacant space at the end of the local column still yawning for the missing paragraph.

Mr. Snively regarded it for a few minutes reflectively—then he took up his pen, as a smile gradually spread itself over his face until it reached his eyes. It still lingered there when a little later he finished and paused to glance over his work.

What he read was this:

"The editor of the Monitor, after many years of bachelorhood, has had the good fortune to incur the risks and responsibilities of matrimony. He was married this morning to Mrs. Gertrude Tracy, of Elm cottage, and asks the congratulations and good wishes of his subscribers in this the happiest hour of his life.—Chicago Herald.

Telephones in Japan.

Japan apparently favors telephones. The imperial diet recently voted to expend $12,800,000 within the next seven years for the improvement of the government telephone system. Rinja Nakayama, a young electrical engineer, has been sent to the United States to investigate the latest improvements and inventions. The government work will all be executed by Japanese electricians.

He wants to boom the circulation, he says, and knows of no better way.

Neglected in a Paris cemetery lie the remains of America's first and most dashing seaman, John Paul Jones. Now that we are honoring the men who have demonstrated American bravery in the harbors of Manila and Santiago, let us not forget the man who sunk the English ships and made the American name feared in the period of the revolution. They were the men for the times and without them there would have been no country for Dewey and Schley to defend.

There are some 2,000 Americans scattered through the territory which is the scene of the trouble with the Yaqui Indians in Mexico, and it is likely to go hard with them. The magnitude of the uprising of these Indians may be best appreciated when you know that the Mexican war department estimates that it will take 40,000 troops to conquer the Yaquis. If they have reached their old stronghold in the Sahuaripa mountains the war is likely to last a year or two, and possibly five.

Col. Picquart continued his deposition in the Dreyfus trial. He affirmed his belief in the innocence of the prisoner and stated that the evidence contained in the dossier and other documents applied far better to Esterhazy than to Dreyfus. Col. Picquart asserted that when he furnished conclusive proof of the innocence of Dreyfus to Gen. Gonse he was ordered to keep silent. This statement created a great sensation in the courtroom. The dossier was analyzed at length and its forgeries exposed.

In Paris serious riots occurred because of an attack made by anarchists on anti-Semites and 380 persons were injured and a church wrecked.

LATER NEWS.

A shooting affray growing out of the old row between cattle men and sheep men occurred on a range southwest of Chadron, Neb., when George Coil, a sheep herder, instantly killed Thomas Ryan, a cattle man. Coil claims Ryan and other cattle men scattered his flock, abused him and threatened to kill him. He surrendered. The cattle men swear vengeance.

Among German officials it is considered quite within the range of probability that Prince Henry of Germany, brother of Emperor William, and at present commander-in-chief of the German squadron in Asia, will visit the United States some time within the next few months.

THE DREYFUS TRIAL.

Rennes, Aug. 21.—At the court-martial session Saturday the first witness was Maj. Cuignet, the officer who some weeks ago was dismissed from the army for communicating to the Petit Journel confidential correspondence exchanged between the minister of war and the minister of foreign affairs regarding the Panizzardi dispatch. Maj. Cuignet declared, like the preceding military witnesses, his conviction of the guilt of Dreyfus, based on the alleged confession to Lebrun-Renault, technical explanation of the bordereau and the secret dossier. The major added a fourth reason in his confidence in the graphological demonstration made by M. Bertillon.

The next witness was Gen. de Boisdeffre, who, like his predecessor, entered into a history of the bordereau and alleged confessions. His deposition was entirely lacking in what had been expected from him. He confirmed the statement of Gen. Mercier that there were fears of war on January 6, 1895.

The next witness was Gen. Gonse, who talked in a very indistinct tone of voice. He spoke at length regarding his differences with Col. Picquart about Esterhazy.

Dreyfus entered into a long argument with Gen. Gonse regarding the possibility of introducing strangers into the ministry of war. Gen. Gonse maintained that this was possible, but Dreyfus finally forced the general to admit that without a written permit it could not be done.

The sitting closed with the deposition of Gen. Billot regarding the expenditures of the secret service fund, which entirely confirmed the statements of Col. Picquart, a statement which caused applause in the court.

Rennes, Aug. 22. — The third week of the second trial by court-martial of Capt. Alfred Dreyfus, a captain of the artillery, on the charge of treason, began without incident at 6:30 Monday morning.

All of the witnesses Monday were hostile to Dreyfus, but as none of the evidence was fresh and mostly reiteration of old statements, the audience followed the depositions with comparatively little interest, a reference by M. Gribelin to the relations of Dreyfus with demimondaines proving the most appetizing portion of the morning's proceedings. A subdued titter went round the courtrom when M. Gribelin even professed to know the exact amount Dreyfus spent upon his various amours.

Maitre Demange, of counsel for the defense, was more successful than usual in cross-examining him and visibly disconcerted M. Gribelin. Counsel scored a distinct hit when he got M. Gribelin to admit that he mixed the intrigues of Paty de Clam and Henry to shield Esterhazy and when M. Gribelin was finally disposed of his evidence had suffered badly.

Dreyfus created a better impression Monday. He entered the court with a more confident bearing and replied to the witnesses in a calm voice, without any theatrical gestures, and his remarks were put so lucidly that he appeared to make an impression on all the judges, all of whom are reputed to be bitterly opposed to him.

The session wound up with a scene, on account of the extraordinary conduct of Col. Jouaust, president of the court, who permitted himself to make an unwarrantable display of partiality. M. Bertulus had been confronted with the last witness, Capt. Junck, and Gen. Gonse had defended the latter, when Col. Picquart rose and asked to be allowed to refute some of Junck's remarks. Col. Jouaust made a gesture of impatience and shouted:

"What again?"

An outburst of booing and hissing came from the audience at such a display of unfairness from the president. Judges and gendarmes quickly suppressed the noise, but Col. Jouaust understood the well-merited rebuke administered him, turned red and adjourned the court ten minutes later.

Shamrock Arrives.

New York, Aug. 19.—Sir Thomas Lipton's yacht Shamrock, challenger for the America's cup, reached this port Friday, accompanied by her tender, the steam yacht Erin. The Shamrock sailed from Fairlee on the Clyde August 3 and made the trans-Atlantic voyage in much quicker time than was anticipated. The Erin towed the Shamrock about 2,000 miles and the latter sailed something more than 1,200 miles. Her best day's run under canvas was 268 knots.

Dewey Fixes the Date.

Leghorn, Italy, Aug. 18.—Having received a long letter from Gen. Butterfield, of New York, explaining the plans that have been made for his reception on arrival in the United States, Admiral Dewey has decided to leave Gibraltar September 12, arriving in the lower bay at New York Friday, September 29. The naval parade will take place the next day and the shore parade the Monday following.

LABORI IN COURT.

Rennes, Aug. 22.—The second day of the third week of the second trial by court-martial of Capt. Alfred Dreyfus on the charge of treason began at 6:30 o'clock this (Tuesday) morning. Maitre Labori was present. He drove to the court in a carriage and entered the hall at 6:30 o'clock. The audience greeted him by standing up and by a general clapping of hands. Maitre Labori walked quite briskly, but holding his left arm closely to his side, in order not to disturb the wound. He met Gen. Mercier and Gen. Billot in the middle of the court-room, stopped, chatted and smiled. Labori looked very well. He was given a cushioned armchair. Mme. Labori, looking well, was also in court. Labori was warmly congratulated by friends. Capt. Dreyfus on entering smilingly shook hands with Labori.

Col. Jouaust addressed a few words of congratulation to Labori, and expressed the profound indignation of the tribunal at the attempt to assassinate the counsel. Labori was much moved, and thanked Col. Jouaust in an eloquent speech.

SIX LIVES LOST.

Washington, Ind., Aug. 18.—Six persons were drowned in White river, near here, Thursday morning. They were Mrs. Albert Heimsel, her four children, Abie, aged 16; Andy, aged 14; Thomas, aged ten, and Nellie, aged one, and Miss Amy Dillon, aged 18. All the bodies have been recovered except that of Miss Dillon. A party composed of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Heimsel, their four children, Miss Dillon, Mrs. Potts and two children went to cross the river on a ferryboat. The party was in a wagon. The horses were driven on the boat and the front wheels reached it; just then the stake holding the boat broke loose. The swift current started it down the stream. As it started the entire load of human freight was dumped into the water, the wagon overturning. The horses soon drowned. All were thrown under the wagon, but in some miraculous manner Mrs. Potts and her two children reached the shore in safety. Mr. Heimsel made a heroic effort to save his family, but all drowned. He narrowly escaped himself.

Sixty Dead.

Newburn, N. C., Aug. 22.—Reports from the coast of North Carolina where the West Indian hurricane touched last week are coming in and show that there were a large number of lives lost and much damage done to property. Fourteen fishermen in trying to cross Pamlico sound in skiffs were lost. Four bodies have been recovered on the banks and searching parties are at work for others. It is believed that as many as 60 persons lost their lives in the storm.

Left No Will.

New York, Aug. 22.—Mrs. Eva A. Ingersoll, widow of Col. Robert G. Ingersoll, has filed a bond as administratrix of the estate of her husband. Mrs. Ingersoll swears that she has made diligent search for the will of her husband, but that to the best of her knowledge and belief he died intestate. The value of his personal property is estimated by her at about $10,000. At the time of his death he held no real property.

Drowned Herself and Child.

Pierre, S. D., Aug. 21.—Some time Saturday night Mrs. Jennie Weston drowned herself and her four-year-old son Bertie in a cistern at the family home. There was no one else at home except a daughter about 17 years old, and the deed was not known until the young lady wakened Sunday morning. Family troubles are supposed to be the cause of the tragedy, the mother having several times threatened to commit suicide.

Big Demand for Poultry.

St. Louis, Aug. 22.—Since the advance in the price of meat, the demand for poultry has greatly increased. Eastern buyers are now scattered all over the state, and a large per cent. of chickens are shipped to the Atlantic coast cities. Until recently it was difficult for farmers living a considerable distance from a railroad to dispose of their surplus.

A Fatal Error.

Utica, N. Y., Aug. 21.—William Robbins, instructor of manual training in the schools of Passaic, N. J., shot and instantly killed his brother, Ralph Robbins, aged 16, while hunting in the Adirondacks Sunday evening. He mistook the red sweater worn by Ralph for a deer.

Will Be a Candidate.

Toledo, O., Aug. 22.—Mayor Jones arrived in the city Monday morning and at once began work on a letter announcing that he would be an independent candidate for governor.

GEN. OTIS WILL STAY.

No Change to Be Made in the Philippine Commandership, Says Gen. Merritt.

Plattsburg, N. Y., Aug. 21.—At the close of his interview with President McKinley Sunday night Gen. Merritt said:

"So far as I know there will be no immediate change in military commanders in the Philippine islands. Gen. Otis, whom I regard as one of the most capable and efficient officers in the service, will continue in charge of the American forces.

"With an efficient force of say 50,000 troops I believe he will be able to put down the rebellion. Just how much time will be required, however, I cannot say. Aguinaldo and his men have put up a much better fight than I thought them capable of at the outset, but there can be but one outcome to the conflict, a complete victory for American arms.

"I can now but repeat what I have said time and again, that the insurrection would have been broken ere this had it not been for the moral support which Aguinaldo and his men have received from the United States.

"The delay in the ratification of the peace treaty, coupled with the impotent opposition to the administration's policy in the far east did more to encourage Aguinaldo and his followers than anything else. However, this is an event of the past and must be considered as such.

"There remains but one thing to do, that is to carry the conflict to a successful conclusion. This result will, I believe, soon be accomplished by Gen. Otis and the corps of able assistants who have been assigned to his command."

"Will you be sent to the Philippines?" was asked.

"Not now," replied the general.

An American Killed.

Manila, Aug. 21.—One lieutenant of the Twelfth infantry was killed and another was seriously wounded while reconnoitering Saturday evening north of Angeles. The Americans encountered a large force of insurgents and drove them from their positions. Lieut. Cole, of the Sixth infantry, with 80 men, encountered 100 insurgents intrenched in the mountains of the island of Negros and routed them after an hour and a half of severe fighting. The Americans had three men slightly hurt. Nineteen dead insurgents were counted in the trenches. Six rifles and a quantity of reserve ammunition were captured. The insurgents recently cut the cable in Laguna bay, leading to Calamba, on the south shore of the lake, but the break has been repaired.

Dreyfus' Fate May Be Fixed.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—The Tribune's special from Rennes says: According to statements communicated from such an exceptional source as to carry unusual presumption of truth, the sentence of Dreyfus is already decided upon. He will be found guilty of disciplinary indiscretions, for which he will be sentenced to five years' imprisonment. As he has served this term of sentence the practical result will be that he will be set free and take his position in the army as a captain en reforme, without pay or emoluments, and any career in the active army will be closed to him.

Explorers Return.

Tromsoe, Island of Tromsoe, Norway, Aug. 18.—Walter Wellman and the survivors of the polar expedition led by him arrived here Thursday evening on the steamer Capella, having successfully completed their explorations in Franz Josef Land. Mr. Wellman has discovered important new lands and many islands.

Mr. Wellman and his companions found no trace in Franz Josef Land of the missing aeronaut, Prof. Andree.

Boom for Good Roads.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—The State and Interstate Good Roads association, which is prosecuting a campaign among the farmers to convince them of the commercial advantage of good roads, hoping thereby eventually to secure legislation looking to the improvement of highways, has called a series of conventions to be held during September and October in Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin and Minnesota.

Holds Motorman Guilty.

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 18.—The jury in the inquest into the cause of the accident on the Shelton Street Railway company's bridge at Peck's mill pond August 6 by which 30 people were killed, rendered their verdict that the motorman of the wrecked trolley car, George S. Hamilton, was guilty of criminal carelessness, and that the Shelton street railway was very negligent.

Prince Henry Coming.

London, Aug. 22.—Prince Henry of Prussia, who commands the German squadron in the Pacific, will visit San Francisco, according to the Berlin correspondent of the Daily Mail, on board his flagship after he leaves China. It is possible, according to the same authority, that he will also go to Washington to see President McKinley, who has sent him an invitation.

Church Burned.

Toledo, O., Aug. 21.—By the explosion of an altar lamp at the Church of the Good Shepherd Sunday morning, the church building was destroyed, and with it all the altars and statues. The loss is $15,000 on the building and the images were of great value.

DOBBIN'S SOLILOQUY.

Men look ahead and sigh
For the day when they
May put their work away!
I
Have no complaint to make—
I am willing to take
All the knocks they care to give
If they'll only let me live!
I used to feel as mortals do;
I thought
My lot
Was wretched, too!
When they made me work all day,
And tossed me a mouthful of musty hay
At night,
I sometimes thought it wasn't right—
I kicked and cried out—
I had no doubt
Then
That I'd be happier when
I should be no longer tortured by the bit—
When I could quit!
But, now that I'm about to be Cast out, I see
That I was wrong to fret!
O, if they'll only let Me stay,
I'll work away
Without complaint! Let them increase the load!
Let them lay on the goad!
Let them saw the bits! Let my ribs protrude!
Let my tasks be hard and my masters rude—
I'll sigh no more
If I may toil as I've toiled before!
O, man, you sigh o'er the work you do,
You are filled with grief at your treatment, too;
But let the day
Arrive when they
Can dispense with you
And then you'll learn—alas! too late—
How good, how sweet is the task you hate.

Caring for Stubby

By Kenneth Harris.

HELLO there, stubby!
Can't you say "Goo' mornin' " to your pop?
Don't you know you kept him awake
For over an hour last night?
Now, you just lie there and grin,
As though 'twas the best kind of a joke.
You're all right, you are—you know your job;
Wonder what you were thinkin' of then?
Funny 'bout these babies' thoughts;
I don't understand it at all.
I guess that's what they call a part
Of the divine economy. If we knew
And understood all about a baby
We'd leave nothin' for the All-Wise One
To know and be supreme about.
I guess that's right. I'm not kickin'—
Are you, baby? Course you ain't.
You never kick about nothin'
'Cept just when you feel hungry,
And anybody's got a kick comin' then,
And no mistake.
What are you reachin' for, you scamp?
You want to pull your old pop's hair, do you?
All right, get a hold of it; now pull!
Pull hard! That's the stuff!
Have a lot of fun with the old man;
It don't cost nothin'.
Beats droppin' nickels in a slot
Or watchin' horses run around a track—
You bet it does. Pull 'er again!
Dig in; I like to see you have sport,
Even if it does hurt. Hold on!
Play fair, there, young man; ease up!
Give your old pop a chance to breathe.
I was only jokin' when I said pull hard.
I didn't suppose you'd understand so well.
Now laugh, will you? Think it's a joke
To pull hair out by the roots, do you?
Here, look at pop's watch.
Hear um tick-tick, tick-tick.
Ain't that a funny little noise for baby?
What do you suppose that is? Tick-tick, tick-tick!
Hear um? Well, does it scare um baby?
Well, popper put um ole watch right away
Ye-es, nassy ole tick-tick scare um baby.
Papa spank old watch—bad ole tick-tick.
Baby see horsey goin' by window,
Baby say: "Whoa, horsey; whoa, horsey!"
Horsey give baby ride in um buggy.
Go 'long, horsey; git app, horsey!
Now horsey gone-gone; baby say: "Bye bye."
Shake um li'l' hand bye-bye, so.
Hark! What 'at noise? hear um noise?
Hear um choo-choo cars? Great big noise;
Great big choo-choo horsey take um baby
'Way long bye-bye, 'way, 'way off
See grampa; ye-es, nice old choo-choo
Come take baby some day see grampa.
Then um baby pull ole grampa whiskers,
Pull 'em hard; ye-es, make ole grampa howl
See here, baby, see um pretty picture,
See nice little girlie, all clean-clean,
Got nice little doggy bow-wow in um lap.
Pretty li'l' bow-wow, nice bow-wow!
Baby like bow-wow? Baby like li'l' girlie!
Baby will when he get older—yes, um will;
Baby like all um pretty girlies then.
Come up here in your papa's lap once.
Don't you look over that way now.
Don't you go yellin' for your mamma.
You don't want old mamma—no,
Baby rather have he old dad. Ye-es.
Say, boy, but you're heavy;
You weigh about four hundred

"HELLO THERE, STUBBY!"

If folks don't step around and wait on you,
You just speak out in meetin'.
You keep that up for threescore years and ten
And you'll come out on top of the heap.
Ye-es, well, I guess, ye-es.
Um baby had to have some eatin's, ye-es,
Course, how baby goin' to grow, I dunno?
Guess we show old mmama how to starve
A baby, don't it? Well, I guess yes.
Mamma think a baby like to live on faith?
Not this baby; course um goin' to yell
When he got a hollow in he li'l' tummick,
An' he jess goin' keep on yellin'
Till he ole mamma feed him.
Then he all right, ain't he?
Course. Got to have um din-din, though.
Yes, he is; then he good baby.
Ye-es, well, um could smile li'l' now
At he ole pop. Li'l' tummick full now.
Jess way wiv he ole pop, yes;
Tell ole pop what you thinkin' 'bout.
When your pop's hungry.
Quit kickin' my stomach, will you?
Kick your own stomach,
If you got to kick something.
That's right, now; howl.
Feel better when you howl, I s'pose.
Why don't you have some sense?
Sh-h-h-h-h! There, now; there, now!
Hear um kitty outdoors!
See little kitty, pretty kitty!
Kitty come see baby. Kitty say "Meow!"
Kitty want um breakfast, too; yes,
Kitty has a great head.
Goin' to yell again now?
Say, you make your pop tired.
HEY!!!
Caesar's ghost, woman, say,
When will that breakfast be ready?
Five minutes? Oh, make it an hour!
What's the difference?
Well, yell; I've done the best I can.
You're too much for me.

WHEN BABY GETS OLDER

You ain't worryin', not a little bit,
'Bout no Filipino annexation,
Nor no stock markets nor baseball,
Nor one o' them great questions.
You ain't troublin' your little brain
With any higher-criticism dogmas
Or relation of capital and labor.
You ain't conjurin' up some funny crack
To spring on the public in a speech.
You don't care nothin' 'bout sixteen to one
Or benevolent assimilation
Or golf championships.
I tell you, son, there's a lot of things
You ought to be thankful for.
Now you lie still there and look
Straight into your old pop's eye
And I'll tell you a few of them.
First, you've got a lot better mother
Than any other kid ever had
In all the whole wide world,
And there you've got a cinch
On a hundred million other fellows
Right on the kick-off, see?
What are you smiling at, you little tike?
Did some baby joke come into your mind?
I wonder if you've got any mind, anyway?
How do babies think when they don't know words?
Look out there, now! don't you pucker up
Those lips. That won't do at all.
Look out, now! Look out, now! Take care!
What's struck you all at once?
There's nothin' the matter with you;
You're full, and there's no pins stickin' in you,
'Cause there's no pins in your nightie—
Your mamma said there wasn't.
There, smile again, stubby—that's the stuff!
Now you look more respectable.
Lie down there, now, and whoop 'er up;
That's right—you whoop
While I read the paper.

Halibut in Alaskan Waters.

One of the most remarkable things on the North Pacific coast is the large number of halibut in Alaskan waters. Small steamers catch cargoes in a few hours' time, and it is no strange thing to see 100,000 caught in from two to three days.

Tillie—Yes. Somebody very foolishly told her that she was most charming when she laughed.—Catholic Standard and Times.

The Lazy Mexican Bee.

The bee of Mexico does not "improve each shining hour." As there is very little cold weather there no necessity exists for laying in winter stores of honey, and the bee is therefore as lazy as a pig.

SAID SHE HAD HYSTERIA.

An Injury Which the Mystified Doctor Did Not Thoroughly Understand.

It was really quite fortunate that a medical man chanced along. There had been an accident on a suburban road. A horse had run away, the rig had been smashed to smithereens and two women had been injured to an unknown extent and had been carried into the dining-room of the roadhouse near by. The doctor had come that way just in time to be of assistance.

Of the two women, whom he found under the care of the landlord's wife and the waitresses, the elder seemed to be more pressingly in need of his services, while the younger struck him as being more hysterical than anything else. In the grave case he saw that there was work to be done, at least two ribs to be set and a collar bone, and the likelihood of internal injuries. While the doctor was at work on these fractures the other woman was making quite a fuss. She was able to sit up in a chair, and showed no signs of injury beyond superficial scratches and deranged apparel.

While the doctor was working out the splints for the fractured bones he could not help overhearing the moaning of the other patient and the soothing "There, there, you poor dear!" of her attendants. The girl kept repeating: "I've lost my leg; bring me my leg!" It was an absurd thing to say, and the doctor attributed it to the hysteria of fright and the shock. And all through the operation on the other patient he could hear the hysterical girl moaning: "I've lost my leg! I tell you, bring me my leg!"

When the more important work had been done and the last of the bandages put in place the doctor was ready to look after the simpler case, for which he had already made out the diagnosis of plain hysterics.

"Come, now," he said, in somewhat sharp tones, "don't be a baby. You're all right if you'll only think so."

"I want my leg," the girl replied. "It's come off."

"Nonsense!" the doctor answered. "I'll give you a little something to settle your nerves, and you will be all right, for you will have to look after your friend going home."

"But, doctor, my leg's come off; I want my leg."

"Nonsense! Stand up, now, and you will see what a silly delusion it is."

How much longer the dialogue might have continued it would be hard to say. But one of the witnesses seemed to have an idea, and rushed out to the scene of the break-down. In gathering up the fragments of the broken carriage the men had picked up a piece of artificial anatomy clad in a black stocking and a laced shoe, but exhibiting at the upper end more or less complicated and deranged machinery. On the group of men the waitress descended with the velocity of a tornado, expressing herself as any woman would be expected to under such circumstances. She seized the leg and ran back to the dining-room before the doctor and the patient had finished their colloquy. From that on all was clear.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

MAIDEN OF THE POMPADOUR.

The whirling of time has brought the feminine coiffure back to the days of the latter end of the eighteenth century and meglmania is the affliction of well dressed women at present. This abnormal development of head is brought about by a system of blowing and puffing and stuffing and pompadouring, the like of which has not been seen since the days of George III.

Unfortunately the prevailing coiffure is very difficult to build gracefully and stately without the aid of a skillful maid or a hairdresser's art, and too sadly often is the hat of the times popped upon an elaboration of silky locks that more nearly resemble a last year's crow's nest than a sweet woman's head. The end and aim of all efforts in hair dressing is to have the hugest frowning frontlet of a pompadour possible, and a deliberate balloon-like effect behind. A series of combs and a system of rats are the necessary apparatus for the erection of such studied artificiality, and few women bother any longer to wave and curl. The pompadour is best when it rolls back quite smoothly, but the back hair is occasionally crimped and then what is left of hair ends for coiling is drawn up into a small roll or close Psyche knot on the crown.

Untidy, as 99 out of 100 of these puffy heads are, the effect of loose billowing hair about the face is almost sure to be becoming. Then both blowse and pompadour rolls are used as pincushions in a small way for more or less ornamental hair brooches.

During the day when shopping and calling a little wreath of gold set with colored stones, the whole affair no bigger than 25-cent piece, is considered sufficient, but at night really splendid ornaments glitter and gleam in the fluffy globe of back hair.—Chicago Chronicle.

Orange Cream.

Cover half a box of gelatin with cold water, and let soak for half an hour. Whip a pint of cream and set in a cool place. Put a pint of milk on to boil, add the gelatin to it, and take from the fire. Beat the yolks of three eggs and a cup of sugar together until light, and strain the boiled milk over them, stir well and set on ice. When cold, add the juice of five oranges. Set the pan on cracked ice, and stir until the mixture begins to thicken; add the whipped cream and mix very carefully. Wet a mold with cold water, pour the cream in it and set to harden. When firm turn out on a flat glass dish and serve with whipped cream. Lemon juice may be used in place of the orange if preferred.—Housewife.

Green Gooseberries.

Cook the berries in water until white, but not enough to break them; put into cans with as little water as possible; fill up the can with boiling water, and seal; when opened pour off water and cook like fresh berries.—Boston Globe.

Reform Press Bureau.
ST. PAUL, Aug. 21, 1899.

Never in the annals of political abuse of capable and honest public officials, was there a more humiliating outcome for the villifiers, than in the case of the defunct Savings Bank of St. Paul and the vindication of Governor Lind and Examiner Pope for their course in that case. The particulars have now been so widely published by the daily press that a mere summary will suffice. From the moment that the officials acted, they were beset and followed with the vilest abuse by the Twin City Republican press. They united in declaring that the governor and examiner had acted for mere political purposes and wrecked a solvent bank, that they might make a "record." Some of the so-called "independent" press joined the partisan cabal, as usual, with insinuation and inuendo to its heart's content. All of these villifiers have been as silent as the grave as to correcting the false impressions. But that matters little, for the real character of all the press thus grouped, is very well understood by the people.

The fall, a dull, sickening thud, came in the Ramsey county court, in public hearing of reports of the committees appointed by the court. These found, in substance, that General Pope's original schedule of the condition of the bank was more favorable to the officials of the bank, in every solitary instance, than the committee itself found. Here are the figures:

Assets.
As claimed by the bank	$1,164,450 38
As found by Examiner Pope	875,640 14
As reported by committee	853,985 68
Take the real estate:
As valued by the bank	$ 393,438 90
As valued by Examiner Pope	275,074 47
As valued by the committee,	274,090 00
Take the mortgages:
As valued by the bank	$ 314,450 87
As valued by Examiner Pope	282,733 40
As valued by committee	267,671 32
Take the other assets:
As valued by the bank	$ 456,661 61
As valued by Examiner Pope	317,812 27
As valued by committee	312,224 36

The total liabilities being $1,179,710.46, it will be seen that while, as Examiner Pope reported the assets, the bank was "in the hole" $304,070.23, by the depositors' own committee the impairment was $325,734.78. In other words that the committee found the bank $21,654.46 worse off than the examiner had found it.

General Pope, in the opportunity given him to come before the depositors' meet ing, showed that while the bank was hopelessly insolvent its stockholders had paid in but $39,780 of its supposed $100,000 of capital stock, but the bank had paid out to stockholders as dividends, $95,000. Also that while the present board of trustees were not legally qualified trustees, yet the supposed "trustees" had loaned over $40,000 of the bank's money to trustees, officers and employes, the security for which was so poor that the $40,000 had to be scaled down to $25,000.

The committee itself reported a large list of loans, in which the security is but a part value of the amount of the mortgage. In fact, the whole is as bad a mess as can be imagined, and from 50 to 75 per cent is the most that the poor depositors can expect to receive from this "sound" institution, ruthlessly "wrecked" by Governor Lind and Examiner Pope.

Such is the result of another fearless discharge of duty to the people—a result confidently predicted weeks ago. What a contrast between the Republican administration, which permitted the bank to go on absorbing the money of depositors, and this which has said "No" with fearless disregard of abuse and calumnies. What a contrast between the act of Examiner Pope, now more than sustained by results, and that of Examiner Kenyon, who, himself a borrower of the bank's money, officially found that the bank was $200,000 short, yet the administration took no action, and how dispicable the Republican press appears, that, for partisan purposes, condemned the Lind administration's action, and how carefully now is suppressed its complete vindication! To most minds the bank plunderers themselves are more to be respected than this self-condemed and self-satisfied and venal press.

A round dozen broken banks in the Twin Cities, with millions on millions of the people's money testify to the criminal administration of the public examiner's department under Republican rule. Had Lind and Pope been at the helm a large portion of the losses would have been saved to the people. Is not this the naked truth?

This is the slogan for the state boards and departments: Republican nepotism, favoritism, incompetency and generally lax management have got to go. Where such exist it is safe to believe that there is plenty of something worse. The people want to see the books.

And here is another: None but safe, staunch, true and honest men on guard. Get such on guard as soon as possible. "Out with the gang!" The gang must go!

Governor Lind, in an outing, has been making a personal inspection of Itaska state park, with the result that something will be done to improve it at once. Properly attended to—and there is a considerable sum available for extensions and improvements—this will, in the near future, be one of the attractive objects Minnesota possesses, both for her own people and for the country at large.

And Governor Lind also finds in his observations confirmation of the utter folly of the proposition of non-resident builders of air castles on somebody else's domain, to carve a national park out of Northern Minnesota. The Chicago gentlemen will please take notice that they can look somewhere else for "preserves." Minnesota will be able to care for her own, without any of their interference.

Hon. William Banquet Baldwin of Minneapolis is already engaged on plans for the great banquet he proposes for Mr. Bryan in January next. Mr. Bryan has accepted the tender in advance and Mr. Baldwin has plegded our great leader that the event will be the greatest ever given in the Northwest and probably in the entire country. The aim will be to have the entire Northwest represented at the banquet table which is expected to seat at least 2,000. Mr. Baldwin desires to correspond with prominent Democrats throughout Minnesota and the Dakotas as to their views and will be glad to receive any suggestions. Address him 87 Eighth street S, Minneapolis.

It is a question which the people despise most, the miserable record of McKinley's secretary of war or the sneaking, cowardly means by which he retired Alger.

How well Bryan states the responsible duty of the administration: "The Philippines came into our hands by the accident of war and, coming into our hands, they must be dealt with according to American principles, and not according to European principles."

Minnesota and the Dakotas will harvest 200,000,000 bushels of wheat, and receive for it a net $100,000,000. Kansas and Nebraska and Iowa may reach 600,000,000 bushels of corn, and receive for it as great a sum of money. The net result on both products, will be less than for a number of years, owing to the raise that has been made on all that the farmer must buy. The wheat raisers and the corn raisers will not perish, for the one has made both ends meet before, and can do it again, while the latter can feed on part of his product, and keep warm by burning the remainder! Free coinage, which would remove the competition which keeps prices down, would give our wheat and corn producers at least double the returns which they are doomed ever to receive under the gold standard. Instead of $200,000,000. in the Northwest, we would have $400,000,000 annually, for wheat and corn alone.

Here's to the Iowa allied forces! You are moving on the enemy as Minnesota moved. May you win as great a victory.

The oppressions of the trust concerns, in the discharge of commercial salesmen, have resulted in the organization of that fraternity of the Twin Cities, into the Commercial Salesmens' Anti-Trust league. The secretary, H. L. Chaffee, states that they expect to have 500 members within 30 days. The constitution provides for both active and honorary members, the latter comprising all who desire to assist the objects of the organization, by payment of the small fee of $1. The league may keep "open house" on the fair grounds, during fair week, and will also be represented at the coming anti-trust convention at Chicago. The league is strictly non-partisan. Secretary Chaffee's address is Room 409, Northwestern Building, Minneapolis.

The savage but just arraignment of McKinley by Republican ex-Congressman Henry U. Johnson of Indiana, now visiting in Minneapolis, is a sign of the times. Just, honest, liberty loving and patriotic Republicans like Mr. Johnson, will leave that party by thousands on the question of imperialism, and no results of the Philippine war will change them. We may go on and crush the Filipino republic, as we can, or the administration withdraw from its dilemma, by the arts and wiles that Hannaism can invent, but the principles involved will remain, in either case, and the party in power must answer for all blunders committed.

The gold standard press is appealing to the administration to force the circulation of gold so that it may be found actually in the pockets of the people. What nonsense. The money that jingles in the pockets of the people is not gold, never was and never will be. Gold is the money of the banks, silver of the people. But the money preferred to either is a paper money based on both gold and silver, or on the faith of the government.

Surprising that the Philippine uprising in Negros should escape Otis' censorship. If this thing goes on we shall soon need a draft.

SUNKHAZER FLIES OF MAINE.

Worse Than Jersey Mosquitoes and Missing Bugs Have No Chance with Them.

Since reading in the newspapers of the kissing bug and his doings all the people in rural Maine have taken to capturing bugs and insects of all sorts and bringing the specimens to town for examination by newspaper men and naturalists. Countless are the kinds of bugs that have been taken to Bangor in bottles, boxes and preserve jars, and the captors all seem to be sorely disappointed when told that instead of the genuine kisser they have a moth killer, a lace-winged fly, or something quite common and harmless.

A man came from Veazie to Bangor the other day with a ferocious-looking bug corked up in a preserve jar and claimed the credit of having captured the first kissing bug in that part of the country. It was not the famous kissing bug that he had, but a native bug somewhat resembling a small lobster with wings.

"I don't care a hang," declared the Veazie man, when told that he must try again. "These fellers kin lick the stuffin' out of Sunkhazers, and that's what none of your common bugs kin do."

Not many people living far away from Bangor know what a "Sunkhazer" is like. It is a ferocious big fly that infests the flats and meadows about Sunkhaze deadwater, a place in the Penobscot river where the water is slack and where millions of logs are rafted. The Sunkhazers are the pest of the loggers, upon whom they feast to their heart's content, and nothing can drive them away. They are four times the size of the famed mosquitoes of Jersey, and any Maine man will back one of them against a dozen kissing bugs in a fair stand-up fight. Maine folks have, probably, no kissing bugs, but so long as the Sunkhazers survive they will not feel lonesome.—N. Y. Sun.

CHRONIC WEATHER KICKERS.

The Lunchroom Philosopher Gives His Views on Mankind in General.

"D'je ever notice," said the lunchroom philosopher, "what a never-contented lot o' pinheads we are? Now, it seems no time at all since I was a-rarin' around and kickin' like blazes because the leaves and crocuses didn't appear on schedule time. I believe I blamed my wife for it. I was so dead sick and tired of chilly blasts and my olive green top-coat that I sort o' held her personally responsible for the backwardness of the lilacs and daisies and pansies. I told her that I wanted red-hot, sizzling weather, and cts of it—that for all I cared a ding the sun could go on sizzling forever. Now I find that I'm sick of the summer. I find myself longing to hear the leaves swirling in the ditches and to have the fire lighted in the latrobe. I find that I want to take brisk walks in the sharp, chilly air. I find that I'm hungry for buckwheat cakes and sausage. I'm tired o' beer. I'm weary of carriding out in the country. Durn it all—I want snow three feet high, blizzards of it, and I want the theaters and the hot Scotches! And along toward the end of next February I'll be chewing the rag, in the same old way, about moving to some tropical country, where I can get warmed up and be fanned by balmy zephyrs, and all that kind o' bleat. We don't know what we want. We even get sick of seasons that we long for, much as kids get sick of their painted Noah's arks or tin soldiers."—Washington Post.

Cody Called for a Cut.

Col. Cody, the eminent scout, helped to build a church at North Platte, and was persuaded by his wife and daughter to accompany them to the opening. The minister gave out the hymn, which commenced with the words: "Oh, for ten thousand tongues to sing," etc. The organist, who played by ear, started the tune in too high a key and had to try again. A second attempt ended like the first in failure. "Oh, for ten thousand tongues to sing my great—" came the opening words for the third time, followed by a squeak from the organ and a relapse into painful silence. Cody could contain himself no longer, and blurted out: "Start it at five thousand, and mebbe some of the rest of us can get in." — San Francisco Wave.

Fooling the Public.

"I'm about bushed in the matter of curiosities," mused the owner of a small store. "It's a bad habit—this idea of drawing trade by making a museum of the window, but I can't stop now—business won't allow it."

A few hours later the soda water trade was rushing. The crowd outside the window gazed until it was thirsty at the remarkable bird that hung in a big cage. The card attached bore a handful of the alphabet hysterically put together and designed for a scientific name. After it were the words: "From Samoa."

A few days later the "curiosity" was feeding in the back yard with the rest of the bantam hens.—Detroit Free Press.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Read the Delano Flour Mill's add in another column.

—For Tailor made Suits call on John Brandser, opposite City Hall.

—Frank A. Barth, of Watertown, lost his barn, horses,cow and other things by fire, on Monday night.

—Some of the travelers over Bock's hill, on the west side, say that the road needs fixing since the last heavy rains.

—Sunday and Monday night the electric lights were out of kilter and people had to light up their old kerosene lamps.

—Late rains have helped out fall pastures and put ground into fine condition for plowing, much to the joy of the husbandman.

—A. C. church was held last Sunday evening at the I. O. O. F. hall. Two weeks later they are to occupy the Swedeback hall.

—Dr. Halgren, of Watertown, is giving especial attention to electricity and surgery. See his card in the first column of the paper.

—A few of the "I Have, Have You?" badges have found their way to Delano. John Steffes, we are informed, had a dozen for sale.

—George P. Shaffer received a telegram last evening announcing the death of his brother J. A. an accout of which appears in another column.

—Photographer Carver has, at last, departed for Hanover, where he expects to do business for awhile. Carl Nelson, a Dane, is doing business at Carver's old stand.

—The report of the State High School Inspectors shows Delano to have no graduate for the last school year. That's wrong, and should be amended by adding the name of Eddie Brown.

—Thursday night was a pretty dark night to have no street lamps lighted. It would be an accommodation to most of our citizens who are out at night to have street lights lit, when it is dark.

—Our neighboring villages to the West, Litchfield and Willmar are going a good deal to base ball this summer. Thousands of dollars are being invested in grounds and other things necessary to first class clubs.

—Waterworks for South Delano seem to be a long time coming. There are some good buildings on that side of the track and the people are as much entilled to fire protection and water for lawn purposes as are those North of the track.

—At a speceal meeting of the Board of Education held Monday evening Aug 21. it was resolved to abondan the free text book system in the Delano High School. And the Board will sell books now on hand to pupils at actual presint value, and new books at cost.

—The work being done at the school house will add much to the beauty of the rooms and comfort of those occupying them. The walls have been tinted light green, and it is expected that there will be less complaint about trouble with the eyes among pupils, and teachers.

—Minneapolis and St. Paul appear to be having considerable rivalry in selling badges to raise money to bring the 13th home to those cities. Wonder how much either city would contribute towards taking the boys from there to their homes in the country villages on the day of their arrival?

—We are in receipt of a communication from the St. Paul Commercial Club and Mayor Kiefer, stating that they are engaged in raising money to help bring the 13th Reg. home, and saying that "any funds received from your community will be publicly acknowledged.

—Prof. Bohn has undertaken to enlighten the refractory gold bugs in town. He lectures every evening on the street near his shop giving an opportunity for questions to be asked. He says he will entertain those who will listen every night until the next election occurs.

—The Board of Education has received the resignation of Mrs. Tupper as teacher of tho Grammar Department. This leaves a vacancy in the corps of teachers rather late in the season. It is hoped that a good teacher will be found to fill the place. Mrs. Tupper has secured a position in the St. Paul Post office.

—A catalogue for a St Paul wholesale house is being printed at the Eagle office. Any manufacturing concern in the country properly equipped, properly managed and with the requisite amount of push can find a market for its goods and keep busy: Eagle.

The Eagle wholesale paper House, for instance. By the way is the wholesale catalogue being printed at the Eagle office to supersede some traveling salesmen?

—Rev. J. W. Valentyne informs us that the M. E. church at North Rockford will hold their Harvest Festival next Sunday and Monday. On Sunday Rev. J. L. Parmeter will preach in the afternoon and evening. On Monday afternoon the children will give a programme. The ladies will serve supper from five to seven. In the evening at eight J. Adam Bede will deliver a patriotic lecture. Everyone should go.

—The village council met Wednesday evening. On account of the electric lights not being in running order the meeting had been postponed till then. The full board was present.

The receipts from the Dayton show, $7.80 which was advertised to go to the New Richmond sufferers did not amount to quite enough to pay hall rent, so the amount was turned into the village treasury.

A tax for village revenue of $500 and for poor fund, $200 was voted.

The committee on hall was instructed to examine the City Hall roof and ascertain cost of a new roof.

The usual bills were allowed.

—The Board of Education met Saturday evening and talked over matters appertaining to the coming term of school. President Burnes appointed the following:

SCHOOL COMMTTEES.

On Buildings and Grounds, Shrader and Borsch.

On Finance, Shrader and Gutzwiller.

On Teachers and Instruction Burns and Johnson.

On Supplies and Janitor, Johnson and Gutzwiller.

On Text Books and Printing, Burns and O'Hair.

Visiting Committee, Borsch and O'Hair

—Health Officer Catlin received Wednesday this week, a notice from the State Board of Health, which explains itself:

"The Minnesota State Board of Health at its regular meeting, July 11, 1899, took action as follows regarding vaccination:

'In view of the fact that smallpox is prevailing to so great an extent throughout the entire country, and that the danger from infection will be increased as cold weather comes on, all schools throughout the state, at the fall opening, must require a certificate of vaccination before admitting a pupil."

"It is important that all health officers, school officials and teachers see that this rule is enforced this coming fall."

Our local authorities and patrons of the Delano school will please take notice, and conduct themselves accordingly.

I'M A BRINCIN' Y' "CIVILIZATION,"

BY HENRY SLADE GOFF.

Here, y' tike you. Zounds en zitherins:
Let up, will y'? while I pound.
I'm a bringin' y' "civilization"—
Goin' t' trade it fer your ground.
Gospel pure ez Jersey m'nopolies,
Ministers yellin' "Shoot t' kill!"
Goin' t' fire this teachin' at y',
Ef y' won't er ef y' will.

Here, y' sun parched Tagerialo,
Here's th' "civilized" way t' pray,
En I only wants possession
Uv yer islands fer my pay.
Guns en harrycanes! but I'm gittin' it—
Never thought thet you could live,
After beatin' them ponderous phrases
Thet them peace commissioners give.

Bothet nation! but you'r wigglin',
All I asks uv you 'z yer farm,
While i'm poundin' en a promisin'—
Gee! your bitin' off my arm.
What'd you say, you? "Let you alone, then,"
P'raps I would ef you wuz bigger,
But I'm one uv th' "powers uv airth" en
You'r a wriggilin', ignorant "nigger".

What'd you say, you? "Kind uv fightin'
Same ez mine when I wuz young."
Thet don't go in any Zulu
Philippino heathing tongue.
Ef you spoke pure Angle Jackson—
Jiminy whiz! Leggo my nose!
I'm a bringin' y' trusts en th' Gospel,
En th' calm uv deaths' repose.

Can't y' hear me yell BE-NEV-O-LENCE!
RIGHTS-U-V-MAN! en CHRIST-IAN-RULES-!
While I'm batterin' down yer churches,
En demolishin' yer schools?
Snakes en whirligigs! but you'r bothersome.
Let up, will y', on my ear!
These here guns iz Gospel monitors,
Don't y' hear old England cheer?

You'r a low down "nig" Tagialer,
Standin' only two foot seven,
N I'm a Angierized "civilized" Saxon,
Standin' seven foot an eleven.
En I'm bringin' y' "civilization,"
En kin whip y' in an hour,
En I'm goin' t' show th' world thet
I'm a "Christianized" "leadin' power."

THE cartoon in Wednesday morning's Minneapolis Tribune expresses the situation in the Philippine matter to perfection. Master McKinley has the urchin across his knees and is administering a paddling with a board containing several long, sharp nails, a most cruel instrument. So wicked a chastisement would hardly be approved of by any people, to say nothing of Christian people.

THIS morning's papers report that editor Murat Halsted lectured in Cincinnati yesterday evening and that a row was precipitated by one of the audience remarking: "I hope Otis will be kept in and will keep on blundering till he and the whole army are driven into the sea or are captured" Mr. Halsted said: "A man with those sentiments is a traitor to his country." A row ensued but no one was hurt. True American sentiment don't wish our soldiers harm.

THE Willmar Argus publishes a letter from James Fadden in the Philippines to his father at Zumbrota, in which the soldier is made to say that "A few days ago three of our men were found cut up in pices, quartered, eyes out, ears and other members cut off and their mouths and noses stuffed with tobacco. These are the kind of men the traitors at home are aiding. May they share the fate of these three men is all I wish them." We don't approve of such barbarities in this enlightened age. The civilized world don't approve of sending our young men over to the Philippines to be served in that way. Neither do we approve of the wishes of the young man in Uncle Sam's army when he wishes that Edward Atkinson, whom he mentions as one of the traitors, and Reed, Hoar, Bryan and others opposed to benevolent assimilation as it has been carried on for six months past.

G. O. P. Idea.

There is no reason why John R. McLean should not have the Democratic nomination. He is willing to pay for it.—Duluth News Tribune.

Give Us a Rest.

If Aguinaldo's friends in Minneapolis will bring forward some new argument or fact in his behalf, The Times will gladly print their communications, provided they are within 300 word limit. The threshing over of old straw must be discouraged because it is a strain on the patience of all readers except those who do the threshing. Contributors who follow the beaten path and repeat threadbare assertions in Aguinaldo's behalf must not be surprised if their communications are not printed.—Minneapolis Times.

How about the communications: "Take them in reverse." "The situation is well in hand". "The war will close soon" and "Benevolent Assimilation". Arn't the readers of the Times about as tired reading of how Otis is licking Aguinaldo about every other day?

The Sulus are a part of the territory for the sovereignty of which we paid Spain $20,000,000.

But the sovereign Sultan of the Sulus insisted upon being "seen," and so, instead of sending Otis after him, the Administration sent Gen. Bates to "see" him.

Gen. Bates has been very successful. He has negotiated a "treaty" with this sovereign subject of the United States. By its terms the Sultan is to remain "boss" of his district, graciously recognizing our sovereign right to garrison certain sea port towns of no consequence to him, on our promise not to interfere with his sovereignty or with slavery or polygamy, and on condition that we shall pay him a subsidy agreed upon by Spain before she sold him out to us.

This is expansion "with a string." History relates that the United States once paid tribute to the Moorish states of North Africa to secure the exemption of our commerce from spoliation and our citizens from slavery. But there arose a ruler in this land who thought that we should demand and compel such exemptions without paying any tribute at all. And the United States Navy did the rest.

Are we now going to pay tribute as the purchase price of a nominal sovereignty? Are we as a nation to sanction slavery and polygamy? Are these the conditions on which we are to become a "world power?"

And what about Aguinaldo? If we are to buy the allegiance of slave driving, harem keeping Sultans, why didn't we buy his allegiance also, and save the expense of sending 60,000 or 70,000 soldiers to the Philippines to enable an incapable General to prosecute a wholly unnecessary war?

Tariff Tinkerings.

Raw material should be duty free and the tax on industrials should be reduced 50 per cent special for such countries as admit farm produce duty free and without vexation. You think 50 percent is an exorbitant reduction? Well, common wool flannel is taxed 14 cents and better dress flannel 23 cents per yard. Cotton stockings are taxed from 50 cts to $2 00 per dozen. On China the duty is 60 per cent of value; on balnkets 22 to 33 cents per $ and 30 to 35 cents value extra. That way it goes through the whole tariff. Our industry has outgrown its childhood long ago. It acts like a cuddled ruffian. These rates prohibit foreign competition; home competition is abolished by their industrial combines and they want now to march for industrial conquest over the earth, for which we have to pay higher prices as they can and will charge foreigners. It is not childs play to fight successfully imperialism and the giant industrial combines. It needs the whole united force of all who are in opposition, irrespective of their differing opinions about silver or gold, to succeed. Therefore I advised to turn the financial questions for decision into the Congressional districts where it actually belongs. The financial chronicle rates the money invested in trusts at six thousand million dollars, which is more than double the amount of all farm mortgages in the United States. I am not what our editor styles a gold bug, but I cannot see why imperialism and industrial trusts can not flourish under any monetary system.

The mentioned vast sum is, as a rule, divided into shares of $100, and a very large amount of these shares are sold to the people in the open market at par and over, and here is the power of these trusts. Where we fought before the influence of one factory owner we have now to fight his influence and that of probably 100 share holders. Of course these shares are not worth $100 each, because no man will sell a paying business without a large profit and the managers of the deal want their profit too; but that does not count anything with these trusting share holders that they were humbugged. They will fight as hard as they can to secure full interest for their foolish investment. The shares of 20 industrial trusts amounting to over 1,000 million dollars were sold in the public market. These shares dropped in the last six months 100 million dollars. That is the first profit the money power gained. But it was ten million shares at $100 each that the people bought. The holders of these ten million shares we will have against us in addition to the former owners of industrial establishments, who, of course are share holders too.

ADVERTISE

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 18, 1899.

Indications point to a new and daring act of imperialism on the part of the administration in the near future. The army of sixty odd thousand men, which is being so hurriedly prepared for the Philippines may be intended for use elsewhere. There is talk only whispers as yet in inside administration circles about arrangements to buy off Aguinaldo and his principal officers, and thus bring about an easy peace in the Philippines; and members of the diplomatic corps have received from more than one foreign government hints of an understanding between Great Britain and the U. S., by which the American army in the Philippines and the strong British naval force in Asiatic waters may be used to back up a joint demand made by the U. S. and Great Britain concerning the future government of China. This matter has not gone far enough to be publicly discussed, and it may not do so at all, but there are numerous indications, not the least of which is the sudden confidence in administration circles that the Philippine war is almost over, pointing to its probable correctness. Such a move would be imperialism, indeed.

The republicans are evidently weakening on their attempt to make it appear that Col. Bryan is losing strength and prestige in the West. The evidence the other way is to overwhelming for them. Hon. Marcus A. Smith, long a delegate in Congress from Arizona, and who may return to public life as a Senator, after Arizona becomes a state, says of the political outlook: "Col. Bryan's name will be the only one before the National Convention. He is even stronger in the West than he was in '96. The Chicago platform will be reaffirmed with additional planks dealing with present issues. There has been a revival of faith in the ability of the democrats to win in 1900, and men who thought two months ago that the party had no chance are now declaring that Bryan can carry the country next year. My own opinion is that he will be our next President."

The whole power of the Post Office Department and of the entire administration will be used to prevent the fourth class postmasters securing any legislation from Congress that will result in increasing their pay. At the last session of Congress one post master-Mr. William H. Thomas, of La Grange, Mo.,-was discharged for appearing in Washington in the interest of the fourth-class postmasters and for sending out circulars urging them to organize for the purpose of securing an increase of pay; and others are being notified of the existence of a rule prohibiting any postal employe, under penalty of dismissal, appearing in Washington to advocate Congressional legislation of any sort. The report that the 70,000 fourth class postmasters in the country are chipping in to employ lobyists to work for them before Congress is worying Postmaster General Smith, because he cannot prevent their doing so. He says, however, that he can block any legislation by showing Congress what a large sum of money it would cost to even slightly raise the pay of fourth-class postmasters, but he admits that if this class of Federal employes act together and bring all their friends influence to bear upon Senators and Representatives it will be hard to beat them. He really relies more upon bluffing many of them out of joining the National League of Fourth-Class Postmasters than upon any other method of defeating them.

Although there has been no doubt on the subject for sometime, members of the administration felt greatly relieved when they knew that Ex-Czar Reed's resignation as a member of the House had been received and accepted by the Governor of Maine. The administration is expecting some hard sledding in Congress this winter, and upon several important matters Mr. Reed is known to oppose Mr. McKinley's policy; hence the relief to know that it is beyond Mr. Reed's power to head a republican revolt in the House. His retirement makes it certain that the House will do whatever Mr. McKinley wishes it to do, but there will be trouble and a heap of it in the Senate, notwithstanding the efforts which have been made to placate certain republican Senators with commissions in the volunteer service and other patronage.

Secretary Wilson, of the Department of Agriculture, must be credited with having the courage of his convictions, since he says in a typewritten interview prepared in his own office: "I believe that the legal enactment of the single gold standard will be of practical and permanent advantage to the agricultural interests of the U. S." Later in the same interview he puts his foot into it by admitting that it is the creditor class which is most anxious for the legal enactment of the single gold standard. Wonder how many farmers Mr. Wilson knows who belong to the creditor class?

Secretary Root says, and he ought to know, that Gen. Otis will not be removed from command of the Philippine army.

GEN. GRANT'S ASTONISHING EXPERIENCE

By Langdon Laine.

IN THE spring of 1880 Gen. Grant, after his memorable tour of the world, visited the southern states and brought his triumphal journey to a close at New Orleans, where he remained a week or two. There I accompanied the general to what proved to be perhaps the most exciting demonstration of negroes of those times, a demonstration which Gen. Grant called his most astonishing experience.

A new generation was entering on the scene, and, although the men who had been conspicuous in the service of the confederate states had cordially welcomed Grant to the defeated section, there were people in the Crescent City who could not bring themselves to the point of taking part in the street demonstration in honor of the hero of the union army. Many of those who secluded themselves during the public ceremonies subsequently called on Grant at the residence of his cousin.

As the hour for the arrival of the Grant party approached the streets swarmed with black faces, shining with enthusiasm and hope. Somehow they conceived the idea that Grant had come, not as a private citizen, but as their Moses, to restore their political supremacy. They were more serious and less boisterous than on other public occasions, when their loud laugh distinguishes the southern from the quiet northern gathering. The escort of the Grant party was first a company of United States regulars, then a post of the Grand Army of the Republic, and a civic society or two. It was not impressive as a procession, but as it came the fervor of the inflammable negro nature reached almost the limit, and when it passed the black mass fell in behind, filling the street from curb to curb.

The general was disposed to be as quiet as possible without appearing discourteous. When first asked to receive a delegation of colored preachers of the Northern Methodist church he pleaded fatigue. After some persuasion he consented to meet them at Wesley chapel, with the stipulation that there should be no general negro demonstration. "I had enough of that at Jacksonville," the general explained.

I was asked to go with the general, and Rev. Dr. Hartzell, a northern preacher then in charge of the church affairs in the city. A northern newspaper man, and a veteran northern soldier, I had no local political ambition to be injured, and had a lively curiosity to see the negroes.

It was a long drive, and on the way Grant was more than ordinarily communicative, which is saying a good deal. It was and still is a popular fallacy that he was not in all situations a reticent man. However self-contained he may have been in an official capacity, socially he was genial, cheerful and chatty. As he lighted a cigar, the carriage being open, he said:

"I have the reputation of being a hard smoker. There are people who say my portraits are bad because there isn't a cigar in the mouth. That's a slander. I never in my life smoked to excess, and now I consume only three or four cigars a day. I am a slow smoker, and a cigar lasts me a good while."

When we were within about two blocks of the church we were shocked by the spectacle of a solid mass of black humanity. As they caught sight of the approaching carriage they made a furious rush, and with yells surrounded us. The two or three policemen in the neighborhood did all they could, but were powerless.

"Let us get out of this," exclaimed the general. "Driver, turn about and go back."

It was useless, however, to make the attempt. It was the determined purpose of every man, woman and child in the mass to shake Grant's hand or touch his person. The air was filled with cries. A tall old negro forced himself between the wheels, regardless of a busy club, and reached Grant's hand, crushing a new silk hat as he did it. Then, straightening himself to his full height, with hands above his bare head, he shouted: "Bress Gawd! I done shuck his han'!"

For nearly half an hour the scene was beyond graphic portrayal. These ignorant people, long deserted and neglected by their frightened leaders, sincerely believed Grant had come to New Orleans for the sole purpose of "leadin' us out ob de wilderness," as they shouted. Many of them did not know Grant's face, and so we three were almost equally the object of admiration.

A path was made at last from the carriage to the door, but at every step we were obstructed and crushed by the pressure of the crowd. Inside the chapel door we found matters hardly better. It took a long time to reach the altar. "Emperor William," an old negro, had charge of the reception. He stood on the platform, his face beaming with fervor and perspiration, obviously speaking at the top of his voice, but to us his words were inaudible. Then the choir of a hundred voices burst forth with "De Bridegroom's Come." The marshals, all old negro preachers, had little knots of their hair tied with narrow blue ribbon, and in their white cotton gloved hands they held red, white and blue batons, which they waved wildly. Every bit of space in the church was occupied exclusively by negroes. Not only that, but the crowd outside had climbed to the open windows, and, as they filled them entirely, not a breath of fresh air could enter. Only a great outburst of melody from the choir prevented a general hysteria, which was plainly imminent. To the singing the people kept time with their feet and their swaying bodies.

It was hardly conceivable that any negroes in the city who kept ignorant of the event, so thoroughly had the preachers betrayed the general. Scores of them must have worked all night to erect the platform and arrange the decorations. Over the pulpit was a huge portrait of Grant, draped and festooned with flowers, and opposite was a similarly decorated portrait of Lincoln. Grant had not spoken a word from the moment we were fairly surrounded by the multitude. Now he whispered, as he wiped his flushed face: "I've been in Africa, but I never had as hot a time as this."

When Grant arose to speak there was a renewal of the cries, but the little pastor and the marshals soon restored quiet enough for his words to be heard. He spoke briefly, saying in effect that the colored people had their future in their own hands. He urged them to stick to the Bible and the spelling book and they were bound to enjoy their full share of material prosperity. To some, who evidently expected him to announce that he had come to consecrate himself to the restoration of their political rights, the speech was apparently disappointing.

A young negro, a teacher in the university for colored people, made a brief, but really eloquent address.

"General Grant," he said, "you have been famous for epigrams that live in the hearts of the American people. You spoke the sentiment of a determined patriot people when you declared you would 'fight it out on this line if it takes all summer.' But there was one sentiment, nobler than all, one that had sunk deep into the hearts of millions. When the landlord at Jacksonville would have driven back the colored people as they escorted you to your hotel, you said: 'Let them come; for where I am, there the colored people may be also.'"

For a moment it seemed as though the crowd would rush on the raised platform to lay hands on the hero, but the preachers, seated in the nearer pews, quickly passed Scott Chin from his seat to the platform. He was a tall negro, a preacher for 60 years, born in slavery. He seemed taller because he was thin, and he wore an old blue army overcoat which spread at the bottom and gradually contracted toward his narrow shoulders. As his head also narrowed at the top, he was exactly pyramidal.

Then a woman with the "gift of prayer" gave an extraordinary exhibition of the power of an uneducated mind. Before she ceased Grant had shaken hands with the preacher, and we moved rapidly toward the door, a path having been cleared by the zealous marshals. We were not, however, to escape so easily. When we drew near to the door, the people in the windows began to drop inside and make for the same exit to head us off. The glory of glories was to have shaken Grant's hand. Soon we were in the midst of the same excited throng, and through the door we could see a solid mass filling the streets.

"Can't we get out through the back door?" asked the general, and finding there was such a door, we fought our way toward the pulpit again. After having our feet trodden and a hard struggle, we emerged. The driver had been shrewd enough to make a circuit and outwit the crowd, and as he drew up we threw ourselves into the carriage exhausted. The multitude from all sides made an impetuous rush after us.

"During the whole time until I had made my speech," Grant said, "I was wretched at having to speak. I never made a speech until I was forty years old, and I never enjoy any occasion where I have to do it." Then, taking off his hat, he turned and said: "Driver, take us to a good hat store; I've got to buy a hat."

At the most important hat store in the town there was not a hat of any fashion that was large enough for Grant's head. I have forgotten the size he wore, and only remember that something was said of its being as large as, or larger than, Webster's. Leaving an order for the hat, he had to be content with such brushing and smoothing of the old one as the hat man could do.

It was a pleasing evidence of Gen. Grant's power of endurance and quick recuperation, that after this exciting and somewhat distressing experience, he was still as spirited and vigorous as in the early morning. He visited several shops where he chatted with merchants, many of whom were old acquaintances, as though he had just risen after a night's rest. Although past the prime of life, and notably stout, his wonderful vitality promised many more years of active life.

Late that night I was aroused from sleep and handed cards of several reporters. They had heard the rumors of a wild time, almost a riot, at Wesley chapel, and appealed to me for particulars.—St. Louis Republic.

To Live with the Old Folks.

"And so you are about to lose a member of your family," said the old friend who had just heard of the approaching marriage of the daughter of the house.

"Well, I'm not quite certain about that," replied the old gentleman. "Just at present I can't figure out whether I'm to lose a daughter or merely acquire a son-in-law."—Chicago Post.

Preserving history is oftimes a very expensive thing. The coming census will attract a good deal of interest all over the world.

The guns of Manila and Santiago were heard round the world. Little Hayti, which has much to learn, has listened to some effect. A request for redress for wrongs to an American citizen met with a response which for promptness was unparalleled. Your uncle is just as good-natured as he ever was, but when he speaks he means business, and those in the habit of amusing themselves at his expense are realizing the fact.

The bureau of navigation in its forthcoming report will show that during the past fiscal year the growth of our merchant marine has been larger than during any previous year except 1891. Vessels to the number of 1,420, aggregating 220,870 tons gross, have been constructed, and in addition 22 foreign vessels have received an American registry. A report from Manila says that 141 Spanish, German and British vessels there have been given an American registry. The stars and stripes will undoubtedly be seen more frequently on the high seas hereafter.

NINE MEN KILLED.

Terrible Accident at the New Coliseum Building in Course of Erection in Chicago.

Chicago, Aug. 29—Twelve steel arches, each weighing 33 tons, to have supported the superstructure of the Coliseum building in course of erection on Wabash avenue, near Fifteenth street, fell late Monday afternoon and it is known that nine lives were lost, and the bodies of two men are supposed to be under the wreckage. The dead are:

Supposed to be under the ruins: Edward Swanson and Joseph King.

All 12 arches were standing, the twelfth and last having just been completed, and it was the intention of the steel contractors, the Pittsburgh (Pa.) Bridge company, to turn over the work to the general contractors. An immense traveler, or derrick, which had been used in erecting the arches had been removed, and the agents of the bridge company thought the work practically completed, when suddenly, without the slightest preliminary warning, the arch last put in place suddenly fell over against the one next to it, which gave way, crashed against the third, and soon all were down. Nearly all the killed were at work on top of the arches, 40 feet above the ground.

HISTORY RECALLED.

The Last Public Act of President Lincoln Revived by a Death in Missouri.

Maryville, Mo., Aug. 28.—George S. E. Vaughan, who was the subject of Abraham Lincoln's last official act as president of the United States, died here. At the outbreak of the war he followed the fortunes of Gen. Mark T. Green, who raised a confederate regiment. He was tried twice as a spy and each time sentenced to death. The president finally signed his pardon the evening of April 14, 1865, just before he left for the theater when he was assassinated. Mr. Vaughan had been a member of the masons for 54 years, the oldest in northwest Missouri.

AFTER CHINA TRADE.

National Manufacturers' Association Purchases a Building in Shanghai for an Exhibition.

Philadelphia, Aug. 29.—The National Manufacturers' association has purchased in Shanghai, China, a building containing 40,000 square feet of floor room, and as soon as practicable a permanent exhibition will be established there. One hundred firms have asked for space, and all but two have signed contracts. The Shanghai exhibition will be the beginning of a competition with England and Germany by this country for the China trade. It will be conducted on the plan of the commercial museums of this city.

Five Killed by Dynamite.

Joplin, Mo., Aug. 25.—Five miners were killed by an explosion of dynamite Thursday evening at the Margaret Mining company's mill near Carterville. The dead are: David J. Sinclair, Duluth, Minn.; R. J. Robbins, Sedalia, Mo.; Henry Gilbert, Joplin; Frank Huddleston, Joplin; Will Messmore, Carterville, Mo. While Gilbert was engaged in the preparation of a blast a stick of dynamite which he held in his hand exploded, and the concussion exploded a box of dynamite which stood near by. The big concentrating plant was demolished, and the five men at work were blown to bits.

Otis' Exclusion of Chinese.

Washington, Aug. 25.—The state department does not apprehend that any international complications will arise out of Gen. Otis' course in excluding Chinese from the Philippines, as this is said to be only a temporary military expedient, leaving the general question to be determined by congress. Moreover, it seems that the exclusion of Chinese comes about through the adoption of military regulations following the lines of United States laws and not by the detailed enforcement of the United States statutes relating to Chinese exclusion.

American Bar Association.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 29. — Judges, statesmen and lawyers of national prominence composing the American Bar association met in the aldermanic chamber of the common council, and were welcomed to the city by Sherman S. Rogers, of the local bar association, and Walter S. Logan, of the State Bar association. In the absence of President Joseph H. Choate, ambassador to the court of St. James, Senator Charles F. Manderson, of Nebraska, as acting president, delivered the annual address.

Death of Judge Hilton.

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 25.—Ex-Judge Henry Hilton, of New York, died at 5:35 o'clock Thursday afternoon at Woodlawn Park, his Saratoga country seat. He had been in an unconscious state several hours and his last moments were without pain. Although no definite arrangements have yet been made in regard to the funeral, it is understood that the principal services will be held in Saratoga. The judge's body will be buried in the family plot in Greenwood.

To Educate Cuban Girls.

Altoona, Pa., Aug. 28.—Fifty young Cuban girls have arrived at Mount Aloysius to begin an English education. They were chaperoned by Senora Sanetti and traveled under the auspices of the National Cuban Relief association.

Post Office Closed.

Washington, Aug. 28.—The postmaster general Saturday ordered the discontinuance of the post office at Peck, Fla., because of the assassination and white-capping of the postmaster there.

More General Officers.

Washington, Aug. 25.—It is believed that after the new regiments are on their way to the Philippines the subject of more general officers in the islands will be considered.

GREET THE HEROES.

Big Demonstration at Pittsburgh on Return of Volunteers—Reviewed by President McKinley.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 29.—With cannon booming, bells clanging, whistles shrieking, flags waving and mighty cheers from hundreds of thousands of throats, the brave Tenth Pennsylvania volunteers were welcomed home, after more than a year's gallant service in the Philippines. The reception tendered the returning soldiers will always be remembered in this city as one of the greatest demonstrations of patriotism that has ever taken place in this country.

After brief exercises and a hearty breakfast tendered by the citizens of New Brighton, the regiment was rushed into Allegheny. The train came in three sections and immediately the soldiers had disembarked, the line of march to Schenley park, where the exercises were to be held, was taken up.

Upon reaching Schenley park, the column was reviewed by President McKinley, after which he proceeded to the music pavilion, where the exercises were held. Seats had been provided for 25,000 friends and relatives of the members of the "Tenth" in front of the music pavilion, but these were filled long before the exercises began and thousands were unable to secure even standing room within hearing distance.

After music by the Economy band, Maj. Lee S. Smith called the meeting to order, and Rev. T. N. Boyle, D. D., delivered the invocation.

Gov. William A. Stone was then introduced as chairman of the meeting, and delivered an address of welcome in behalf of the state.

At the conclusion of Gov. Stone's address, President McKinley was introduced. He spoke in praise of the returning troops, and said they represented the courage and conscience, the purpose and patriotism of the country. Of the situation in the Philippines he said:

"Until the treaty was ratified we had no authority beyond Manila city, bay and harbor. We then had no other title to defend, no authority beyond that to maintain. Spain was still in possession of the remainder of the archipelago. Spain had sued for peace. The truce and treaty were not concluded. The first blow was struck by the insurgents. Our kindness was reciprocated with cruelty, our mercy with a Mauser. The flag of truce was invoked only to be dishonored. Our soldiers were shot down when ministering to the wounded Filipinos. Our humanity was interpreted as weakness, our forbearance as cowardice. They assailed our sovereignty, and there will be no useless parley—no pause until the insurrection is suppressed and American authority acknowledged and established.

"The misguided followers in rebellion have only our charity and pity. As to the cruel leaders who have needlessly sacrificed the lives of thousands of their people, at the cost of some of our best blood, for the gratification of their own ambitious designs, I will leave to others the ungracious task of justification and eulogy."

Congressman John Dalzell followed in an eloquent address, and on behalf of the citizens of western Pennsylvania, presented each of the commissioned officers a sword, the chaplain, a loving cup, every man in the regiment a beautiful medal. The presents were received by Col. Barnett on behalf of the officers and men. Gen. Wesley Merritt was then introduced and made an address on behalf of the army.

After benediction by Rev. Dr. A. H. Lucas, the regiment was marched to the Park race track, where a sumptuous repast was served, and then they were finally dismissed.

Farmers Form a Combine.

Topeka, Kan., Aug. 26.—Several prominent farmers and business men of this place have organized the Farmers' Federation of the Mississippi Valley with a capital stock of $20,000,000. The purpose is to control the price of farm products, and especially of the enormous corn crop of Kansas. The trust will establish warehouses and maintain agents at Cincinnati, St. Louis and Chicago, where the grain raised by the members will be marketed. The cities having the warehouses will become outlets for the grain and products of the middle and western states.

New Gold Field.

Mine Center, Ont., Aug. 28.—What the discoverer claims to be a new mining district has been found by a Mr. King, of the Sawbill lake region, east of here. He and a companion have been prospecting north of the Canadian Pacific road, and 65 miles from the line, almost direct north from Bonheur station, they have found a district possessing rich and very strong veins of gold-bearing quartz.

Married Eighty-One Years.

Upper Sandusky, O., Aug. 28.—The people here believe they have living in this city the oldest married couple in the United States. "Uncle Peter" Stansley and his wife, "Aunt Susan," have a record of 81 years of married life, and they have just celebrated their wedding anniversary. "Uncle Peter" is now 102 years old and his wife is 94, and neither of them is an invalid. Both are colored.

Island Receipts.

Washington, Aug. 28.—A statement of the receipts of the Philippine islands from the date of occupation by the United States government to July 31 last shows that the total receipts from all sources for the period named was $5,249,411. The receipts from all sources by ports for the above named period are: Manila, $3,848,248; Iloilo, $265,360; Cebus, $156,136.

Killed by Lightning.

Owensboro, Ky., Aug. 26.—Three people were killed by lightning during a thunderstorm in this locality Friday. Joseph McDaniel, a prominent McLean county farmer, and his son were instantly killed while at work in another tobacco field. James Shively (colored) was killed while endeavoring to find shelter from the storm.

Enlistments.

Washington, Aug. 26.—Since the beginning of the Spanish war there have been enlisted in the regular army 90,671 men. This includes those who were discharged after the close of the war and the increase of the regular army for service in the Philippines. Three hundred and ten thousand and sixty-five applied and were rejected.

Birds Killed.

Little Rock, Ark., Aug. 28.—This place was visited by an electrical storm of such violence that millions of English sparrows were killed. During the progress of the storm the sparrows sought shelter in the trees, and after the lightning had subsided their bodies were piled thick upon the ground.

REVIEW OF TRADE.

Situation as Viewed by Leading Commercial Agencies—Bank Clearings Show Big Gains.

New York, Aug. 26.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: "Nothing is more eloquent than the facts. Actual payments through the principal clearing houses for the week were 23.1 per cent. larger than last year, and 56.2 per cent. larger than in the same week in 1892. For the month thus far the daily average of payments has been 26.3 per cent. larger than last year and 56.0 per cent larger than in 1892. Tonnage from Chicago in three weeks has been 80.7 per cent. larger than last year and 74.6 per cent. larger than in 1892.

"It is a consumers' business, also. Perhaps never before have demands for actual use controlled business and price with so little speculation to anticipate higher markets. In fact, the rise in most articles has gone farther than speculative opinions have warranted. Practically all industries are some months behind the requirements for actual use, and in many much of the output next year is already sold. Iron works which supply Pittsburgh are sold up far into 1900, and can do nothing, though prices much beyond what they received are paid by those who must have iron this year.

"Failures for the week have been 163 in the United States against 179 last year, and 16 in Canada, against 26 last year."

Bradstreet says: "Strength in prices and steadiness of demand are still the salient features of the trade situation. Iron, steel and other metals, most of the cereals, leather and cotton goods, manifest upward tendencies as to prices. Other staples, with the exception of sugar and anthracite coal, retain all their old firmness. Fall demand is expanding at most markets, particularly good reports being received from the northwest and that portion of the corn-growing country which this year seems likely to be notable for surplus production.

SUCCESS OF REVOLUTIONISTS.

Government of Santo Domingo Gives Up the Fight—The Country People Want Peace.

New York, Aug. 29.—Andriano Grullon, the representative of the Santo Dominican revolutionists in this country, has received the following cablegram:

"Santiago de Cuba, Aug. 27.—Revolution in capital. Government surrenders.
(Signed) "LA MARCHE."

La Marche is the representative of the Jiminez revolutionists at Santiago de Cuba.

Puerto Plata, Aug. 27, via Martinique, Aug. 29.—Although the city of Santiago de Los Caballeros has not surrendered to the revolutionists, the spirit of the townspeople is openly in opposition to the government.

The revolution advances rapidly in Monte Christi, though without battles as yet. The revolutionists desire to avoid the shedding of blood.

The crops are flourishing and the country people want the revolution to end quickly so that agriculture may not be harmed.

His Mission Successful.

Manila, Aug. 25.—Gen. Bates has returned from Sulu, having successfully accomplished his mission there. After five weeks' negotiation, with much tact, an agreement was signed which in substance was as follows:

American sovereignty over the Moros shall be recognized, and there shall be no persecution against religion; the United States shall occupy and control such parts of the archipelago as public interest demands; any person may purchase land with the sultan's consent; the introduction of firearms shall be prohibited; piracy shall be suppressed; the American courts shall have jurisdiction except between the Moros; the Americans shall protect the Moros against foreign imposition and the sultan's subsidary from Spain shall be continued.

The sultan and several chiefs signed the agreement.

Somewhat Discouraging.

Manila, Aug. 28.—Recent events have proved somewhat discouraging to officials who are trying to accompany war with a policy of conciliation. Two new municipal governments have collapsed through the treachery of the mayors. The mayor of San Pedro Macati, who was elected by the people, was brought to Manila and lodged in jail. The United States officers at San Pedro Macati found that he was using his office as a recruiting station for the Philippine army. Four disguised insurgent officers were helping him. The mayor of Baliuag was also arrested and confined in the same prison.

Cyclists Make New Records.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—Three world's records went to pieces Saturday on the Ravenswood cycle track. The events were the amateur one-mile triplet, unpaced, in which a machine ridden by Krueger, Watson and Leander made the distance in 1:49 1-5; the two-mile exhibition amateur, paced, by Frank A. Staples in 3:26 2-5, and the ten-mile race between Tom Butler, of Boston, and Charles Porter, of Detroit, the former covering the 40 laps necessary in 16:57 3-5, against the previous professional record of 17:01.

Will Quit the Army.

Fort Scott, Kan., Aug. 29.—A letter has been received here from Lieut. C. G. Warner, of this city, who is aid on Gen. Fred Funston's staff, stating that Funston is in Manila awaiting orders to sail for home with the Twentieth Kansas regiment. The letter states that Funston will retire from army life and reside in Kansas.

Military in Control at Darien, Ga.

Darien, Ga., Aug. 28.—The round-up of riotous negroes in McIntosh county by the military resulted in the surrender of Henry Delegal, the murderer of Deputy Sheriff Townsend, and the location for future arrest of Delegal's brother and the woman directly implicated in the killing.

Heavy Loss by Storms.

Lima, Peru, via Galveston, Aug. 26.—According to reliable reports received here from Chili property valued at more than £1,500,000 has been destroyed during the severe storms that have swept the country during the last fortnight.

Wellman in London.

London, Aug. 29.—Walter Wellman, the leader of the Wellman polar expedition, who returned to Tromsoe, Norway, August 17, after having successfully completed explorations in Franz Josef Land, has arrived here.

Rich Ore Mines.

Tacoma, Wash., Aug. 28.—While grading on the Canadian Pacific extension in British Columbia, Contractors McKenzie & Mann have uncovered great ledges of ore running high in copper, gold and silver.

A Fatal Bite.

Leavenworth, Kan., Aug. 29.—Mrs. H. T. Concannon, aged 60 years, a well-known and wealthy woman, whose home was south of here, died from hydrophobia caused by the bite of a pet dog.

An Excellent Combination.

The pleasant method and beneficial effects of the well known remedy, Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., illustrate the value of obtaining the liquid laxative principles of plants known to be medicinally laxative and presenting them in the form most refreshing to the taste and acceptable to the system. It is the one perfect strengthening laxative, cleansing the system effectually, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers gently yet promptly and enabling one to overcome habitual constipation permanently. Its perfect freedom from every objectionable quality and substance, and its acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels, without weakening or irritating them, make it the ideal laxative.

In the process of manufacturing figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinal qualities of the remedy are obtained from senna and other aromatic plants, by a method known to the California Fig Syrup Co. only. In order to get its beneficial effects and to avoid imitations, please remember the full name of the Company printed on the front of every package.

"CONFIDENCE"

IS DOING BUSINESS JUST NOW WITH THE ALLIED FORCES.

An Enthusiasm and Belief in Coming Success, Impossible to Repress—Shots From the National Picket Lines—Hints of the "Financial Question"—As to the "Man For the Hour"—State Topics—The Issue of Taxation Reform—Good Work in the Insurance and Other Departments—Wanted Sore Eye Ointment for Van Sant—Chance for a "Col. Sellers." Twin City Notes—Ramsey and Hennepin County Politics—The Twin City Jingle of the Dollars—Other Note and Comment of the Week.

Reform Press Bureau.
ST. PAUL, Aug. 28, 1899.

It is impossible to repress the feeling of confidence and enthusiasm, with which the general political situation is to be viewed. There is substantial agreement, among all the allied forces, which, if signs fail not, will be of one victorious mind next year. Our agricultural producers see in lowering prices of all they have to sell, and the forced rises of all that they must buy, the bitter fulfillment of the inevitable, under the prevailing system, that leaves them in competition with silver using countries. Labor is aroused to the danger of being crushed by the power of organized monopoly, which has only to manifest its needs, to have the military at beck and call to enforce their oppressions. The prevailing strikes show that labor appreciates the dangers of the hour. Our foreign born population are especially apprehensive of the drift, in this land of the free, to imperialism and autocratic power. This applies with special force to German-Americans, Irish-Americans and our citizens of Scandinavian strain. It is now certain that we shall retain this support largely for the next year, whether the administration persists in its wretched course, or is forced by public sentiment and the fear of defeat to change it. These things, among others, coupled with the fact that we have a national leader who seems to have been raised up for the sole purpose of saving the American Republic, must give to the united forces of the regenerated Democracy a courage and an enthusiasm which will sweep all before it.

Mr. Bryan thus sizes up the situation: "Democratic success in 1900, is becoming more and more certain."

Nebraska follows Iowa in uniting all of the reform forces against the goppites. The allied forces will prove an invincible army with banners.

What a commentary on the pulpit, that while the masses of the Republicans are deserting the administration on its Philippine policy, the truly loyal clergy, for the most part, continue to understand the last words of the "Prince of Peace" as "Go ye into all the world, and shoot the gospel into every creature."

Since Otis' censorship was renewed there have not been so many reports of burned churches, shot riddled crosses and desecrated altars. Or have operations been interfered with by the rainy season?

If Dewey is not talking, somebody is saying some very proper things of him.

The St. Paul Globe, in an article "The Man and the Hour," pays a tribute to Dewey that is heartily seconded by all, but such recognition they regard as military and not political. There is quite another man for this "hour," and his name is Bryan.

And what Bryan has done politically, to win this leadership and admiration, is quite the counterpart of Dewey's glorious trophies for American arms and glory. What Dewey did against a wicked and oppressive foreign power, Bryan is doing against the enemies of an equally wicked and oppressive money power.

Otis will censor the Chinese out of the Philippines, but he cannot prevent the Filipinos from coming here to compete with labor, after they are become "subjugated" American citizens.

Hanna is said to be intending to purchase a stud of fast horses. He will need them next year.

Eltweed Pomery of New Jersey, the great authority on direct legislation, has been spending a few days in the Twin Cities. The principle he represents, certainly seems to be marching on. State after state is adding it to the list of doctrines of the true Democracy.

This year's state board of equalization is looked to as none has been for years. It has been called to meet with Governor Lind, who is, ex-officio, the head of the board, at the state capitol, on Tuesday, Sept. 5. The board is thus composed, as appointed by the governor:

First district, F. I. Johnson.
Second district, Joseph McKibben, St. Paul.
Third district, J. G. Lawrence, Wabasha.
Fourth district, Frank McMillan, Minneapolis.
Fifth district, L. S. Peck, Kasson.
Sixth district, L. O. Ulverstead, Grogan.
Seventh district, C. W. Sprague, Sauk Center.
Eighth district, Mathias Nachbar, Jordan.
Ninth district, Gudmand Anderson, Linden.
Tenth district, Thomas J. Meighan, Ofrestville.
Eleventh district, J. E. Cooley, Duluth.
Twelfth district, Ola Lee, Montevideo.
Thirteenth district, A. O. Hendricks, Adrian.
Fourteenth district, J. E. Ostrok, Warren.
Fifteenth district, W. Potter, Aitkin.
Sixteenth district, H. W. Daley, Morris.
Seventeenth district, Alexander Fiddle Jackson.
Fifteenth district, Charles Judkins, Princeton.

The ex-officio members are Governor Lind, Attorney General Douglas and State Auditor Dunn.

And when the board meets it would be a good plan to open the proceedings by reading the following recent words of W. J. Bryan:

"At present the government can draft the citizen, but cannot draft the pocketbook. Slowly but surely the dollar is being exalted and the man debased. Justice in taxation must be stored."

The street fair is abroad in the land, and next week all hands will unite in Mr. Randall's af-Fair on the state fair grounds. Let every man, woman and child in the state who can get there, get there.

It is the general agreement that not in the history of the department of insurance has there been a more vigorous or able administration than is being given by Commissioner J. A. O'Shaughnessey. The number of fake insurance schemes that the department has run to earth and saved the people from is considerable. Numerous such schemes under the guise of mutual benefit societies have been brought to time. In the case of one of these, the commissioner found that 40 per cent of pecuniary profits to officers should be returned, it having been charged to "expenses" and thus being unlawfully taken, which case is now in the hands of the attorney general for action. The latter official recently sustained action taken by Commissioner O'Shaughnessey in the case of the Realty Revenue company of Minneapolis, which sought to escape the insurance laws. The attorney general finds in that case that if the company desires to transact business in Minnesota as advertised in its pamphlet, literature and contracts, "it should qualify under the laws, and that if it does not do so, or any of its agents, it violates the laws and will be subject to arrest and prosecution." This is business.

The dairy, insurance, game and fish, educational, military, in fact each and every department of the Lind administration, is making a record to be proud of, and to meet the approval of the people.

Ramsey county Democrats are in the saddle, completing the effectiveness of the city and county organization, and in the early fall will be commenced the holding of frequent meetings in the wards, with a general meeting some time in October. Organization and work are the thing.

Poor Van Sant. The goppite wire pullers have not the slightest intention of permitting him to be nominated. They are tricking him in Hennepin by the use of Bob Evan's name. It looks like the Eustis game over again. Van is a good fellow, and entitled not only to sympathy, but to have his eyes opened. Where's the spittle?

"Col. Sellers" based his faith in his "eye water." on the fact that 10,000,000 of people in Asia had sore eyes. There was "millions in it." But what a chance for sale of an eye opener among Minnesota politicians. There's Van Sant, Collins, Clapp, Heatwole, Bixby, Evans and all the rest. Who'll try? All should buy!

The Aitkin Age, one of the stiffest of the G. O. P. papers, administers the following rebuke to the goppite abusers of Governor Lind:

"Governor Lind and Superintendent of Banks E. M. Pope are coming out of the St. Paul Savings bank difficulties with flying colors. The turn affairs have taken makes the St. Paul Dispatch and Minneapolis Tribune look very much like thirty cents. It pays to be fair, gentlemen."

The Minneapolis Journal has its weekly reference to the "Democratic howl" about prices—that we wanted them raised, and now complain that they are high. The Journal cannot blind its readers. We want high prices of products of the soil, on which depend the returns for labor. The Republican policy reverses the case, giving high prices for all that our producers must buy, and lower for all that they have to sell. The trust and combine give the one, the gold standard causes the other. Both have got to go.

Chief Inspector Reishus is daily giving proof that the right man was selected as Clausen's successor. He has honesty, courage, ability. He is wisely chosing his assistants. In fact those who pretended to think that the department would cease, with Clausen's departure, are in courtplaster. Business is being done at the old stand.

Governor Lind has now completed eight months of administration. In the time quite a number of moss-covered Republican barnacles have been dispensed with. A few remain who can be spared as well as not. They will be allowed to depart, and without regret.

Attorney General Douglas unqualifiedly approves the position maintained by Governor Lind, that there is no warrant of law for expending state money, for the return of the Thirteenth.

An agreeable feature of Governor Lind's administration has been the courteous manner in which, up to this point, he has been treated by the Republican attorney general, in painstaking and conscientious discharge of duty by that official.

Filling the Gap.

The bright boy of fiction is playing with his Noah's ark.

"What are these two chips of wood?" asks the bright boy's father.

It is necessary for the bright boy of fiction to have a father, you know; there has to be somebody to draw him out.

"Them, replied the bright boy, without hesitation, is the microbes!"

Of course, if we think a minute, we perceive that there must have been a pair of microbes on the ark.—Detroit Journal.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

The Amusement Program.

The managers of the state fair, to be held at Hamline, beginning Sept. 4, and closing the 9th, offer a program of amusements that has never before been equalled. Following is the list:

Monday—Bicycle day, band concert, diving horses, a pacing ostrich, and balloon ascension.

Tuesday—Soldiers' day, also state and territorial day, trotting races, etc.

Wednesday—Minneapolis day and the great trotting race for $5,000 contributed by Minneapolis business men.

Thursday—St. Paul day and the pacing race for $5,000 contributed by St. Paul business men. Trotting contests.

Friday—Farmers' day. Efforts have been made to make this one of the most instructive and interesting days of the week.

Saturday—Everybody's day. There will be a general grouping of the attractions, such as the diving horses, guideless wonders, balloon ascensions.

Every evening during the week there will be running races and fireworks, such as "The Burning of Manila," and other special features.

Failed to Pass.

Of the 5,000 Minnesota teachers who took the recent uniform state examinations required by the law enacted by the last legislature, 25 per cent failed to pass and 20 per cent belong to the "close and doubtful" class. The happy ones are those who have secured over 60 per cent in the seven studies of the examination. The doubtful class contains those who failed to pass only in one study. If the law were strictly interpreted, the 1,000 teachers of this class could not teach in Minnesota during the coming school year. They will, however, be given probation certificates, good for this year, but thereafter void unless the probationer makes up the weakness. As it is, 1,250 teachers will be out of work. Many of them will give up teaching for good, while others are planning to go to normal schools to improve themselves.

Crop Report.

The climate and crop bulletin of the weather bureau, Minnesota section, says: The early part of the week was favorable for continuing the harvest of wheat and oats in the Red River valley, for cutting the late grains in the western part of the state as far south as Lincoln county, and for stacking and threshing elsewhere. In the counties where the rain was heaviest the grain shocks are wet and in danger of sprouting. Flax is ripening, though somewhat irregularly, in the southern two-thirds of the state, and cutting is progressing in favorable weather. Stacking was progressing well till the wet weather came on, and some threshing was done from the shock. The rains put the ground in good condition for plowing in many places, and were beneficial to corn and potatoes generally. Corn is a splendid crop, especially in southern counties.

Gets a New Place.

F. H. Lemon, of Stillwater, who some time ago resigned as depnty warden of the state prison, has been appointed deputy warden of the United States prison at Fort Leavenworth, Kas., at a salary of $2,000 per annum and supplies and residence. Major R. W. McClaughrey, warden at Leavenworth prison, asked Warden Wolfer to recommend a man, and he recommended Mr. Lemon. His candidacy was also indorsed by Senator Davis, ex-Secretary John Sherman, Judge Flandreau, B. F. Farmer, Congressman Stevens, the board of prison managers and many others. Mr. Lemon will assume his duties Sept. 1.

News in Brief.

Minnesota stands in 19th place among the 63 cigar manufacturing districts of the United States. The output for the state last year, according to figures computed by the Cigar and Tobacco Trade, was 52,437,759 cigars.

DREYFUS SCORES.

Many Telling Points Made in His Favor—Capt. Freystaetter Creates a Sensation.

Rennes, Aug. 25.—When the fourth session of the third week of the second trial by court-martial of Capt. Alfred Dreyfus, charged with treason, opened at the Lycee here at 6:40 a. m. Thursday, Col. Jouaust, president of the court, ordered that the evidence given by M. Penot, a friend of the late Col. Sandherr, chief of the intelligence department, be read by the clerk of the court. It was to the effect that Col. Sandherr said the Dreyfus family offered him 150,000 francs on condition that he would clear Dreyfus.

Maitre Demange, for the defense, disposed of this allegation by reading the actual note on the subject written by Sandherr, thereby proving that the colonel's remarks had been distorted, Dreyfus' brothers having only said:

"We are convinced of the innocence of our brother and will spend our entire fortune to discover the truth."

Rennes, Aug. 26. — The opening of the fifth session of the third week of the second trial by court-martial of Capt. Alfred Dreyfus, of the artillery, charged with treason, occurred at 6:35 a. m., Friday without any extraordinary incident.

M. Gobert then repeated the evidence he had given before the court of cassation. He gave his testimony in a clear, convincing manner, and was most emphatic in attributing the bordereau to Esterhazy.

M. Bertillon, the noted anthropometaist, was called as the next witness.

Maitre Demange asked to have Bertillon's documents brought before the judges, and the audience enjoyed the diversion of seeing two soldiers bring in enormous cases containing the famous thief catcher's documents. Bertillon declared he needed all the documents and photographs to give his evidence. It was really an amusing scene. The conclusions Bertillon tried to draw were that the bordereau was a fabricated document in artificial—that is, traced—handwriting, and that the affair was the result of the machination of some one having access to the general staff, or else the bordereau was really the work of Alfred Dreyfus.

Rennes, Aug. 28.—At the sixth session on Saturday of the third week of the second trial by court-martial of Capt. Alfred Dreyfus, of the artillery, on the charge of treason, the feature of the day was a dramatic scene between Capt. Freystaetter, one of Dreyfus' judges in 1894, and Col. Maurel, president of that court-martial.

If Capt. Freystaetter is speaking the truth—and he has the reputation of being a man of the highest honor, whose conscience was troubled by relations of the intrigues and maneuvers of the general staff—Gen. Mercier committed perjury in his deposition and Col. Maured was guilty of the suppression of the truth

Gen. Mercier in his evidence categorically denied that the incorrect deciphering of the dispatch from Panizzardi, the Italian military attache, was communicated to the court-martial of 1894. Capt. Freystaetter now swears that it was.

Col. Maurel in his deposition declared that he read only one document of the secret dossier, leaving the court under the impression that this was the only document of which cognizance was taken. He was forced to admit that his statement referred only to himself, but that all the other officers read all the documents—a statement which provoked loud murmurs in the audience.

Capt. Freystaetter, however, asserted that Col. Maurel had openly commented on each document to his brother judges. This Maurel indignantly denied.

Rennes, Aug. 29.—At the session Monday of the second trial by court-martial of Capt. Alfred Dreyfus, of the artillery, charged with treason, handwriting experts devoted themselves to demolishing one another's evidence. The public followed the depositions listlessly, but the judges and counsel listened with the greatest attention.

With the aid of a blackboard, M. Paray-Javal demonstrated the fallacy of M. Bertillon's calculations and criticized the latter's unfairness in not subjecting Esterhazy's handwriting to the same tests as the prisoner's writing. At the same time the draughtsman declared that even if M. Bertillon had done so, the results would not have proved anything.

M. Tessionere's testimony against Dreyfus then followed, and then M. Charavay, the expert who had previously declared Dreyfus was the author of the bordereau, was called to the witness bar. His testimony proved to be of the greatest interest, as he came to confess he had made an error and said he was now convinced that Esterhazy and not Dreyfus wrote the bordereau. This announcement made a deep impression on the court and was greeted with a general murmur of satisfaction. The next expert, M. Pelletier, also testified favorably to Dreyfus.

M. Couard, another expert, then deposed that, as the result of his examination, he had become convinced that the bordereau was not written by Esterhazy, but he could not say it was written by Dreyfus, because he had not seen the prisoner's handwriting.

Report Confirmed.

Duluth, Minn., Aug. 29.—A special to the News-Tribune from Port Arthur, Ont., says advices received there confirm the reported phenomenally rich gold strike at Island Falls, Seiene river. The property is owned by a Saginaw (Mich.) syndicate. Cross-cut vein proves a vein 25 feet wide and exceptionally rich. Ore assays run from $120 to $130 per ton. There is great excitement in the section over the strike.

Eight Persons Drowned.

Dardanelle, Ark., Aug. 29. — About seven miles below here a party of negroes consisting of Mrs. Caloin Jackson and two children and Mrs. John Smith, with three children, and Louis Price, a grown man, were crossing the river in a skiff when from some unknown cause the boat capsized, drowning the entire party.

Financial Troubles in Turkey.

Berlin, Aug. 26.—The Lokal Anzeiger publishes the following from Constantinople: A financial crisis is imminent. The Ottoman exchequer is empty. The finance minister has fled from those seeking payments and taken refuge in a private residence which is now under the protection of the police.

His Burglar Finally Came

By M. QUAD. Copyrighted.

"I have been keeping house for over 22 years," said the man with the Henry Clay cigar, "and every night of that time I have had burglars more or less on my mind. It is all over now, and you don't know how relieved I am."

"How all over?" asked one of his listeners.

"Why, my burglar has come and gone, and I also understand myself. I never slept a night without a loaded revolver within reach, and for 22 years I have had a programme. I am a tolerably light sleeper. I expected the stairs to creak as the burglar came up. This would awaken me and give me time to get my gun. He would come into my room, but I would play 'possum 'till he reached for my clothes. He would then be within three feet of me, and I would shoot him in the back. In my tenderest moods I never got to that point where I decided to give the burglar a show for his life. I would shoot him down like a dog. Did any of you gentlemen ever figure on the cost of fooling around with a revolver for 8,000 nights? Well, I wouldn't go through it again for $5,000. And burglars!"

"So your burglar came at last?"

"Just a week ago to-night, sir. I had fired off and reloaded the revolver and was ready for him. I was never more determined to kill him than on that night. I even fought off sleep to think of his surprise when the bullet should hit him. It was an hour after midnight when he came."

"You heard the stairs creak and woke up?"

"Not exactly. No, there was no creaking, and the first I knew of the fellow's presence was when he was ready to go. He had been in my room half an hour, and had thoroughly plundered me, even to my pistol, when the idea came to him to have a little talk with me. It was his sitting down on the bed which woke me up. For fear that I might be mistaken in the party, he announced his name as Jones, and his profession as burglary. Then he went on to tell me what an ass I had been to take the trouble I had. For 22 years I had been expecting him to come upstairs, when there was a porch and a window as handy as you please. I had planned it all out just how I would shoot him, and yet he had been obliged to wake me up to let me know of his presence. He had statistics to prove that there was only one burglar to every 10,000 families, and that if he hadn't stubbed his toe in front of my house, I might have gone on for another 22 years without a visit. He didn't want to pile it on too thick, but offered to bet the $200 in cash he had taken from my trousers against a cent that I couldn't hit a barn ten feet away. His parting advice was for me to use a baseball bat on burglars, though he doubted if I ever would receive another visit."

"And why do you feel relieved?" was asked.

"Well, because I've been tried out and found to be a failure. I shall never hear a burglar and never shoot one, and from now on I'm going to slip my watch and money under the bureau and enjoy my sleep. As to shooting, I was that scared when the fellow woke me up that I couldn't have held a gun out if it had been tied to my hand. Indeed, he felt it his brotherly duty to warn me that if I didn't hold my chin still I'd wear my teeth down to the gums with the clicking, and he likewise advised that I soak my feet to coax the chills away from my spinal column. Good man, he was, and I'm glad he's come and gone and solved the burglar problem for me."

How He Loved.

A PHILANTHROPIST.

He Was Going to Get Rich and Get Up Something to Cool the People Off.

"Yes, sir," exclaimed the man with a linen duster and a high-crowned straw hat, "I'm going to do it."

"What are you going to do?" asked the policeman to whom the stranger had addressed himself.

"You know," he went on, without heeding the question, "that the summer months are invariably marked by increased outbreaks of all kinds. Men's angry passions seem to rise with the thermometer."

"What were you threatening just now?" asked the policeman, sternly.

"Threatening?"

"Yes. You said you were going to do something. What are you going to do?"

"I'm going to get rich. I'm going to get some steady employment and save up my money and invest it judiciously and get rich. There's no end of good you can do with riches. Rich men are doing a great deal of good now. They establish schools and colleges and libraries and let the people get acquainted with the soothing thoughts of philosophy and the sublimities of science. But in the months of July and August you, as a practical criminologist, have doubtless observed philosophy and science don't work. By the time I have got rich there will be all the colleges and libraries that there will be need of, and I will cap the summit of our civilization with a bequest for a mammoth marble refrigerator in each town, so that when anybody feels his indignation rising he can go there and wander up and down the stately corridors and cool off."—Washington Star.

TOO ZEALOUS.

Whippleton Was Getting Too Attentive to Business to Please the Boss.

"I wish," said the senior partner to the manager of the executive department, "that you would discharge Whippleton, that new man we put on a couple of months ago."

The manager was surprised. He showed it in his countenance. He was about to say something, when the head of the firm went on:

"I have made it a rule, as you have doubtless noticed, never to permit any of the men who work in this establishment to beat me here in the morning. For 20 years I have sat here at my desk, and watched the employes report for duty."

"Yes," the manager said, "it has become a tradition around the place that you are always the first one here in the morning and the last one to leave at night."

"Exactly. That's why I want you to discharge Whippleton."

The manager was about to carry out his order, but turned after he had taken two or three steps and asked:

"Have you caught Whippleton shirking? Does he get down to work late in the mornings?"

"No," the old man responded, "he's making me get up before daylight in order to keep on beating him here. I won't have it."—Chicago Times-Herald.

HE SOON GOT WELL.

Landing with the Bootjack on the Leader's Nose Had a Beneficial Effect.

It was a sad scene. The old man lay on his bed, and by him sat the faithful wife, holding his worn hand in hers and forcing back the tears to greet his wandering look with a smile. She spoke words of comfort and of hope. But he felt the cold hand falling on him, and he turned his weary eyes up to her pale, wan face.

"Jennie, dear wife, I am going."

"Oh, no, John—not yet—not yet."

"Yes, dear wife," and he closed his eyes; "the end is near. The world grows dark about me. There is a mist around me gathering thicker and thicker, and there, as through a cloud, I hear the music of angels—sweet and sad."

"No, no, John, dear; that isn't angels; that's the brass band at the corner."

"What!" said the dying man. "Have those scoundrels dared to come here when they know I'm dying? Give me my bootjack. I'll let 'em see."

And in a towering rage the old man jumped from his bed, and before his wife could think he had opened the window and shied the bootjack at the band.

"I've hit that fat leader in the nose!" And he went back to bed and got well.—Tit-Bits.

A Letter to Mrs. Pinkham Brought Health to Mrs. Archambo.

[LETTER TO MRS. PINKHAM NO. 42,395]

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—For two years I felt tired and so weak and dizzy that some days I could hardly go around the house. Backache and headache all the time and my food would not digest and had such pains in the womb and troubled with leucorrhœa and kidneys were affected.

"After birth of each child I grew weaker, and hearing so much of the good you had done, I wrote to you and have taken six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, one box of Lozenges, one box of Liver Pills, one package of Sanative Wash, and to-day I am feeling as well as I ever did. When I get up in the morning I feel as fresh as I did when a girl and eat and sleep well and do all of my work. If ever I feel weak again shall know where to get my strength. I know your medicine cured me."—MRS. SALINA ARCHAMBO, CHARLEMONT, MASS.

The present Mrs. Pinkham's experience in treating female ills is unparalleled; for years she worked side by side with Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, and for sometime past has had sole charge of the correspondence department of her great business, treating by letter as many as a hundred thousand ailing women a year. All women who suffer are invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for advice, which will be promptly given without charge.

DELANO, FRIDAY, Sept. 1, 1899.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—John Brandser received news Monday, of the death of his father in Norway.

—Mr. Basie has completed his new barn on Fourth street. T. S. Kerr was architect and builder.

—Delano Fair Day Saturday, Sept. 9. Look out for your horses. Glanders have been discovered in the county.

—The new man at Carver's gallery makes pictures up to date. Call in and see him. As an introduction fine photos for 25 cts per doz. Satisfaction guaranteed.

—Notice is hereby given that the Advent Church has rented the Swedeback Hall and will hold preaching services next Sunday at 8 o'clock p. m. and notice will there be given for the future services. All are invited to attend.

—Blaine returned home Monday evening. His grandmother intended driving up Sunday evening but Blaine took a street car ride and brought up at Central, and did not get back until evening, delaying the home coming until the next day.

—F. A. Cramer wishes to inform his customers that he has closed up his butcher business for one week on account of sickness. He will be on hand promptly with an entirely fresh supply of meats of all kinds, on Wednesday morning, Sept. 6, and pleased to wait on his usual customers.

—Vaccination has become quite fashionable among the children intending to attend school. The time for handing in certificates of vaccination to the school teachers will be extended for a couple of weeks thus giving all an opportunity to comply with the new rule.

—Under the new regulations of the State Borrd of Health all pupils must, on entering school, present a physicians certificate of vaccination. The prevalence of small pox in our state necessitates such stringent measures. Other states in the Union are enforcing vaccination.

—Several hunting parties started out during the week to try their luck. Paul Plotnik has the most unique outfit of all, a boat rigged on a pair of bicycle wheels hitched on behind his bicycle: Paul the sole motor himself. He proposes to get his share of the game all the same.

—At a speceal meeting of the Board of Education held Monday evening Aug. 21. it was resolved to abandon the free text book system in the Delano High School. And the Board will sell books now on hand to pupils at actual present value, and new books at cost.

By order of the Board,
M. A. O'HAIR, Sect.

—Public school opens Monday, Sept. 4. St. Peter's school on Tuesday, Sept. 5. Pupils will be notified that they must have certificates of vaccination on or before Monday, Sept. 18. It requires, sometime ten days for vaccine to form a vesicle, so that more time is necessary to be sure that the vaccination has proven successful, hence the necessity of having the pupils vaccinated as soon as possible.

—Some of the members of the Board of Education and of the ex-Board, are at outs about school affairs; and, sorry to say, made use of language and actions towards each other, on the street, not calculated to inspire parents who heard them with confidence in their ability to govern their own angry passions, much less to look after the educational interests of the rising generation. Be gentlemen! And set a good example for the boys.

—A short letter, of July 17, and a fine map of the Philippines arrived Monday from our correspondent Alva. He wrote from the hospital in Manila. He said they were expecting the Sheridan which they were to take home. "Headquarters and the band were ordered in about a week ago, and you can safely bet they came. The rain fall for two days is given at 15, for the first part of the month, and now it is trying to break that record, beginning this morning. Expecting to follow the letter in a month at most, this will probably be the last. The regiment started home Aug. 11 and are expected in San Francisco by the 10th of Sept.

—Sanford Dodge will appear in Delano next Tuesday evening, September 5, in Shakespear's great drama "The Merchant of Venice". Mr. Dodge is a very talented actor, and is supported by a strong company of actors and actresses, and is deserving of a full house. He is recognized by the press all over the country, as one of the best dramatic players in America. He this week gives "Damon and Pythias" at the Bijou, in Minneapolis for the benefit of K. P's. of that city. All who wish te see a first class drama, written by the World's greatest play wrighter, presented by a first class company, should be at the City Hall, Tuesday evening, Sept. 5.

—Rev. Father Rynda resumed his pastorate of the Bohemian chapel, Western avenue, Sunday morning, after an extended vacation in Europe. During the service he expressed his pleasure at being once more with his congregation, and he contrasted the happy condition of the people of this city with the distress and poverty in the countries of Europe bordering on the Mediterranean and the Black seas. Father Rynda received a very flattering reception from his congregation at the close of the service. In the evening the children of the church gave a highly successful concert.—Pioneer Press.

Rev. Rynda was a former resident of Delano.

—Some of our Village officials seem to think their part of the liquor license business is done when they collect the $500 fee for selling intoxicating beverages in Delano. But they have another duty. They are sworn to enforce the laws; and the contract they make with saloon keepers should be observed or the officials should see to it. According to law men are not supposed to be supplied with drink when they are already idiotic from the effects of more than is good for them. Minors are not to be sold any, and it seems in Mayor Gray's city even women are not to be supplied when they are drunken, as we clip from The Minnesota Issue:

Pioneer Press, St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 3, 1699: Mayor Gray yesterday revoked the saloon license of Charles Johnson, at 129 Nicollet avenue, and Thomas Keoh, of 119 Nicollet avenue, after hearing the story of a young woman arrested for drunkenness. The woman had visited many saloons, but she could not remember any except the two named. The woman is about twenty years of age. The mayor was very indignant. He said he had no patience with men who had no more judgment than was shown by the saloon men who sold liquor to this unfortunate girl."

Personal.

Miss Ore Featherstone, of Red Wing, it is thought will be engaged as teacher of the grammar room of the Delano school.

George Guptil, of Rockford, was over Tuesday. He said he intended living in St. Cloud this winter, while two of his girls attended the Normal school.

Vaccination Notice.

TO THOSE INTERESTED: Whereas the Minnesota State Board of Health has resolved that:

"In view of the fact that smallpox is prevailing to so great an extent throughout the entire country, and that the danger from infection will be increased as cold weather comes on, all schools throughout the state, at the fall opening must require a certificate of vaccination before admitting a pupil."

Notice is hereby given that as our notice was so short, the time has been extended for two weeks, and that on Monday, Sept. 18, or before, certificates of vaccination must be handed in to the teachers of all schools in the Village of Delano.

Per order Board of Health of the Village of Delano. T. J. CATLIN, H. O.

Merchant of Venice.

When the myrad minded Shakespeare conceived the immortal play of the "Merchant of Venice" he set a precedent in dramatic construction for all time. None of the many great plays written by the "Bard of Avon" are so popular with all classes as the "Merchant of Venice."

In the character of Shylock, Mr. Dodge made his debut. Sir Henry Irving, the greatest of the world's actors, had given his masterly interpretation of Shylock in the same city a few days before the appearance of Mr. Dodge in that role. The audience went to the theatre to be disappointed, they came away acknowledging the triumph of Sanford Dodge. He gained rather than lost in the comparison with Irving. The educational faculties throughout the land, realizing the wonderful literary merits of the "Merchant of Venice," have included the study of the play in the regular course of the high school pupils.

In deciding upon the line of stage work to follow, Sanford Dodge has chosen the legitimate or classic drama. These plays do not always appeal to the great majority but they do always appeal to the cultured, the educated and highest classes of the population everywhere.

This is the class of people Mr. Dodge desires for his patrons—it is the class of people he desires to please—and if he meets with their approval and support it matters not whether the audience be large or small he has accomplished what he has aimed at and fulfilled the mission of his work. The plays that Mr. Dodge is producing are refined, educated and interesting and will please the refined, the educated and cultured audiences everywhere.

The Annandale Advocate Post cites several eminent authorities as anti-expansionist and instead of showing his readers anything wrong about that simply says: "But there is no accounting for their views". Perhaps Mr. Satterlee could account for some of his own views.

Among Our Exchanges.

James J. Hill loses no opportunity to tell of the wonderful possibilities of Oriental trade. The sooner our people realize these possibilities and shape their commercial actions accordingly the better it will be for our welfare.—Willmar Argus.

Mr. Hill is right—from his standpoint. He owns a trans-continental railroad line, and is interested in steamer lines from Puget Sound to the Orient. He wants to tax the whole people of the country to pay him subsidies for his steamship lines, in addition to the exhorbitant tolls he now levies in railroad tariffs over his lines in Minnesota and the Dakotas. Hill is looking out for Hill, and if the producers of the northwest don't look out for themselves no one else will.—Litchfield Independent.

St. Peter Herald: J. ADAM BEDE says the chief reason why he wants to go to congress is because he wants to. Adam is a genius and he is wondorfully made. We hope he may have his fondest ambition realized.

And that's where Mr. Johnson is at.

The Broad Axe: How well Bryan states the responsible duty of the administration: "The Philippines came into our hands by the accident of war and, coming into our hands, they must be dealt with according to American principles, and not according to European principles".

Henry Tanner, the new deputy oil inspector for this district, was called to Minneapolis last Thursday to receive instructions. He will assume his duties about Sept. 1. Mr. Gordon the old democratic war horse of Annandale received the appointment for the north district.—Waverly Tribune.

Anoka Herald: Minneapolis is having a poor time trying to raise a few thousand dollars to get the Thirteenth home from San Francisco, and is now calling on outside towns for assistance. In the first place the government pays the boys four times as much for travel pay as the trip will cost, and in the second place Minneapolis' principal interest is to get their money. If it were a question of necessity or potriotism the money could have been raised in a day.

Anoka Herald: Republican papers have little call to cast aspersions at the "Reform" press management, bad as is the stuff sent out. The Republicans have a bureau of their own.

Notice of Hearing of Application for Transfer of License to Sell Intoxicating Liquors.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Wright, Village of Delano.—S. S.

Notice is hereby given that Mat Haregeise has, according to law, filed an application with the Village Recorder, of the Village of Delano, for a transfer of license to sell intoxicating liquors, for the unexpired term of Peter F. Sexton.

The place where the said business is to be carried on is on the first floor of the two story brick building situated on lot 19, block 8, original townsite of Delano.

Said applicant prays that such license be granted to him pursuant to the ordinances of said Village of Delano, and the Statutes of said State of Minnesota in such cases made and provided.

The hearing of the above application will be held in the Council room, at the City Hall, on Saturday, Sept. 9, at 8 o'clock p. m. and the license then allowed or rejected.

Dated at Delano, Minn., this 30th day of August, 1899.

COPYRIGHT 1898 BY COSMOPOLITAN MAGAZINE

THE delights of an evening spent around a well-lighted reading table are not half understood. An illustrated magazine with its wealth of illustrations, its stories of adventure and love, its descriptions of travel which carry you to the remotest ends of the earth, and its instructive articles for young and old—these are the first requisites for your own enjoyment and the entertainment and proper education of your children.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

Both Together One Year for Only $1.80

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. For three years The Cosmopolitan has undisputedly claimed that it reached the largest clientele possessed by any periodical, daily, weekly or monthly, in the world. It was The Cosmopolitan which sent Julian Hawthorne to India to let the world know the real horrors of famine and plague. It was The Cosmopolitan which established at its own cost a great Free Correspondence University which now has over 20,000 students on its rolls. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $3,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.

St Paul Dispatch

25c per month for Daily. 75c per year for the Weekly.

The St. Paul Dispatch is the best Twin City daily; it has no equal in the Northwest as to size or quality.

The DISPATCH excels in Northwestern news, having a correspondent in every Northwestern town.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

BRYAN and TOWNE for President and Vice-President in 1900 would make a splendid ticket.

READERS of Republican editorials don't need to take but one paper of that faith. Their editorials are nearly all made on one last and furnished ready for printing.

THE campaigns in Kentucky, Indiana, and Ohio are to be enlivened by the presence of William Jennings Bryan and C. A. Towne, who will deliver some of their most forcible arguments against the G. O. P. plans of imperialism, trusts, monopolies etc.

THE Globe don't exchange with us now, but we see by some of our exchanges that it is trying to find some candidate to knock out Bryan for the Democratic nomination for President. If that's the best it can do it had as well stop now or join the G O. P. and be done with it.

THE selection of Judge Shackelford as successor to Richard P. Bland, of Mo. as U. S. Senator on the Chicago platform and the issues of imperialism and monopoly is a victory for Democratic principles, as the judge received a bigger majority than did his predecessor. People don't want this Republican imperialism.

THE Sheridan from Manila, is expected to land at San Francisco this week with the 13th Minn. Vols. and the S. Dak. boys. Gov. Lind and others have gone to San Francisco to meet them. Transportation over the Great Northern and Northern Pacific is to be secured at $30 per head, by those having in charge the raising of funds for that purpose, to bring them home. They will, probably, have to stay at San Fncisco several weeks before discharged.

WHILE traveling in Europe lately, Hon. C. A. Towne and wife visited Naples while Admiral Dewey was there. They were on the Olympia but as the Admiral was engaged did not see him until after taking their boat to leave, when the Admiral came to the railing and conversed with them. While on board the boat they discussed the Philippine question with the officers and men, who not knowing their guests told them that the 13th Minnesota was the crack regiment in the Philippines.

IN an article in the Buffalo Standard copied from the Pioneer Press, headed "Philippine Revenue" it is claimed that "the Philippines are destined to be a source of considerable revenue from the moment the Aguinaldo rebellion is crushed." It is stated that custom receipts from the date of American occupation till July 31, 1899, was $5,230,598, and after deducting expenses, (except for army) the balance was $1,876,530. What do they want to kill the inhabitants all off for then? Didn't the patriotic young American nation declare its right to independence on the ground that taxation without representation would not be submitted to? Why then should not our free and independent Republic allow others the same privilege we fought for?

CANDIDATES for the Vice Presidency of the United States ought to be men as capable, if possible, of being President, as are the candidates themselves for that high and honorable position. There is no excuse in this free and independent country, with its thousands of good men, for a party to nominate a good man for President and a money bag and its owner for his running mate, except it be to buy votes, to influence men with a weakness for money to support the party. What the people of this enlightened age want for a ticket for President and Vice President is not one man and a mate, about which the less said the better for the party, but men, two good men, either of whom is capable of being President. Men whose opinions are known, and who are known as men of integrity and worth, who will fearlessly and without favor discharge their duties to the best of their abilities. Let both parties endeavor to put forward their best men for the offices of President and Vice President.

Prof. Holms on the Philippines.

(By wire from Chicago, Sept. 7.)

E. Burton Holmes has returned from Manila with many stories of the Orient, anecdotes on tent and trench, and reflections on the assumption of the "white man's burden." He was accompanied by five trunks and four cameras laden with curios and photographs and forming what Mr. Holmes regards as an epitome of the manners, customs, history, tradition and military situation in the Philippines.

The troops are being worn out by countless false alarms," said he. "In the middle of the night there comes the call to turn out and defend the works. In a moment the camp is in turmoil with the men marching into the trenches. No enemy is to be seen, but the 'ping' of many bullets is heard overhead. The enemy does not advance, but preserves the mystery of its movements with an occasional shot throughout the long night. The men are kept on the alert in the damp trenches, where an enemy more fearful than soldiers besieges them -fever. That is the way the Filipinos are winning their victories. It is slow but they know that the rainy season is an unfailing ally.

OFFICERS ARE MERELY TARGETS

"The officers are discouraged and hopeless. Their business consists in nothing more than standing up when commanded that they may be shot at. There is not a bit of glory in it. The Filipinos have another clever method of conducting their campaign. They fight all day till they are brown with dust and red with blood, and then they retreat to a village and don spotless white clothes and come forth smiling to meet the Americans with 'amigo' (friend) on their lips. They are not molested, and pass through the ranks to appear the next day in their fighting regimentals and conduct a well planned attack on the rear guard."

Of the conduct of the campaign, Mr. Holmes refused to offer an opinion. He said he went to the Philippines to study the country and the people, the background of the drama which is being exacted within the lines.

"I saw little of Gen. Otis," he said. "Once at a luncheon he dropped in, but left early on account of fatigue. He is an overworked man. I paid no attention to military procedure, and am utterly unable to express an opinion concerning it."

Mr. Holmes sailed on May 8 for Hong Kong. He stopped a few days there and then went to Manila, arriving there on June 13. "On arriving at Manila," said he, "the traveler goes to the Oriente hotel, and there melancholia and starvation stare him in the face. It is impossible to get a good meal in the city for love or money. If missionaries ever needed to be sent to a barbarous land, the big catering establishments in this country should send cooks to Manila. I was unfit for sightseeing until I had become a member of an officers' mess, that of Col. Page. The English were enjoying a bonanza before the battle of Manila, for they were much sharper than the Spanish, but now there has appeared the hustling Yankee, with whom no nationality can compete. The fact that the English do not welcome these enterprising invaders is evident on every hand. —Minneapolis Tribune.

Ten New and Original Songs Which Can Be Had Free.

What will the great metropolitan papers do next? This is the question some one asks nearly every day. But there is one which leads all others. It has gained the sobriquet of "America's Greatest Newspaper" by just such remarkable pieces of enterprise as the one which has just now attracted the attention of the press all over the country.

Last week the New York Sunday World announced that it would give away an album of new and original music, consisting of ten of the up to date class of songs that are now so popular, such as songs of sentiment, "coon" songs, "cakewalks," &c. These ten songs the Sunday World proposes to distribute one each week, with every copy of the Sunday World. When it is considered that the average price of new music, written and composed by popular authors, is from 30 to 45 cents, the unparalleled enterprise of The World in giving the song away with a big Sunday newspaper, for which only 5 cents is charged, is apparent. The World requests that we publish the following announcement:

A music Album free. From Sept. 3 to Nov. 5, the Sunday World will issue weekly a song in sheet music form, with handsome colored cover. The entire set will be mailed, postage paid, for 50 c. Remittances received after Sept 3 will get the back numbers and each new number issued. Besides the song, The World will also send its colored Art Portfolio, which is a marvel of journalism; its Sunday Magazine, which equals the monthly periodicals, and its Comic Weekly, which excels every comic weekly in the United States except two, and in its comic scope equals these two ten cent publications.

Write a postal card to the Sunday World Music Editor, Pulitzer Building, N. Y., for a list of the songs.

Prosperity, War, Finances, Slavery, Army and Navy.

Some say we are in the midst of prosperity and to all outward appearance there seems a greater activity in business than there was one year ago, but in my judgement the present business boom is not of a healthy growth, or is more of a mushroom variety. For instance all industries of every grade and variety almost are forming trusts and combines to the detriment of the laboring man and producing class. All kinds of goods are going up. Building material of all kinds have taken such an advance in price that many who intended to build during the present year have given it up, and say they can not afford it. During the spring and summer there has been more farm machinery sold than ever before, with no prospect of an advance in farm produce. Most all this farm machinery was bought on time; the farmer giving his note with promise to pay, and interest at the rate of 7 per cent. We also have upon our hands a tropical war which is putting our nation millions upon millions in debt, and the people must pay the freight. A year from now by limitation we will have on our hands another presidential campaign. And if the next Congress passes the McCleary bill (which I think they intend to do) making gold the only money of redemption, doing away with greenbacks, treasury notes, etc, and making national banks, banks of issue, furnishing the currency of the country, then we are hopelessly lost and will come the greatest financial crises of the century. We are a great nation and have a grand and glorious country, but we can ruin ourselves by unwise and unjust legislation, by foolishness, frivolity and imbecility. It seems we are putting ourselves in the same condition as did the children of Israel, when in the land of Egypt. Owing to missmanagement they first had to sell their personal property, then their lands, their wives, their children and themselves into servitude, in order to live. And they served them 400 years. But I have an abiding faith that this thing may not come upon us, and yet at times I fear such may be the case.

For a Republican form of government our people are too sectarian, stick to party and creed, while financially they are going to rack and ruin, and sharpers are taking the spoils right before our eyes. Some say we need a large standing army and a navy that will girdle the earth. We do not need them. When we have them we will be constantly at war with some other people. Many of our people want to form this into an aristocratic government, governed by a military and high dignitaries and have it a limited monarchy. Every year we are becoming more of man worshipers.

While Dewey, as an officer was all right, yet we do not believe in people making fools of themselves over him, but they are doing that very thing. They have collected 50,000 dimes from 50,000 people to buy Admiral Dewey a silver loving cup six feet high; so when he drinks out of it he must stand up for he can not sit down.

Mr. Dewey is just a man and nothing more. He is no God Better take this money and give it to the poor. This foolish war has caused many foolish things to be done and will cause many more. For many years after the war of the Rebellion our people were glad. We were at peace with all mankind. The horrors of war were yet fresh in their mind and they were glad to get rid of the evils of war. But it has been a generation since Grant and Lee stood hands at Appomatox and signed the stipulation of peace. And we find ourselves engaged in a war again 10,000 miles away in a tropical climate, fighting a breech clout, mongrel race of people who never done us any harm, and our government sacrificing many lives and much money to carry on a war for conquest. If this ever becomes a popular war in the minds of the people then we will have become as the Romans. No matter: all wars are popular. Put sink or swim, live or die, I am for the gold dollar, is the motto. No more E Pluribus Unum.

THE PETTED SNAKE

By P. Y. Black.

WHEN Ralph was sent out to learn the intricacies of the coffee planting business in Ceylon, years ago, he was duly grateful to his guardians for finding a career for him, but was slightly dubious himself as to whether he would care much for that sort of thing.

He studied books about the place and read of panthers, elephants, elk and snakes living in profusion there. He felt somewhat alarmed, being, you know, merely a harmless, studious youth of some 17 years old, who had not the slightest desire to kill an elephant, so long as the elephant did not want to kill him.

Ralph had one particular servant, whom he had to engage and pay himself —De Silva, a Cingalese. The other help came from the coolie lines of the estate, and, after their day's work, used to retire to their huts. When dinner in the evening was over De Silva used to retire also. Where he retired to Ralph never inquired.

At any rate, after the day's work was done, unless he was invited to dine with the periadore, Ralph was utterly alone, with no white man nearer than the big bungalow, 1½ miles away, down the mountain.

He used to sit and try to read the magazines sent out to him, and his books, but the terrible silence of the mountains—welcome to an older man—frightened him.

That silence would be broken sometimes by a furious tom-tom orgie at the huts of the coolies, or the long wail of a native woman, mourning her dead child, or, again, by a sudden tropical thunderstorm, with such crashes of thunder echoing among the mountains, and such torrents of rain as filled the boy's timid soul with terror.

It was in the midst of one such storm, when the reading lamp was low, and it was near midnight, that Ralph, longing for a companion, for some one to talk to, looked up and saw Magog. Ralph gave one tremendous howl and rushed out through the back door to seek De Silva. De Silva was placidly asleep on the couch he had chosen for that night —a shelf just, one would think, broad enough for the crockery it was intended to hold. Still, De Silva looked comfortable.

"A cobra!" yelled Ralph, pulling the cook down on the floor without regard to his feelings. "A cobra! A snake! A serpent! A monster!"

the ceiling cloth" (in old bungalows whitewashed canvas, often cracking at the walls, is stretched beneath the rafters, and looks just like an ordinary ceiling), "and was coming at me!"

De Silva looked at Ralph reproachfully, and at his shelf bed regretfully.

"O, honorable dore," said he, "it is Magog. Did you not know? It is the special friend and protector of my last honorable dore. No cobra—no, dore. Only one great, beautiful, much to be caressed ratsnake, Magog."

So De Silva went with his young master into the bungalow and introduced him to Magog—the snake. Magog hung just as Ralph had described him, half way down the wall, a great, fat, black snake, with quiet, steady, watchful eyes on the room. It hung ready, at a flash of dread, to draw itself up above the ceiling cloth and disappear in its lair there beneath the bamboo thatch, where it hunted the rats, which fought with it for a home.

"No Magog," said De Silva, explaining, "then too many rats and mice."

In fact, Magog was the house cat.

De Silva took a saucer and filled it with cocoanut milk and placed it on the floor in Magog's corner. Ralph shuddered when he saw the reptile slither to the ground, evidently feeling quite secure, and suck up the milk. De Silva smiled.

"Wait, honorable sir," said he, "and I will, with your honorable favor, bring him a dinner. It may be that the gods have not seen fit to give him rats."

The cook came back with a little squirming puppy, its eyes not yet open.

"Don't!" Ralph cried, but the snake had already darted for the little beast, swallowed it, gorged it. Ralph could see its undulous body distend.

"Kill it—kill it!" Ralph cried, and De Silva looked at him with extreme sorrow and some contempt.

"No, dore," said he, "it was my last honorable dore's treasure. The honorable sir said it was the luck of the bungalow—I say right in English? Yes? The luck of the bungalow. It was his treasure. Do not kill it."

The snake lapped up the rest of the milk, and in a twinkling slithered away again. De Silva went back to his shelf, and Ralph went to bed.

But he could not sleep. Above his head that night and every night he could hear the scamper of rats on the ceiling cloth, and after them the rush of the snake, and then a faint, forlorn squeak, and he knew that Magog was doing his duty as a colonial house cat. The snake may have been doing his duty, but Ralph could not bear the thought of its nearness. He tried to conquer the feeling, but he couldn't.

Poor Magog, used to being petted by its last master, would peer out from the ceiling cloth for hours in the evening, while Ralph was trying to read, and Ralph would look up from his books and see its black head and quiet, watchful eyes, and be horrified. Between its noise by night in the roof and its presence in the evening, Ralph grew so nervous that, in spite of De Silva's warning and wishes, he tried to kill the snake.

He sat one evening at his table with a revolver in hand, and when Magog appeared as usual, he took fair aim and fired. The bullet went into the wall; Magog withdrew like a flash. De Silva came rushing.

"I think I hit the brute," said Ralph, and pointed to a spot of blood on the whitewashed wall.

"O! honorable dore," said De Silva, superstitious as his kind, "it was the luck of the bungalow—say I it right? My last dore said Magog was the luck of the bungalow."

And he went away to his kitchen a-sorrowing, but Ralph felt as if he had done a good deed and rid the world of a hideosity.

No more came Magog to plague the young sinnadore. For many nights the rats scampered over the ceiling cloth without any pursuer. Ralph, in his lonely evenings, looked at the vacant crack and congratulated himself.

"I must have killed the horrid brute," said he, "and a good job, too. Probably the rats avenged themselves by eating him."

So the young sinnadore rested and told, when he was at the periadore's bungalow for dinner, how he had made a marvelously good shot at the snake and ridded himself of an intolerable nuisance.

"You oughtn't to have done that," said the periadore," smoking his cheroot and smiling upon the boy.

"Why not? I hate snakes—I abhor them."

"Maybe, but they have their uses," said the periadore. "I'll kill a cobra or tic-polonga quick as anybody, but I would not kill a harmless ratsnake, which is poisonless, and which, my lad, has been cleaning out the rats and mice from your bungalow for years. To put it mildly (it was not only cruel, but a mistake. Marigold, your predecessor, cherished old Magog. He used to tell me the brute was boss of the house, and that if Magog were not there the rats would make his life not worth living."

"Yes, but the beast was so familiar—coming out at dinner to hang there—asking for milk—ugh!"

"All right, old chap," said the periadore; "it's your bungalow, not mine."

Within a week of the night when Ralph shot at the snake, there came one of those tumultuous rainstorms which are never seen anywhere except in the tropical rainy seasons.

Try and picture to yourself the day of judgment, with the whole heavens tumbling in, like a falling roof, on top of you, with all the navies of the world firing turret guns at you, with all the lightning of the skies concentrating upon you, with not a soul, white or black, near you, without a single tongue to cry "Here!" when your tongue cries "Help!" without a hand to reach out to touch yours—try and picture yourself a scene like that, and you have some idea of the tempest in which Ralph one lonely night in his bungalow on the mountain went to bed and slept—slept, utterly tired out from working up the mountain with the periadore and the coolies to strengthen the dam which guided the hill stream from its natural path to irrigate the low-lying land.

Ralph's bedroom was off the sitting room, under the same ceiling cloth, and his bed lay close to the wall. He was utterly tired, but he dreamed, and in his dream somehow Magog the snake was mixed up.

He dreamed the snake was following him revengefully; he dreamed it came up to him, running; he dreamed it caught him; he dreamed that he fell down; he dreamed that the snake coiled and struck at his chest. He woke up with the yell of nightmare—half choked, horrible. And it was true! As he awoke, Magog, the great snake, dropping from the ceiling, fell on him and swiftly glided away out of the door.

Ralph was on his feet instantly, and found himself drenched in perspiration. For a moment he could not understand. Then, above the noise of the thunder, above the crash of the rain he heard another sound. He heard the roar of released waters, the roar of great rocks and tons of earth coming slipping, sliding, dashing down the mountain—a landslide. And Ralph knew that his bungalow was right in the path of the escaped waters.

He was out of the place in his pajamas just in time to reach high land and see his bungalow swept away. De Silva stood beside him, shivering and praying.

"Ah! honorable sir," said De Silva, "I told you, you killed the luck of the bungalow; Magog, the snake."

"I did not," cried the trembling boy. "It lived and warned me, or I should be dead now."

But Magog was seen no more.—Boston Globe.

Unbounded Fame.

"Was he a famous man?"

"Famous! Why, my dear sir, they're even talking of naming a new bicycle after him."—Tit-Bits.

The claims turned out well and made them all, including Mr. Turner, millionaires.

The average American has probably overlooked the fact that our government has one warship in course of construction in a foreign country. She is the Albany, at Sir William Armstrong's yards in England. This vessel was purchased more than a year ago, or about the same time that the cruiser New Orleans was bought, but after the early termination of the Spanish war work on her was not hastened. She is to be delivered before the end of 1899.

Prof. R. H. Thurston, of Boston, rises to explain that the automobile, or self-moving carriage, for street purposes, antedates the locomotives and was suggested by Sir Isaac Newton as early as 1680. Of course all the early self-propelled carriages were driven by steam, but over 20 are said to have been running in London in 1883, and it seems that they were quite common for several years, until the fierce opposition of the stage coach proprietors brought about overmuch legal regulations of these vehicles, which finally regulated them out of use.

The new religious law which has gone into effect in Japan requires that before beginning religious work propagators of a faith must go before a governor with full details. They must fully explain the scheme of faith, and if at any time any change occurs in any of the tenets the preacher in charge must go to the governor for permission. The lot of the local Japanese governors is likely to be an unhappy one when the missionaries representing the various denominations of the Christian church ask them to grasp the mysteries of all the differing creeds.

INSURGENTS SHELL A TOWN.

Filipinos Fail in an Attempt to Drive Americans from Angeles—Important Stronghold Captured.

Manila, Sept. 4.—The insurgents made an unsuccessful attempt early Saturday morning to drive Col. Smith's command out of Angeles with artillery, the first time they attempted to use this arm for months. They brought two krupp guns from Porac and fired eight shrapnels at the town at dawn. Only a few of the shells exploded, and, the aim of the gunners being bad, no damage was done. Lieut. Kenley's guns of the First artillery were brought into action immediately and soon drove the enemy from their position.

At 4:30 o'clock Sunday morning a small party of insurgents fired on Guagua, which is held by two companies of the Ninth regiment of infantry, supported by the gunboat Laguna de Bay. One native resident was wounded. The enemy was driven off by infantry fire and the guns of the gunboat.

Manila, Sept. 4.—Argogula, the most impregnable stronghold of the bands which have been destroying plantations and levying tribute on the people of Negros, was taken Tuesday by the Sixth infantry, under Lieut. Col. Byrne. The only means of reaching the town was up an almost perpendicular hill covered with dense shrubbery and 1,000 feet high. The Americans accomplished this under fire, and an officer and several men were hit and rocks were rolled down upon them. The native strength was estimated at 400. Many of the insurgents were wounded and captured and 21 were killed. The American forces captured a quantity of stores and destroyed the fortifications.

Late Sunday afternoon the Kansas regiment embarked on big barges in the river and were towed to the United States transport Tartar, the regimental flag flying and the men cheering and singing. The Tartar sailed for home in the evening.

REPORT OF SCHURMAN.

Washington, Sept. 5.—The cabinet Monday was in session for more than two hours and a variety of matters which have accumulated during the president's absence were discussed.

It is understood that Mr. Schurman takes a hopeful view of the situation in the Philippines and has no doubt that with our increased forces we will be able to make comparatively short work of Aguinaldo and the insurgent forces. He stated that although Aguinaldo is the leader of a very strong faction of the natives he does not by any means fairly represent the entire population, a considerable number appearing to be more or less indifferent as to the outcome of the rebellion.

Mr. Schurman's views are valuable to the president, mainly as they relate to the future government of the islands after peace has been established. He is not supposed to know anything of the military situation. President McKinley is depending entirely upon Gen. Otis for a report on that phase of the question. One of his intimate friends says, though, that Mr. Schurman favors the government of the Philippines by a commission after peace has been restored—a commission somewhat similar to that which governs the District of Columbia. He would not admit that much, but private letters recently received here indicate that he has this idea in mind.

The commission which he is understood to favor is to consist of three members—one army officer to look after the insular fiscal affairs, a navy officer to have charge of the customs, and the third a leading Filipino of legal training to take charge of judicial affairs—the whole to have entire control of the whole archipelago, and be responsible to the president and congress.

RIOTERS ARRESTED.

Foreign Workmen Throw Stones at Street Cars in Cleveland and Ten of Them Are Arrested.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 2.—Another riot broke out on Central avenue near Giddings avenue. A small torpedo exploded under the wheels of a Central avenue car and a large crowd of foreign workingmen assembled. They soon began to throw stones at the passing cars. Stones were thrown at a patrolman who ordered them to disperse, and after fighting his way through a crowd he telephoned for help. Officers responded and charged the crowd and clubbed it severely. As the rioters broke away the police made ten arrests. During the rioting the crews of several street cars that passed fired revolvers over the heads of the mob. With two exceptions the prisoners are foreigners, scarcely able to speak English.

Tragedy in Chicago.

Chicago, Sept. 4.—Henry Emde, a carpenter, shot and killed his wife and mortally wounded his five-year-old daughter Hilda while they were in bed at their home in the lower flat at 358 West Belmont avenue at an early hour Sunday morning. Then he killed himself by cutting the blood vessels in his forehead and wrists with a pair of scissors and hanging himself to the top hinge of the kitchen door. In a letter written in German, the last sentence of which is dated at two p. m., Emde said that he would kill his wife because she had continually tried to make trouble for him: that he had tried to starve her, so that she would leave him, and that the privation had been worse on the three children than on her.

Coal Interests Unite.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 1. — The Pittsburgh rail-coal mine combination has been formed. The new corporation is the Pittsburgh Coal company, and its capital stock is $64,000,000. It owns the coal properties of 104 of the 107 individuals and firms in the business, has practically absolute control of the docks and coal-loading plants on the great lakes and has a monopoly on all the outlets to the coal markets of the east, west and northwest.

More Aid Needed.

New York, Sept. 5.—The Central Porto Rican relief committee has issued another appeal to the people of the United States on behalf of the sufferers from the hurricane. The appeal declares that $1,500,000 will be required to procure for the destitute bare necessities of life.

INTERESTING TESTIMONY.

Most Important Features of the Dreyfus Court-Martial at Rennes.

Rennes, Sept. 4.—The interest in the Dreyfus court-martial Saturday centered in the testimony of Maj. Hartmann, of the artillery, which was interrupted by the adjournment of the court Friday. The major, who has done great service for the defense, resumed his important deposition regarding artillery matters and the bringing out of points and phraseology in the bordereau indicating that the writer could not be Dreyfus.

In response to questions from Maitre Labori and M. Demange, counsel for the defense, Maj. Hartmann said any officer attending the Chalons camp could have obtained sufficient information to write notes on the covering of troops and Madagascar matters.

An interesting witness was Mr de Fond-Lamotte, a former officer of artillery, who testified that in 1894 Col. Picquart lent him a firing manual which he might have kept as long as he pleased.

"So," the witness added, "there was little secrecy at that time. Any officer could have obtained one in August, 1894. Another point in favor of Dreyfus is that no probationer could have believed in 1894 that he would go to the maneuvers."

"If, as at first asserted, the bordereau was dated May," the witness argued, "Dreyfus could not have written 'I am going to the maneuvers,' because a circular was issued in May informing the probationers that they would not go to the maneuvers, while if the bordereau was dated in April, as now asserted, Dreyfus could not have spoken of the firing manual, which was only printed at the end of May."

Gens. Mercier and Roget then went on the stage and confronted M. de Fond-Lamotte and a heated discussion ensued.

Gen. Roget was greatly excited during the foregoing scene, but M. de Fond-Lamotte did not flinch. He retorted quickly to all the general's observations. The two men glared at one another and once Gen. Roget addressed M. de Fond-Lamotte in such a bullying fashion that the audience hooted him.

Rennes, Sept. 5.—Monday's session of the Dreyfus court-martial opened rather badly for Capt. Dreyfus, as a surprise was sprung upon the defense in the advent of an Austrian political refugee, Eugene Cernuschi, who came out with a flat-footed denunciation of the accused.

Cernuschi's testimony, which was in the form of a letter to the president of the court-martial, Col. Jouaust, was most unequivocal. He claimed that on three different occasions, twice in France and once at Geneva, he was told by a high-placed foreign officer that Dreyfus had communicated treasonable documents to a foreign power. In the third instance Cernuschi and the officer showed him documents emanating from Dreyfus, and that this officer left France hurriedly two days prior to the arrest of Capt. Dreyfus. The allusion was evidently to Col. Schwartzkoppen, the military attache of the German embassy in Paris in 1894, whose movements were coincident with those described as the movements of the officer of Cernuschi's deposition.

This introduction of a foreigner as a witness for the prosecution gave M. Labori an opportunity to submit the most important request he has made throughout the trial, a request which, if granted by Col. Jouaust, though this is extremely doubtful, would certainly have momentous consequences. M. Labori announced his intention, in view of the step taken by the prosecution in calling foreign evidence, to ask that inquiry should be made through the regular diplomatic channels as to whether the documents mentioned in the bordereau were actually communicated, and if so, by whom. This involves an application to the German government, which the court-martial is scarcely likely to approve. In any case the application means the lengthening of the trial for several weeks.

Vienna, Sept. 5.—Eugene Cernuschi, who testified at the Dreyfus court-martial at Rennes, France, Monday, is not connected with the Servian royal family, as claimed. His real name is Haducek. He is very eccentric and some doctors have pronounced him a lunatic.

DEADLY BOILER EXPLOSIONS.

Three Men Are Killed at Copemish, Mich., and Five at Pittsburgh, Pa.

Manistee, Mich., Sept. 2.—The boiler in Chapman & Sargent's bowl factory at Copemish, 30 miles north of here, exploded, killing three men and fatally injuring four others. The dead are: Charles Handy, Perry Melafont and George Estabrook. Fatally injured: Oliver Sanders, Robert Peterson, Charles Taylor and Howard Ketcham.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 2.—A boiler explosion at the Republic iron works on South Twenty-fourth street, shortly before daylight, killed five men and seriously injured seven others. Fire which broke out following the explosion added to the horror. The mill was partly wrecked and the entire plant was compelled to close down.

Call for W. C. T. U. Meeting.

Chicago, Sept. 4.—Officers of the National Woman's Christian Temperance union have issued a call for the twenty-sixth annual convention of the organization in Seattle, Wash., October 20-25. The call, which is signed by the president, Mrs. Lillian M. N. Stevens, and Susanna M. D. Fay, the corresponding secretary, recalls the success of last year's gathering at St. Paul and predicts an even more momentous meeting this year.

Seven Lives Lost.

Halifax, N. S., Sept. 5.—A sailboat was sunk Monday night near the mouth of Halifax harbor and seven lives were lost, the victims all belonging to this city. There were 11 persons in the boat and four were saved. Those drowned are: Robert Dawdson, wife and three unmarried sisters; W. Hamilton, employed in the city clerk's office; John E. Hancock, a steamship checker.

Transport Ashore.

Kobe, Japan, Sept. 4.—The United States transport Morgan City has been wrecked near a small town called Onomichi, which is located on the inland sea. The vessel was bound for Manila and had nearly 1,000 recruits on board for the American commander in the Philippines.

BUSINESS IS GOOD.

The Magnitude of the Demand Is Astonishing, and High Prices Fail to Check It.

New York, Sept. 2.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: "The astonishing feature is the magnitude of demand, notwithstanding prices which would ordinarily check it. In products directly consumed by individuals, the larger employment and better wages of the working force give explanation. Efforts to meet the demand call for more stores, manufacturing works and machinery and facilities for transportation, as if every man's wages were in part diverted to build up the nation's machinery of manufacturing and distribution. The occasion promises quick profits, the building is largely for the future, and it goes on in spite of unusual prices.

"Wheat has declined, mainly because reports of injury in the northwest have been discredited, and the exports from both coasts have been for the week 3,010,019 bushels, against 2,785,759 last year. The enormous exports of corn, 20,802,129 bushels, against 10,999,483 in the same weeks last year, and the western receipts, 19,722,483 bushels, against 19,620,737 last year, are not to be forgotten, and have caused a decline of 1 cent in prices."

Bradstreet's says: "With an exceptionally heavy business already booked for the latter portion of the year, the mercantile community faces the trade situation with confidence, testified to by very generally firm prices and with quotations in a number of lines showing further marked advances. The most conspicuous exception to this is found in cereals, which are weak and declining. Lower prices for wheat, corn and oats point to speculative liquidation of tired holders, who, with confidence in the future of prices, have weakened under unsatisfactory foreign demand, larger receipts and the near approach of expected heavier crop movement.

"Business failures for the week are the smallest reported for a long time, numbering only 131, as compared with 154 last week, 164 in this week a year ago, 198 in 1897, 336 in 1896 and 184 in 1895."

REVOLUTIONISTS SUCCESSFUL.

President Figuereo of Santo Domingo Resigns and Provisional Government Is Formed.

Cape Haytien, Hayti, Sept. 1.—News just received here confirms the report that President Figuereo, of the Dominican republic has abdicated. It is added that he abdicated in favor of Jimenes.

Santo Domingo, Sept. 2.—The revolutionists have formed the following provisional government:

President, Horacio Vasquez.
Minister of the interior, Jose Brache.
Minister of war, Ramon Cacceres.
Minister of foreign affairs, Domingo Ferreras.
Minister of finance, Samuel Moya.
Minister of justice, Jose Ma Noel.
Minister of agriculture, Arturo Zeno.
Minister of posts and telegraphs, Jose Fro Guzman.

The seat of the provisional government, up to the present, has been at Moca.

Henriquez has resigned and it is supposed that the other ministers will do the same.

Cape Haytien, Hayti, Sept. 2.—On receipt of a telegram from Jimenes, leader of the revolution in Santo Domingo, saying he has been set at liberty and is leaving Santiago de Cuba for Puerto Plata, Gen. Imbert, the actual governor of Puerto Plata, has announced that Jimenes will soon arrive at Puerto Plata. The whole country, it is added, is awaiting his arrival, and the population is calm.

WAR SEEMS CERTAIN.

In the Transvaal Every Boer Is Arming and Preparing to Strike Unexpected Blow.

London, Sept. 2.—The Pretoria correspondent of the Morning Post says: "President Kruger told a prominent Boer Wednesday that war was 'practically certain.' Every Boer is now armed with a mauser and has a hundred rounds of ammunition, strictly for future use, with 40 rounds for practice. I am convinced that the reports of the Boers not being prepared are only a pretense and that they will strike a blow when it is least expected."

Washington, Sept. 2. — Action has been taken by the state department for the protection of Americans and their interests in the Transvaal in case of war between Great Britain and the Boer republic.

London, Sept. 5.—The Johannesburg correspondent of the Daily Mail, who paints a gloomy and pitiable picture of the condition of things there, says:

"It is almost a case of absolute exodus and panic. Business is paralyzed, the prices of foodstuffs are rapidly rising, half the houses are empty, and the others are tenanted by people who do not pay rent, the landlords being glad enough to have them as occupants in order to insure some sort of protection to the property. The tension has reached the snapping point. Bankruptcy and starvation are staring people in the face. Another fortnight of suspense will result in a complete commercial collapse. The banks are thronged with people anxious to withdraw their gold, and the railways are besieged by those who wish to get away."

Dewey at Gibraltar.

Gibraltar, Sept. 5.—The United States cruiser Olympia, Admiral Dewey's flagship, arrived in Gibraltar bay shortly after nine o'clock Monday morning. The admiral landed at noon, and being met by a carriage sent by the governor, Commander in Chief Sir Robert Biddulph, he drove at once to the palace to pay his respects to Sir Robert. The admiral was received with full military honors, a battalion of Grenadier guards accompanying him to the palace. The admiral is somewhat indisposed and will rest ashore until September 11, the day set for the departure for New York.

Allowed to Land.

Washington, Sept. 1.—Commissioner General Powderly, of the immigration bureau, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, has issued an order allowing 66 of the 68 Filipinos recently arrived at San Francisco to be landed on the acceptance of a bond of $500 in each case, conditioned upon their not becoming a public charge. The two who were refused a landing are said to be afflicted with a loathsome disease.

Hold-Up Near Lincoln.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 2.—An unverified report of a hold-up on the Peoria, Decatur & Evansville railroad was received here. The night passenger train was held up by masked robbers at the coal mine near Lincoln, 28 miles north of Springfield. It is reported that one of the robbers was shot by a train man and killed. No details of the affair can be obtained at this time.

Big Strike Begun.

Philadelphia, Sept. 1.—The labor troubles at the William Cramp & Sons' ship and engine building works came to a crisis when the machinists and blacksmiths decided to go out. This was at once met by the Cramps, who issued a notice saying that the works would be closed for ten days. About 5,500 men are affected.

VERY OBLIGING.

He Was Willing to Give the Volcanic Vocalist a Good Hard Shove.

The young man who sings loud and long was interrupted by a tap at the door of his apartment.

"Excuse me," said the tall, thin stranger, "I am sorry to intrude. I occupy the flat under you, and I have come up to inquire if you are the gentleman who sings ballads."

"Yes," was the answer, with the air of a man who is modest, but cannot deny the truth. "Are you fond of music?"

"I don't know that I am what you would call fond of it. At the same time I haven't anything particular against it. I am very much affected by some things I hear."

"That amounts to the same thing as being fond of it," was the answer, in a tone of soothing encouragement.

"I have been wondering if I caught the words of your favorite song correctly. Let me see:

"'How often, oh, how often,
Have I wished that the ebbing tide
Would bear me away on its bosom
To the ocean wild and wide.'

Is that right?"

"Yes; it's all right, according to my recollection. Is that one of the pieces you are affected by?"

"Yes. I have been affected by that for hours at a time. It has drawn me irresistibly to you. It has filled me with a yearning to do something that would make you happier. And I called up to say that if you'll come down to the river with me any evening I'll pay your car fare and hire a boat and give you a good start on the first ebbing tide scheduled. And I don't mind saying that the further out it bears you the better I'll be satisfied."—Washington Star.

STORY SOUNDED WELL.

But There Was Reason to Believe That It Was Not Wholly True.

"When I first went west," tells a retired business man, who now does nothing in the way of work except to mow the lawn and see that the cat is in the barn at night, "this maimed hand saved my life."

"Is that so?" asked the visiting neighbor, who knew that this form of invitation would be sufficient to insure the story.

"Yes, that's right. If I hadn't lost that first finger when I was a boy I wouldn't be here now. Jim Dixon and me were tradin' with the Indians. We exchanged beads, fake jewelry and bright calico for furs. All the buffalo were not gone then and we did a good business. One time we happened to strike a wandering band of savages that held us up on sight and it was plain from the way the red devils danced around us that we were to be put to death after the Indian fashion. All at once I recalled that a good many of the Indians knew me as the 'four-fingered' trader who was always on the level with those wild merchants, so I held up the hand and kept it up till one of the young bucks let out a significant grunt and then hurried to the chief in command. He came to me in a dignified manner, examined the hand, grunted about 16 times while deliberating, said 'How,' and released me as well as my partner. We were treated right up to the handle and permitted to depart when we wanted to. It was the closest squeak and the worst scare I had out in that country when near calls and heart-failure frights were the rule."

"Brave man," said one neighbor to another, as they walked away.

"Yes, regular big injun, if you accept all he tells. Between me and you he lost that finger two years ago while examining a hay cutter."—Detroit Free Press.

"REMEMBER THE GRADES"

GOVERNOR LIND'S REMINDER OF THE PEOPLES' SLOGAN.

Collapse of the Republican Movement to Discredit Minnesota's Wheat Crop—Republican Crippling of the Dairy and Food Department — Vice Chairman Stone's Sub-Committee Appointments. State and National Potpourri—The Ohio Democrats—Mr. Towne's Home Coming—He May Return With Senator Jones—Congressman Fletcher as a Single-Baser—Emperor McKinley and "Lord North" Hanna—Note and Comment of the Week.

Reform Press Bureau.
ST. PAUL, Sept. 4, 1899.

The campaign slogan, "Remember the Grades," has rung out again all over the state, in the notice Governor Lind felt impelled to take, of false charges of partisanship in the grain department in his reply to The Pioneer Press.

The opportunity was, to be sure, afforded by The Pioneer, but its attack was only a part of the set purpose of the Twin City Republican press to discredit the administration, which it would do, even though it injured the whole credit of Minnesota in its base partisan purpose. From the moment that Gov. Lind's purpose of carrying out the reforms on the pledge of which he was elected, was apparent, that press seized on the changes necessary to carry out those pledges, namely, the retirement of those responsible for past administration, (they being Republicans in every instance) to raise the cry that partisanship was to rule, regardless of the qualifications of the men selected in the places of those retired. In each and every selection made, from the time of Clausen's retirement, strict attention has been given to the qualifications of the appointees. The general public is well aware that signally able men, men of character for honesty as well as ability, but more than all, men in sympathy with the purposes of the administration, have been called to the tasks by Governor Lind. Absolutely the only grounds of complaint are that other than Republicans have been selected. The theory that only men of that political faith can be found to inspect and weigh or judge grain, is simply nonsense.

The partisan cry also was used, and will be used, for another purpose, namely to hide the basely partisan use to which the Republicans all these years prostituted the grain department. Some of this, and especially the nepotism, or appointment of relatives, has been pointed out. More is coming, and soon. Suffice it to say, that the grain department, as the list of office holders and Republican workers will show, has simply been a Republican machine, and if the complete evidence does not also prove that it has been prostituted to the interests of the grain gamblers, many will be, for the good name of the state, agreeably disappointed.

"Remember the Grades," covers all the forms of wrongdoing of which our producers have complained for years—short weights, excessive dockage, arbitrary change of grades, (confessed to by Clausen), and especially the evils and outrages of the "mixing houses," which were so forcibly presented by Governor Lind. The people needed no re-assurance from Governor Lind that he remembers, and will continue to "Remember the Grades," but the people can show their appreciation of such reassurance by loyally and cordially approving and upholding this great work of his hands, and this they are doing all over the state.

While we "Remember the Grades," we are also called on to remember the late Republican legislature in its refusal to make adequate appropriations for maintenance of the Dairy and Food department, as a result of which neglect, which was chiefly because the department had passed out of Republican control, Dairy Commissioner Bowler is obliged constantly to reduce operations of the department. The withdrawal of the Minneapolis office is such enforced economy and the application of business principles. It appears that the department, as has formerly been the case, has been four months in collecting the fees due in May, at an expense of $400, to collect about $800. This was not business. But the appropriations do not afford maintaining the Minneapolis department, and the most that can be done is to keep inspectors there daily, where they can be constantly consulted; the dairymen can also reach the St. Paul department by telephone. Commissioner Bowler states that dairymen can send samples to be tested, and there is no necessity for coming to St. Paul, also that probably arrangements can be made next May for receiving the inspection dues at Minneapolis. Meanwhile, as Minnesota is a big state, all the resources which the scanty provision of the Republican legislation afford are needed elsewhere, since a considerable portion of the state has heretofore been absolutely neglected. The department is doing grand work, but is curtailed at every point by inadequate appropriations. The immense importance the dairy interest has become is shown in the following summary:

Number of creameries reporting	673
Number of creamery patrons	53,320
Capital invested	$2,700,000
Cows supplying milk	400,000
Milk received in 1898, pounds	1,382,718,000
Butter made in 1898, pounds	62,849,000
Butter shipped from state in 1898, pounds	50,000,000
Gross receipts in 1898	$10,370,000
Operating expenses in 1898	$1,094,500
Paid patrons in 1898	$8,546,400

The people will hold the Republican party to a strict accountability for crippling this interest.

Vice Chairman Stone of the Democratic national committee has announced the sub-committees provided for at the July meeting. The appointments are especially strong. The executive committee is headed by Hon. J. G. Johnson of Kansas, whom Minnesotans know so favorably, while Hon. John R. McLean of Ohio heads the ways and means committee, and Hon. Clark Howell of Atlanta is chairman of the Press committee. The other personnel of the committees is exceedingly strong. Of course Chairman James K. Jones is ex-officio chairman of all. The committees will probably meet at Chicago as soon as Mr. Bryan returns from California. Senator Jones wrote last from Glasgow, in the most encouraging strain as to his improving health.

Cleveland (O.) coal barons are in the saddle with a $60,000,000 combine. Cleveland should send for young Mayor Gray.

This is Minnesota week. While officials are off for San Francisco to prepare for reception of the Thirteenth the "home folks" are at the fair.

The returning soldier boys are being heard from from on Imperialism. The intelligent rank and file, as fast as interviewed, are found almost to a man opposed to the armed conquest of the Philippines.

Mexico, by aid of a gold bond loan, has increased business activity, the same as large gold product, from Klondike, has aided to set things going in better shape in the United States. Both have added to the money supply, and stimulated business in both countries. Mexico continues to do her business with silver, in fact does two dollars of business with every dollar she gets of gold. And the republican will credit Mexico's prosperity straight up to McKinley.

Minneapolis Tribune:—"The war should have been ended ere this, and would have been had enough men been sent to the Philippines under competent leadership. Those who are responsible for the dragging out of the war are incurring a fearful responsibility."

But what of the responsibility for causing the useless war? What does The Tribune say to that?

National Watchman:—"In 1860 the old Whig party lost its life on account of its double dealing, and the Democratic party went to defeat."

And you are right. There must be no step backward.

The first of the Filipinos, the McKinley crop of new America citizens who are to flock here to cheapen labor, have arrived, admitted by the McKinley commissioner, one renegade Powderly. The first installment is sixty, but a thousand times sixty may be expected, as soon as the McKinley policy ripens, Labor day demonstration this year gives this Filipino feature attention. In former years Chinese labor has cut a figure. Filipino importations will cut more, because, when made American citizens, how are you going to keep them out?

Carpenters and silversmiths are in the first landings of McKinley's Filipinos, here beginning the introduction of "cheap labor" from our colonies.

Ohio Democrats fulfilled every prediction made that they would act wisely and take no step backwards. The platform is most admirable, likewise the candidate, McLean, whose success was long forecast. The following message was wired Mr, McLean from St. Paul:

"Minnesota's regenerated Democracy congratulates that of Ohio on platform and candidate. You must win in November, as Minnesota, in 1898, overturned 40 years of unbroken Republican rule. And we believe Ohio will do so."

Fifty mid-road Populists in Iowa have met and placed a Barker and Donnelly ticket in the field. Assistant Republicans come high, but they have to have 'em.

William Hennery Eustis told Mayor Gray, the other day, what, if he were governor, he would do about the return of the Thirteenth. But William Hennery isn't. In fact he's not. Another's it. That's it. 'Tis fit.

Congressman Fletcher of Hennepin, may be said to be a single baser. He has been east for weeks, and found there but a single prominent Republican opposed to the McKinley Philippine policy. He returned to Minneapolis, and bought a single Thirteenth badge. Many thought that Fletcher would be a single termer, but he slipped through the gimlet hole. Plenty are ready to put up good money now that he has not a single chance of the third term. Nor is this singular.

Hon. C. A. Towne is expected soon from Europe, and it is understood that he will take part in the great campaigns of Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky. He may possibly return with Senator Jones. The latter was last heard from at Glascow and his health was excellent.

On the day that Emperor McKinley announced his Napoleonic purpose of conquest of the Philippines, the New England peace convention was in session in New England, with 3,000 delegates. In that mighty presence a speaker declared that had Admiral Dewey retired from his quarter deck, upon the betrayal of the Filipinos, he would have won plaudits of the world greater than those he enjoyed from his destruction of the Spanish fleet at Manila. Another speaker declared that it was with shame and humiliation that Americans confess that in McKinley they have set up a new George the Third, and a Lord North in the name and fame of Hanna. And both sentiments are correct.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Wheat Grades.

The new state board of grain appeals, at its recent meeting, established the following rules for grading wheat:

Where wheat is "rejected" or marked "no grade," the board saw fit to insist in the rules that there be a definite dockage in the first place, and in the second the assignment of a reason. This, it is hoped, will put a check on a very bad practice. As long as the practice prevailed of assigning no explanation of the "rejected" and "no grade" grading, the shipper was left entirely in the dark as to the character of his crop, and simply received what the Minneapolis or Duluth dealer cared to remit for it. Perhaps the latter might hold the wheat a week and then ship it out as No. 1, and pocket the difference between the price for No. 1 and rejected, while the farmer would be robbed of the difference. This rule in a rainy season will be of immense advantage to the wheat growers of Minnesotat and the Dakotas.

No. 1 Hard Spring Wheat—No. 1 hard spring wheat must be sound, bright and well cleaned, and must be composed mostly of hard Scotch fife and weigh not less than 58 pounds to the measured bushel.

No. 1 Northern Spring Wheat—Must be sound and well cleaned, and must be composed equally of the hard and soft varieties of spring wheat, and weigh not less than 57 pounds to the measured bushel.

No. 2 Northern Spring Wheat—Must be sound; reasonably clean. This grade to include all wheat not suitable for the higher grades on account of smut, barley or too much king heads, cockle and oats, or any other defects, and to weigh not less than 56 pounds to the measured bushel.

No. 3 Spring Wheat—Shall comprise all the inferior shrunken spring wheat weighing not less than 54 pounds to the measured bushel.

Note—Hard, flinty wheat, of good color, containing no appreciable admixture of soft wheat, may be admitted into the grades of No. 2 northern spring wheat and No. 3 spring wheat, provided the test weight of the same is not more thon one pound less than the minimum weight required by the existing rules for said grades, and provided further, that such wheat is in all other respects qualified for admission into such grades.

Rejected Spring Wheat—Shall include all spring wheat not fit for No. 3 wheat.

Note—Wheat containing admixture of rice or goose wheat will in no case grade higher than rejected.

Note—The amount of dirt in all wheat shall be determined by the inspector.

Crop Bulletin of the Weather Bureau.

The weather in the Red River valley has been dry and favorable for the harvest of spring wheat, oats and barley. In the central counties, many report the wheat sprouting in the shocks and the stacks wet from the heavy rains of the previous week. Threshing from the shock has been delayed by the wet condition of the grain. Considerable flax has been cut. Plowing is going on in central and southern counties. Potatoes and corn are doing well; corn is being cut in places where it is the ripest. The apple crop is a very irregular one; a few orchards having full crops, but generally the crop is light.

Bold Burglars.

Mrs. Charles Schultz, of St. Paul, found two burglars in her house early in the morning, and chased one of them nearly two blocks. On returning to her house she found they had taken with them her purse containing $4 and a cloth jacket. Mrs. Schults had risen early and while busy about the house heard a noise in her cellar. She saw a man crawling out of the window and gave chase, but lost him, and on returning found a second robber in her house. He darted through a window and escaped.

IN MANY CITIES.

Labor Day Is Generally Observed Throughout the Land—Thousands Parade in Chicago.

New York, Sept. 5.—Labor day was favored with a bright sun and brisk breeze and thousands took advantage of the fine weather to enjoy a day's outing. Business was practically stopped. In addition to the exchanges and banks all the large department stores were closed. Flags were flying from all the public buildings and in some instances there was a lavish display of bunting. Although there was no united parade of labor organizations, there were lesser parades all over the city.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 5.—The most extensive celebration of Labor day that Cleveland has yet seen occurred Monday. In view of the violence which has attended the street railroad strike trouble was feared during the parade, and as a matter of precaution the entire police force was on duty. No disorder whatever occurred, the only demonstrations made by the marchers being an occasional jeering remark shouted at nonunion street car crews. The day was cool and bright and the streets were thronged. About 6,000 members of labor unions with 14 brass bands were in the procession.

Washington, Sept. 5.—Labor day was very generally observed here. All the government departments and the District offices were closed, as were also practically all of the financial and large business concerns.

Chicago, Sept. 5.—In point of numbers the Labor day parade overshadowed all previous demonstrations on the part of Chicago trades unionists. The total number of marchers, exclusive of bands, was 19,641.

Boston, Sept. 5.—Splendid weather gave the labor men every chance to hold a satisfactory holiday. The parade in the forenoon embraced between 8,000 and 10,000 representatives of organized labor under Chief Marshal John J. Collins.

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 5.—Labor day was appropriately observed in Omaha. A long parade, including all the labor organizations of the city, was formed at ten a. m., and passed through the principal streets of the city to the grounds of the Great American exposition, where addresses were made by local orators, and the day passed in looking over the fair and indulging in various sports and pastimes.

TELL OF THEIR CRIME.

Two Young Men Suspected of Murder of Walter Koeller, in Chicago, Confess to the Police.

Chicago, Sept. 5.—Richard Hoeneck and Herman Hundhausen, who were late Saturday night arrested at Grand Crossing when about to board a train for the east, made sworn confessions to the murder of Walter F. Koeller, a former schoolmate. Revenge was the motive of both—Hoeneck, who did the stabbing, for an alleged part Koeller's father took in a street murder of Hoeneck's brother 13 years ago in Herman, Mo., and for testimony given against Hoeneck by Koeller when the former was on trial for arson; Hundhausen, for some fancied slight while at school with Koeller at Dixon.

Hoeneck said the two called on Koeller Saturday night. When the latter turned to light the gas in his room Hoeneck stabbed him repeatedly. Hurrying to the street, the two went to their room, gathered up their belongings and traveled by street cars to Grand Crossing, where, two hours after the murder was committed, they were arrested.

SOUND KEYNOTE.

Noted Speakers Address Mass Meeting of Chicago Platform Democrats in New York.

New York, Sept. 5.—The Chicago platform democrats held a meeting Monday night in Cooper Union, addressed by ex-Gov. John P. Altgeld, of Illinois; ex-Judge James Tarvin, of Covington, Ky., and Congressman John J. Lentz, of Ohio. Each one of them declared for the renomination of William J. Bryan and against the policy of President McKinley in the Philippines. Cooper Union was crowded to its capacity with an appreciatice audience.

Resolutions were read indorsing the whole Chicago platform and each of its specific details, recognizing William J. Bryan as the leader of the democracy and the exponent of the principles contained in the Chicago platform, and pledging the earnest efforts and endeavors of those present to his election to the presidency of the United States in 1900, and denouncing in bitter terms the prosecution of the war against the Filipinos.

Thirty-Two Buildings Burned.

Bay City, Mich., Sept. 4.—Pinconning village, 20 miles north of Bay City, was visited by a disastrous fire Sunday afternoon. Thirty-two frame buildings, including the Michigan Central passenger station, Maccabee hall, 13 business houses and 25 dwellings, were totally destroyed with their contents in nearly every case. A heavy north wind prevailed and the firemen were unable to cope with the flames. The fire stopped when it had burned itself out. The loss is roughly estimated at $75,000, with small insurance.

Death of a Noted Indian.

Black River Falls, Wis., Sept. 5.—Black Hawk, the most noted of the chiefs of the Wisconsin Winnebago Indians, died in the town of Brockway, a few miles from this city, aged 90 years. Black Hawk has been well known in the western part of Wisconsin for the last 50 years, was always a friend of the whites, and on several occasions prevented the Winnebagos from taking the warpath against the pale faces.

Ex-Gov. Merrill Dead.

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 1.—Ex-Gov. Samuel Merrill, of Iowa, passed away at his home here at the age of 73 years. About a week ago Gov. Merrill suffered a stroke of paralysis and but little hopes of his recovery were entertained. He was injured severely in an electric accident several months ago, and he never entirely recovered from the shock.

Rout the Mexicans.

Hermosillo, Mexico, Sept. 1.—A company of volunteers went from here to Pitaya to join Col. Peinado's command and arrest the Yaquis who had destroyed telegraph lines to Potam. The troops met a band of about 80 Yaquis and a short fight occurred, in which one soldier was killed and the Mexicans routed.

EEL JAM ON THE DELAWARE.

Hungry Pike Chase Thousands of the Lively Wrigglers Out of the Water.

Eels caused a jam in the raceway to the feeder of the Delaware and Raritan canal at Scudder's Falls one day lately. Chased by a school of Delaware creek pike, apparently the entire June batch of eels at the falls ran up the swift overflow to escape death in the sharp jaws of the pike, and clogged the six-foot stream until it overflowed into the yard of Edward Harding, adjoining the so-called raceway.

Thousands of eels were killed in the jam, thousands were left high and dry in Harding's yard when the pike retreated, and hundreds of pike were picked up on land after having jumped from the stream in their frantic efforts to cross the leaders of their school and feed on the young eels.

The sight of millions of eels jammed in one huge, wriggling mass, struggling to escape death from their regular July persecutors, the pike, while many were being crushed to death by their fellows because unable to advance, coupled with the sight of thousands of shiny, jumping, frantic, hungry pike, all packed so tight in a swift, shallow current as to turn the waters over a two-foot embankment, was one calculated to excite the most phlegmatic follower of the rod and reel. Harding says the fight for life lasted half an hour.

Although almost too much overcome by the sight to realize his opportunity Harding gathered enough pike to pickle for his winter's supply, besides seven bushels to sell, and has enough young eels in his yard to fertilize his garden. Had he retained his presence of mind, Harding says, he could have caught enough pike with a scoop shovel in a half hour to supply the population of the city of Trenton.

"But I was excited, and only got a bar'l," said Harding, sorrowfully. "An' I wouldn't ha' got them, I don't guess, ef they hadn't ha' jumped in my yard in their efforts to git at th' eels. D'no what I'll do with th' eels. They're June's, an' too small fer anythin' 'cept fertilizer, tho' they're pretty good stuff fer that," he added.

Mr. Harding has lived beside the raceway for a number of years, and is accustomed to seeing the myriads of eels in the raceway, but he had never witnessed an attack upon them by the pike until the other day.

"Old Jim Allerton, who tended the bridge for a number of years," said Harding, "once told me about a fight between the eels an' the black bass that was somethin' terrific, but you know old Jim told some stories what warn't like some folks would think correct stories. But I thinks he war right. Jim said the bass swope down at the outlet and sort o' formed themselves into a circuit 'round about the eels afore they could get in the raceway to protec' themsels, an' the slaughter, as Jim tells th' story, was somethin' orful. But some folks swoped down on the bass and driv them off afore they could finish the feast."—N. Y. Sun.

The Commodore's Sentiments.

It was "ladies' day" at the yacht club, and a crusty old member who hates a crowd and a fuss was watching one of the club servants paint the "welcome board." He painted a picture of a yacht clubman, with a broad, happy grin dividing his face from ear to ear. Then he put these words beneath: "This is a pretty big board, but if we were to tell you how glad we are that ladies' day has come again we would need a board three times as big as this one."

"Huh!" grunted the crusty member, as the man put the last curleycue to the last letter; "what makes you say that?"

"Well, sir, the commodore said we might as well tell a good one while we were about it," said the man, touching his cap.—N. Y. News.

THE GRAND BRACE.

Pathetic Plea of the Bibulous Head of the House Next Morning.

One of the Bohemian citizens of the town went home the other night after having donned a pair of skates that would have slid him over an Arizona desert with the mercury bubbling out of the top of the thermometer. He had no recollection of how he got home, and even the next morning he was not certain whether he was on a storm-tossed Atlantic liner or making a leap from a balloon minus a parachute. He went down to the breakfast table with enough wet towels wrapped around his head to make a turban for the mahdi. His wife met him with reproaches in her eyes, but she did not scold him. She wanted to inform him of his conduct the night before, however.

"My dear," she said, "did you know that you came very near killing us all when you went to bed last night?"

"Nope," said her husband, thickly, as he felt his hot forehead.

"Well, you did. You knocked over the baby's cradle. Then you blew out the gas and we were nearly asphyxiated. What do you think of that?"

Her husband is usually a resourceful man, but the fumes of many cocktails taken the night before somewhat clouded his intellect. He made a grand brace and tried to look pathetic.

"M'love," he said, as a ray of inspiration burst through his foggy brain, "wasn't I here to die with you?"—Washington Post.

PE-RU-NA

FOR WOMEN

The debilitating drains and discharges which weaken so many women are caused by Catarrh of the distinctly feminine organs. The sufferer may call her trouble Leuchorrhoea, or Weakness, or Female Disease or some other name, but the real trouble is catarrh of the female organs and nothing else.

Pe-ru-na radically and permanently cures this and all other forms of Catarrh. It is a positive specific for female troubles caused by catarrh of the delicate lining of the organs peculiar to women. It always cures if used persistently. It is prompt and certain.

The microbes that cause chills and fever and malaria enter the system through mucous membranes made porous by catarrh. Pe-ru-na heals the mucous membranes and prevents the entrance of malarial germs, thus preventing and curing these affections.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, Sept. 1, 1899.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Tomorrow, Sept. 9, will be Delano Fair Day.

—Philip Martin has our thanks for a sample tame plum, very fine.

—Quite a number of our citizens visited the State Fair this week.

—A few fine mallards have been shipped in from the prairies, for some of our duck loving citizens.

—F. Q. Lindsley is proprietor of a fine metallic hunting boat and expects soon to have duck for dinner, if he don't get ducked trying.

—A few nice hangers advertising the Wright County Fair, at Howard Lake, have made their appearance in our village this week. The Fair will be held Sept. 20, 21, 22.

—Mrs. Anthony Matter is having a new cellar built under her residence on the West Side. She says it came handy for her girl and her to stay while the Tuesday evening storm passed over.

—Tuesday night's storm was quite severe. The wind tore down stacks and scattered the grain. We are informed that John Stein's stacks, about a dozen of them were all torn down.

—The Secretary of the school board has received a letter in answer to an inquiry concerning the power of the board in the matter of furnishing free text books, and their action is sustained by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

—The Merchant of Venice by the Sanford Dodge Company, at the City Hall, Tuesday evening was well attended and much enjoyed by Delano citizens. This is a strong company, and Sanford is becoming well known and watched for on his rounds each season.

—A few evenings ago we heard a prominent insurance man say that the cost of building had raised 30 per cent in a year or so. Has the farmer's products raised 30 per cent in the same time? Does the $2 per thousand tariff on pine lumber of Page Morris have anything to do with this?

—On Saturday morning Andrew Reider was exhibiting splinters of telephone poles which the lightening tore down and scattered over his garden. The thunder accompanying the explosion was one of the most terrific sounds ever heard hereabouts, and made many of our citizens jump when it occurred.

—The resolution passed by the State Board of Health that all teachers must require certificates of vaccination from pupils entering the schools, seems to be meeting the hearty approval of most communities. Large numbers between the ages of 5 and 21 years have already been vaccinated, and many more are ready to be soon.

—The Minnesota Editorial Association leaves St. Paul Saturday evening, on a special, for an excursion of one week, to Omaha and Denver, and to visit other places of interest. The trip is expected to be an interesting and delightful one. At least 150 editors and members of their families are expected to make up the excursion. Ye editor is figuring on being one of the party.

—The school law amended last winter, says in Chapter 20, laws of 1899.

Section 1. The teacher's University certificate issued by the University of Minnesota to graduates of the department of pedagogy in said University shall be valid as a certificate of the first grade to teach in the public schools of the State of Minnesota for a period of two (2) years from its date

The teacher lately contracted with to teach the Grammar Department in the Delano school has a certificate of this kind which appears from the above law, to be all that is required.

—Considerable argument has been had this week about whether or not all our teachers have papers, certificates, etc. to qualify them to teach in High Schools, and entitle the school to receive the $800 aid from the state. The Board of Education has this to look after and are entitled, and it is their duty to know. If the teachers have proper papers the quickest way to stop the arguments is for them to exhibit their credentials to the proper persons for examination. If they have not the proper papers, let them get them or give place to those who have. There is no need of such commotion over a thing that ought to be so easily settled.

—Several complaints have been made concerning the grades in which certain pupils have been placed. People must know that the present principal and teachers are not to blame for how much or how little the pupils know. This corps of teachers must do their best to even things up. Some learn to read well but are deficient in arithmetic or some other branch and have to be placed behind on that account. For ourselves we think a pupil able to read well should be allowed to do so with others his equals in that branch while if he hasn't learned the multiplication table he had better learn it. And a child who is a prodegy in mathematics should not be kept in the first reader room class in arithmetic simply because he can't read beyond that. It is sometimes quite difficult to get scholars where they belong in all studies; but study, patience and time should help equalize the school.

—The first week of school is over. Many things have been adjusted that have long needed adjusting and things are apt to move more smoothly. Parents and others interested, and especially the visiting committe should visit the school occasionally and see for themselves that things are going in the right direction. People will visit their pastures, sheep folds or pig pens often, to see how their animals are thriving, and the better their keepers are doing the oftener they go to see and enjoy their possessions. But they will send their children to school in a house with but one door, to stay all day without a drink of water unless they go to the well for it, no matter how cold the day, and to be locked up in the house or out in the cold for half an hour at noon, to remain in one room month after month when they should have been promoted; to study one or two branches when they are fooling away time and learning mischief, instead of improving their opportunities; and make very feeble if any remonstrance to such indignities and abuses by public officers and of public moneys. Visit the schools and lets have a school we are not ashamed to visit nor to take strangers to visit.

—A very exciting runaway occurred on Tuesday morning. As Mort Malsed, the Watertown stage driver was returning home from Delano, and while waiting near the R. R. bridge on the West side for a train to pass, his team one of which was a young horse, took fright at the cars, and quickly turned, breaking the tongue a short distance in front of the doubletrees, and headed for town. As Mort could do nothing towards stopping them; pulling the lines only serving to bump their heels the more, jumped to the ground and tried to catch them by the bits but failed. Luckily but one passenger was in the three seated, covered hack, Miss Ester Hultgren, from Minneapolis, on her way to her fathers J. M. Hultgren, near Watertown to attend the funeral of her sister. The team ran across the wagon bridge and up to the City Hall, thence on Second street to the post office where they turned East on R. R. Ave. and was finally captured near the round elevator by Dr. Shrader and S. J. Cooper. Miss Hultgren was thrown out on Second street near Mr. Bohn's residence. Though picked up unconscious she quickly rallied and walked to O. Peterson's shoe store. She claimed she was not hurt much. A narrow escape.

Personal.

Joseph Kuchenmeister and a couple of lady friends from Alameda, Wis. are visiting friends about Delano.

Dr. Catlin and Dar Weiker drove to Buffalo Monday evening with John Stein who was sent to Fergus Falls.

Mr. Barney, of Mankato, came over Wednesday evening for a few day's visit with his daughter Mrs. Herbert Carleton.

Mrs. Dr. E. E. Shrader, of Watertown, and Miss Nellie Cunningham, of Watertown, went to the cities via Delano Tuesday.

Miss Edna Coffin gave a party last Tuesday evening in honor of her guest, Miss May Mowatt, of Delano.—St. Peter Free Press.

John Cady and Miss Estella Jacobs drove over from Buffalo Tuesday evening and attended "The Merchant of Venice".

Miss Ida Kerr is spending Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday each week with her parents in Delano, and giving music lessons.

Hi Dyer attended the reunion of his old regiment, the 8th Minn. Vol. at the State Fair grounds Tuesday. He says the boys are growing old.

Mrs. Charles Metzger, Mrs. Washburn, Mr. Williams and two children and others from Minneapolis, passed through town to Watertown today to the funeral of Mrs. Williams.

Mrs. Lutz and son Andrew, of Beebe Lake, visited Delano friends Monday on their way home from Shakopee, where she had been with her daughter who is attending school at that place.

A Correction.

Feeling that I have been misrepresented by the Eagle and others concerning my having had Mrs. Barbara Pogreba arrested for taking wood from my daughter's pasture, after having been repeatedly warned, even by a lawyer sent for that purpose, during a year past. I wish to say that had she taken nothing but dry branches she would not have been arrested. And now that she is forbidden to even take dry branches. Mr. C. H. CARLTON.

Notice to Musicians.

Musicians in and around Delano who have their own instruments are hereby requested to meet at the Town Hall, Delano on Sunday afternoon, Sept. 10, at 4 o'clock, for the purpose of working up a band organization to greet our soldier boys of the 13th Minnesota Volunteers. R. M. BOUN.

County Cullings.

County Fair, Sept. 19, 20, 21.

'Tis strange how people who advocate a protective tariff so that our people may trade in their own markets are so terribly anxious that we have a gold dollar, good in the markets of the world. "Consistency thou art a jewel."

Sheriff Nugent took Joe Boxell and his two children to Buffalo Tuesday, to have the court decide who would have charge of the children.

From the Howard Lake Herald we learn that Justice Briggs and the second jury (the first disagreeing) awarded Joe Boxell $50 for household goods taken away by his father in law since his arrest, and that Judge Giddings restored the children to Mrs. Boxell.

Many of the schools throughout the county have opened for the fall term, and others soon will. Our public school system gives an opportunity for all, and should be made the most of. Every pupil that can should attend the first and every day during the term. The time has has come in this country when a person without a fair education is laboring at a great disadvantage.

Judge Giddings heard a few court cases at Buffalo this week.

Sheriff Nugent is getting to be a pretty big man. He informs us that he never weighed so much in the summer before, and that he tips the scales at 209 pounds.

Clerk of Court Vorse and assistant William Cochrane are considerably proud of the new paper on the wall in their room. It smacks some of gold standard.

Notice of Hearing of Application for Transfer of License to Sell Intoxicating Liquors.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Wright, Village of Delano.—S. S.

Notice is hereby given that Mat Haregeise has, according to law, filed an application with the Village Recorder, of the Village of Delano, for a transfer of license to sell intoxicating liquors, for the unexpired term of Peter F. Sexton.

The place where the said business is to be carried on is on the first floor of the two story brick building situated on lot 19, block 8, original townsite of Delano.

Said applicant prays that such license be granted to him pursuant to the ordinances of said Village of Delano, and the Statutes of said State of Minnesota in such cases made and provided.

The hearing of the above application will be held in the Council room, at the City Hall, on Saturday, Sept. 9, at 8 o'clock p. m. and the license then allowed or rejected.

Dated at Delano, Minn., this 30th day of August, 1899.

P. R. PETERSON,
Village Recorder.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 1, 1899

Washington democrats are much pleased with the nomination of Hon. John R. McLean for governor, by the Ohio democratic State convention, not only because they believe him to be a strong candidate but because they like the man and think the Ohio democrats honored themselves in honoring him.

Those who know what is going on under the surface, in Washington, are wondering whether Mr. McKinley is going to be so unwise as to allow himself to be used by the little clique of New York millionaires to increase the value of their property in Santo Domingo, by putting his fingers in the revolution now going on there. They have had power enough to bring Secretary Hay back to Washington two weeks earlier than he was expected, and it is understood to be at their request that Mr. McKinley will return tomorrow, instead of a week later. They are not asking much! Only that Mr. McKinley shall stop the revolution and declare a U. S. protectorate over Santo Domingo. A nice mess that would be, with all the other race troubles we already have on our hands.

The rush for commissions in the new volunteer regiments for the Philippines is greater now than it was for those in the ten regiments recently organised but reports from the various recruiting stations show that enlistments are much slower—so much slower that the War Department has notified all the recruiting officers that they are expected to get more recruits than they have been getting.

A prominent Boston business man, who was in Washington this week said of the platform that will be adopted by the Massachusetts democratic State Convention, which will meet Sept 21: "It will reaffirm every plank of the Chicago instrument, will roast the trusts in stinging English, denounce the inhuman massacre of the liberty-loving Filipinos, and declare that the imperialist policy of McKinley, if unchecked, will be the death knell of the republic." The same man predicted that Massachusetts would send a solid Bryan delegation to the National Convention.

In view of the promise made in the official proclamation of the Philippine Commission, issued last April, that "Local funds collected for local purposes, shall not be diverted to other ends" there is ground for the complaints at Manila, reported by uncensored cablegrams, via Hong Kong, on account of the action of Gen. Otis in using funds collected as local taxes for the support of the army. The country was told that every effort would be made by the administration to obtain the confidence of the peaceable Filippinos. Taking the taxes collected for local needs to help support an invading army will strike most persons as a very poor way to obtain the confidence of the Filipinos. It was because of broken promises that they revolted against Spain. The McKinley administration has repeatedly stated its entire approval of the acts of Gen. Otis; it is therefore directly responsible for this wrongful use of money collected over there. It may have been the knowledge that a portion of the expenses of the large army in the Philippines was to be paid with taxes collected from the natives which prompted Secretary Gage to say that neither additional war taxes nor more bonds would be necessary to meet the increased expenditures caused by the increased army. The American people as a whole, regardless of individual opinions as to the future of the Philippines, will never endorse a national policy that includes deception and oppression of a weaker people. Such a policy will quickly wipe out Mr. McKinley's platitudes about the Stars and Stripes standing for the same thing in the Philippines that they do in this country. The people of this country would not allow such imposition upon themselves, nor will they stand for its being practiced upon the people of any other country by the government of the U. S. Fortunately the days of reckoning with the officials of our government are not so far apart as they are in other countries.

So much has been written about the better class of Cubans favoring annexation that most readers have accepted it as a fact, but a New York business man who was recently in Havana declares that he hunted in vain for this alleged annexation sentiment among any class of Cubans. He says that after talking with all classes of Cubans he became satisfied that the predominating sentiment towards the U. S. among them was hatred. He thinks this is because of difference in race and customs—a difference that is practically permanent. This gentleman was not prejudiced. He went to Havana believing in the existence of a strong annexation sentiment and was disappointed because he could not find it.

Webster's International Dictionary

Successor of the "Unabridged"

Standard of the U. S. Gov't Printing Office, the U. S. Supreme Court, all the State Supreme Courts, and nearly all the Schoolbooks.

Warmly Commended by State Superintendents of Schools, College Presidents, and other Educators almost without number.

Invaluable in the household, and to the teacher, scholar, professional man, and self-educator.

THE BEST FOR PRACTICAL USE.

It is easy to find the word wanted.
It is easy to ascertain the pronunciation.
It is easy to trace the growth of a word.
It is easy to learn what a word means.

The Chicago Times-Herald says:—Webster's International Dictionary in its present form is absolute authority on everything pertaining to our language in the way of orthography, orthoepy, etymology, and definition. From it there is no appeal. It is as perfect as human effort and scholarship can make it.

THE delights of an evening spent around a well-lighted reading table are not half understood. An illustrated magazine with its wealth of illustrations, its stories of adventure and love, its descriptions of travel which carry you to the remotest ends of the earth, and its instructive articles for young and old—these are the first requisites for your own enjoyment and the entertainment and proper education of your children.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

Both Together One Year for Only $1.80

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. For three years The Cosmopolitan has undisputedly claimed that it reached the largest clientele possessed by any periodical, daily, weekly or monthly, in the world. It was The Cosmopolitan which sent Julian Hawthorne to India to let the world know the real horrors of famine and plague. It was The Cosmopolitan which established at its own cost a great Free Correspondence University which now has over 20,000 students on its rolls. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $3,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

Three Together One Year for Only $2.35

To "a man up a tree" the Philipoine situation don't seem what it's cracked up to be.

THE Filipinos have been "well in hand" so long that the hands are growing tired.

THE Le Sueur Fair is well advertised by a blue cover to the Le Sueur Sentinal their wideawake newspaper.

THE 13th wants to see its friends; and its friends want to see the 13th; McKinley is a secondary consideration with both.

DREYFUS' conviction and sentence to ten year's imprisonment don't suit people in America, however well the military of France may like it.

FROM reports from the Philippines Gen Joseph Wheeler feels his Otis and intends returning home unless things change, and that right soon.

JOHN BLANCHARD the able editor of the Minneapolis Times is dead. He was a sufferer for some time but was one of the leading editorial writers of the state.

THE Willmar Argus (Republican) is out for Jim Gray for Congress as against Old Uncle Loren and thinks lots of Republicans would vote for the Mayor.

LUMBERING bids fair, just now, to be a leading industry in Minnesota this winter. Is it like harvest hands at big prices, howled out of season; but hardly realized when harvest was here?

THE State Fair Authorities say the fair held last week was a record breaker, in several ways. and that after all expenses are paid they expect to have about $20,000 on hand.

GOV. LIND got to California a little late to meet the 13th which made the homeward trip in less time than was allowed them. Instead of the Gov. then welcoming the boys home they welcomed him to their quarters.

THE row among the officers of the 13th Minn. reg has been fixed up. When the boys stood by Col. Ames the disgruntled had to succumb. So now the regiment will come marching home with their Ames at the top notch.

WONDER what kind of reception speechs Senators Wilson, Johnson, Chilton and others who wanted the 13th to stay in the Philippines until the war was over and they could bring home the dear old flag unsullied, will make, when the Minneapolis blowout comes off.

GOV. LIND and others are in California visiting the 13th. Arrangements are under way to have the State borrow from the government the guns and other equipments of the regiment and bring them home for a grand parade in Minneapolis when McKinley comes.

THE Tarter a British transport, leased to bring home soldiers from the Philippines, with Col. Funston and his 20th Kansas boys aboard has been held up at Hong Kong because overloaded. A part of the regiment seems likely to have to submit to British orders and remain there until another boat comes along Surely no over crowded boat should be allowed to make a trip of the length contemplated by the Tarter.

SENATOR CARTER says of the Philippine question, "We are going to deal with this question on the basis of dollars and cents. If the American people believe that the Philippines are going to help us, they will never let the islands go. If, on the other hand, they find that the Philippines mean a constant drain and small return, you will find the verdict of the people to be against permanent retention." Paltry, penurious patriotism for you.

PRESIDENT MCKINLEY can carry on a massacre of Filipinos thousands of miles away from home, who would not molest us if we staid on our own land; giving the lives of some of our bravest boys to carry out his and his advisor's wills, while he does nothing towards suppressing the army canteen, nor the liquor traffic in our own land which is destroying more victims daily than is war. The President should give the liquor traffic its share of his pugnacity.

SINCE American boys don't care to participate in the shooting off of the Filipinos arrangements are being made to send negroes and indians over to do the fighting. A free and independent country, the home of the oppressed of every nation, is surely turning into the oppressor of all its subjects when it sets them to shooting each other off. We don't favor any such doings. If the war is so unpopular that men won't enlist through patriotism, better stop the war, the sooner the smaller the disgrace.

THINGS have been carried on so mysteriously by this administration at Washington that people have become so distrustful that Secretary Hay has found it necessary to make a statement to the republican state executive committee of Ohio denying that there is any alliance between England and the United States. Where there is so much smoke there must be some fire. And the Republicans of Ohio must have very little confidence in this administration when it is necessary for the secretary of state to try to aid the coming state election by denying such charges and by announcing that "entangling alliances" are not thought of by the President or of any member of the government. Perhaps they don't consider them "entangling" alliances.

ADMIRAL DEWEY is on his way home from Gibraltar. He is expected to anchor in New York bay, Sept. 28. Great interest centers in his belief about the Philippine question. The New York World publishes dispatches in which it is claimed that he still entertains the views expressed by him before the war with them and the U. S. and as agreeing with Prof. Schurman. He is anxious for the commission of which he is a member to report to the President. "You may add this" the Admiral said with great earnestness. "I have not changed my opinion which I stated in the early days at Manila, then speaking of knowledge of both peoples, that I consider the Filipinos more capable of self government than the Cubans.

"I took the keenest intesest in those Filipinos who were employed at the arsenal in Cavite, and often I was surprised by their intelligence.

"With fair and properly directed opportunities there are great possibilities in the Filipinos".

The entire set is to be given away with ten Sunday Worlds, and will be sent postpaid, including ten Sunday World Magazines, Art Portfolio and Comic Weeklies for 50 cents. Send 50 cents today, tomorrow or next week. Don't wait later than next week. This is a most exceptional offer and is only put forth to advertise the great Sunday World. Address, Music Editor, The World, Pulitzer Building, New York.

Vaccination.

Attorney General Douglass' opinion on the vaccination order issued by the State Board of Healt has been published. He admits that the Board of Health has a right to enforce vaccination in case of an epidemic, but denies that an epidemic now exists or is threatened, consequently is of the opinion that the Board of Health's order cannot be enforced. The matter then seems to resolve itself into who is the best authority on whether we are threatened with an epidemic of small pox in Minnesota, the Attorney General or the State Board of Health. If the State Board of Health was to sit around and allow small pox to spread into every village and hamlet Attorney Douglass would be prosecuting them for gross negligence, under present laws.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 8, 1899.

Democratic success in the Ohio campaign will spell defeat for the republicans in the National campaign. That much is already plainly apparent, young as the campaign is. The advantages of this situation are altogether on the side of democracy. Mr. McKinley knows that his chances for next year will vanish if he fails to hold Ohio this year; also, that carrying Ohio this year will add practically nothing to republican chances of success next year. That is why the situation is so advantageous to democrats. If they can carry Ohio it will practically settle the Presidential election a year ahead, and if they fail to carry it, the failure will not injure the party's prospects It isn't only from democratic party leaders that good news from Ohio comes. It comes also from long headed business men, such as Mr. H. Krucken, of Cincinnati, who said, while in Washington: "The democracy of Ohio has a golden opportunity, in my opinion, to elect its candidates in the coming election. John R. McLean has many elements of strength, but his greatest hope is in the intense dissatisfaction that has grown up against the leaders and policies of the republicans. The chief hostility is against Senator Hanna, and many and keen are the knives that will be wielded against him. In fact, the discontent is growing stronger each day, and if a political revolution is not brewing, I am greatly deceived."

Every republican official in Washington who has the slightest reputation as a stump speaker, from Mr. McKinley down, has been invited—in reality ordered—to help out the Hannaites. Mr. McKinley will not go so far as to take the stump, unless Hanna, after he returns and looks over the field, tells him he must. It is not surprising that he should shrink from making such an exhibition of his high office.

It was only by the shrewd manipulations of Mr. McKinley, while he was in Philadelphia, that the administration escaped a severe raking over because of the methods followed by the Pension Bureau. Knowing that an attack by the G. A. R. encampment on Commissioner Evans would be generally recognized as an attack upon him and his entire administration, Mr. McKinley went to the encampment to head the attack off, and he succeeded, so far as a formal resolution of attack was concerned.

Judging from the talk of New York democrats who come to Washington, Col. Bryan is likely to come very near to getting a solid delegation to the National Convention from that state, notwithstanding the scheming against him by a few individuals. One New Yorker said: "Bryan clubs are being organized in every election precinct in Kings county, which shows that the rank and file of the party in that county are for the Nebraskan, just as the mass of democrats all over New York State are for him. He is stronger in New York by far than he was in 1896, and that he will get the electoral votes of the State in 1900 I have not the slightest doubt."

There was no truth in the statement that an agreement has been reached on the Alaskan boundary line. Negotiations are still pending and an agreement is no nearer than it has been several times before when some new proposal upset all that had previously been done.

The Industrial Commission created by the last Congress, is again holding daily sessions in Washington, the particular subject now under investigation being trusts. The Commission has authorized some of its members to attend the conference on trusts, to be held at Chicago, next week, under the auspices of the Civic Federation, but the republicans being in the majority, the Commission took special pains to instruct its representatives to that conference that they should be merely onlookers, without any authority to do or say anything that will commit the Commission in any way. This is only one of many indications showing the real attitude of the republican party towards trusts. It seems farcial for the Commission to send representatives to the trust conference, if they are merely to be dummies. But doing farcical things has long been a republican specialty. Secretary Root has locked horns with the bureaucratic clique in the War Department which made all the trouble for Gen. Miles during the war with Spain, and Miles is again the bone of contention. Secretary Root wants Miles sent to the Philippines to command the army, and the clique is determined to prevent his going, if possible, and it has so far been able to prevent the necessary order being issued by Mr. McKinley, notwithstanding his promise that he would carry out every recommendation made by Secretary Root. This fight may result seriously for some persons. If Root loses, he may get disgusted and resign, and if he wins, he will hardly fail to get even with those who are trying to thwart him.

The outside attendance at the encampment of the Spanish American War Veterans, which opened in Washington today, was not up to expectations.

The Victories of Vaccination.

In 1871 Germany lost 143,000 lives by small pox. In 1874 a law was passed making vaccination obligatory in the first year of life, and compelling its repetition at the tenth year. The result was that the disease almost entirely disappeared. At present, the loss of life from it throughout the empire is scarcely 100 a year. At the time of the Franco-Prussian war the German government had its civil population vaccinated optionally, and its army completely revaccinated, while the French army and population were vaccinated perfunctorily. Both were attacted by small-pox, the French army losing 23,000 men, and the German 278. In the face of such absolute and stubborn facts, with which statistics of the disease are crowded, it is difficult to see how the anti-vaccinationist is able to give any plausibility to his argument. But he continues to exist, and last year in England persuaded Parliament to modify the old Compulsory Vaccination law so far as to exempt "conscientious objectors," who went before a magistrate and took out a certificate. So many have taken advantage of this privilege that a large number of British physicians look upon it as involving a national peril.—Public Health.

Hanging a Screen Door

WADLEY was just in time to see the whole thing. He regarded it then as a special dispensation of Providence in his favor that he had felt impelled to stop, for there was nothing particular about the front of the building to attract his attention, unless it was the air of mystery imparted by the whitewash on the windows. The whitewash itself had been laid on with a free, dashing, circular stroke—evidently not by the same hand that had scratched the portrait of the gentleman with the triangular body, tall hat and indicated arms and legs upon its surface—but it was not of itself sufficiently remarkable to arrest the progress of a man who meant to catch a train. The store door was open, but Wadley saw nothing at first except the newly stained counter and shelves and a little heap of shavings on the floor. Perhaps it was the shavings that conveyed an unconscious suggestion to his mind. An unconscious suggestion had its effect, after all.

Just as he was about to pass on, a man came into view, dragging a screen door after him with one hand and carrying a square and a saw in the other. Then Wadley remembered that he had a screen door to put up that Saturday afternoon himself, and he determined to watch the process.

The man went at it with an air of easy confidence. He was an elderly man with a grayish-red goatee. His collarless shirt showed on its bosom evidence that he used tobacco. Wadley did not use tobacco himself, but he had heard it said that it was soothing to the nerves and thought that possibly it accounted for the man's imperturbable expression, which was really noticeable. The first thing the man did after laying down his tools and absolutely confirming the mute witness of his shirt was to pull out a fat silver watch attached to a massive but coppery chain and look at it. Wadley instinctively did the same and saw that it was eight minutes past 12. He concluded that the blotchy artisan would not begin his job, but would go to his dinner, and he felt sorry that he had stopped.

He was mistaken in this. The man laid his square lengthwise and across the door opening, and then, producing a flat pencil from the rear pocket of his slack trousers, measured the screen door and made two rapid marks, and then drew a line along the edge of the square across the top. He dragged the door back into the store and Wadley heard the quick rasping of his saw for a moment, then the "creesh, creesh" of a plane, and the man came out, slammed the door into the appointed place and it fitted to a hair's breadth.

The spring hinges were already on the door. All that remained was to screw them to the casing. The carpenter had the screws in his mouth, from which he extracted them one at a time, tapped them lightly into place and twisted them down to their heads with half a dozen quick turns of his supple wrist to each. Then he pulled the door open and it swung back into place with a bang and the thing was done. Wadley looked at his watch and found it was 20 minutes past 12.

"That's dead easy," he said to himself, as he walked away. "All you have to do is to measure your door and cut it down to the measurement of the door frame, put on the hinges, and there you are." He had an idea that the thing was a great deal more complicated and demanded special skill. He had a saw and a square of his own at home. The saw was rather a small-sized one, and it needed setting and filing a little, but it was still equal to chewing off the top of a screen door. The square was one of the best made, etched all over with fine lines and figures, the use of which Wadley could only guess, but which inspired his deep respect, nevertheless. The people next door had a plane, he knew, and as they had lately borrowed his garden rake and Mrs. Wadley's clothesline props he did not see why he should not ask to be allowed to use it for 12 minutes. He thought this all over as the train whirled him northward to his suburban home, and imagined himself astonishing Mrs. Wadley.

"I think it is about time we did something with it," said Mrs. Wadley when her husband asked where in the basement she had put that screen door. "I don't think you had better try to put it up yourself, though; do you think you can?"

"I think I can manage it all right," said Wadley. "I watched a man put up one as I was coming home, and there's no trick to it at all. I want you to time me from the minute I start."

Before he started he had to take down the old door, which had been simply ruined by the last hired girl. She was a good girl, as girls go, but she had previously worked in a restaurant, where she had acquired the habit of kicking the lower panel of the door she wished to open.

Wadley pried the hinges off with his hammer and then picked out the screws. "That will save buying new ones," he said. "I believe I can make the old hinges do, too."

"Didn't you get hinges when you got the door?" asked his wife. "Well, for the land's sake! What are you doing now, Albert?"

"I'm measuring the door," answered Wadley. "By the way, I guess you'd better begin to time me. What time is it?"

"Half past two. But, look here, Albert. Let me give you a hint, if you don't mind."

"Well, what is it? Hurry up, now; you're keeping me waiting."

"The old door is just a fit, so why not lay it down on top of the new one for a pattern and mark it off? You're sure to get it right that way."

"'Use it for a pattern!'" repeated Wadley, scornfully. "I'm not making a shirt waist, I'm hanging a door. See here, figures can't lie, can they? The opening is just two feet six inches by six feet six inches. Now, if I cut that door down to that size it's going to fit, isn't it?"

"I suppose it will," said Mrs. Wadley, dubiously, "but I think I should do it the way I said."

"I suppose you would. You would probably get your tracing wheel and—That reminds me. I guess I'll have to borrow the screw driver of your sewing machine. I won't hurt it; honest I won't. You go and get it and I'll have this door ready by the time you get back."

Mrs. Wadley rose and went into the house, and Wadley, having marked the screen, laid it on the porch and began to saw. It was hard work, for the screen was considerably larger than the porch was wide and it overbalanced at every downward stroke. It was too wide for him to straddle, and he had to lean over it in a fatiguing position. When Mrs. Wadley returned his saw had bitten about an inch and a half into the screen and he was perspiring freely. She watched him for a minute or two and then suggested that she stand on the end of the door and steady it while he sawed. Presently she informed him that the saw was straying from the straight and narrow path indicated by the pencil, and Wadley, after an ineffectual effort to bring it back, stopped and wiped his brow with the sleeve of his shirt.

"If I only had a saw that was some good," he said.

"There's the meat saw," suggested Mrs. Wadley, hesitatingly.

Her husband looked at her sharply, but it was evident that she had spoken in good faith, and he contented himself with saying that he didn't believe the meat saw would do. "I guess I'll have to start again from the other side," he continued. "I wasn't watching the thing as closely as I ought to have done."

This time he hewed pretty closely to the line, but the saw began to work harder and harder, and by the time it had got its own width into the wood it stuck fast and obstinately refused to go any further. "It needs greasing," said Wadley, and he procured the vaseline bottle and smeared the saw plenteously. It traveled well for another inch and then stuck again.

"I think," said Mrs. Wadley, "that if you put a wedge in the end where you've sawed it will be all right. Here, I'll show you what I mean."

She pressed a nail into the cleft and the saw sprung forward with renewed vigor until it met the first cut and the strip fell to the ground.

"There!" said Wadley; "that's all right so far. I give you credit for it, though. Where did you learn carpentering?"

His wife looked gratified. "I know a little," she said. "You don't often tell me so, though. Now, you've got the other to do, haven't you? Do you want me to help you?"

"There isn't much to come off on the side," said Wadley, "but you can hold it up while I plane it. Steady now! Hold it down, woman, hold it down. What makes it go all to one side, that way? Oh, thunder? It's going to take all the afternoon to trim it down to where we want it this way. Here, I'll tell you. Bring me the butcher knife."

He took the knife and cut off some generous shavings, bending over from time to time to make sure that he was not encroaching on the boundary. About half way the grain of the wood took a curve and he scooped out half an inch of territory that he didn't want and Mrs. Wadley let go the door and put her fingers in her ears. When he grew calmer he said that he didn't believe a fly could get in, anyway, unless it was a very small fly, and he ultimately worked his way down to the end without any further accident. It was a rather wavery and undulating job, but Wadley said he was not particular about the looks of the thing, so long as it did the work.

He took it and reared it against the door casing and a gulf a full inch in breadth yawned at the top.

It was several minutes before he figured the thing out. Then the irresistible conclusion that he had measured in the inch of protruding side piece and had then ignored it when he marked was borne upon him. But it brought no consolation.

At last, with infinite labor, he sawed out an inch strip of wood and nailed it on the top of the door. It nearly fitted then, but was a little too thick, and in paring it down Wadley broke the blade of his pearl-handled penknife. There was more trouble when he tried to put on the hinges. The rusty screws refused to turn for Mrs. Wadley's sewing-machine screwdriver and he hammered them in and smashed the cast-iron hinge. He had another hinge which was not a spring hinge, and he put it on, but the door closed very feebly and slowly. It stuck at the bottom besides.

Wadley is not an ordinary man. He confesses that he made a failure of the job. Mrs. Wadley denies this, however, and says the door works well, but she buys quantities of fly paper. And she is altogether an angelic woman.—Chicago Daily Record.

"Devil Anse" Hatfield has been arrested at Warnliffe, Ky., by a sheriff's posse. For 15 years he has carried a rifle by day and slept with one in his hand at night, defying the authorities to arrest him. During all of this time he has been the most terrible figure of the long and bloody feud between the Hatfield and McCoy factions of the mountains of the West Virginia and Kentucky border.

VERDICT AGAINST HIM

Dreyfus Is Again Found Guilty of Treason.

He Is Sentenced to Ten Years' Imprisonment—Prisoner Holds Up Well—Talk of Boycotting Exposition.

Rennes, Sept. 11.—Dreyfus has been found guilty and sentenced to ten years' imprisonment.

The court stood 5 to 2 for the condemnation of the prisoner, but found extenuating circumstances existed.

The crowd outside the court soon greeted the verdict with cheers for the army.

When the verdict was read to Dreyfus he gave not the slightest sign of emotion, did not utter a word and marched back to prison like an automaton.

Dreyfus' Last Protest.

At the conclusion of speeches by M. Demange and Maj. Carriere, Col. Jouaust, president of the court, asked Dreyfus if he had anything to add in his behalf. The prisoner rose and in a voice choked with emotion declared he had only one thing to say, but of that he was perfectly assured. He said:

"I affirm before my country and before the army that I am innocent. My sole aim has been to save the honor of my name, the name borne by my children. I have suffered five years of the most awful torture. But to-day, at last, I feel assured that I am about to attain my desire, through your loyalty and justice."

Dreyfus Holds Up Well.

Rennes, Sept. 11.—Dreyfus passed a quiet night and rose when his orderly brought him water at five o'clock Sunday morning, just as he did during the trial, when it was necessary. Mme.

CAPT. ALFRED DREYFUS.

Dreyfus and Mathieu Dreyfus, his brother, visited him during the course of the afternoon, his brother subsequently leaving for Paris. The application to the court of revision was taken to him at noon by Maitre Labori's assistant and he signed it. He has spoken but little, though he has seemed in better spirits than might have been anticipated.

Quiet in Rennes.

The town Sunday was perfectly calm. There was not a sign of a demonstration nor a cry for or against Dreyfus or the Jews heard anywhere. A number of people gathered to see Mme Dreyfus visit the prison, but they were quite respectful. The troops and masses of gendarmes who on Saturday gave the center of Rennes the appearance of a military camp, have completely vanished. There are hardly any gendarmes in sight, except near the Dreyfus residence, where a few are posted. Cavalry officers were seen frequenting the cafes Sunday afternoon, showing that the authorities no longer fear any trouble here and are allowing the officers to leave barracks.

Indignation in New York.

New York, Sept. 11.—Indignation over the reconviction of Dreyfus manifested itself in many ways Sunday. Gen. Mercier was burned in effigy in Eldredge street, there was a big protest meeting of Jews in the Tralia theater, many preachers referred to the trial in their sermons and preparations were made for an appeal to Washington.

Will Not Be Degraded.

Rennes, Sept. 12.—The judges of the Dreyfus court-martial on Monday, by mutual agreement, expressed to the president of the republic, through Gen. Lucas, the commander of the army corps at Rennes, their sincere desire that Dreyfus would not be submitted to a fresh degradation. When M. Labori's secretary informed Dreyfus of this action, he was greatly affected, and said: "I still have hopes."

May Not Participate.

Washington, Sept. 12.—It is believed that when congress assembles there will be considerable agitation of a proposition for this government to abandon its participation in the Paris exposition. It is known that expressions hostile to the exposition quoted from Senator Stewart are very widely sympathized in, and it is thought that if the conviction of Dreyfus is permitted to stand there will be very little friendly feeling for France among members of either the house or senate.

To Boycott Exposition.

Berlin, Sept. 12.—It is rumored that a committee composed of leading manufacturers here is being formed for the purpose of preventing German participation in the Paris exposition of 1900.

A Mother's Awful Crime.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 11.—Mrs. Mary Gallagher, aged 35, wife of Felix Gallagher, a mill man at Port Perry, Saturday night poisoned herself and her three children with laudanum. Mrs. Gallagher and her four-months-old baby died Sunday, but the two daughters, aged five and seven years, will probably recover. The husband's statement to the coroner is that he knows of no possible reason why his wife should commit the deed.

Boers Anxious for Peace.

Pretoria, Sept. 12.—Commander General Joubert denies that the war department is ordering heavy ordnance and rifles. He declares that he is anxious for the preservation of peace.

London, Sept. 12.—The activity in the war and admiralty offices continues, though there is nothing new regarding the Transvaal situation.

Transports are moving to the docks, preparatory to embarking troops.

Dies While Preaching.

Pierre, S. D., Sept. 11.—Rev. O. H. Sproul, presiding elder of the Methodist church for the Aberdeen district, died suddenly at Northville Sunday afternoon while preaching.

TRADE REVIEW.

The Situation Is Decidedly Bright and Every Indication Appears to Be Promising.

New York, Sept. 9.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: "The sky is still cloudless and no disquieting change has come during the week. In spite of more warlike news about South Africa the Bank of England behaves as if the worst possible had been fully provided for, and this country has no reason to fear trouble from that source unless English markets have so overloaded as to need help. The marketing of domestic products, both farm and manufactured, continues surprisingly large for the season. The new possessions, taken together, are returning in revenue already more than it costs to clean and govern them. The west and south still behave as if it would be impertinent for New York to offer money for crop moving, and are still bidding for commercial loans here. Failures are few, strikes scarce and readily settled, and the passage of September 1 without pressure means reasonable safety for months ahead.

"After a sharp decline, wheat has risen a quarter cent this week, with Atlantic exports 2,900,966 bushels, flour included, against 2,325,100 last year, and Pacific exports 364,256, against 163,192 last year. Corn has also taken a start upward, rising three-quarters of a cent, with exports of 3,651,569 bushels, against 2,431,035 last year. So great a demand for both grains deserves notice, but so do western receipts, 5,945,627 bushels wheat, against 6,774,611 last year, and of corn 5,923,437, against 4,208,352 last year. There is no hesitancy in selling or in shipping; with extraordinary foreign demands for the season, farmers are sending forward at remarkably low prices extraordinary quantities of grain.

"Failures for the first week of September have been $715,560, against $1,111,593 last year; manufacturing, $212,258, against $224,602 last year, and trading $466,313, against $703,991 last year. Failures for the week have been 132 in the United States, against 164 last year, and 20 in Canada, against 16 last year."

Bradstreet's says: "Strength of staple prices, activity in fall demand, large railroad earnings, reports of heavy lake traffic and of activity in leading industries are the features; none of them necessarily new, but still presenting themselves in the trade situation this week. Expansion in fall demand is perhaps most notable at the leading western and northwestern markets, but advices from eastern markets furnish evidence that active interest is manifested at these centers. The prices situation is one of notable strength, the events of the week, in fact, having been to accentuate in many cases the advances shown during August. Cereals are generally higher, and trading has been within rather narrow limits, the advance in wheat having been mainly due to short covering, induced by more bullish foreign cables and increased export demand. The hot weather in the west is responsible for a further shading in exuberant estimates of the corn crop and for the slight strengthening in prices shown therein. The only changes in the iron and steel situation are in an upward direction as to prices. Complaints of behindhand supplies and scarcity of material are still made. Work has in many instances, notably in shipbuilding, been delayed by backward deliveries of steel."

[James Biddell Eustis was born in New Orleans, La., in 1834. His mother was a Louisianian, but his father came from New England. After being graduated from the Harvard law school in 1854 Mr. Eustis practiced law in New Orleans until the civil war, when he entered the confederate army as judge advocate. In 1876 he was elected a United States senator. He was reelected in 1885, and in 1893 was appointed by President Cleveland as American minister and later ambassador to France, a position he held more than four years.]

Plan the Campaign.

New York, Sept. 12.—A special to the Herald from Washington says: Considerable progress has been made by Maj. Gen. Otis upon the plan of campaign he will inaugurate immediately upon the beginning of the dry season. Gen. Otis proposes to divide the army of 64,649 combatants and the mountain batteries and dynamite guns which he will have in December into two divisions, commanded by MacArthur and Lawton. One of these will operate to the north of Manila and the other to the west and south. Each division will operate in two military provinces to be defined by Gen. Otis, but there will be effective and prompt cooperation when it is desirable.

From Arctic Regions.

Brigus, N. F., Sept. 11.—The Peary-Harmsworth steamer Windward, Capt. John Bartlett, from Etah, North Greenland, August 26, arrived here Sunday, reporting all well on board. She will be followed in a week by the Peary Arctic club's steamer Diana, Capt. Samuel W. Bartlett, also from Etah. The Windward reports that all on board the Diana were well at the time the vessels separated. Lieut. Peary and the sledge parties were in the field almost continuously from October, 1898, to August of this year, and have effected an extraordinary amount of important work. His sledging journeys aggregated more than 1,000 miles.

Won't Meet at Chicago.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 11.—The Sons of Veterans elected the following officers: Commander in chief, Asa W. Jones, Youngstown, O.; senior vice commander, A. L. Solter, Des Moines, Ia.; junior vice commander, W. S. Raines, Battle Creek, Mich.; council in chief, George B. Abbott, Chicago; George Addington, Albany; Rev. W. G. Patton, Marinette, Wis. Syracuse, N. Y., was unanimously selected as the next place of meeting.

Scatter the Enemy.

Manila, Sept. 8.—Capt. Butler with three companies of the Third infantry, a detachment of cavalry and one gun while upon a reconnaisance met a body of rebels at San Rafael. The Americans scattered the enemy and captured seven prisoners, five rifles and 300 rounds of ammunition. They also destroyed the rice stored in seven warehouses.

FINISH THEIR WORK.

Col. Shaw Elected Commander-in-Chief at the Final Session of the G. A. R.

Philadelphia, Sept. 8.—The thirty-third national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic came to an end Thursday night. The election of a commander-in-chief, which, it was supposed, would be settled only after a warm contest, was conducted and carried out in the most peaceable manner imaginable. Col. Albert D. Shaw, of Watertown, N. Y., was unanimously elected to the highest office of the organization, after Judge Leo Rassieur, of St. Louis, had declined to be a candidate.

Irving Robbins, of Indianapolis, was elected senior commander in chief, and M. Minton, of Louisville, Ky., was chosen junior vice commander. William H. Baker, of Lynn, Mass., was elected surgeon general.

The report of the pensions committee which was Wednesday recommitted with instructions to the committee to embody therein the desires of the encampment relative to the pension laws, was again presented. The report was accompanied by resolutions drafted by the committee and the encampment at once adopted them unanimously. They were as follows:

"Your committee on pensions respectfully presents this supplemental report pursuant to the instructions of the encampment.

"We respectfully direct attention to section 471 of the revised statutes of the United States which reads as follows: 'The commissioner of pensions shall perform under the direction of the secretary of the interior such duties in the execution of pension and bounty laws as may be prescribed by the president.'

"Resolved, That this encampment respectfully represents to the president its earnest conviction that rule 225, now in practical effect in the adjudication of claims for pensions, under section 2, of the act of June 27, 1890, in the pension bureau, works grave injustice to worthy ex-soldiers and ex-sailors, and we express the hope that you will find it consistent with your duties as an executive officer to abrogate this rule and reestablish the principle as defined in rule 164. Under the operation of rule 164, formulated and put into effect soon after the passage of this act, unquestionably responsive to public sentiment and based upon sound legal propositions, in a word, the simple expression of the letter and spirit of the law, 400,000 names were added to the pension roll of the republic and to which no objection was heard for years after its promulgation.

"Resolved, This encampment respectfully represents that the practice in the pension bureau in barring widow claimants who have an income of $96 a year is not warranted by the terms of the law and we warmly indorse the recommendation of the commissioners of pensions to successive secretaries of the interior that the limitation be increased to $250 a year.

"Resolved, That the commander-in-chief appoint a committee of five comrades to present to the president a certified copy of the action of this national encampment, with an expression of our earnest desire for justice only to our disabled comrades and the widows and orphans of our dead under the letter and spirit of the law.

"Resolved, That this committee is hereby authorized and directed in the event that it is determined that relief may not be accorded by the administrative officers of the government to present to congress a request for the amendment of the law in such form as to make certain the true intent of the statute, as we believe it can be construed as herein presented."

Philadelphia, Sept. 9. — The veterans who attended the encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic Friday afternoon witnessed a naval review held on the Delaware river. The ships reviewed were those of the North Atlantic squadron, composed of the flagship New York, cruiser Brooklyn, battleships Indiana, Massachusetts and Texas.

The official reviewing party was composed of Gov. Stone and staff, of Pennsylvania; Mayor Ashbridge, of this city; Capt. James H. Sands, United States navy; Senator Penrose, James Latta and Maj. Richard S. Collum, of the G. A. R.

After the review was over Gov. Stone and his staff were taken on board the New York, where Admiral Sampson tentered them an informal reception.

Camp James A. Sexton, in Fairmont park, in which nearly 10,000 veterans had been sheltered during the encampment, came to an end at four o'clock Friday afternoon.

Hatfields Are Captured.

Williamson, W. Va., Sept. 12.—Sheriff Henderson, of Logan county, and a posse of 15 Monday went to the Hatfield fort in the mountains 30 miles from here and without bloodshed captured "Devil Anse" Hatfield, his son Bob and John Dingess, a relative of the Hatfields by marriage. The prisoners will be taken to Pike county and tried on charges of murder growing out of the Hatfield-McCoy feud. "Cap" Hatfield, the only prominent member of the faction now at liberty, is being hunted by a posse.

Charged with Polygamy.

Salt Lake City, Sept. 9.—Heber J. Grant was arraigned before Judge Norrell Friday afternoon on the charge of polygamy, to which, by his attorney, Franklin S. Richards, he pleaded guilty. The defendant waived the time for passing sentence, the court ruling that this could be done in cases of misdemeanor, when Judge Norrell ordered that he pay a fine of $100 or be imprisoned in the county jail one day for each dollar thereof unpaid. The fine was paid.

Will Represent Illinois.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 12.—Gov. Tanner has appointed three delegates to the national conference on trusts to be held in Chicago this week. One of the delegates appointed Monday—Fred Gresheimer, of Chicago—takes the place of ex-Gov. John P. Altgeld, who has refused the commission as a delegate offered him by Gov. Tanner. The other delegates are W. S. Moulton, Shelbyville, and R. R. Wallace, of Hamilton.

Yellow Fever at Key West.

Key West, Fla., Sept. 9.—Thirty cases of yellow fever have been reported during the past 24 hours, including two cases previously omitted, the total number occurring to date so far as known is 127. Two deaths have been reported during the past 24 hours, making the total number of deaths nine. The weather is still very warm, and rainy and favorable for the spread of the disease.

Bankers Adjourn.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 8.—The bankers' convention adjourned Thursday after one of the most successful sessions in its history. The next session will probably be held in Richmond, Va. The executive council will meet in February to finally decide. Many addresses were delivered on Thursday. Walker Hill, of St. Louis, was elected president.

PLANNING A DEPARTURE.

An Author Who Would Get Out of the Beaten Track and Give the Real Thing.

"What we want," said the publisher, "is a good, realistic story of army life. Something that will show just how events move among the soldiers."

"I see," said the author; "I was in the army myself. I know exactly how things are conducted."

"Something that will thrill the reader to the marrow and make his hair stand on end."

"I thought you said you wanted something out of the ordinary."

"That's what I am after."

"Well, in that case, we won't have any thrill in it. Of course, it's there, but it comes so suddenly and is so soon over that you hardly have time to know what thrilled you. If you want to get right down to hard-pan realism and sound the keynote of the soldier's general experience, you want to leave out most of this description of a hero rushing headlong through struggling men and over fallen horses, waving a gun with one hand and the star spangled banner with the other, while singing 'My Country, 'Tis of Thee,' at the top of his voice. We'll get out of the beaten track of fiction and relate how many hours a day he spend currying his horse and polishing his weapons, and how many miles a day he traveled, and how often he wanted to talk back and didn't dare, and how he would have been willing to give four dollars a square inch for a beefsteak, and all the rest of the little details which play so important a part and which writers of fiction have hitherto so strangely neglected."—Washington Star.

CANNIBAL IN THE INK.

He Was from the South Sea Islands and There Was Character in His Writing.

Rather an amusing incident was connected with the return to San Francisco, en route to Washington, of Justice W. L. Chambers, who has been for a number of years chief justice of Samoa. The judge is a well-educated and highly cultivated Alabaman, with that polish of that rara avis, the Southern gentleman of the best type.

In an interview, published at Honolulu on his way up, the chief justice was so seriously misrepresented in his alleged statements regarding Samoan matters that he took the wise precaution in San Francisco of writing out his views on the more ticklish matters concerning which he was interviewed. Like most gentlemen, Judge Chambers' penmanship would never be taken as a model in a district school. A printer on a morning paper to whom it was given to set up was in despair.

"Look here," he said, "this is positively the worst writing I ever was up against!"

"But that was written by the chief justice of Samoa, man. Look how much character there is in the writing."

"Chief justice of Samoa!" snorted the compositor. "That accounts for it. There is character in his hand. I might have known he was a South Sea islander. I could smell canibal in the ink!"—San Francisco News Letter.

Reform Press Bureau.
ST. PAUL, Sept. 11, 1899.

The daily press during the week have generally noted the call for Hon. Charles A. Towne to go into the campaign of the Middle Eastern states. Never slow in responding to any call of duty, Mr. Towne has responded to this, cut short his stay abroad, and before the month closes will be ready for the fray, probably both in Ohio and Kentucky. Mr. Towne cabled that he would sail on the 21st. But for this urgent call Mr. Towne would have returned at the time of Senator Jones, chairman of the national Democratic committee, in October.

The call to Mr. Towne, especially for Ohio, emphasizes the platform recently adopted by the Democrats, in which free coinage was made the leading feature. But Mr. Towne will stand on that plank no more enthusiastically and fearlessly than on each of the declarations of the party in the Buckeye state, whose leader for what is believed to be almost certain victory, is John R. McLean. We speak advisedly of the hopeful outlook in that state from a personal letter received from Mr. McLean.

And another duty faces our great Minnesotan, of which he will be apprised, immediately on his arrival, and that is that Mr. Towne must make the race for congress in his old district next year. Of this he had not yet been advised, but it is the determination of his friends of his home county, Duluth, and other influential portions of the Sixth. A bureau representative has canvassed the matter very carefully, and finds the demand universal. The united reform forces will listen to no other proposal, and a few days hence, when Mr. Towne again reaches the western shore of the great "unsalted," he will find this tender from his loyal friends, made with such enthusiasm and with such expressions of love and devotion as will again touch him to the heart.

The state fair of 1899 set a pace that will be hard to come up to in the future. A distinctive feature was the great support from the country. While the Twin Cities turned out, especially to the evening attractions, the great body of the patronage was from the interior of the state. Success was in great measure due to the indefatigable labors of the officials, especially President Cooper and Secretary Randall.

Governor Lind and party, including his official staff of the Minnesota National Guard, will see that the returning Thirteenth is properly cared for. Meanwhile a programme for the home reception is being matured which will be a credit to the whole state. Let those in charge steer clear of politics and all will be well. There must be no McKinley stump speeches on the occasion.

Come, friends, let us stop an instant, and think of essentials. If we aim at nothing more in the reform cause than to get possession of the few state offices, the game is simply not worth the candle.

The People's party state central committee met on Wednesday and determined on a vigorous organization of that branch of the allied forces.

Talk of partisanship, in the grain department. Why, of 50 employes in one of the departments at Minneapolis, 35 are Republican political strikers. They include Congressman Fletcher's men Friday, who make daily reports to Postmaster Lovejoy; inspectors (those "skilled" men without whom and Clausen, inspection would cease), who inspect wheat and run ward caucuses for city Republican aldermen; Republicans, appointed for this political job and that; Republicans, holding places on account of certain society scandals; Republicans, relatives of Republican newspaper managers; Republicans, brothers or relatives of other Republicans; Republicans, relatives of city hall Republicans, and so on to the end of the chapter. Always Republicans, and always the worst of the strikers and healers known to Hennepin county politics.

So far as known there was just one Populist and one Democrat in the whole Minneapolis grain department up to the time of the inauguration of Governor Lind. The Populist is credited to Congressman Eddy, who got him appointed from Polk county, hence a supposed pull on the Populists there; the Democrat, of the Beckerian variety. Oh, the Republican administration of the grain department has been so beautifull "non-partisan."

Twin City organized labor made magnificent showings in observance of Labor day. Thanks to persistent organization, labor is in good position to withstand encroachments and oppressions too often encountered.

The state board of equalization, which is looked to this year for distinct and positive reforms in the matters of state taxation, is now in session. In Governor Lind's enforced absence at San Francisco, the board, upon the governor's request, has laid over the important matters, such as franchises and foreign corporations, until his return. There has been in some quarters a misapprehension regarding the prospect of the board going ahead with the hoped for reforms, on account of the presence on the new board of some of the old members who are reputed to be opposed to the desired reforms, doubtless on account of the course pursued in recent years by such members favorable to corporations reputed to be shirkers of tax-paying. Such are holdover members and are not Governor Lind's appointees. It is not believed that Governor Lind has appointed a single member of the present board, but will be found equal to what is expected of the member, and of Governor Lind who placed in his hands the important duty with which each member is charged under the law.

The week's event, as to the state institutions, has been the reformatory exposure made by the St. Paul Dispatch. That such an irrepressible, unyielding, uncompromising, and most of the time unconscionable Republican sheet, should have found it impossible longer to hold its nose at the stench of the Republican management of that institution, speaks volumes—no tubsfull—for the size of the goppite stench. The exposure was most complete, and will doubtless stimulate the reformatory board to action. But nothing particularly new was presented, more than was laid before the board by Governor Lind three months ago. Next.

And just to emphasize Missouri's "crop," Silver Dick Bland's old district has elected a Democrat as Bland's successor, by 3,500, over the Republican candidate. The goppites were loud in their assertion that they would "redeem" the district, now that Bland was gone.

The American Bankers' Association, which has just been in annual session, and which was organized to assist in bringing the country to "specie payments," has a membership of 4,000, who have capital and surplus amounting to $1,200,000,000. They together hold over $4,500,000,000 of the people's deposits, and this is an increase of over $840,000,000 in a single year. Of course this is not a power—a money power. And this gigantic power has declared for the gold standard, and pledges its efforts next year to secure such political action.

The banks want the gold standard fixed first, and then the rechartering of the banks provided for, then the money power will be supreme.

Here's to Colonel Tom Shevlin's national park scheme. The Winnebagoshish-Leech Lake plan is all right, and no one will oppose it. Uncle Sam furnishes the land, timber, water and wild Indians, and time will do the rest.

How many people know that it is literally true that in national banking, as proposed Republican legislation will leave the law, the government gives the banker back every dollar that he puts into the business and pays him interest on it besides, so that after the banker makes the first investment he has not one dollar risked, but is paid by the government to lend its money at his own rates? See if this is not so.

You and associates get together $100,000 to start a national bank. You buy $100,000 of government bonds and send the bonds to Washington with your application. You have now parted with your money, but have it in government bonds at 3 or 4 per cent. The government keeps the bonds, but sends you back $100,000 in national bank notes of your own issue. This is the money you use in banking. How much money have you now? $100,000? No, $200,000, one half of it in government bonds, on which you draw your interest with clockwork regularity, (less the small per cent of tax for "circulation"), and the other half in notes that you loan out at from 8 to 12 per cent, according to the stretch of your conscience. Is this true, or not? It is true, and who pays for it all? Why the people. They pay the interest and principal of the bonds, in taxes and tariffs, and the discounts and bonuses on the loans.

It is such a monstrous system as this that the people must rise in their might and put down, which they can only do by the overwhelming defeat of the money power that sustains the Republican party.

McKinley's policy of subjugation for the Filipinos, is even better than the sultanship which he has recognized for the Sulus. The latter has the institution of slavery, the same as cost us the horrors of the Civil War to exterminate, and yet in extending our American "sovereignty" over that part of the Philippines, the McKinley administration has expressly stipulated with the sultan that slavery shall not be interfered with, and neither the institution of polygamy. Slavery and polygamy under the American flag, under the McKinley administration. Slavery, polygamy and imperialism are very proper bed fellows!

At last we know why McKinley's attorney general, one Griggs of New Jersey, has not yet attacked the trusts, General Blair, Carter's attorney, declares that Griggs has been drunk for the last 25 years. Too much "Jersey lightning."

At Manila our soldiers shoot down those caught attending cock fights—and nobody kicks.

Congressman Stevens of St. Paul can't "see" how trusts will be an issue next year, with both parties declaring against them. There are many things Mr. Stevens can't "see." He should try Reform Eye Water. G. S. C.

THIRTEENTH ARR[IVAL]

The Ship Sheridan Br[ings] With South Dakota [Troops] Safely to Port.

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 8.—The transport Sheridan, bearing the 13th Minnesota and the 1st South Dakota regiments, has reached San Francisco in safety, and all is well.

The Sheridan carried 900 members of the Minnesota regiment, 652 of the South Dakota regiment, 42 members of the Fourth cavalry and 175 discharged men, besides 92 officers. There were three deaths during the voyage, as follows:

Arul Carlson, private Co. B, First South Dakota, died at sea, Aug. 28.

Besides the bodies of the three soldiers who died en route, the Sheridan brought the remains of the following who died during service in the Philippines:

BODIES BROUGHT BACK.

Reinhold Richter, captain First California volunteers.

M. Just, sergeant First California.

James T. Cardosa, private engineer corps.

John Dunmore, Co. B, First California.

Walter E. Hutchinson, private, Fifty-first Iowa.

Sidney Pratt, private Co. A, Thirteenth Minnesota.

Lee Forbes, captain First Nebraska.

Edwin O'Neill, First California.

The steamer left Manila, Aug. 10, and made the run from Yokohama in 13 days to an hour, but of course there is the double day in the mid Pacific ocean to take into account, and the run was really 16 days, which is a remarkably short trip.

Quarantine inspection was finished at an early hour this morning, and as soon as the ship was given a clear bill of health, she lifted her anchor and proceeded down the bay.

The Minnesota delegations were astir early. By 8:30 all were on board the McDowell, but it was after nine before she left her slip, owing to being obliged to wait for Gen. Shafter's representative. As the McDowell backed out she met the Sheridan coming down, and exchanges of greetings began.

Ladies clambered on the forward rail and strove to pick out familiar faces from the throng of soldiers who crowded the decks of the Sheridan. The men on board the transport went wild and gave forth cheer after cheer as the tug drew along its side.

Owing to the delay of the quarantine inspector's boat in leaving the transport, it was some time before any Minnesotans were allowed to go on board. The gang plank was lowered at last, however, and every one on the little steamer clambered on board.

Then came scenes that caused eyes to fill with tears as those long separated clasped arms around forms dearest in the world to them and held them in a long and loving embrace.

While it was to be regretted that there was no one representing either state or any of the four cities in which the regiment was recruited, in an official capacity, it is probable no one noticed such absence this morning. There were too many friendly greetings to be exchanged and too many questions to be asked and answered. The absence of the governor and other official bodies will be noted more keenly tomorrow when the men disembark and march through the city to the Presidio. The Minneapolis committee however, will be on hand.

The Minnesota regiment originally had 1,337 officers and men. It has returned from the campaign with 45 officers and 900 men. The rest are recorded as dead, missing, discharged for disease or by favor invalided home, and discharged to re-enlist and remain in Manilla. Forty-seven are dead or missing, 90 were wounded, 71 re-enlisted for further service in the Philippines, and 42 received their discharges in Manilla that they might remain and engage in civil pursuits.

South Dakota has come back with forty-four officers and only half of her initial quota of fighting men. War dealt harshly with the young command. Its death list passed the sixty mark and was the highest of all the regiments in the field. It saw terribly hard service on several memorable occasions and lost some of the most gallant of its men. Colonel Frost is still in command. South Dakota on the firing line from early till late, and Minnesota dividing her time between policing plot-ridden Manilla and doing fighting at the front, is the story in brief of these two fine organizations from the Northwest. It was the Minnesota regiment that saved Manilla from being burned by the treacherous Filipinos, who shot at soldiers as they were extinguishing the flames. It was this same regiment that prevented outbreaks and massacres in the city; that guarded the prison and restrained native criminals.

San, Francisco, Sept. 9, '99.—Precisely at 9 o'clock, the hour set for disembarking, the men left the steamer and formed on the wharf. Then another pandemonium of noise broke forth. Every steamer along the water front opened its whistle wide. By reason of its colonel being the ranking officer, the First South Dakota had the first place in line. As soon as the Minnesota men had formed in line, Colonel Frost gave the command, the band struck up a lively air, and the line began its march up Market street.

They were preceded by the South Dakota delegation, headed by Governor Lee and Congressman Gamble, in carriages.

Along the entire route the sidewalks were lined with people and the men were cheered along the whole line of march. Thy stood the trip remarkably well, only a few being obliged to drop out and finish the trip in the ambulances and on street cars. It was a proud day for the men and for the big-hearted citizens of San Francisco.

The baggage was loaded soon after they had left the wharf and was at once started for camp. The Minnesotans will occupy the tents vacated this morning by the Colorados, who start for home today.

The South Dakotans have been assigned the camp formerly occupied by the Pennsylvanians.

It is expected fully three weeks will elapse before mustering out.

The average pastorate in the Presbyterian church is reported as eight years and eight months, the average service of ministers as stated supply is two years and five months, and the average of ministerial service, including both pastors and stated supplies, is five years and seven months.

A Nebraska man was shot directly over the left eye, the ball passing down and out underneath the edge of the jaw, reentering the shoulder and out near the elbow, again entering the wrist and going out of the back of the hand. He also got well.

NATION'S GREETING TO DEWEY.

The central idea underlying the grand [reception] to be given Admiral Dewey in Washington the first week in October is [national] character. His arrival at the [capital] will mark his real home-coming [to the] American people, where the officials [of] the government will participate, and [a] magnificently jeweled sword voted by [Congress] will be presented. To that end [all] the arrangements will be of a simple but [most] dignified character. The welcome to [the] hero of Manila at the National Capital will probably occur on Monday, October 2, although the date will depend upon the length of the celebration in New York, which is still unsettled. The principal features of the reception in Washington, as planned by the citizens, with the cooperation of the President and Cabinet, will be two in number—the presentation of the sword voted by Congress and a night parade. A public reception at the White House will be followed by dinner to the Admiral by President McKinley. The sword will be presented by Secretary Long, at the east front of the Capitol, in the presence of Mr. McKinley and all the members of the Cabinet, late in the afternoon, while the parade, consisting of organizations of all kinds, will be accompanied by an illumination of the city on a scale of beauty never before witnessed in Washington.

The different features of the preparations are in the hands of a central body of citizens and eleven committees, embracing in all over a thousand people. Preparations for the celebration have been in hand for over a month.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and other railroads entering Washington have agreed upon cheap rates for the celebration, and the committee expects that there will be an outpouring of patriotic citizens almost equal to the inauguration of a President.

OF GENERAL INTEREST.

ONLY two women are left to draw pensions on account of the revolutionary war. There were three of them until a few days ago, the widows of continental soldiers, but their number was decreased by the death of Mrs. Nancy Jones, of Jonesboro, Tenn. She was 95 years old.

A MINNESOTA man captured a kingfisher when it was young, made a pet of it, and trained the bird to capture fish and lay them at its master's feet. In summer the bird is taken to the river where fish are known to abound, and set at liberty. It poises high in the air, and suddenly dropping, grasps its victim and promptly delivers the fish to its master.

RUSSIAN women are said to be remarkably frank about their ages. Several years ago one of them misrepresented her age in court and she was promptly sent to Siberia. ONLY "YONSONS" THERE.

Even the Chinese Laundryman Had a Couple of Norwegian Initials in His Name.

"Up in the central part of Wisconsin," said a Chicago traveling man, who had got tired talking about the trusts, "there is a town that is inhabited almost exclusively by 'Yonsons.' The name of the man who keeps the hotel is 'Yonson,' the drug store on the corner is owned by a man named 'Yonson,' the proprietor of the establishment that uses our goods is a Mr. 'Yonson,' and I noticed when I was riding up town from the station that the grocer and the butcher were both 'Yonsons.'

"'What's the matter here,' I said to the 'bus driver, 'haven't you any people in this town who don't belong to the 'Yonson' family?

"'Vall, Ay tank dare been von or two,' he replied.

"'What's your name?' I asked.

"'Yonson,' he answered.

"I was about to make some further inquiries as to the Yonson' family, but at that moment we passed the public laundry, and, looking at the square red sign above the door, I read:

"'Yip Yonson, Laundry.'

"Inside the Chinaman who owned the concern was busy ironing, and permitting his pigtail to hang down his back. I am almost convinced now that some of those 'Yonsons' are frauds."—Chicago Times-Herald.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

County vs. State.

St. Louis county is threatened with a suit by the state and when it comes will raise two important questions in a counter claim. A few days ago the county, in sending the state the amount of its apportionment of taxes, took out $17,300.24, the state's share of the county's losses in dead banks. The state has disregarded this and drawn for the full amount, and will sue if it is not paid, which it will not be. The county will put in a large counter claim on two points. The first one is the iron ore tonnage tax, which was declared unconstitutional. Under it the state took half the tax, and the county will sue for the difference between that and what they should have had, one-tenth. Another point is the railroads gross earnings tax. The county will claim that it should have been apportioned among the counties in which the railroad property is situated, instead of the state's using it, and will sue for its share. The amounts involved will be several times the state's claim.

The Thirteenth.

Money to bring the Thirteenth regiment from San Francisco to Minneapolis has been raised and placed in the hands of the proper authorities. A fund of $20,000 is to be raised by Thomas Lowry and the business men of Minneapolis and every cent of this will be expended in provided pleasure for the returned soldiers. At a recent meeting of the committees of the Twin Cities the following agreement was signed: "It is hereby agreed by the joint committees of Minneapolis and St. Paul, appointed to arrange for the reception of the Thirteenth regiment, Minnesota volunteers, on their return from the Phillippines, that the regiment be given a breakfast at St. Paul upon its arrival in the Twin Cities and that it shall not be detained in St. Paul to exceed three hours, but in any event the regiment shall leave St. Paul for Minneapolis by 11 o'clock a. m., to be reviewed there by the president of the United States, this being the president's first appearance before the regiment, said review to be followed by a dinner."

Instantly Killed.

David W. Burkhelder was instantly killed by falling over the banister on the fourth floor of the Grace hotel in Minneapolis, a distance of fifty feet. Burkholder was a single man about 45 years of age and has lived at the hotel for the past five years. He left the office on the second floor and started up the stairs to his room on the fourth floor. The stairway is an open area from the second to the fourth floors, the stairs being protected by railings. Some way Burkholder lost his balance on the fourth floor landing and fell over the railing. His body struck across the railing on the second floor and fell to the floor. His left leg was broken in two places and his skull was fractured at the base of the brain. He was picked up dead.

Killed by the Cars.

An unknown woman was killed by a Minneapolis & St. Louis way freight train near Eden Prairie. She called at the home of S. F. Miller, postmaster, of the village, and asked for a drink of water. She was given the drink of water and then she started down the railroad track. She had gone towards Minneapolis about a mile and a half when she reached a long trestle bridge across which was coming the freight. She started to step off the track but was too late, and the engine knocked her down. Her head was badly crushed, both legs were cut off and her entire body horribly mangled. The engine carried her some forty feet.

[LETTER TO MRS. PINKHAM NO. 18,992]

"DEAR FRIEND—I feel it my duty to express my gratitude and thanks to you for what your medicine has done for me. I was very miserable and losing flesh very fast, had bladder trouble, fluttering pains about the heart and would get so dizzy and suffered with painful menstruation. I was reading in a paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, so I wrote to you and after taking two bottles I felt like a new person. Your Vegetable Compound has entirely cured me and I cannot praise it enough."—MRS. J. O. BARNARD, MILLTOWN, WASHINGTON CO., ME.

DELANO, FRIDAY, Sept. 15, 1899.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Clark Sturman is putting in a tubular well for Mrs. Stoltz, this week.

—W. D. Freeman is moving into C. R. Carlton's Second street residence, opposite the City Hall.

—H. C. Parslow left us a fine sample of Tetofski apple Wednesday, raised in his garden.

—The Howard Lake Herald reports that Miss Mae Stapies had her arm dislocated recently by being thrown from a buggy.

—Rev. M. N. Ray has, we learn from the Litchfield Review, resigned charge of the Episcopal church at that place to accept a call to St. John's church at Oakland, Cal.

—Even the Eagle has concluded since last week that perhaps the President of Board of Education does know a thing or two after all. Nothing like harmony in a school board or in a town.

—We are informed that the new barn of Simon Goebel, living near Lake Rebecca, was burned, Wednesday evening. Several barns have burned lately, the thing needs investigating.

—Miss Isa Kerr moved her household goods, including piano from Minneapolis Wednesday, and will make headquarters with her father's family this winter and have charge of a class in music.

—Street Commisseoner Welker and crew have replanked the wagon bridge and built a new and deeper drain from Eppel's corner to the river. The Mayor had an eye on the job and saw that it was done right.

—We received, this morning, a short letter from our correspondent, Alva, dated on board the Sheridan, at San Francisco, Sept. 7, saying they had arrived at 6 o'clock P. M., that day, and that the boys were all well.

—The Board of Health of Delano has voted to grant three weeks time to scholars whose vaccination was not successful and three weeks to all new pupils whenever they come to school in which to get physician's certificates of vaccination.

—Ye editor expects to leave on the morning train tomorrow for a week's trip with the Editorial Association to Omaha, Denver, and other places. Editor's Buckley and wife and Mrs. M. W. Mowatt will represent the Eagle on the trip.

—Our lumber men received notice Wednesday that the price of lath had been raised 25cts per thousand and pine boards a dollar. This makes lath which sold for $1.75 a few months back now sell for $3.25! Almost double! How is it with farm products?

—Ms. Pogreba, who was sent to the Hennepin county jail for taking wood from Mrs. Spates' pasture has returned home. Her daughter visited her while she stopped at Hennepin county's million dollar hostlery, and reports that she had a fine, clean place to stay.

—Several loads of good manuer could easily be spared from some of our alleys and would well repay some nearby farmer in an increased crop of corn or garden stuff. First come first served. It is better than having it dumped about town or hauled out to fill up low places.

—Fred Welker was thrown against a barbed wire fence by the cow, on Tuesday and received an ugly cut just above the knee. Barbed wire fences may be cheaper to build but when all damages are assessed against them, it don't take long for them to become high priced fences.

—Our Minnesota fall has set in. We have had no frost of consequence yet, but vegetation is assuming the varied hues it is accustomed to take on when summer is ended. Evenings and mornings are cool while the noon hour usually finds the sun shine hot enough for anybody. Minnesota falls are not to be beat anywhere.

—Delano has musicians enough to make a good band or to form several quartetts or choruses. There are some fine players and good singers, and if they would perform together Delano would not need to take a back seat for any town in the county on music. But they need some one to harmonize them. Tune up boys and play together awhile, the harmony will then soon get better.

—Our High School rooms are not yet crowded, and a few more pupils could be given first class attention. This is an opportunity of a life time for some of our young people. Our rooms ought, if all were interested, to be crowded to the limit of their capacities. Plenty of the young people need the knowledge to be had for a little exertion on the part of themselves, and in the future will regret not taking the chance while it is at hand to graduate from the High School.

—The meeting called for Tuesday evening at the City Hall, for arranging for a reception for Delano boys of the 13th was a grand success; there being a larger attendance than is usually found at the preliminary meetings for celebrating the 4th of July. Dr Catlin was chosen chairman and Peter R. Peterson Secretary of the meeting. On motion it was voted unanimously that we hold a celebration of the return of the boys from the Philippines. On motion it was voted that a dinner should be given at 1 P. M. to be followed by a programme to be arranged. On motion it was voted that the Chairman appoint an Executive Committee of five, whose business it should be to appoint sub committees and make further preparations for the home coming reception. The committee was appointed as follows: Albert Eppel, Peter R Peterson, A. L. Mealey, Mrs M. J. Mulford and Mrs. Dr. J. S Shrader. The meeting then adjourned. The Executive Committee then met and talked over further arrangements. The celebration is an assured success.

—An article from the Jackson Republic against vaccination is being extensively copied by papers throughout the state. Before spreading such doctrine the facts should be well looked into. It claims that "At Round Lake recently, the above order of the board of health was received and one of the first to be vaccinated was the doctor's own child who died within ten days of small pox. Since then a half dozen deaths have followed, untold damage done in Round Lake and vicinity and all in the name of the board of health and the regime that manages it and the people have no redress. All manner of blood diseases are inoculated into innocent children by order of the board of health, and you have to stand it."

The Secretary of the state board of health recommends the use of glycerinized lymph which is put up in glass tubes, a single dose in each tube, and carefully produced and put up, with a view to creating the least possible disturbance and producing vaccinia, a preventative of small pox. We are at a loss to know how then he, at least, can be charged with spreading small pox at Round Lake. We are sorry for the doctor who lost his child by small pox, also others like him unfortunate. But the article in question don't state plainly that the children were inoculated with small pox, and certainly if they were that was not in accordance with the health officer's orders. Vaccinia is to prevent small pox not to spread it. If the doctor's child died of small pox within ten days after he was vaccinated he, more than likely, was exposed to the small pox before he was vaccinated, or the vaccination didn't take. For our own information we would like to know how many cases died, and how many of them had ever been successfully vaccinated.

If Brother Allen wishes to find falt with compulsory laws he has a right to; but he should tread carefully on scientific facts.

Personal.

Fred Farber left Saturday morning for Minneapolis.

John Coolen, of Smith Lake, was a Delano visitor Sunday.

Prof. Gerdsen, of Litchfield called on Delano friends Friday.

Mrs. Edith Lanway came home from Hope, N. D. Saturday morning.

Miss Maud Craig, of Princeton, visited at Mrs. Alice Davis' this week.

Joseph Niestroy and Harry Wilder have returned to Faribault to School.

Mrs. H. C. Parslow who has been ailing for some time is again about town.

Miss May Mowatt returned from St. Peter, where she has been visiting, Saturday.

John Cunningham and family attended Mrs. William's funeral at Watertown last Friday.

Mrs. Henry C. Parslow and daughter returned Monday evening to their home at Hankinson.

Albert Kurtz, from the Duluth country was on one of his periodical visits to Delano Sunday.

O. A. Burnes drove to Minneapolis Sunday, to be on hand promptly to attend to some business.

Editor Smith of the Waverly Tribune and his brother of the Glencoe Register, made us a brief visit Monday.

John Walker and family left for home, Minneapolis, Monday morning, after a pleasant visit with Delano friends.

C. W. Williams and two girls, of Minneapolis, visited at O. A. Burnes' Tuesday. He expects to move to Delano soon.

Mrs. Collins and children returned home to Minneapolis Tuesday, after a few days visit with her husband, who is working at the Eagle office.

C. S. Buckley has received a letter from Jenner Chance. He was in France Aug. 29, and expects to be home as soon as his fellow soldiers of the 13th Reg.

Vaccination Notice.

To the patrons and others interested in the Delano schools:

Notice is hereby given that three weeks time will be granted those who were not successfull vaccinated and to all new pupils, on entering school, in which to procure physicians certificates of vaccination. T. J. CATLIN, M D. Health Officer.

Delano, Sept. 15, '99.

C. A. BRUNKOW, Secretary.

County Cullings.

Howard Lake on Monday evening voted bonds to build a new school house.

Wright county ought to have a county jail. It could be used for people from all parts of the county. Most of the time some village or town seems to have a boarder at Minneapolis at the expense of Wright county.

With commendable enterprise the Buffalo Journal this week prints a census entire of the village of Buffalo showing a population of 1,076. Of course Buffalo will now claim to be the Metropolis of Wright county until Delano is heard from.

We acknowledge receipt of a complimentary pass to the Wright County Fair; also the Premium List and Rules and Regulations. Thanks gentlemen, thanks. But the Premium Lists should have been circulated several weeks ago, so it a person had any notion of taking exhibits he could be prepared to do so. The Fair is to be held at Howard Lake Sept. 19, 20 and 21.

The Buffalo Standard says that "In the habeus corpus proceedings brought by Mrs. Joseph Boxell to secure the custody of her two children, heard Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Boxell testified that she could not live with her husband for the reason that she believed him guilty of the murder of his father and step-mother. The court ordered the children delivered to the mother and directed that the father, Joseph Boxell, be permitted to see them twice a week."

Among Our Exchanges.

Anoka Herald: Lind will be beaten in the next election, surely. He has fallen out with Jim Hill, and that gentleman will do as much against him in 1900 as he did for him in 1898, judging from his two St. Paul organs, the Pioneer Press and Globe.

Long Praire Leader: Two years ago thousands of those who still believed in the Declaration of Independence were called anarchists, and because they still believe so in their opposition to imperialism they are now termed copperheads. But there were over six million of this class who were entitled to vote three years ago and if things keep coming their way as they have been lately the same vote will be almost doubled in 1900.

Duluth Herald: Rev. Henry Jenkins, colored does not agree with Bishop Turner in his views of the race troubles. The former recently preached a sermon at Windsor, Md., in which he said: I am tired of hearing Bishop Turner telling the negroes to get guns. I say get money, get education and confidence in one one another. Stop desecrating the Sabbath day. Stop drinking whisky. Let dynamite and rum alone, and strive to acquire land and homes. Salvation is coming, not by the stony road of politics, but by the highway of Christianity."

Rev. J. S. McCornack recently received the commission of Major in Col. Wm. Denning's provisional regiment, in the state of Illinois.—Howard Lake Herald.

Willmar Argus: Lind is in straights. He can't find a pop that he would dare to trust as the successor of Geo. B. Aiton as state high school inspector. It's not in their business te be well informed and Mr. Aiton will remain.

Star News: Bro. Pease of the Anoka Union thinks that political honors come too all fired high. Has somebody been tapping the old man for "legitimate expenses."

The name of "Bathouse John" Coughlin, one of the most notorious saloonkeepers and gambling house proprietors of Chicago, appears on the committee to welcome President Mc Kinley to that city—Backbone.

H. Tanner has been appointed deputy oil inspector along the G. N. line in Wright County. The pay is not big but sufficient for those articles favoring the Gold Standard that Mr. Tanner wrote during the last campaign. Has he flopped?

The Journal congratulates Bro. Tanner on being appointed Oil Inspector for the southern district of this county. It is not a very big thing nor is the salary very large, but it serves as a recognition.

The Journal has no objection nor does it wish to be understood as making any kick, it is a matter of no interest to us, at the same time from a political standpoint, it is difficult to understand why Gov. Lind should in this or any other way, give this recognition.

Tanner is what is commonly called a gold democrat, and through two campaigns did all he could to defeat both Lind and Towne. He worked and voted with the republicans.

It may not be generally known but is known and believed among those who have had an opportunity to know, that during their first campaign the gold democrats of this county sold out both Towne and Lind. At their second and last campaign, some of the gold democrats (but not Tanner) supported Lind but they all went back on Towne.

Politically, this appointment of Tanner is about as silly as any political act could well be, and the Governor is likely to find that all the time he spends patting the gold democrats of this county on the back will be worse than wasted, for whenever Mike Doran says the word they will go back on him.

The Journal, however congratulates Bro. Tanner.—Buffalo Journal.

A Heroic Leader.

M. W. Atwood, Prohibition candidate for governor of Iowa believes "it requires more courage to be a Prohibitionist in Iowa than to run the Merrimac into the harbor of Santiago." Mr. Atwood has never shown the white feather in the presence of the saloonists. His zeal in prosecuting liquor sellers in his home town of Estherville is well known in that part of the state. Frequently his life has been threatened by the liquor outlaws. One Saturday, the day before the Fourth of July, he discovered that four kegs of beer had been brought to town for the celebration. He swore out a warrant and had the stuff locked up. His life was threatened by the liquor men, but he armed himself with a revolver, and after announcing that if wanted he could be found at home, went home and said his prayers and was unmolested.—Backbone.

COPYRIGHT 1898 BY COSMOPOLITAN MAGAZINE

THE delights of an evening spent around a well-lighted reading table are not half understood. An illustrated magazine with its wealth of illustrations, its stories of adventure and love, its descriptions of travel which carry you to the remotest ends of the earth, and its instructive articles for young and old—these are the first requisites for your own enjoyment and the entertainment and proper education of your children.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

Both Together One Year for Only $1.80

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. For three years The Cosmopolitan has undisputedly claimed that it reached the largest clientele possessed by any periodical, daily, weekly or monthly, in the world. It was The Cosmopolitan which sent Julian Hawthorne to India to let the world know the real horrors of famine and plague. It was The Cosmopolitan which established at its own cost a great Free Correspondence University which now has over 20,000 students on its rolls. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $5,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

Three Together One Year for Only $2.35

JIM BLUDSO.

Wall, no! I can't tell whar he lives,
Because he don't live, you see:
Leastways, he's got out of the habit
Of livin' like you and me.
Whar have you been for the last three years,
That you haven't heard folks tell
How Jimmy Bludso passed in his checks,
The night of the "Prairie Belle"?

He warn't no saint—them engineers
Is pretty much all alike—
One wife in Natchez-under-the-Hill,
And another one here, in Pike.
A keerless man in his talk was Jim,
And an awkward man in a row—
But he never flunked, and he never lied,—
I reckon he never knowed how.

And this was all the religion he had—
To treat his engine well:
Never be passed on the river;
To mind the pilot's bell;
And if ever the "Prairie Belle" took fire,
A thousand times he swore
He'd hold her nozzle agin the bank
Till the last soul got ashore.

All boats has their day on the Mississip',
And her day came at last—
The Movastar was a better boat,
But the Belle, she wouldn't be passed.
And so she came tearin' along that night,
The oldest craft on the line,
With a nigger squat on her safety-valve,
And her furnace crammed, rosin and pine.

The fire bust out as she clared the bar,
And burnt a hole in the night,
And quick as a flash she turned and made
For that willer-bank on the right,
There was runnin' and cursin', but Jim yelled out
Over all the infernal roar,
"I'll hold her nozzle agin the bank
Till the last galoot's ashore."

Thro' the hot, black breath of the burnin' boat
Jim Bludso's voice was heard,
And they all had trust in his cussedness,
And knowed he would keep his word.
And sure's your born, they all got off
Afore the smoke-stacks fell.
And Bludso's ghost went up alone
In the smoke of the "Prairie Belle."

He warn't no saint—but at jedgement
I'd run my chance with Jim
'Longside of some pious gentlemen
That wouldn't shook hands with him.
He seen his duty, a dead sure thing,—
And went for it thar and then;
And Christ ain't a-going to be too hard
On a man who died for men.

JOHN HAY.

THE above poem was written by Col. John Hay, our present Secretary of State. Secretary Hay has quite a reputation as a poet, and has embellished American literature with a number of interesting pieces.

C. A. PILLSBERRY, the founder of the great milling center in Minneapolis, and one of Minnesota's greatest business men died suddenly at his home in Minneapolis Sunday afternoon. His death is felt as a great loss, and is mourned by innumerable friends.

A RACE riot broke out in Carterville Ill. last Sunday in which six negro miners were killed and a couple wounded. The trouble was between the white and colored miners of that place. All Negro miners coming to town were met and ordered back, when yesterday a number armed, and coming into town soon got into trouble with white miners with the above result. A company of militia was ordered out by Gov. Tanner to preserve peace.

GILBERT HAZEL, a colored graduate of Harverd; has a new proposition for the Negro question, which is becoming greater year by year. His idea is to encourage the negroes to migrate in large bodies to Northern and Northeastern states. He would have the National Gov. take the matter in hand and establish bureaus of dispersion in the largest negro settlements of the South, in charge of men in sympathy with the movement, and effect a migration of a couple million negroes, thus throwing the South open to white labor. Southern people think that this regulation of the negro population would lessen the criticism of the North, upon their dealings with their colored inhabitants. It is proposed that the railroads lessen their rate of travel per mile for these excursions and that the Gov. pay a percentage.

MAPLE PLAIN, Minn., Sept. 19, '99.
Editor BUFFALO GAZETTE.

And it came to pass in the days of William of Canton, Second Lieutenant to Marcus Hanna and successor to Grover the fisherman. that there was much noise in the land. The Jew bankers of Wall street, the money mongers, the trusts and corporations of this country backed up by the lion's tail of Great Britain says we will bring on a war, and shed much blood: so we can make much money regardless of the rights or opinions of the people: we will create an army; we will build up a navy and we will do all other things whatsoever we like in order to fry the fat out of the people and make much money. We will build up an aristocratic government, governed and controlled by a military power and not by the people. We will also expand, that is we will extend our public domain beyond the seas, not for plunder and conquest (so they say) but for the love of humanity, to civilize, christianize, and revolutionize the heathen.

A half a century ago the Monroe Doctrine was a text book and a good thing to go by but now it has become a dead letter and only fit for the waste basket. In his annual message to Congress in 1823 he says, The American continents should no longer be subjects for any new European colonial settlements, dangerous to our peace and safety. And now we are doing the very same thing that the Monroe Doctrine positively forbids.

The United States paid Spain $20,000,000 for a quit claim deed to the Philippine Islands, and we established our claim, and we said we will send a navy over there armed and equipped, ready for action, and also a large land force to shoot kill and civilize the Filippinos. Yes, they must be civilized at the expense of the United States, at the cost of much money and the sacrifice of many lives: and if an American citizen says he is opposed to this war with the Filibpinos, and the spending of much money, and the killing of our young men who are worth more to us than all the eastern archipelago, including serpents, crocodiles, and all the naked aborigines, must be called a traitor, and not a lover of his flag and the country that gave him birth. But such statements come only from silly politicians and imbecils who are not conversant with the English language and do not know the etymology of the word patriotism. Some people think for the American flag to float over the islands of the sea and over an inferior race to our own, and let the American Eagle build her nest in in the coverts of the rocks and there hatch her young is patriotism and love of country.

Now in the days of William of Canton, successor to Grover the fisherman, there came wise men from the East, New York, Boston, and other sea port towns saying, "We must have a war in order to bring about prosperity, make much money, and fool the people"; and William of Canton said let her come.

We suppose by the United States getting the Philippine islands, she expects a part of old China with her crumbling walls, and this says the millionaire will increase our export trade and give us competition with pauper labor, and that is what they want. Many of our chief politicians are all the time fiddling a tune on their jaw bone about pauper labor. When we have acquired the Philippine Islands and a part of China, then we will have nothing else to do but compete with pauper labor. The millionaire is considering the cotton and sugar industry that will be brought about by acquiring this new territory. What about the sugar beet plant at St. Louis Park that our state is paying a large bonus of thousands of dollars to, for the sake of having a sugar refinery in our state. Will the beet industry of this state be increased and the price strengthened by competing with pauper labor in the Philippines and old China? Those fellows who are all the time preaching expansion and talking transportation and manufacturing industry are fishing for their own interest and not yours. A great many of the common people of this country, having eyes they see not, and having ears they hear not the things that mostly concern their temporal welfare.

"The millionairs make broad their phylacteries and enlarge the borders of their garments. They love the uppermost rooms at feasts and the chief seats in the synagogues" and the poor man allows it so to be.

Now, Mr. Editor, there are some things a great many people of this country are getting sick and tired of reading about, and that is about this monkey war being a patriotic war, a war for love of country, etc. It is only a rich man's war and a poor man's fight, as most all wars are. It is said we went to war with Spain for the sake of humanity—Humanity; the nature of man; kind disposition. Webster. Our bright young men are killed. They sicken and die; they endure hardships; they are crippled and maimed for life. We give all this and more too. We tax the poor of this country to help carry on this war for the sake of humanity and righteousness. They say but it is not for this but for greed and plunder. We went to war with Spain; we whipped them into line; peace was finally declared; the protocol was exchanged and signed by the two nations, the United States and Spain and the war was at an end, and Spain now has her foreign minister at Washington, and we as two nations are at peace with each other. Then who declared this war against the Filippines? It was not Congress. Then it must be an administration war, they say a war of peace and safety to our heritage. This is as false as was the devil's lie in the garden of Eden, and is only told to soothe and quiet the minds of the popgun voting variety of people in this country. Some say if you do not help hold up the hands of the administration in this war you are not patriotic; you are unamerican, etc. etc. But we heard many such catch phrases in '96 about those who favored free coinage of silver. Such statements are usually made by those who have but little discernment; their visions are dim, and the smokestack of their brain is full of smut, and in need of a chimney sweep.

We have been hearing for the last three years that silver was dead, but as yet there has been no funeral. Wonder where they keep the corpse. According to ancient and modern history, this personage must have been about four thousand years old, for it was quite prevalent in Abraham's time, and out of respect to the old patriarch Abraham if nothing more, who bought the cave of Machpelah as a burying place for four hundred sheckels of silver, should at least receive a decent burial even at the hands of an enemy.

Mr. Editor, I wrote this more than a week ago but have been waiting for the ink to dry and my conscience to harden before sending it. So sink or swim, live or die, survive or perish, I am for the Constitution of the United States, the Declaration of American Independence, freedom and equality, and SIXTEEN TO ONE.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 15, 1899.

The capitalists who were trying to get Mr. McKinley to mix this government up in the affairs of Santo Domingo have withdrawn the pressure, because they now believe that their man, Jiminez, who is already at the head of the provisional government, will be peaceably elected President by the people of Santo Domingo, and their business interests over there will be taken care of by him, without the direct assistance of this government. Private advices from Santo Domingo say that U. S. consular officials are quietly aiding Jiminez all they can. If that be true they have received a tip from Washington, as otherwise they would not dare to do such a thing.

The sudden discovery, by the administration that Porto Rico needs a civil government and the announcement that it is to be given one in advance of Congressional action, is intended more to delay the establishment of a permanent government on the island by Congress than for the benefit of the Porto Ricans. In much as the proposed civil government is to be entirely appointive from the top to the bottom, and that its every act must be approved in Washington before becoming effective, it is a rather wide stretch of the imagination to call it "home rule" for Porto Rico, as the administration shouters are doing. A republican Senator who is classed as an administration man, although his friends know that he is rather inclined to oppose than to support anything leading towards imperialism, said of this new Porto Rican scheme: "I believe that this is the first step towards influencing Congress to defer establishing a permanent form of government for Porto Rico until after the Presidential election. Once this President made government is in operation, plausible arguments can be presented to wait a year and see how it works, in order to get the benefit of the experience, before providing for a permanent government."

A New York newspaper man—Mr. H. C. Green—who was in Washington this week, said of the democratic outlook: "The New York delegation to the Democratic National Convention will be unanimous for W. J. Bryan. His popularity with the rank and file of Tammany was too great to be opposed by Mr. Croker, even if he had been disposed to antagonize the Nebraskan. But Mr. Croker is for Bryan heartily, and being a far seeing politician, he recognizes that Bryan as a Presidential candidate is by no means a forlorn hope. Thousands of patriotic Americans who do not agree with him on the financial question regard the imperialistic policy of this administration as fraught with more danger to the republic than free silver. There are other thousands who will oppose the republican ticket because its leaders are allied with the rapacious trusts, and because they feel that the only hope of relief from their tyranny lies in the triumph of the democracy."

One witness before the Industrial Commission, and the last that will be heard on the subject of trusts until next month, did not since matters in suggesting a remedy for trusts. That was Mr. Louis Emery, formerly a Pa. State Senator and now connected with the Pure Oil Co. He testified that the railroads and other transportation lines helped the Standard Oil trust by giving them lower rates than they did their competitors, and emphatically: "I am an absolute believer in government ownership of all transportation facilities, especially railroads. If the railroads and waterways could be put under government control the whole difficulty would end. If you would make an example of these men who are discriminating in their rates, and put them behind the bars, it would be well." The last witnesses heard by the Commission were T. V. Powderly, Commissioner of Immigration, and Samuel Gompers, who told about labor matters as he knows them from his post as President of the American Federation of Labor.

One of the most disgraceful things connected with the war in the Philippines was the detention, this week, at Hong Kong, by British officials, of a steamship on the way from Manila to San Francisco, with U. S. troops. The steamship is one of those carrying the British flag which are under charter as troopships, and the cause of her detention was that she had 400 more men aboard than she should have had. The answer to this charge by the War Department and by Otis was that she had only one more man aboard on the return trip than she carried from San Francisco. In other words, the British officials at Hong Kong are more considerate of the welfare of our soldiers than our own officials at San Francisco and Manila, who allowed this ship to take on 400 more men than she is allowed by the British maritime law to carry, were. Surely, that is enough to bring blushes of shame to any American's face, unless he is past being ashamed of official incompetency and negligence.

SET YER TEETH AN' COME AGIN!

Don't loaf around an' kick when luck
Don't seem to come your way, but buck
Agin adversity till you
Through breakin' clouds kin see the blue.
Don't think because the skies are black
The sun has jumped his job, but stack
Yer nerve all in a bunch to win
An' set yer teeth an' come agin!

In every life some rain must fall,
In every sweet there is some gall,
An' every earthly trail of ours
Must have some thorns among the flowers.
If fortune treats you rather rough
Look on its coldness as a bluff;
At every knockdown wear a grin
An' set yer teeth an' come agin!

The man who wins success mus' fight
His way up fortune's rocky height,
Mus' battle bravely day by day,
An' never falter by the way.
Reverses of'n come; the foe
Will deal you many a stunnin' blow,
But solid nerve is bound to win—
Jes' set yer teeth an' come agin!

The field o' life is thickly strewn
With men who lost their nerve too soon,
Who lacked the gritty nerve to stay
An' give an' take in many way.
Choose fur yer motto: "Win or die!"
When sent to grass don't never lie
An' sadly say: "It might have bin!"
But set yer teeth an' come agin!

When you have reached the goal at last,
With not a cloud to overcast
Yer sky of life, when, day by day,
All things jes' seem to fall your way,
Then you kin take yer lazy ease,
Kin loaf around jes' as you please,
An' then you'll say with cheery grin:
"I got my teeth an' come agin!"

As Marguerite Told It

"THE idea of such a thing!" exclaimed the girl with the tea rose leaf waist, as she balanced herself on the rail at the top of the steps and fanned herself with a magazine. "I'd have told her what I thought of her."

"Wasn't it mean!" said the one with the Merode hair arrangement. "She knew just as well as anything in the world exactly how I was going to have it made. She didn't ask outright, you know, but she told me about what she was going to wear, and I could see she was dying to know what I had planned. She hasn't got the least taste herself, and her mother—well, you saw what she wore at Mrs. Hubwright's reception."

"Wasn't it awful!"

"I'd have thought somebody would have told her. But that wasn't anything to what she wears sometimes. She thinks Clara's just about right."

"It's a good thing somebody thinks so."

"That's what I say. I thought I'd die when that girl sailed into the room. Why, Maud, she'd even got the same colored slippers I had. The dress—oh, the dress was exact—seven-gored skirt, three flounces and square neck. I came near having it made V-shaped just at the last moment. I wish I had now."

"She must have looked well in pink."

The Merode girl giggled.

"Clyde Williams said she looked as if she had bought her hair to match. He was awful about her; and she thought she'd make an impression on him."

"She thinks that about everybody."

"Doesn't she? She's as vain as she can be. I'd hate to think every time a man talked to me five minutes I'd made an impression on him. But that's all she thinks of. I don't like to talk about people, but Clara Mawby isn't a girl I'd like for a sister. I'd sooner have Gladys Thompson."

"Why, Eldridge isn't—?"

"Oh, don't ask me. I've no patience with that boy. I guess he doesn't really—I believe he only talks about her to plague me. That's what brings her round to our house so often. She pretends to call to see me. Mommer is dead on to her, though."

"Why, you awful girl!"

"I don't care. I mean that mommer is not deceived regarding her real motive. Is that what you wanted me to say? Oh-h-h, Maud! Who is he? Isn't he swell?"

A slender young man with a pensive expression and a polka-dot band around his straw hat was coming along the street. The girl in the tea rose waist looked at him obliquely under her eyelashes without moving her head, and almost imperceptibly improved her attitude. As the young man passed and looked up she assumed a look of pleased surprise and bowed with sweet graciousness to the jerky removal of the straw hat.

"I think you're mean," said the Merode girl, reproachfully, when the young man had passed on. "Why didn't you let him come up? Who is he? Hasn't he got the dearest little mustache! I thought you were my friend, and it's all right for you, Maud Davis."

"Why didn't you say you wanted him? How was I to know? Here, I'll call him now. Well, then, what do you want? You'd have been sorry if I had asked him to come up: he isn't a bit amusing. Besides he wouldn't have come."

"Why not?"

"Oh, just because."

"Well, I guess I'll have to go."

"You just stay right where you are. No, but don't you really know who he is?"

"Why, no."

"Well—oh, quit laughing or I won't tell you a thing. He's Mr. Wallis."

"Oh!"

"Yes—oh, you're just perfectly absurd! Now I'm not going to say one single thing more. There isn't anything to tell, anyway. What were you going to say about Eldridge?"

"Here's Marguerite. I'll ask her about it."

A small, pale-faced girl of 11, with long, black-stockinged legs, slid down the bannisters, skipped through the hall and bounced into one of the porch rockers, where she chewed gum vigorously and kicked her heels together.

"Who's Mr. Wallis, Marguerite?" asked the Merode girl.

"A. L. F.," replied Marguerite, energetically.

"What does that mean?"

"Marguerite!" said the girl in the tea rose waist, warningly.

"That means 'another little fool,'" explained Marguerite. "He's been about the worst of the lot, too. He bought me a doll on my birthday. Wouldn't that kill you! A doll! Maybe I didn't get even."

"Tell me about it, Marguerite, darling," said the Merode girl, coaxingly.

"You needn't ask to ride my wheel any more, if you do," said her sister.

"I don't care; Billy Freeman lets me ride his any time I want to. He goes by here every morning—no, not Billy, Mr. Herb. Wallis—and he generally looks up at the windows; doesn't he, Maud? Last Thursday morning I went into Maud's room and put one of her dresses on the bolster—that gingham, you know the one I mean. Then when Mr. Wallis came along I screamed 'Herbie!' and threw it out of the window. You ought to have seen him! It was gorgeous! Hello! there's Billy now." Marguerite danced off down the steps.

"Don't feel badly about it," said the Merode girl. "He'll get over it."

"The little imp!" said the girl with the tea-rose waist, viciously. "Talk about little brothers being mean! I'd trade her for any little brother in the block. Oh, I don't care whether he gets over it or not; if he had any sense he'd have laughed, but he's one of that kind that is always afraid somebody is going to laugh at them. I wouldn't give a boy like—well, your brother Eldridge—for a hundred of them."

"I'll tell Eldridge."

"If you do I'll never speak to you again. I mean that. There's Mrs. Ruggles. Look at her. Quick! Isn't that hat hideous? She always has the most distressed-looking hats. Why don't you like Clara Mawby?"

"Well, of all things! Would you like a girl who acted like that with you?"

"Eldridge likes her, though."

"I don't believe he does. He just talks about her because he knows I loathe her."

"What does he say?"

"Nothing much. Oh, I want you to see my new silk-rag curtains. I haven't got them woven yet, but I've nearly enough tied. They're going to look swell. Guinevere Collins has got a pair in her room. They're perfectly lovely.

"I'll come over to-morrow evening, maybe. Clara won't be there, will she? Oh, I don't really dislike her. There isn't much to her one way or the other to like or dislike. Oh! and, Eva, you'll promise you won't say anything about—what Marguerite said to—anybody. There really and truly isn't a thing to it. You know I'd tell you the very first, don't you?"

"I won't tell Eldridge, if that's what you mean."

The girl with the tea-rose waist blushed slightly. "You know I didn't mean that," she said.

"Why, of course you did, you goose. Oh, Maud!"

The girl in the tea-rose waist blushed again and fluttered the leaves of her magazine under her thumb.

The Merode girl jumped up and kissed the girl with the tea-rose waist three times and ran lightly down the steps. —Chicago Daily Record.

Your Mouth.

"One should always breathe through the nose when asleep," says a physician. If you awake and find your mouth open, get up and shut it.—Chicago Daily News.

Imperialistic Deceit.

Imperialism rests on deceit, injustice and brutal force. Every public supporter of McKinley's imperialism knows or ought to know, at the time he bought the tottering sovereignty of Spain in the Philippines for twenty million dollars that the subjugation of these islands was no child's play. Spain was powerful enough to subjugate a vast territory in America, part of North America, Central America, the islands and a large part of South America. But it did not succeed in three centuries in subjugating the Island of Luzon entirely, because what they gained in six months they lost in the rainy season.

It is deceit from the beginning. It will be deceit till the end; till the people get tired of it and throw the tricksters overboard. Did those imperialists not deceive us when they reported the annihilation of the insurgents a dozen times, and the storming of I do not know how many capitols of the same. Did they not represent the Tagals and their leader Aguinaldo as some kind of wild people similar to our Indians, and was not Otis ordered to muzzle and suppress the reports of the American correspondents in Manila, for the reason that the truth should not be known to the American people? And does not Dewey, who is greater and more honest than the whole imperialistic crew not declare that the inhabitants of Luzon are more able for self rule than the Cubans?

The former subjects of Spain on Luzon are Christians, fairly educated, though oppressed by the rich monastic orders. Many of their leaders, Aguinaldo himself, studied in some university in Europe, and as they freed themselves from the Spanish yoke by their own exertions it could not be expected that they would bow down before the presidential proclamation of unconditional surrender.

It is exaggeration to compare Aguinaldo with Washington or Lincoln, but McKinley could not stand that comparison either. Better compare him with Inarez who broke the empire in Mexico into pieces. Inarez was a civilized Indian.

Compare the former Spanish subjects of Luzon with our southern Negroes: the first we shoot down because they will not unconditionally surrender, and the others will be the backbone in nominating the next imperialistic candidate for president of the United States.

Who dares to haul down the American flag? Another imperialistic deceit, because nobody intends to do that. The stars and stripes were, before McKinley's rule, the symbol for the democratic self rule of the people, a menace for all despotism. McKinley tries to alter that, consequently we must have another standard bearer. That is all there is in that talk.

The newest evolutions of the imperialists for the next issue of this paper.

It is stated in one of the scientific papers that artificial cotton is now being manufactured in Australia. This comes near being the artificial age.

"How account for the dearth of sea serpents this summer?" asks the Buffalo Express. Perhaps a better brand of whisky is gaining a foothold along the Jersey shore.

American astronomers are at the front again with the discovery that the "polar star" is a triple system. Most of the important celestial finds of the last 20 years are due to the scientists of this country.

Even Germany is buying American locomotives. The Saxon State railway has ordered 20 from an American firm which has undertaken to build and deliver them many months before the best German firm could turn them out. The American manufacturer not only turns out the best work, but he takes less time to turn it out.

A Missouri paper says: "Send in your items of news when they are fresh. We don't like to publish a birth after the child is weaned, a marriage after the honeymoon is over, a death after the widow is married again, nor the notice of an entertainment after the job work is done elsewhere and the editor is charged for admission."

American farmers own cows to the value of $369,239,993, a sum equal to more than one-half of the capital of all the national banks in the United States. The value of the horses owned by the farmers in this country is $452,649,396, or considerably more than one-fifth of the total United States currency, including gold, silver and paper money in circulation to-day.

One of the eastern trade journals is authority for the statement that horses which are not of just the color required to make fine matched teams are now "chemically blonded" to the desired tint in a very few minutes. This seems to be an age when the most clever deceiver is the most successful man, no matter whether it is a horse trade, politics or a three-ring circus.

Sir Thomas Lipton seems to be a man of large and liberal ideas. He has spent several hundred thousand dollars in getting ready to race for the America's cup, and now he admits having offered $250,000 for the Lakes of Killarney estate, with the intention, if he gets it, of presenting it to the Irish people. If he lived in this country people would ask, what is he going to run for?

Speaking of old people, Charles S. Taylor, of White River Junction, Vt., aged 93, drove his horse, Factory Boy, at the Newport fair races a few days ago and won three straight heats. Though now in the last decade of his century Mr. Taylor is still an enthusiastic horseman, and says that it is his ambition to live to drive in a horse race on his one hundredth birthday.

According to the annual pension report of Commissioner Evans there is but one veteran of the war of 1812 still carried on the rolls, and as he is 99 years of age it can only be a question of a few years before this last name is erased. Of the Mexican war veterans 9,204 remain to draw pensions, but their number is rapidly becoming fewer, and in ten years will be reduced to a mere handful.

An old man with money who married a young woman without any in Illinois is now mourning the loss of both bride and cash. Old men with money ought to know by this time that they must remain in close partnership with their wealth if they would retain youthful brides. When a young woman marries a bank account she usually isn't at all anxious to avoid losing the incumbrance that comes with it.

Dog-in-the-Pot, a Bannock Indian, proposed to the maiden of his choice, was rejected and at once committed suicide. The Indian's act was, of course, wholly barbarous and improper. Had he been one of a large class of young white men he would have killed the girl before shooting himself, and thus fallen in line with a prevailing fashion instead of putting himself on record as a crude and untutored aborigine.

The proceedings of the thirty-third national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic indicate that the passing years do not detract from the character of that representative body. Indeed, it may be doubted if a more influential and abler body of men ever assembled in a national encampment than that in Philadelphia. This is due largely to the fact that certain past national officers and all of the past department commanders are members. Such a make-up insures the presence of the able and experienced men in the organization.

The color line was drawn in an unusual way when a young woman who was drowning in the surf at Atlantic City, N. J., refused the assistance of a negro swimmer who reached her first, and, though most exhausted, waited for a white man who was a short distance behind him. Even at the point of death that young woman probably had a thought of "how she would look" brought to land with her arms about a black man's neck, and preferred to take further risks in order to secure a different rescuer. It was the ruling feminine passion, not race prejudice.

Admiral Dewey, learning that a British gunner had been crippled by the explosion of a cannon while firing a salute in honor of the great sailor's arrival at Gibraltar, hastened to the cot of the wounded man, talked with him at considerable length, inquired as to his future, and left him a snug sum of money ($150) as a present from the Olympia's gallant crew. This kindly act was as characteristic of the admiral's whole nature as was the dash into Manila bay, and was but another of the many incidents which have stamped George Dewey as among the truly great.

A WEEK'S HISTORY

The Important Happenings of a Week Briefly Told.

IN ALL PARTS OF THE UNION

All the Latest News of Interest from Washington, From the East, the West and the South.

THE LATEST FOREIGN DISPATCHES

FROM WASHINGTON.

A new counterfeit two-dollar silver certificate has been discovered of the series of 1896, check letter "C," Bruce register, Roberts treasurer.

The president has requested Col. Charles Denby and Prof. Dean Worcester, members of the Philippine commission, to return from Manila as soon as possible.

Advices received at the war department from Manila state that the natives of the Island of Samar are praying for the speedy arrival of the Americans and will welcome the hoisting of the American flag.

The command of the South Atlantic station has been given to Admiral Schley.

President McKinley is receiving petitions asking him to request the French government to pardon Dreyfus. No such action will be taken, the administration holding that to do so would undoubtedly be offensive to France.

THE EAST.

In the seven days ended on the 15th there were 149 business failures in the United States against 132, the week previous and 171 in the corresponding period of 1898.

The funeral services over the remains of Cornelius Vanderbilt were held in St. Bartholomew's Episcopal church in New York.

The city of New York is ready for Admiral Dewey, all details for his reception September 28, 29 and 30 having been completed.

In session in New Haven, Conn., the United Typothetae of America adopted a resolution reserving to themselves the right to employ whomsoever they see fit in the management of their respective offices.

In New York city 9,000 carpenters struck for four dollars a day and a half holiday on Saturday the year round.

In the National league the percentages of the baseball clubs for the week ended on the 17th were: Brooklyn, .701; Philadelphia, .634; Boston, .612; Baltimore, .583; St. Louis, .560; Cincinnati, .553; Chicago, .551; Pittsburgh, .477; Louisville, .462; New York, .414; Washington, .375; Cleveland, .139.

At Weathersfield, Conn., Frank Goodrich, 37 years old, shot and killed Mary Berrigan, 15 years old, and then killed himself. Jealousy was the cause.

M. A. Hanna, republican United States senator for Ohio and chairman of the republican national committee, arrived in New York from London.

At Brockton, Mass., the world's five-mile unpaced amateur bicycle record was broken by James F. Ingraham, his time being 12:06.

On the Lackawanna road a newspaper train ran from New York to Buffalo, 410 miles, in seven hours and 23 minutes, breaking all records.

Daniel Ermentrout, democratic congressman, aged 62, died at Reading, Pa., of the effects of strangulation a few days ago, caused by a piece of meat in his throat.

Fire wiped out two and a half blocks of summer hotels, bathing and dancing pavilions and seaside theaters at Holland's station, Rockaway Beach, N. Y.

Flames destroyed the plant of the American Fisheries company at Promised Land, L. I., the loss being $500,000.

WEST AND SOUTH.

Near Nebraska City, Neb., a freight train went through a bridge and three men were killed and 20 cars destroyed.

At Helena, Mont., Joseph Allen was hanged for the murder of J. S. Reynolds, his partner in the sheep-shearing business.

The opponents of concentrated capital gave full vent to their beliefs at the trust conference in Chicago, Bourke Cockran, of New York, and Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, being among the speakers.

Walter Banes poisoned his wife and two children and then killed himself near Platte Canyon, Col. Poverty was the cause.

Flames destroyed the Jacob North printing house in Lincoln, Neb. It contained an immense amount of printing machinery and was the home of many publications.

For an attack upon a white girl under ten years of age, Henry Gardner, a negro, aged 18, was hanged in Mobile, Ala.

Flour millers of Tennessee, Georgia, Kentucky and Mississippi have decided to advance the price of flour ten per cent.

Mrs. Earne Phillips, of Scotia, Neb., forced her two children, aged one and two years, to take carbolic acid and then swallowed a dose of the poison herself. Domestic trouble was the cause.

In Chicago the trust conference closed with a debate between Bourke Cockran, of New York, and William J. Bryan, of Nebraska. President Howe, in summing up the results of the four days' meeting, said all agreed that combinations in the form of trusts in restriction of trade and manufacture, which by consensus of judicial opinion are unlawful, should be so declared by legislation.

Seven negroes were killed in a riot between black and white miners at Carlerville, Ill. Troops were sent to the place.

In a fire on the reservation at Kasick, Wis., three Indian children were burned to death.

The democratic candidate for governor of Ohio, John R. McLean, opened his state campaign in Cleveland.

A new anti-trust organization, national in scope, has been formed as a result of the trust conference in Chicago, the object being the crystallization of the anti-trust spirit throughout the country. M. L. Lockwood, of Pennsylvania, was elected president.

The well-known miller, Charles A. Pillsbury, died suddenly in Minneapolis, aged 57 years.

At Frankfort, Ill., six thieves terrorized the inhabitants and robbed the Exchange bank of $1,800 in currency.

Five miles from Mora, N. M., an adobe house collapsed, killing Manuel Cordova and his wife and six children.

At a meeting in Chicago the American Association of Baseball Clubs was organized, which will be a rival to the National league.

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

Paris advices say that the cabinet has agreed to pardon Dreyfus and that the decree will be signed September 19. The Figaro says that many officers of the army are asking that Dreyfus be pardoned.

Thirty-two persons were crushed to death in a panic in a synagogue at Kalisch, Poland, caused by the upsetting of a lamp. The victims were all women and children. Many others were injured.

The latest reports received by Gen. Otis in Manila regarding the Filipino congress were that the body had become disrupted, and that its members were scattered.

The Venezuelan revolution, under the leadership of Gen. Cipriano, is assuming overwhelming proportions.

By an explosion in a coal mine at Redan, Prussia, nine men were suffocated.

A tornado swept over the east coast of Newfoundland, wrecking fishing villages and causing considerable loss of life.

In the City of Mexico the Mexican congress convened and President Diaz in his message presented a hopeful future for the republic.

The government of the South African republic refuses to make new concessions to England and war will probably be the result.

LATER NEWS.

DEATH CALLS HIM.

Charles A. Pillsbury, the Famous Miller, Passes Away at His Home in Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 18.—Charles A. Pillsbury, the well-known miller, died in this city Sunday afternoon at five o'clock.

[Charles Alfred Pillsbury was born at Warner, Merrimac county, New Hampshire, October 3, 1842. He graduated from Dartmouth college at the age of 21, having partly supported himself by teaching. For six years later he engaged in mercantile pursuits in Montreal and September 12, 1866, he married Miss Mary A. Stinson, of Goffstown, N. H. After coming to Minneapolis in 1869 Mr. Pillsbury bought an interest in a small flour mill at St. Anthony Falls. He applied himself to learn the business and within the next few years made great improvements in milling and the Pillsbury mills enjoyed great prosperity. His father, George A. Pillsbury; his uncle, John S. Pillsbury, and brother, F. C. Pillsbury, were admitted to the firm, which continued, as Charles A. Pillsbury & Co. until the acquisition of the property by the English syndicate in 1890. Pillsbury "B," Anchor, Empire, Excelsior mills were added to the original. A system of elevators was purchased in connection with the mills. His "A" mill, capacity 7,000 barrels per day, is said to have been the largest mill in the world. In 1890 Mr. Pillsbury retired from the conduct of his vast milling interests, he remained as the manager of the property for some time. But his health failing he retired from the active management about 18 months ago. He then made an extensive European trip, returning home last spring. He retained his directorship in the company. Mr. Pillsbury declined the unanimous nomination by his party for the office of mayor. The only public office he has ever held was that of state senator for the ten years beginning January 1, 1877.]

CONFERENCE CLOSES.

William J. Bryan Delivers an Address and Announces His Platform—Mr. Cockran Makes Another Speech.

Chicago, Sept. 18.—Col. William Jennings Bryan demands the annihilation of trusts by act of congress or constitutional amendment, with federal and state intervention. His speech marked the final day of the conference on trusts at Central Music hall. In an eloquent address, lasting nearly two hours, the speaker attacked industrial combinations in unqualified terms, and was frequently interrupted with applause by an audience which thronged the hall.

Col. Bryan's address was the feature of the morning session. He was called for as soon as Chairman Howe called the convention to order at ten o'clock. After protesting against the enthronement of money and the debasement of man, he came out with an unqualified, flat-fooded assertion that he favored any action or movement aimed to destroy trusts or combinations.

Attacks Trust Defense.

Mr. Bryan took up specifically the so-called stock arguments of trust promoters and presented arguments designed to refute every argument in behalf of industrial combinations. He followed out the assertions against the control of the source of supply and the effect of the formation of trust upon employment, with special reference to the commercial travelers. Then he dwelt upon the relation of the tariff to the corporations, following that with a condemnation of discrimination by railways.

In order to destroy trusts requires them to make open accounts and eliminate watered stock he recommended that congressional action be taken to wipe out trusts. He was interrupted by an auditor who queried: "Would that be constitutional?"

Would Change Constitution.

"I would have congress take such action immediately," replied Col. Bryan, "and if the supreme court declares such a law unconstitutional I would have the constitution of the United States so amended that it would give congress the necessary authority."

The speaker then dwelt more at length upon the powers which should be reposed in the state and federal government to curb trusts and prevent the watering of stock.

He suggested that the state should have the right to create any private corporation conductive to the welfare of the people, that it should have the right to prohibit any foreign corporation from doing business in the state. In other words, the people of the state should not only have the right to create corporations, but they should be permitted to protect themselves from any outside corporation. To this declaration of states' rights, Mr. Bryan said, should be added the power of congress to place such restrictions and limitations, even to the point of prohibition, upon any corporation organized in one state, that wants to do business outside of the state as may to congress seem necessary.

Reference to the income tax law was applauded as well as a passing reference to the Philippine issue contained in the statement that "A government derives its rights from the consent of the governed."

Got an Idea from Hogs.

"I was riding through Iowa and I saw some hogs rooting in a field, and the first thought that came to me was that those hogs were destroying a great deal of value, and then my mind ran back to the time when I lived upon a farm and when we had hogs. Then I thought of the way in which we used to protect property from the hogs by putting rings in the noses of the hogs; and then the thought came to me why we did it—not to keep the hogs from getting fat—we were more interested in their getting fat than they were; the sooner they got fat the sooner we killed them. The longer they were in getting fat the longer they lived; but why did we put the ring in their noses? So that while they were getting fat they would not destroy more than they were worth." (Prolonged applause.)

Must Recognize Human Nature.

"And then the thought came to me (laughter)—the thought came to me that one of the great purposes of government was to put rings in the noses of hogs. (Prolonged applause.) I don't mean to say anything offensive (applause), but we are all hoggish. In hours of temptation we are apt to trespass upon the rights of others.

Primary Cause Is Money.

"Let me repeat that the primary cause of monopoly is the love of money and the desire to secure the fruits of monopoly; but I believe that falling prices caused by a rising dollar have contributed to this desire and intensified it, because people with their plants, seeing the fall in prices and measuring the loss on investments, have looked about for some means by which they could protect themselves from this loss, and they have joined together in combinations to hold up prices in order to protect their investments from a loss which would not have occurred but for the rise in the value of dollars and the fall in the level of prices." (Applause.)

The speaker concluded with a strong appeal to human impulse, comparing the "God-made man" with the "magnified man-made man."

The Final Session.

The closing hours of the trust conference brought out the first suggestion of an open debate on the floor. There was not much of it, but, such as it was, it had a lively interest, William J. Bryan and W. Bourke Cockran coming into mental collision.

The work of the conference had been practically completed. The last prepared paper had been read and the last set speech delivered. Ex-Gov. Luce, of Michigan, for the committee on resolutions, had reported that the call for the conference gave it no authority to proclaim a platform, and the report had been accepted unanimously. Then Chairman Howe announced that an opportunity for free discussion would be given to all who wished to take advantage of it.

Attorney General Smith, of Texas, and James D. Dill, of New York, had spoken in answer to this invitation, when W. Dudley Foulke, of Indiana, was called on. He took occasion to criticise the remedy for trust evils urged by Mr. Bryan in the morning, and when he had finished the Nebraskan took the stage in reply. He took occasion to announce his platform, and it was regarded as important, inasmuch as it will probably be the anti-trust plank which he will urge for adoption by the next democratic national convention.

Mr. Bryan's Platform.

Mr. Bryan stated his platform as follows:

"First, that the state should have the right to create whatever private corporations the people of that state think best.

"Second, that the state has or should have the right to impose such limitations upon an outside corporation as the people of the state may think necessary for their own protection.

"Third, that the federal government has or should have the right to impose such restrictions as congress may think necessary upon any corporation which does business outside of the state in which it is organized."

Mr. Bryan then went on to say he would have a commission appointed by the federal government to license such interstate corporations after being satisfied their stock was not watered and that they were not formed to create a monopoly, and after provisions had been made for perfect publicity of their accounts.

Then Mr. Bryan made a few remarks in response to Mr. Foulke's criticism, claiming it was nothing but a fault-finding with one proposed remedy without the proposal of another. "I have no doubt," said he, "that any remedy which may be proposed will be assaulted. But what is the alternative? Sit down and do nothing? Allow them to trample upon you and ride roughshod over you and then thank God you have some life left? Is that the only remedy?

Mr. Cockran Replies.

Mr. Bryan then went on to say that if one remedy was not good, try another and keep on trying until the desired end had been reached. He had hardly finished and the cheers which followed him had not subsided when Bourke Cockran was on his feet demanding to be heard.

He began by saying he agreed with Mr. Bryan that if evils did exist they must be corrected, and would be corrected. "But," said he, "where is this evil, and does it exist?" Speaking of the names trusts had been called by—octopus, hydra-headed monster, and so on—he continued: "I am free to confess these names do not cast any light to illumine my pathway. I can, however, understand how the use of these phrases has some effect, as nothing frightens people so much as incomprehensible noises."

Then, referring to the morning speech of Mr. Bryan when he had spoken of the individual as a God-made man and the corporation as a man-made man, the speaker said: "Why, a God-made man is the original savage. Do you suppose Mr. Bryan could come upon this platform and give the oration which he delivered and go over the world speaking to multitudes and creating wild enthusiasm at his periods from the original resources of man? Why, he represents centuries of civilization. It is true he is a fine type of the God-made man, and, also, thank Heaven, he is a splendid type of the man-made man."

Labor Leaders Cheer Cockran.

Labor leaders were brought to their feet with cheers for Mr. Cockran when he declared that the time was not far distant when all great corporations would compel their employes to become members of labor unions, in order that they might the more easily deal with them and consult them in matters of vital importance to themselves. He supplemented this declaration with the statement that the great corporations of the country would also shortly find it to their interest to give their employes a representation upon the board of directors, thus giving them a part in the active management of the company.

Replying to the arguments advanced against monopolies and large corporations, he showed from the statements of the labor leaders and socialists themselves that wages have never been higher nor conditions better than at the present time in the United States. He contended that the result of the operation of the large companies in the United States has tended to increase the comfort and add to the enjoyment of the life of every citizen. These had been the result of competition, and he appealed to the delegates themselves if they wished to put an end to competition. He maintained that the remedy for certain evils which had been shown to exist lay in exact justice to everyone, without any special privileges, and the United States would continue to advance in the scale of civilization and progress as it has done in the past.

Mr. Cockran answered without hesitation a number of queries put to him from representatives of different elements for the purpose of confusing and entangling him. When he concluded he again took his seat on the floor, amid a round of applause which shook the house.

Conference Adjourns.

The discussion then degenerated into debates on single tax theory, the tariff and similar subjects until finally at six o'clock, when Chairman Howe had concluded his valedictory remarks, there were not 20 people left in the hall, and the conference adjourned itself.

Chairman Howe Sums Up.

President William Wirt Howe, in summing up the results of the trust conference, said:

"We all agree that combinations and conspiracies in the form of trusts in restriction of trade and manufacture, which by consensus of judicial opinion are unlawful, should so be declared by legislation.

"Organiaztions of trade and industrial corporations should be permitted to exist only under a system of government control—uniform in all jurisdictions.

"The purpose of corporations should be confined within limits definite and certain, and issue of stocks and bonds should be regulated with great strictness.

"There should be a system of reports to the government and inspection of accounts, with provision for publicity similar to that relating to national banks."

Anti-Trust Men Organize.

The Central Music hall conference will have one definite result. It will eventuate in the formation of an organization aggressively hostile to trusts. Delegates to the Central Music hall conference of anti-trust tendencies met Saturday night at the Sherman. A temporary organization was established, consisting of an executive committee of seven members with power to appoint one vice president from each state and territory and one from each national organization represented in the conference.

It was provided that the executive committee "shall proceed at once to call a national anti-trust convention for the formation of a permanent organization and that the call for said national permanent organization shall include not only members of the temporary organization, but all those in sympathy with the movement."

The executive committee chosen at the Sherman house caucus is composed of M. L. Lockwood, Pennsylvania; Judge William Prentiss, Chicago; A. M. Tod, Michigan; President Dowe, of the National Commercial Travelers' association; Dudley G. Wooten, Texas; and A. P. McGuirk, Iowa.

The executive committee went into session behind closed doors after the adjournment of the general meeting and engaged in mapping out a plan of action.

SHELLS THE ENEMY.

Cruiser Charleston Is Unsuccessful in Attempt to Dismount Insurgent Gun at Olaugapo.

Manila, Sept. 16.—The cruiser Charleston at daylight last Thursday morning joined the patrol ship Zafiro, near Grande island, Subig bay, with the object of dismounting a gun at Olaugapo that had been used by the insurgents. The Charleston stood in front of the town while the Zafiro sailed northward. At 5,000 yards the Charleston began shelling the enemy, who replied at once. The first shot from the insurgents' gun burst a boat's length ahead of the Zafiro, while the second ricocheted between the Charleston's masts. The Charleston kept throwing in eight-inch shells with great accuracy, and soon destroyed the earthworks around the gun, which the captain of the cruiser believed had been dismounted. Then the Charleston steamed closer inshore and got within 3,000 yards of the earthworks. The insurgents at once began firing again, and some of the shells fell very close to the cruiser. Both ships then withdrew, the Zafiro returning to Manila, while the Charleston remained in Subig bay. The Filipino fire was remarkably accurate, and the gun was probably not handled by a native gunner. Black powder was used, and six or nine-inch Spanish shells were fired. The Charleston fired 69 shells.

Fisheries Plant Destroyed.

New York, Sept. 18.—The plant of the American Fisheries company at Promised Land, L. I., was destroyed by fire Sunday night. Eight buildings in all were burned, together with a large quantity of very valuable machinery. The loss is estimated at nearly $500,000.

ONE WIFE SURELY ENOUGH.

Why Monogamy Has Come to Be the Prevailing Matrimonial Principle in This Country.

Margherita Arlina Hamm, the well-known traveler and author, called when in China upon the wife, or rather the wives, of a great mandarin. Her visit partook of the nature of a festival, so novel was the experience to the Chinese women, whose lives are passed almost entirely within the walls of their yamen. They examined her clothing, and were partly pleased and partly astonished at it. They were shocked by her shoes, and especially by the fact that her feet were not confined by bindings.

Finally one of them said, through the interpreter. "You can walk and run just as well as a man?"

"Why, certainly."

"Can you ride a pony as well as a man?"

"Of course."

"Then you must be as strong as most men."

"Yes, I think I am."

"You wouldn't let a man beat you, not even your husband, would you?"

"Not at all."

The Chinese woman paused, laughed, and then said: "Now I understand why foreigners never take more than one wife. They are afraid to."—Philadelphia Post.

JOHN C. HUBINGER.

Remarkable Career of a Well-Known Western Capitalist, Manufacturer and Philanthropist.

Among the leaders of the progressive element for which the midle west is famous, Mr. John C. Hubinger, of Keokuk, Ia., reigns without a peer. As a manufacturer, as an enterprising capitalist and as a philanthropist his fame has spread over many states, and his financial enterprises have developed many obscure towns into progressive, thrifty and wide-awake cities. Mr. Hubinger, although but 47 years of age, can look back upon scores of commercial victories, each one of which has benefited mankind, for his liberality is as bountiful as his business sagacity is marvelous. He was born in New Orleans, La., his parents being of French and German origin. When he was four years old, his family removed to Kentucky, in which state young Hubinger received a public school education. Almost before reaching man's estate he secured patents on a number of valuable mechanical inventions, thereby laying the foundation of his present fortune.

By inclination and force of circumstances his attention was early directed to the manufacture of starch by improved processes, and in the course of time he became the head of a concern having an annual business of millions of dollars. But genuine ambition never quite satisfied with existing conditions, works ever toward perfection, and after years of painstaking study and research Mr. Hubinger has made a discovery, which he considers the crowning event of his wonderful career, and which is embodied in a new article of commerce, known as Red Cross Starch (Red Cross trade mark.) He is planning to distribute millions of packages of this starch to the housewives of America, at a merely nominal price to the consumer, in order to make its merits known without delay. Thus, for but 5 cents two large 10c packages of Red Cross Starch may be had, together with two magnificent Shakespearean views printed in 12 beautiful colors, or a Twentieth Century Girl Calendar; or for only 20 cents 10 packages of the starch and the entire series of eight Shakespearean views and one Twentieth Century Girl Calendar—views alone easily worth $1.00. Watch this paper for future premium announcements, of which every lady will certainly want to take advantage.

While Mr. Hubinger will devote his best energies to the manufacture of this new and wonderful starch, he will not retire from the various financial enterprises in which he is interested—street railways, electric lighting plants and the Mississippi Valley Telephone Co., with 10,000 telephone subscribers in Minneapolis and St. Paul—nor will his augmented activity interfere with his social obligations and exercise of the splendid hospitality which he dispenses at his palatial Keokuk home. Mr. Hubinger's family, consisting of himself, wife and four children, is the pivot around which his activity revolves, and while fond of promoting great enterprises, he is still fonder of his home circle, where he spends every moment of time not taken up by business or public cares.

Strategy of a Spendthrift.

A good story is told of a young man who, besides being of the spendthift order, is a mimic and can imitate his father's voice to a nicety. Not long ago the young man wanted, without delay, some money to pay a bill, and he knew that his father would treat his request with cold contempt. Waiting till he knew that his father would be away he went to the telephone and rang up the office, calling for the cashier. The cashier was forthcoming, and when he was at the other end the young man imitated his sire's voice: "I say, Blank, if that scapegrace son of mine comes around and asks for $100, don't give it to him, only give him $50." The cashier promised that he would fulfil the commands. Not long after that the son called at the office and demanded $100. He was refused by the conscientious cashier, and, apparently in anger, the young man contented himself with the $50. When the old man reached the office there was a scene.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Which Was the Bigamist.

A prominent resident of Chicago spending his summer holidays in the eastern provinces dedicated to the memory of the famous men and women who formed themselves into the philosophic workers and dreamers of Brook Farm encountered in the residence of Emerson two other prominent residents of the city on Lake Michigan, both of them judges of note and both living on the West side. The two jurists were accompanied by three attractive ladies unknown to the solitary prominent resident who first claimed attention, and after an interval of exclamation and greeting one of the judges turned and with a sweeping gesture introduced the ladies: "Mr. Dash, these are our wives."—Chicago Chronicle.

Reform Press Bureau.
ST. PAUL, Sept. 18, 1899.

Occasionally we come in contact with a man of the best of parts, one who loves his country, who is patriotic enough to vote whenever the election comes round, but who with all his intelligence, education and refinement, because he is himself in comfortable circumstances whether the country is really prosperous or not, will not investigate or has not investigated, the financial question as it is presented in politics. Such a God-fearing and well-meaning man, a Republican, wrote to us the other day:

"I agree with you in some things political, especially numbers (so and so, referring to the platform on which Governor Lind was elected) but I should disagree with you if you advocated free coinage of silver at 16 to 1, or if you proposed to interfere with our protective tariff."

On the one point, we have sent the friend documents by which, if he will religiously read, he will be convinced that free coinage is absolutely the only road by which our producers can be relieved from the ruinous competition of silver using countries, and which will aid, at least, in checking that absorption of the wealth of the country in the hands of the few, which is rapidly impoverishing the masses and destroying the small dealers, rapidly producing the two classes of the Old Country, the very rich and the very poor; that this ruinous foreign policy of the past two decades is the cause of trusts and combines, against which warning after warning is given daily by our ablest public men, as threatening the very besom of destruction.

As to the cherished tariff, it is not wholly responsible for the threatening conditions, as witness the fact that the trust exists in free trade England. But mark this point, that the trust flourishes only or best in the lands of the gold standard and absolute sway of the money power. Still it means much that old time extreme protectionists like ex-Senator Washburn recognize that those trusts flourish most where most "protected," hence his recent earnest appeal to his party to prepare to attack the monster evil so portentous of disaster, immediately the congress meets, his remedy being to remove the tariff from those trusts controlled articles!

What means it that the pulpit thunders that sin, insanity, suicide, poverty, crime and all forms of wretchedness, are constantly on the increase in beloved America, where with our intelligence and opportunity we should be the happiest and most prosperous people of the world? It means that we are reaping the fruits of the wicked financial system, the chief feature of which is concentration of wealth in the hands of the few, while degradation and enslavement are the inevitable portion for the masses. Senator Washburn has shown this in his own individual case, in the changes he has seen. "As a young man," said he, "all the world was open to me for a fair field, for a fair fight." Now such avenues to individual success are closed, being in the grip of monopoly, trusts and gold!

It is impossible to express the enormous concentration, under the special privileges due to wicked legislation and non-enforcement of law. In 1860, when our population was 35,000,000, and our wealth $16,000,000,000, our producers owned 46 per cent of the total wealth, and the non-producers 54 per cent. Five years later, when no great increase in relative ownership had occurred, Lincoln delivered his famous warning of the danger of concentration of wealth and political power. That danger increased faster than Lincoln ever dreamed might be the case. By the census of 1890, when our population had grown to 12,500,000 families, and our wealth to $60,000,000,000, TWO PER CENT of the total population owned THREE-FOURTHS of all our wealth. But in 1898 the non-producers of the country, who are only 2 per cent of our 75,000,090 population, owned 83 per cent of all our wealth, while the prodncers of wealth, who are 98 per cent of all the population, owned but 14 per cent of the total wealth.

When Babylon fell, 2 per cent of her people owned practically all her wealth. When old Egypt fell, similar conditions obtained, and when Persia fell. 1 per cent of her people owned all her lands. Relatively we are making giant strides toward the fate of Babylon, Egypt, and Rome. And yet well meaning country-loving men say do not touch the system, either the financial or the tariff, under which this condition has been produced.

There is every prospect that the Thirteenth's reception will be a successful and happy affair, except for the apparent determination of partisan cliques in both the Twin Cities, to reap Republican advantage through the presence of President McKinley. The president can come without the slightest impropriety, provided the coming is properly managed, and provided the president does not, as on recent occasions, do any stump speaking on his own account. And he can well afford to leave that to Roosevelt, Depew and the rest, who will do Hanna's bidding next year.

Appropos, the Minneapolis preparations, for instance, seem more like arranging for a big Republican convention. The people remark that committees are made up almost exclusively of prominent Republicans. The managers have asked for and received Democratic money, but keep affairs exclusively in goppite hands. Selah.

Mr. Towne will return to America better equipped than ever for the great battle in which he will be so valiant a knight. It may possibly be exposing a secret, but in view of the great work before him, both in the campaigns this fall and his own next year, there is talk of a great reception to him on his return to the state, an ovation from his congressional district.

There is, these days, a large amount of "Remembering of the grades," meaning the state grain department. The manifest improvement of the department, with the installing of the "reform" officials gives encouragement to all. The farmer is really taking new hope, while the buyers universally testify to a feeling of relief, for they know that it is not necessary to "watch" anybody.

Speaking with a Minneapolis buyer the other day, he said that all who have come in contact with the new head of the weighing department, Hon. John O'Brien, are convinced that Governor Lind landed the right man in the right place in his appointment. "We are beginning to get a let-up," said he, "from the constant friction of varying weights, and 'overs and shorts' are not requiring any such amount of attention as formerly."

What a nasty lot of scandals have followed that department, for years past. As far back as 1892 these were brought out quite fully in the Moore investigation, the report of which, smothered in the Republican legislature, was made to Governor Merriam, and is on file. In a single case there disclosed, there was a shortage of 15,000 bushels: That was the C. C. Wolcott case. To test the reason of the shortage, Mr. Wolcott caused 40 cars of wheat to be loaded out of a Minneapolis elevator, as if to be shipped out of the city, and managed to have the same 40 cars immediately weighed into another elevator in Minneapolis, all the weighing being done by the state officers. The weight in was short $1,000 worth of wheat, and the parties interested were paid the money, and the matter was kept still until brought out in sworn testimony in the Alliance investigation.

If much has been recently accomplished by political success of the reform forces, we must recollect that primarily more was done, in agitation and struggle by the pioneers of the reform movement.

The report above referred to, if not to be found in the legislative files, can be seen in the files of the Henning Advocate of July 7, 1892, then conducted by Frank Hoskins. Mr. H. paid the penalty of his aggressiveness and courage, but has lived to see substantial results.

All that the goppite press have found to criticise recently, was the alleged fact that he "forgot" to appoint delegates to the Chicago Republican trust convention. Governor Lind is not one of the "forgot" kind. He well knows the cause of the trusts and the true remedy, and that if it were possible for the creature to be greater than the creator, the Republican party might possibly overthrow the trusts. However, having whole control of the government at the coming session of congress, it is only decent to give them a chance to see what the creature can do with the maker in this case.

Once more the St. Cloud reformatory board has met and Houlton still hangs on, in spite of the rottenness proven even by Republicans themselves. And the band plays on.

The state board of equalization has materially raised the valuation of farmers' sheep, now let us hear from corporation franchises.

Why all this anxiety and trouble, such as affected Senator Washburn so deeply? Will there not be in December an administration Republican in every branch, with powers to legislate all the way from premiums for dead Filipinos, to the total destruction of the trusts? What are you afraid of anyhow?

Writes Martin E. Tew of the Thirteenth, one of the heroes of that fighting regiment, of the feeling of the regiment on the Filipino question:

"If we were in the places of the Filipinos we would consider ourselves cowards and ignominious knaves if we did not fight. I presume there are those who will call me a "traitor" for saying this, but no one can accuse me of failure to do my duty as a soldier. Nearly all the soldiers feel just as I do in regard to this war, and there will be a good many broken heads if the imperialists attempt to label these men as "traitors" when they return home."

When the political kissing bug has got in his work on Your Uncle Loren Fletcher's third term ambition, the congressman will look very like thirty cents.

And by the way, in the Hennepin county district the talk is that P. B. Winston will run against Fletcher. That would settle it.

And speaking of Governor Lind's having sent no official representative to the trust-excusing convention, was not Professor Folwell, professor of gold standard economics in the university, there, and was not also Brother Hanley o the grain growers association?

This week all eyes are again Chicagoward, in the meetings of the Democratic National Sub-Committees, Minnesota represented by Hon. Thomas D O'Brien of the Executive Committee.

Brothers in Affliction.

The czar can sympathize with that ancient Indian who is credited with giving his name to the city of Cheboygan. He had just returned from a long hunting trip through the northern wilds of the Michigan peninsula when the native nurse hurried forward and dashed his hopes by telling him he was the father of a third little daughter. The noble red man straightened up, and, with a look of deepest disgust on his coppery face, gutturally exclaimed: "She-boy-gain!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Left His Name.

Lady—A gentleman called, you say? Did he leave any name?

Parlor Maid—Oh, yes'm. He said it was immaterial.—Boston Traveler.

Its Equivalent.

Pedagogue (severely)—Now, sir, for the last time, what's the angle of the hypothenuse of a right-angled triangle equivalent to?

Boy (desperately)—It's equivalent to a lickin' fer me, sir. Go ahead.—Boston Traveler.

Verdant.

The city girl, who spent her vacation on a farm, imagined she had solved the meaning of "Pasteurized milk." She saw the cows feeding from the pasture. What could be simpler?—St. Louis Star.

His Opinion.

Mr. Black—Dem Filipinos am yaller.

Mr. Johnson—Yes; but dat doan mean dat dey's mulatters. Dey's a inferior race.—Puck.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Climate and Crop Bulletin.

Corn is generally ripe and much is already in shock. Flax harvest is nearly finished, but very little has been threshed yet. Plowing is going on well, with the ground in good condition, except in the southeast, where it is too dry. Winter rye and winter wheat are being seeded, and the early sown is coming up nicely. Minnesota grows very few winter apples. The fall apple crop is small. It is said that in the hail smitten region, where the apple trees were denuded of their foliage, they are now covered with blossoms. In Fillmore county many trees are starting new growths; it is thought that the rains this season have reached to greater depths than for many years and that this may account for the phenomenon.

John Blanchard Dead.

John Blanchard, for 10 years editor in-chief of the Minneapolis Times, died Sept. 12, 1899. Mr. Blanchard was born in Sandusky, O., in 1842. At an early age his father, who was a Methodist minister, removed to Belleville, Ont., where John attended the Belleville academy, and was graduated. After traveling and writing for a New York publishing house, he came west, settling at Monticello, Io., where for 12 years he conducted the Express. He next moved to Dubuque, Io., and became editor of the Dubuque Times. He came to Minneapolis in 1889, and almost immediately became editor-in-chief of the Minneapolis Times, which position he filled until the time of his death. A widow and two children Clarence and Eva, both grown, are left to mourn his death.

Not in the Market.

It is impossible to buy any prairie chickens, quail, wild duck or other like fowl in the markets this year, owing to a law passed by the last legislature which places an embargo on the selling or having for sale such birds. The law is most stringent in its provisions and is being rigidly enforced. It makes no difference whether the game is killed without the state or not, its sale is prohibited just the same; and the only way that it can be legally purchased is from the state game and fish commission, after seizure. Even then the birds may not be resold, but must be used by the original purchaser.

Badly Burned.

A man who was jealous of her attentions to others, threw a lighted lamp at Gusta Gould, a colored woman, in Minneapolis. It struck her in the back and broke. The oil spread over her clothes, and in a second she was ablaze. The woman was terribly frightened and in the excitement went to a rear window and jumped to the ground from the second floor. A policeman was attracted by her screams and succeeded in putting out the fire. However, the woman was badly burned about the upper part of the body. Most of the woman's clothes were burned from her body.

Large Premium for an Apple.

The executive board of the State Horticultural society has offered a premium of $1,000 for a seedling apple that will comply with the following conditions: It must be as hardy and as prolific a bearer as the Duchess of Oldenburg; it must be uniform in size, quality and appearance to that of the Wealthy; it must keep as well as the Malinda. A plate of the fruit of the tree shall be shown at each annual winter meeting of the society from the time of entry until the award is made.

Normal School.

The state normal school board, at its meeting in St. Paul, accepted the plans of Palmer, Hill & Hunt for a normal school at Duluth to cost $75,000, and the committee was authorized to advertise for bids to be opened at the March meeting. Reports from the presidents show that the attendance at the St. Cloud school was the same as last year, and at Winona a little larger. The auditing committee recommends retrenchment in some particulars, and more systematic methods in making vouchers.

An Old-Time Postmaster.

Thomas Minshall, of La Crescent, who was married to Mrs. Mary E. Remington, has the distinction of being the longest continuous service postmaster in the United States. He has filled his post 41 years. He has resided in Houston county 42 years and his bride has been a resident of Mower county 30 years.

PROGRESS.

With time, comes progress and advancement in all lines of successfully conducted enterprises. Success comes to those only who have goods with superior merit and a reputation. In the manufacture of laundry starch for the last quarter of a century J. C. Hubinger has been the peer of all others and to-day is placing on the market the finest laundry starch ever offered the public under our new and original method.

Ask your grocer for a coupon book which will enable you to get the first two large 10 cent packages of his new starch, RED CROSS, TRADE MARK brand, also two of the children's Shakespeare pictures painted in twelve beautiful colors as natural as life, or the Twentieth Century Girl Calendar, all absolutely free.

All grocers are authorized to give ten large packages of RED CROSS STARCH, with twenty of the Shakespeare pictures or ten of the Twentieth Century Girl Calendars, to the first five purchasers of the Endless Starch Chain Book. This is one of the grandest offers ever made to introduce the RED CROSS laundry starch, J. C. Hubinger's latest invention.

RUFFLES DAD'S DIGNITY.

The Young Baseball Rooter Causes His Paternal to Feel Too Prominent.

He is a Chicago board of trade man, dignified to a degree, has luxuriant, bushy side whiskers, clean chin and upper lip, and he dearly loves baseball. He also has a son six years old, who loves the game as dearly as does his father, and while the elder enjoys the playing in a solid, placid, contented way, the boy bubbles over with enthusiasm and outroots all other rooters.

During the last Chicago-St. Louis game father and son sat in the grand stand under the intense strain of knowing that St. Louis had two men on bases and two out, and if the man at the bat made a base hit the score would be tied. The latter smote the ball heavily. It soared upward and onward, far back into what the baseball reporter calls "the left garden."

Left Fielder Ryan was there, and, after a long, hard spurt, caught the fly on his finger tips and held it. The crowd screamed joyously and the small son of his father nearly went out of his skin for glee. The father merely smiled with dignity.

Finally the crowd ceased its yelling after the left fielder had doffed his cap thrice. There was silence as he walked to the bench twirling his blond mustache with either hand.

Then, with his father's clean shaven upper lip in mind, and with a voice that drew the attention of the assembled hundreds toward his devoted dad, the six-year-old rooter fairly yelled: "O, pap, don't you wish you had a mustache like Jimmie Ryan's?"—Chicago Tribune.

SUFFERED 25 YEARS.

Congressman Botkin, of Winfield, Kansas.

In a recent letter to Dr. Hartman, Congressman Botkin says:

"My Dear Doctor—It gives me pleasure to certify to the excellent curative qualities of your medicines—Pe-ru-na and Man-a-lin. I have been afflicted more or less for a quarter of a century with catarrh of the stomach and constipation. A residence in Washington has increased these troubles. A few bottles of your medicine have given me almost complete relief, and I am sure that a continuation of them will effect a permanent cure. Pe-ru-na is surely a wonderful remedy for catarrhal affections."

J. D. Botkin.

The most common form of summer catarrh is catarrh of the stomach. This is generally known as dyspepsia. Congressman Botkin was a victim of this disease twenty-five years. Pe-ru-na cures these cases like magic. Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, O., for a free book.

The microbes that cause chills and fever and malaria enter the system through mucous membranes made porous by catarrh. Pe-ru-na heals the mucous membranes and prevents the entrance of malarial germs, thus preventing and curing these affections.

Still More Counterfeiting.

The Secret Service has just unearthed another band of counterfeiters and secured a large quantity of bogus bills, which are so cleverly executed that the average person would never suspect them of being spurious. Things of great value are always selected for imitation, notably Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which has many imitators but no equals for disorders like indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, nervousness and general debility. CAPABLE MOTHERHOOD

MRS. CORA GILSON, Yates, Manistee Co., Mich., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—Two years ago I began having such dull, heavy, dragging pains in my back, menses were profuse and painful and was troubled with leucorrhœa. I took patent medicines and consulted a physician, but received no benefit and could not become pregnant.

"Seeing one of your books, I wrote to you telling you my troubles and asking for advice. You answered my letter promptly and I followed the directions faithfully, and derived so much benefit that I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound enough. I now find myself pregnant and have begun its use again. I cannot praise it enough."

MRS. PERLEY MOULTON, Thetford, Vt., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I think Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent medicine. I took several bottles of it before the birth of my baby and got along nicely. I had no after-pains and am now strong and enjoying good health. Baby is also fat and healthy."

MRS. CHAS. GERBIG, 304 South Monroe St., Baltimore, Md., writes: "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was unable to become pregnant; but since I have used it my health is much improved, and I have a big baby boy, the joy and pride of our home."

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, Sept. 22, 1899.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Preparations are going quietly on for a rousing reception to be given the returning soldier boys from Manila.

—A remarkable absence of caloric has been quite noticeable in the atmosphere of mornings of the past week.

—Mr. Carlson's new Forth street residence is now about completed and is quite an addition to that part of town.

—The time of M. E. church services, Sunday evening has been changed to a half hour earlier. Church commencing at 7:30. Epworth League 6:45.

—This week's news will be dished up by inferior staff officers of both offices on account of the predatory movements of "Lepus campestris" and "ab origine."

A number of gardeners in and about Delano were this week noticed gathering in a sumptuous crop of potatoes. The tubers appear to be of robust size and quite plentiful.

—Wood, hay, oats, corn, butter, eggs, potatoes, a cow etc., taken in exchange for photographs at Wolfenden's gallery. No excuse for your going without photographs longer.

--The Ladies of the M. E. church will serve a six o'clock dinner in the City Hall, next Wednesday evening, Sept. 27. Charge for dinner, adults 25 cents, children 15 cents.

—A number of scholars did not attend school during the past week on account of lame arms caused by vaccination. Some took to their beds for a day or two on account of it.

—Hog cholera has made its appearance in the vicinity of Long Prairie. Farmers should take precaution lest that disease, so fatal to the fattening swine, should get into their droves here abouts.

--An old time chivararie was indulged in Tuesday night, as sequence of the Dunn, Bauman nuptials. A terific noise was kept up in the late hours of the night, as is usually the case in these parts, on the important occasion of a marriage.

—The favorite pasttime and recreation around here now is seeking the timid duck in his splashy lair, sneaking cautiously upon the wary pheasant, or taking a shot at the nimble squirrel as he jumpeth from branch to branch in the sylvian depths of the big woods.

—A patron of the Delano Creamery undertook to sprinkle a part of R. R. Aue. with skim milk Monday morning; one of a wagon box full of milk cans falling out of the back and emptying its contents upon dry and dusty terra firma.

—This weeks Eagle puts in considerable space about bachelorhood, babies, and matrimony etc. We didn't know that there was an old bachelor on the force to get into a pensive mood, become "tender and sentimental and talk about the concerns of the heart." Then whence all this matrimonial gush?

—Freight traffic over the G. N. is now at a maximun. There is a train in town at almost all hours of the day and night, and sometimes three or four meet here. Trains heavily loaded with wheat or stock are continually rushing through to the cities, and long strings of empty cars returning westward for more of the golden grain from western Minnesota and Dakota, or Montana's choicest flocks and herds.

—This issue of the GAZETTE is No. 52. Vol. XI., the last issue of her eleventh year, and finds the editor absent on an excursion to Denver, Criple Creek, Pikes Peak, and other places, leaving the paper in the hands of the head foreman, next in rank to the editor, who will endeavor to acquit himself of his exalted position with honor and make the last number of the eleventh year as readable and interesting as any of its predecessors.

—Eld. C. F. Kennison, of Rockford, will preach in the Swedeback Hall Sunday, Sept. 24th 3 p. m. The subjects treated will be The Bible, God's Book for the Common People, also the question Is There a Fixed Rule of Interpretation, If So, What is It? Reference will be made to Primitive Interpretation, also Later Methods, Why Introduced, and Results That Followed. A cordial and general invitation is extended to the public.

--Jenner Chance, who was in the Hospital Corps in Manila, and is now on his way home by way of the Suez Canal and Atlantic last wrote from Northern Ireland. The letter was dated the 8th and he said he expected to be in New York the 20th and would soon be home. He has made quite a trip, having made the circuit of the globe and visited in France, England, Ireland, and he said he intended making a trip into Scotland. He secured his discharge and left Manila a short time before the 13th and will beat the rest of the boys from this place home.

--Two prizes at the County Fair at Howard Lake were captured by Delanoites. C. M. Conzet and Charles Coolen put their horses together and entered the team trotting race and came off victors. Yesterday John Epple and Nels Nelson went up and entered the bicycle race. John Eppel won 3d prize $5, coming in third place each time. First and second place were taken by John Johnson and Clarkson, fast riders from Minneapolis. There was a sch orcher there from St. Paul but he broke his wheel in the second heat. Nels Nelson came in 5th place the first heat, but fell the second time and those behind him run into him and indulged in a general mix up. It was in this scriminage that the St. Paulites wheel was broken. But for the fast city riders Eppel would have took first place as none of the country riders could stay with him.

--The editor of the St. Peter Free Press must have went on the excursion to Colorado, and left the running off of the last issue in the hands of the "devil" from the appearance of the item we give below. The article starts out very lovely with a marriage and without any visible cause in the latter part treats of a funeral and names several parties who attended the ceremony. Here is the article from that paper:

"Miss Mamie O'Malley, of Le Sueur, a graduate of the conservatory of music of Gustavus Adolphus college, and Charles Morgan, of Rochester, were married last Monday morning at the Catholic church in Le Sueur. The groom formerly was a nurse at the state hospital here and now holds a like position at Rochester, which place they will make their futuer home. Mr. and Mrs. Jeppa Skoog, Nels Benson and Ernest Rasche attended the funeral."--St. Peter Free Press.

—We publish the following letter in regard to small pox in this state, and the Round Lake affair, by H. M. Bracken, Secretary of the State Board of Health. You may judge for yourselves as to the wisdom of the action taken by that body, and whether or not an epidemic is not threatened unless strict measures are taken for the route of the disease.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 21, 1899.

To the Editor of the "Gazette",
Delano, Minn.

My Dear Sir:--In your issue of Sept. 15th, you call a halt on the statements by the Jackson Republic regarding vaccination, blood poisoning, etc.

The statement in that paper that the first victim of the Round Lake epidemic of smallpox was due to vaccination, is absolutely false. The child was exposed to smallpox through the father and died in consequence. All the small pox at Round Lake is traceable to exposnre through this physician.

If any blood poisoning follows the use of glycerinated vaccine, it is due either to carelessness on the part of the vaccinator or on the part of the one vaccinated.

There have been about eighty cases of smallpox in various parts of the state since May 1st. The number is likely to run much higher before next May is here. Very truly,

H. M. BRACKEN,
Secretary.

—From reports there are a number of small pox cases in different parts of the state. The dreaded disease has also made its appearance among the soldiers encamped at the Presidio. At Round Lake, in the southern part of the state, there have been several deaths and a number more taken down with what is reported as black small pox.

There have been numerous criticism against the State Board of Health because of the action taken, requiring every pupil of a school in the state to be vaccinated. Some hinted that it was a scheme for pecuniary gain by the Medical profession; some wishing to show their legal wisdom gained a transient popularity among a very few, by showing their lack of it in declaring that the Board of Health had no power to keep any one from school, and, in fact, had hardly any power at all. But some how or other the Board of health does these things. when a pupil has been exposed to diptheria they will actually compell him in the face of the law to quit school, and put him under qnorantine and keep him there for a certain period of time; and in other cases they even close the entire school for days and weeks. The fact is the Board of Health has almost unlimited power, used in a reasonable way, in case of epidemic of contagious disease, to stop the spread of it, and stamp it out. If it were not so the office would be useless. This is exactly what that body is attempting to do now, to prevent the spread of small pox, the loathsome disease, one of the most contagious in civilized countries, by means of vaccination of pupils of schools. It is a step that is meeting with approbation of parents almost everywhere, but of course there are a few who think they don't have to, and in that spirit oppose the good will of the State Board.

Personal.

Mrs. A. G. Jones visited at Hutchinson last week.

Grace Mowatt visited several days at Rockford last week.

Miss Stella Davis left for her school near Annandale Saturday morning.

Mrs. M. J. Stone attended the funeral of her brother-in-law at St. Paul last Monday.

Mrs. Pagenkoff and son, of near Armstrong, visited Delano on business last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Vorse, of Buffalo visited their daughter, Mrs. J. W. McDonald, here Sunday.

C. G. Halgren and wife and daughter, Mrs. Dr. E. E. Shrader and son, of Watertown, were in town Wednesday.

Street Commissioner Dar Welker just got out of the house Thursday after about a weeks attack of quinsey, an old time enemy.

Fay Parslow who is working in the depot at Hankinson N. D. visited over Sunday with his parents here, returning Sunday evening.

Misses Mary Reichel and Alvina Sieloff returned from Minneapolis Saturday evening, where they have been working in a book bindery.

Miss Julia Steffes, John Steffes and Laura Lindsley went to Smith Lake Saturday evening to visit relatives and friends. They returned Monday morning.

Mrs. Peter Pogreba, with her sister and brother, Anna and Louis Mayer, of this place, left for Great Falls, Montana Monday morning. Louis is going to work in a telegraph station near Great Falls. They were accompanied as far as Minneapolis by Miss Lucy Mayer.

Miss Annie Parslow has secured the school in the Leudeman Dist. five months term, commencing the first of October. She is now visiting at Clearwater Lake and St. Cloud. Her father H. C. Parslow, who took her to the station, continued on to Hassen where he visited relatives.

Delano was quite well represented at the County Fair at Howard Lake this week. Among those present were A. L. Mealey, G. P. Schaffer and family, Oscar Erwig, Glen Wilder, Ray Borrill, Adam Horsch and wife, Mrs. Steffes and Maggie, Mr. Jacobs and Miss Stella, Miss Vinnie Chance, Earl Jones, Mat Bernick, John Eppie, Nels Nelson, Martin Erwig, C. M. Conzet and family.

County Cullings.

Notice was last week given in the Maple Lake Messenger, that that paper and all its subscription accounts had been sold to Samuel L. Rank & Co. the former editor of the Annandale Post. Mr. Hamilton, the late owner of the Messenger gave Maple Lake a good paper while it was in his hands, but as he was not able to attend to his editorial duties, he was forced to lease and finally sell the plant.

From the Thirteenth.

(From Reg. correspondent.)

We will give parts of several letters received at different times from A. G. Catlin, with the 13th:

Sept. 7th 1899

After a run from Manila on the Sheridan we have suceeeded in arriving in the harber at 6:00 p. m. this evening. Started Aug. 12; leaving Nagasaki Aug. 19 and Yokohama Aug. 24.

The trip through the inland sea was very interesting, and all the way we have had a lovely sea, with the exception of a couple of days.

Crossed the 180th meridean on the 31st of Aug. thereby having the same day twice, but the first was called Aug. 31 east, the second Aug. 31 west.

The boys are all well.

Geo. Dyer was one of the butchers on the boat during the trip.

The Mileage from Yokahama is as follows:

Sept. 8th, 1899.

Tomorrow morning we expect to be taken to the Gov. dock to disembark.

Gen. Reeve came aboard among several other guests from Minnesota also some of California.

Col. Ames came on board among the last, allowing others to preceed him. His wife was with him; and no sooner were they noticed than three rousing cheers went up from the enlisted men to greet the Col. of the regiment. Col. Ames returned to land after a brief visit.

Sept. 11, 1899.

* * * *

Camp Presidio is much better than Camp Merrit ever was. We have streets, sidewalks, round tents, with floors and stoves, kitchens for each company, also a large mess room with tables in, and benches.

The trip was a very good one, smooth sailing with the exception of two or three days during a heavy wind from the North which chilled us to the back bone, although we had a heavy suit of underclothes, heavy woolen shirt, suit of heavy blue, and a blue overcoat.

We could throw up easier on this trip as we practiced on the previous voyage.

There is not much to say except everybody is well.

Gov. Lind, staff and friends gave us a call and received the usual welcome.

A. G. CATLIN.

SAN FRANCISCO.
Sept. 14th 1899

Dear Brother: I received your short letter of welcome this morning and delighted to here from you. As you ask for a letter describing the voyage etc. I will do the best I can.

After being on the line, or in the field for some time we were released and sent to quarters in San Magil dist. Manila, where we received our trunks and packed them for the voyage.

After boarding the boat we were assigned bunks. The bunks on the Sheridan are made by means of steel piper for frames and canvas centers. They are about six feet long, two feet wide, and about two and a half feet space between every bunk for an isle. There are three bunks high. The first is about a foot from the floor, then there is about two and a half feet between the lower birth and the one above it.

There are two berth decks, each divided off into sections. Each section has a hatch hole, and can be closed by means of iron doors, which are to be used in case of fire, in the other apartment or sections, thus choking the fire and exposing a very small portion of the ship to its effects in case one should ever occur.

The trip out of the bay of Manila was very pleasant. The water was calm; not a ripple to be seen except those caused by the boat as she made her headway through the narrow channel into the open sea and headed for Japan. The short voyage of four days was enjoyed as the sea was quite smooth. After a stop of three days at Nagasaki we took a voyage through the inland sea, which is very pleasant and afords a good protection to the coast of Japan, to Yocahama where we spent a couple of days; then we proceeded on our homeward trip, not to stop short of Frisco. About seven or eight days out of Yocahama we had a little heavy sea (some of us were a little sick in the stomach and could not eat very much), the spray at times breaking on deck. The wind was very cold. We had all our clothes on and then were cold. We could actually see our breath for a couple of days, as it was about 45 above at this time.

We came into Frisco at sundown. Everything looked about as we had left it. Some of the batteries on shore fired the sundown gun, sending forth a cloud of smoke, adding to the grandure of the scene. A couple of quarantine officers boarded the boat soon after our arrival and commenced the examination. In the morning of the following day we pulled further into the bay, passing the battle ship Iowa, which is about the same as the Oregon. At about 1 o'clock that night, or morning of Sept. 9 we entered the Gov. dock, landed, and marched to the Presidio, leaving the pier at 9:00 a. m.

Col. Ames came on board Sept. 8 and received a welcome that would envy the President, cheer upon cheer being given in his honor.

Mr. Reeves was seen on deck among the officers.

The Governor and his staff arrived after we were comfortably located in our quarters; which are round tents with a good board floor, side walks all over camp where a person could expect to go, also a little stove in each tent.

We received our back pay for Camp Ramsey duty, prior to muster in.

At 4 o'clock the 12th the regiment passed in review of Gov. Lind.

We are now eating much better than anytime during the whole service except one dinner and one supper, Feb. 6th, when we had chicken, baked pig, duck, and goose all cooked together, we securing the game on acquired territory.

E. M. Nagle, and J. D. Sturgeon, of Buffalo, are here now.

Expecting to be with you soon, will close.

Yours, with best wishes to all.

A. G. CATLIN.

A Sad Accident.

Last Saturday evening while driving home from our village Jas. Sullivan either fell or was thrown from his wagon, striking on his head and terribly cutting both scalp and face besides injuring his spine from the seventh vertebra. Dr. O'Connor did everything possible for him but it was thought best to take him to St. Mary's Hospital in Minneapolis, Monday, where, in the hope of removing the paralysis of the entire body and limbs an operation was performed, Tuesday. He was unable to rally and died the same evening. The love and high esteem in which he was held were well shown by the large gathering of friends who followed the remains to their last resting place. His loss is very deeply mourned by many and most of all the blind brother who is left behind.—Maple Lake Messenger.

ONE FARMER TAKEN IN.

Lightning Rod Agents Work him for a Cool $140.

Last weeks' Leader told of the appearence of lightning rod agents in the county, and this week we learn of an easy mark that they found. A well known German farmer living east of town was taken in to the tune of $140. It was done this way:

A crew of lightning rod men came along and stopped at the farm of Theodore Laken, who can neither read nor wright English. They first talked with him on other subjects and then sprung lightning rods to him. They had three sets to put up in this county at the very low figure of $6, to introduce them we suppose. Mr. Laken must have one, and finally he gave them an order. A week later another crew appeared to put up the rods, and did so. When they were through Mr. Laken presented them with $6 to pay his bill. Then it was that his eyes were opened. The bill was $146 instead of $6. Mr. Laken protested but in vain, and finelly he was bulldozed into signing a note for $140 in settlement, and he will have the note to pay.

This case ought to be a lasting warning for every body to let all strangers severely alone, but it probably won't, and others will keep right on being taken in.—Long Prairie Leader.

Among Our Exchanges.

Any people who will sacrifice their lives fighting for freedom and self goyernment are worthy of the respect and protection of this nation, for they show the "spirit of 1776," whether in Cuba or in the Philippines.—N. Y. World.

St Paul Dispatch

25c per month for Daily. 75c per year for the Weekly.

The St. Paul Dispatch is the best Twin City daily; it has no equal in the Northwest as to size or quality.

The DISPATCH excels in Northwestern news, having a correspondent in every Northwestern town.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

Three Together One Year for Only $2.35

EXCELSIOR.

The shades of night were falling fast,
As through an Alpine village passed
A youth, who bore, 'mid snow and ice,
A banner with the strange device,
Excelsior!

His eye was sad; his eye beneath
Flashed like a falchion from its sheath,
And like a silver clarion rung
The accents of that unknown tongue,
Excelsior!

In happy homes he saw the light
Of household fires gleam warm and bright;
Above, the spectral glaciers shone,
And from his lips escaped a groan,
Excelsior!

"Try not the Pass!" the old man said;
"Dark lowers the tempest overhead,
The roaring torrent is deep and wide!"
And loud that clarion voice replied,
Excelsior!

"O stay," the maiden said, "and rest
Thy weary head upon this breast!"
A tear stood in his bright blue eye,
But still he answered, with a sigh,
Excelsior!

"Beware the pine-tree's withered branch!
Beware the awful avalanche!"
This was the peasant's last Good-night,
A voice replied, far up the height,
Excelsior!

At break of day, as heavenward
The pious monks of Saint Bernard
Uttered the oft-repeated prayer,
A voice cried through the startled air,
Excelsior!

A traveler, by the faithful hound,
Half-buried in the snow was found,
Still grasping in his hand of ice
That banner with the strange device,
Excelsior!

There in the twilight cold and gray,
Lifeless, but beautiful, he lay,
And from the sky, serene and far,
A voice fell, like a falling star,
Excelsior!

LONGFELLOW.

FILIPPINOS have captured another of Uncle Sam's war boats, killing the commander Wood, and capturing the crew, guns, etc.

The Nebraskan's can't see any way around the quotations from A. Lincoln by W. J. Bryan, on Imperialism. They are not imperialistically inclined.

OTIS has again been taking the Filipinos "in reverse", according to reports. A party of insurgents captured a U. S. gunboat, burned it and took the crew prisoners.

WILLIAM J. BRYAN has been making some of his convincing speeches to his fellow citizens of Nebraska. He is received by very large and appreciative audiences wherever he goes. His chances for carrying his own state at the next election seem to be much better than McKinley's chance of carrying Ohio.

STRANGE things keep occuring. Admiral Dewey sailed into New York Harbor, after all two days before he was expected. Admiral Howison from distant shores returned just in time to, as senior to Sampson, receive Dewey's salute. What can it mean? Has Admiral Dewey a plan of his own for running the navy of our country? At any rate the navy seems to have been a large part of our country for more than a year past.

If being "a protege of John Nugents settles it" for appointment to petty offices in Wright county, and John is one of the best known goldbug democrats in the state, we now give warning to Gov. Lind that there are good Bryan men in this state who would make good governors, and a good many democrats in Wright county who would prefer a governor in sympathy with the next president, and who won't make a specialty of appointing gold bugs to every little office in his power at the instigation of the President of the Minnesota Sheriff's Association.

ONE of the most ridiculously funny and at the same time shameful things that ever met our gaze in the political arena is the Dewey boom for President on the Democratic ticket by Republican dailies, and the vigor and persistency with which they push their little boom. A few short months ago these same papers were talking of running Dewey on the Republican ticket as a shure downer for Bryan. But they have found out that his Imperialistic ideas don't exactly suit their set, and they know that McKinley can't be beat on that score, so they print sayings of prominent Democrats, who have never been heard of, declaring that Dewey is the man to run on the Democrat ticket. And all this is done with the view of dividing the Democrat forces and ensuring a victory for the Republicans and Imperialism, and the defeat of the "Hero of Manila". It is a most shallow scheme and will undoubtedly fail in its purpose. But shame on those who would think of such a thing, and on dailies that would aid them in their contemptible plot.

THE PARDON of Capt. Alfred Dreyfus, from serving the ten year's imprisonment as punishment for the crime of treason to the French government and of giving army secrets to the Germans, awakens in the minds of many who have not already been dubious, a doubt of the righteousness of his condemnation, and a doubt as to the honor of the convicting judges. The trial was a long and hard contested legal battle, under the close scrutiny of the entire civilized world. Men of recognized honor championed the cause of Dreyfus while the French army officers endeavored to convict him. The trial at last came to an end with the judges vote 5 to 2 for conviction. But so strong was the opposition, and sentiment of the other nations in favor of Dreyfus, and the charges against him so weakly substantiated and their whole case in such a mist and whorle of suicides and counter charges, that they were forced to the pardon as a means of bringing the affair to a close and escaping from their present conspicuity, as they well knew from former experience that no rest would be given them. But although Dreyfus is a free man, the dishonor is still his, as a man convicted of treason, and liberty is nothing to him without honor. French justice has received a terrible shock, and the government is censured by the press of all nations.

The Turk.

The newest case of imperialstic deceit is that of the Turkish Sultan in the Philippines who receives from our government a yearly tribute to hold the peace. They do not deny that slavery and poligamy exist in the dominions of that faithful believer of the Koran, but they represent that Sultan as a very small potato and the tribute that he receives as a kind of salary or pin money for his many wives. The main island of the Sulu archipelago, Minandano, holds 25,000 square miles with a population taxed at 2,000,000. Of the island, we possess a few small coast strips with 100,000 inhabitants. All the other territory is under the rule of the Turk who boasts that he can put 100,000 warriors in the field. His subjects are the most daring, atrocious pirates, the same as the Turkish pirate states in the Mediteranean were. They attack any sailing vessel, massacre the crew, or carry them into slavery, plunder the ship and burn or scuttle it. The ship is lost but there is no proof of their crime. If there are slaves, they are not Mohammedans, because the Koran does not allow slavery of the true believers. That Sultan is the hardest nut we have to crack over there in due time. It looks to me atrocious to kill Christians who fight for their independence and pay tribute, pin money, or salary to the independent Turk to keep the peace, but I admit that I am not an imperialsst.

Imperialism and Self-rule.

Commissioner Schurman says, that the different tribes make independency in the Philippines impossible.

Under imperialistic rule, but not with self rule under our protection. Let us compare. There is Russia and Poland, Austria and Hungary, Sweden and Norway, Germany and Alsace, all tribes of the same nationalities, held together by the military power of their imperialistic rulers. If these rulers would try to keep their subjects in submission with an adequate military force as ours (40,000 men) their rule would collapse in no time.

Compare with these, Switzerland, three different nationalities, German French and Italians under democratic rule, all willing to defend their liberty to the utmost. Look at our glorious republic, as large a territory as civilized continental Europe. All nationalities live on it peaceably under democratic rule all willing to defend this rule against any foreign power.

The Issue.

Here is the fact that the administration abandons this principle. That it is impossible to hold these Asiatic islands under the imperialistic rule of unconditional surrender, in subjugation, and possession without a very large, lasting increase of military force and that these imperialistic tendencies and this permanent increase of our military force endangers our democratic liberty here. Cleveland was elected agains Harrison and McKinley against Bryan by the independent vote. The bulk of these independent voters are foreign born; they know the brutality of imperialism; they suffered under that rule and came to these shores to escape it. They hate it, and I presume the independent vote will go against McKinley if nominated, because he represents imperialism.

O. M.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 15, 1899.

Nothing could more clearly show the republican fear that Mr. McLean will be elected governor of Ohio than their frantic efforts to make it appear that Mr. McLean is a secret enemy of Col. Bryan, and that if elected governor of Ohio that their frantic efforts to make it appear that Mr. McLean is a secret enemy of Col. Bryan, and that if elected governor of Ohio, he will seek to prevent Col. Bryan's nomination for President next year. Their object of course, being to make the Ohio democrats who wish for Col. Bryan's nomination, lukewarm in their support of of Mr. McLean. The trick is too transparent to to fool anybody. It is well known in democratic circles that Mr. McLean is entirely favorable to Col. Bryan's nomination, and equally well known that Col. Bryan is willing and anxious to do everything in his power to help Mr. McLean carry Ohio this year. There is nothing in the story that Mr. McLean has asked Col. Bryan not to speak in Ohio. When Mr McLean was first nominated Col. Bryan notified the Ohio State Democratic Committee that he would speak in the State, if the committee deemed it advisable, and that is just where the matter stands today. If he doesn't speak there, it will only be because the committee may decide, as a contrast to the wholesale importation of speakers by the republicans, to confine the democratic speakers to citizens of the State.

The administration has again climbed the mountain of hope, and all sorts of mysterious hints of early peace in the Philippines are being scattered are Washington semi officially. All the foundation that these gorgeous air-castles have is the granting several days ago by Gen. Otis of a request that two Filipino officers be allowed to go to Manila to negotiate for the surrender of the American prisoners held by Aguinaldo. The administration has apparently jumped to the conclusion that Aguinaldo wishes to surrender, although there was nothing in the cablegram from Otis, as published, to justify any such conclusion. The anxiety of the administration for a speedy and successful closing of the war in the Philippines is growing so great that it cannot be hid.

Although Mr. Wayne MacVeagh, leading counsel for Capt. Oarter, reached Washington early this week, the argument he is to make before the Attorney General, for which that official claims to be waiting to hear before making a recommendation to the President in the case, was postponed until next week. Attorney General Griggs feels so sore over the general criticism of the delay in disposing of this case that he took the extraordinary course of making public, through an authorized interview, a defense of his department.

The Washington bar is considerably worked up over a report that Mr. McKinley has decided to appoint an Ohio man U. S. District Attorney for the District of Columbia, and a meeting of the Bar association has adopted a strong resolution in favor of home rule, but, of course, the Washington Bar Association does not wield any influence in Ohio politics, and if Boss Hanna says that another Ohio man must be given a Washington office, it is likely to be done.

The following letter from ex-Senator Henderson, of Mo., whose home has been in Washington since he retired from the Senate, was received by the secretary of the Anti-Imperialist League, recently organized in Washington: "I shall be home in a few days and shall join the league with pleasure. If imperialism goes up to success, this republic will go down to ruin."

Mr. Lawrence Gardner, whose resemblence to Mr. Cleveland resulted in both annoyance and amusement during the two terms of President Cleveland, and who has been closely connected with the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, and the National Committee, of which he was the District of Columbia member, died this week. Mr. Gardner had been a resident of washington for forty years and every democrat who has attained national prominence during the last twenty years was his personal friend.

Like the good sailor he is, Rear Admiral Schley says he will obey the order for him to assume command of the south Atlantic Squadron, if it is issued by the Navy Department. So far the only order issued directs him to hold himself in readiness to take that command. Meanwhile, Schley, the man whose honors in the Spanish war are second only to those of Admiral Dewey, will go to New York to participate, as a private citizen, in the welcome of his old friend, Dewey. Such is the result of not standing in with the clique.

Bribe for Aguinaldo.

"NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—A special to the World says: Your correspondent is able to say, on authority, that the Schurman Peace commission offered every possible inducement short of absolute self government to Aguinaldo and his followers. Aguinaldo was promised, as the price for the restoration of peace in the the Tagalos tribe, a bonus of more than $5,000 a year, while the Tagalos remained peaceful. He was told that he could choose men from his tribe for the minor municipal offices.

With all these inducements, tempting as they must have been, Aguinaldo, as the recognized head of the insurgent movement, declined to yield. He insisted upon immediate self-government, and as his insistence was so firm as to make an agreement impossible, the American Commissioners ceased negotiations."

We have heard a great deal of denunciation against Aguinaldo for being a bribe taker—a boodler. How is this? Is McKinley a bribe giver?

Is the taking of a bribe a crime and the giving of one a virtue?

What have the echoes to say?—Wabasha Herald.

RAISE OF THE PRESENT.

Poets there be who tune their lyres to Days of Long Ago
And sing a song of sentiment in measure sad and low;
To them the golden age is past, the golden fleece is clipped;
The rose of pleasure hath been plucked, the cup of joyance sipped;
They live in longing for the lost, the dead of Might Have Been—
But I—a bard most practical—count all such singing sin.
To me These Days, these present days,
Have fertile fields and flowery ways,
Wherein my fancy fondly strays;
And if I had a song to sing, I'd sing about These Days.

And there be bards who rave a stave concerning Days to Be,
When all things shall be lovely and luxuriant and free,
When Joy shall reach her chalice down to thirsty mortal lip,
And certain rare elected ones to drunkenness shall sip;
The bud has yet to blossom and the honey to be stored
Ere hungry souls may sit them down and sweep the festal board.
But as for me, I say These Days
Hold pastures where my soul may graze
And drink delights and gather bays;
And if I knew a stave to rave, I'd rave about These Days.

To me These Days are golden-tipped with goodly thoughts and things,
And Opportunity but waits to spread her splendid wings
At my command, to bear me up and make my vision wide,
That I may sweep the height, the deep and know them deified!
The golden Days of Long Ago, the golden Days to Be
Are not so wonderful by half as These Days are to me;
And so These Days, these golden days,
To me are rich with wine and maize
And minstrel-sweet with harvest lays;
And were I piping Pan himself, I'd pipe about These Days.

Drurgsey's Patent Shoes

By Kenneth F. Harris.

DRURGSEY was disappointed in his shoes. They had been the pride of his heart for about a week, for they were not ordinary shoes, with plain uppers, counters and soles and nothing more except the laces and eyelet holes. They were the latest development of sanitary science applied to the domestic arts. A savant with a noble brow and double convex spectacles had devoted years of study to the evolving of this shoe. At times this savant almost despaired of attaining his ideal and poverty stared him rudely in the face. His wife would break in on him at critical moments during his experiments and tell him that the soap was out and the children were crying for tomato catchup, and things like that. Then she would speak of the prosperity of her sister's practical husband John, who had devoted himself steadily to sewer contracts. It was in vain that the savant would plead that he had no genius for sewer contracts. His wife was one of those illogical women. Nevertheless he had persevered, and the hygienic footwear was sprung upon the world. Drurgsey was one of the first to adopt the invention.

The shoes were so contrived that a sort of ventilation shaft penetrated their depths, running from the counter to the heel and thence along the inseam to the shank. They had a perforated insole, with a substratum of India rubber, so that the raising of the foot created a suction in the ventilating pipe and drew refreshingly cool streams of air into the shoe, forcing them out again when the foot was pressed on the ground. A little circular, with a sectional draft decorated with figures at the angles and little arrows in full flight indicating the direction of the air currents, went with every pair. It was about as scientific a thing altogether as can be bought for six dollars, without taking into consideration its practical utility. Then, it is a form of entertainment. When conversation lagged Drurgsey could always lift his left foot on his right knee and say, with simulated carelessness: "Here's rather an ingenious thing in the way of a shoe," and then proceed to lecture upon it. He carried the circular about with him in his pocketbook, and it was nearly worn out by the time the shoes began to rip.

They had seemed to be strong shoes, and well sewn. Drurgsey concluded that the mechanism had been deranged in some way. He said it was his belief that the shank had fouled one of the piston valves or that the inseam had expanded and jammed the shaft. Whatever the cause might have been, there was an unsightly rip that afforded more ventilation than was necessary.

"I'll send them around to Hindman's and get them fixed," said Drurgsey. "They didn't guarantee them to last a week, but I guess they would have done so if I had asked them, and they won't have the nerve to make any charge."

"I might send Mary with them to the cobbler's," suggested his wife.

"These aren't shoes to send to a cobbler," said Drurgsey, bitterly. "If there was a competent machinist in the neighborhood I might consider that proposition, but it's fifty to one whether this man would know the difference between a connecting rod and a cylinder cover. The best way will be to send them around to the maker, and then if there are any of the castings missing they will have them in stock."

He began to lace up the shoes as he spoke.

"Why don't you put on an old pair?" asked Mrs. Drurgsey. "You must be getting absent-minded. You don't expect them to mend those shoes while you wait?"

"Well, I'll be in the office all the afternoon. I'll just send the office boy round with them and work in my stocking feet. I don't want to carry a bundle of old leather downtown and back."

Mrs. Drurgsey said she thought that would be a good idea. She then told her husband to be home in time for dinner, as the Glovers were coming. He said that he would remember.

That afternoon Drurgsey, unheeding the protest of his partner, took off his sanitary shoes and gave them to Henry, the office boy, to take over to the makers. "Tell them that I want them by 4:30 or five o'clock at the outside," he said. "Say who they are for and tell them you'll call for them. And tell them that I bought those shoes less than ten days ago. See what they say to that."

"Yessir," said Henry, who was a mealy-faced youth with a passion for salted peanuts. He took the shoes and disappeared and Drurgsey tucked his feet under his desk and became absorbed in his correspondence.

In the course of half an hour Henry returned and reported that he had left the shoes and that "they didn't say nuthin'."

"I guess they concluded that they hadn't any decent excuse to make," was Drurgsey's comment.

At 4:30 o'clock Drurgsey told the boy that he had better run over to Hindman's and see if those shoes weren't done. He used the word "run" as a sort of figure of speech, for he knew Henry better than to suppose that he would really proceed with any unseemly haste. Henry sucked the salt granules that had gathered on his fingers from the peanuts and started out. Drurgsey went on with his writing.

Presently his partner closed his desk and asked Drurgsey if he would attend to the locking of the safe before he went out. Drurgsey looked at the office clock and saw that it was five minutes past five o'clock.

"Where do you suppose that blamed boy is?" he asked. "Search me," replied the partner. "Good night."

Drurgsey waited for a few feverish moments and then rose and began to pace the floor with a noiseless, panther tread. At last he heard the gate of the elevator clang in the passage and Henry appeared.

"Where are those shoes?" shouted his employer.

The boy looked scared. "I guess they ain't done," he stammered. "I didn't think there wuz any use waitin' any longer."

"You guess they ain't done? Don't you know? Didn't you ask? Didn't I tell you that I wanted those shoes by five o'clock?"

"I told 'em that when I took the shoes over."

"Well, why didn't you get them? What did they say about them, anyway? Leave those peanuts alone a minute and answer me."

"They didn't say nothin'," said Henry.

"Say!" said Drurgsey, with the calmness of concentrated rage, "you go right back there and get those shoes, and be back with them inside of six minutes, or don't come back at all. It's 5:25 now. If you aren't back by 5:35 you lose your job—understand?"

Henry vanished, and within six minutes he was back again panting and with a pair of shoes under his arm.

"Good boy!" exclaimed Drurgsey, joyfully. "You can get a move on you all right when you have—why, what in thunderation! These ain't my shoes!"

As the excited man was delivering his opinion of office boys and shoemakers in a sulphurous recitative, Wagner, the mosaic and tile man in the office next door, came in and asked whether he wanted the police sent for.

"Wagner, you can save my life," said Drurgsey. "Hindmans have got my shoes repairing them, and I haven't got another pair to my name. I've sent this—this boy over a dozen times, and he's just brought me back the wrong ones. Won't you go over and get them for me. Say! I'll do anything you can name for you if you will. They will be closed in ten minutes, and I've missed my train now. If I don't make the next one I'm going to get into all kinds of trouble at home. Be a good fellow, Wagner. You know the shoes when you see them, don't you?"

"Those patent things that you've been blowing about for the last week?"

"Yes; hurry! Or if you don't want to go let me wear your shoes down there. I'll wake them up."

"I won't trust you," said Wagner. "I'll go and get the shoes for you. Do I take a cab?"

"Take anything you like," said Drurgsey, "but hurry."

Wagner took a cab and hastened over to the shoemaker's. He explained the situation, and succeeded in interesting a clerk, who found out that no one knew anything about the shoes. One or two of the clerks had already gone home and they might have received them. The clerk said that he would look at the factory book, and see if they had been sent over. The factory book showed that they had been sent over.

"How far is the factory from here?" asked Wagner.

"About six blocks."

"We can make it. Jump into the cab with me; we've got to get those shoes."

The clerk jumped in and they drove to the factory and found it was closed. They were shaking the door when a policeman pointed at a man who was turning the corner of the street, and said he had just locked the place up. The man was pursued and brought back, the place unlocked and a search instituted for the shoes. At last Wagner found them under a bench, half covered with leather scraps, and the hand of the repairer had not touched them.

Wagner took them, however. When he got back Drurgsey was waiting in the hall with the office door closed, his hat on and his umbrella in his hand. He snatched the shoes from his friend, and without stopping to lace them dashed into the elevator and told the boy to let it drop.—Chicago Daily Record.

A Queer Vessel.

The most singular ship in the world is the Polyphemus, of the British navy. It is simply a long steel tube, deeply buried in the water, the deck rising only four feet above the sea. It carries no masts or sails, and is used as a ram and torpedo boat.

Ex-Speaker Reed.

There is no mistaking the following from Tom Reed, where he says:

"Some people seem to be afraid that these Filipinos will put their tongues in their cheeks at us. They have watched our failure as others have. I don't know how long it will be before the American people get tired of spending $50,000,000 a year trying to conquer these people, but it does not seem to me it will be very long. I can conceive that freedom is just as dear to them as it is to us and that they will fight for it just as long."

Tom seems to be about as much of a "copperhead" as the Herald.—Wabasha Herald.

Passing of the Exposition.

Like the radiant glories of a summer sunset, or the resplendent liveries of the autumn forests, each a pathetic harbinger of approaching dissolution, stands today the beautiful white city on the banks of the Missouri river known to an admiring world as the Greater American Exposition. It, too is rapidly approaching its determination, for within the next few weeks this matchless creation of the architectural genius, the deft sculptor, the artistic gardener and the wizard of electricity will be but a cherished and dissolving memory. Few who have seen the marvelous beauty of architecture and stately proportions of its grand buildings, their courtly arrangement about the picturesque lagoon, the wonderful scenic grandeur of its parks and lawns by day and the peerless brilliancy of its nightly illuminations, have failed to reflect seriously upon the thought that soon this charming spectacle is to fade from human vision like the enchanting mirage of the desert. Today it stands as one of the most admirable and inspiring spectacles in all the world. The snows of winter will fall upon a barren field, for the exposition will have been torn away and the leased lands reverted to their owners. With the passing of this creation of almost celestial beauty will depart also the last opportunity likely to be afforded the people of this section to attend in their very midst a great exposition, at least for many years to come.

An authority states that there are 979 savings banks in the United States, having depositors to the number of 5,385,000 and total deposits amounting to $2,065,000,000. Great Britain's savings banks have on deposit $780,000,000, France's $652,000,000, Russia's $196,000,000, Italy's $89,000,000. The richest gold mines in the world are involved in the trouble between England and Oom Paul. In 1896 the dividends of the mines aggregated $7,500,000; in 1897 they had climbed up to $13,500,000, and last year they went to $24,450,000. Considering the fact that most of the stock in these great mining companies is held by Englishmen, England may hesitate some time before attacking the Boers. And then, too, there is the great Kimberley diamond mine, which the Boers threaten to blow out of existence with dynamite in case England fires a shot.

Fashion has this fall prescribed a walking dress that is distinctly healthful and sensible. We have seen year after year the women wading through the muddy streets with one hand earnestly clutching the rear breadths of the dress to elevate them above the sidewalk. The dress swings clear of the pavement by three or four inches, leaving the hands of the wearer free. With low-heeled shoes to be worn in conjunction with this new idea, there is no reason why the American woman should not be able to walk with some grace, style and comfort.

An exchange directs attention to the fact that it is just about 51 years ago since the first woman's suffrage convention was held in this country, at Seneca Falls, N. Y. Of those who attended that convention Elizabeth Cady Stanton is probably the only survivor. Of the rights and privileges demanded at that meeting nearly every one has been conferred upon American women. The right of suffrage has been withheld only because it remains plainly evident that the great majority of American women does not want it. At least it appears so from press reports.

New Yorkers Wake Up to Find the Famous Admiral Has Slipped Into the Harbor.

REPEATS HIS MANILA BAY TACTICS.

Forts Fire an Admiralty Salute and Passing Vessels Shriek a Hearty Welcome—New York's Festival Committees Thrown Into a Fever of Anxiety by His Early Arrival.

New York, Sept. 26.—Much to the surprise of everyone in the city, the Olympia, with Admiral Dewey on board, arrived off the Sandy Hook lightship at 5:55 Tuesday morning. The Olympia sailed from Gibraltar September 10. There was a heavy mist on the sea, and at first the marine observers were inclined to think the vessel sighted might be Rear Admiral Howison's flagship, the Chicago, hardly believing Dewey would arrive two days ahead of time. The doubt was soon cleared away, however, and as passing vessels recognized the flagship from Manila bay there was a continuous blowing of whistles in salute.

One of the first large vessels to sight th Olympia was the passenger steamer Sandy Hook, of the Sandy Hook line, which left Atlantic Highlands shortly after seven o'clock for her New York dock. Just as she got well under way a war vessel was seen through the fog and passengers and crew, headed by the Sandy Hook's captain, gathered at the rail to read the newcomer's name. To get near enough to do this the Sandy Hook changed her course and headed directly for the Olympia, blowing her whistle in salute as she did so. As soon as the name was made out the Sandy Hook's passengers cheered with all their might, and in a few moments an answering cheer came over the water from the warship's sailors, many of whom were gathered on deck.

Had a Pleasant Trip.

The flagship came up to the lower bay and anchored inside Sandy Hook. As soon as the anchor was dropped, an orderly was sent ashore with dispatches from the admiral and other officers. He said the ship had had a pleasant trip across the Atlantic and that all on board were well and glad to be home again.

The Olympia's crew were put to work immediately cleaning ship. Many small vessels are sailing around her and their number is being augmented constantly.

Dewey's Relatives Not Surprised.

The members of Admiral Dewey's family, who are stopping at the Waldorf-Astoria, did not seem surprised at their distinguished relative's early arrival. Charles Dewey, of Montpelier, Vt., the admiral's brother, said:

"This is not altogether unexpected, as we thought the admiral would be here a couple of days before the celebration. Probably he desired to have a couple of days to get the ship in good condition for the celebration.

"None of the family will go down the bay Tuesday to see the admiral, and none of us expect to before Thursday."

Worried by Early Arrival.

The admiral's early arrival was a matter of great concern to the city authorities who are arranging for New York's official welcome. Secretary Foster, of the reception committee, went to the city hall early and at once issued a call for a special meeting of the committee.

Mayor Van Wyck hurried to his office, where he found the following telegram:

"Olympia arrived this morning. Will go to Tompkinsville to-morrow.

"GEORGE DEWEY."

The mayor advised the calling together of all the city's committees and telegrams were sent out calling on the members of the plan and scope committee and the various sub-committees to meet as quickly as possible at the city hall. St. Clair McKelway, the chairman of the sub-committee of the reception committee, was the first to arrive. Mr. McKelway thought the reception committee would wait on Dewey Wednesday instead of Thursday, and that Dewey would remain in the anchorage off Tompkinsville until Friday. Then the regular reception would take place on Friday and Saturday, according to the city's programme.

Little three-year-old Bessie was trying to dress herself one morning and managed to get her clothes badly mixed. Calling to her mother, she said: "Oh, mamma, come and help me! I'm all upside out!"

"I guess that ain't me," said little Ralph as he gazed earnestly at a photograph of himself. "What makes you think it isn't?" asked his mother. "'Cause it's standin' still too long to be me," was the reply.

"I wonder," said little Harry, "if men will ever live to be 500 or 600 years old!" "No, I gues not," replied his five-year-old sister, who was studying her Sunday school lesson. "The Lord tried the experiment once and they got so bad that He just had to drown them."

One evening four-year-old Nellie failed to mention her father in her prayer because he had scolded her. "You must pray for papa, too, Nellie," said her mother. "But I don't want to," replied the little one. "But you must," said mamma. Dropping upon her knees again, she added: "And, for pity's sake, bless papa, too, and let us have peace in the family."

A FINANCIAL EXPERT.

He Got Busy with the Managing Editor to That Gentleman's Discomfiture.

There is a gentleman in Chicago—and the boom of a cannon fired in front of the Times-Herald office would easily carry to him as he sits at his desk—who has made a study of economics and who writes financial editorials.

A few weeks ago the managing editor took a vacation and the financial expert was left in general charge of the paper. One morning recently he received a letter from the managing editor, who wrote:

"I am stranded over here in Canada. I have been buying a lot of stuff that may be useful to me some time, and I need $50. Will you please send me a draft for the sum named?"

Of course he would. It would be a pleasure to accommodate the managing editor. So the great financial expert hurried over to the First national bank, in which he kept his account, and asked for a draft for $50 to send to his friend. The bank officer gave him a paper to sign, and after giving directions where to send the draft the writer returned to his desk.

Two or three uneventful days passed, and there came another letter from the managing editor.

"Dear sir," he wrote, "I asked you to send me some money, and I told you I was 'strapped.' What do you mean by drawing on me for $50? I have telegraphed to a friend, who has sent money to pay my way home."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Itching Burning Scaly Blotchy Humors

Instantly Relieved and Speedily Cured by

Cuticura

The itching and burning I suffered in my feet and limbs for three years were terrible. At night they were worse and would keep me awake a greater part of the night. I consulted doctor after doctor, as I was travelling on the road most of my time, also one of our city doctors. None of the doctors knew what the trouble was. I got a lot of the different samples of the medicines I had been using. I found them of so many different kinds that I concluded I would have to go to a Cincinnati hospital before I would get relief. I had frequently been urged to try CUTICURA REMEDIES, but I had no faith in them. My wife finally prevailed upon me to try them. Presto! What a change! I am now cured, and it is a permanent cure. I feel like kicking some doctor or myself for suffering three years when I could have used CUTICURA remedies. H. JENKINS, Middleboro, Ky.

MINNESOTA EDITORS

Enjoy Another of Their Model and Delightful Annual Excursions.

A Trip to Omaha, Denver, and Colorado Springs, Combining the Greatest of Scenic Views, the Pleasantest of Social Reunion and Educational Advantages.

Education and recreation, these are objects sought by the annual excursions of the Minnesota Editors' and Publishers' Association. Never were they better accomplished than by the trip just completed. Omaha and its really great exposition; Denver, the queen city of the West; the Georgetown loop, that marvel of railway engineering; Silver Plume mining town and a visit to one of the greatest of America's gold and silver mines; Colorado Springs, fittingly called the Saratoga of the West; Manitou Springs at the very base of Pike's Peak, and a ride to the mountain's top, and those wonders of nature, the Garden of the Gods, and Cheyenne canon, and every day clear blue skies and bright sunshine. Could any week contain a more delightful or a more instructive trip. Not the least of the marvels was the way this excursion, and all of this association's excursions, was planned and handled. It is a fact that no other association of editors, state or national, has its outings so systematized as are Minnesota's; and to the executive committee be the credit given. The preliminary notices fully outlining the trip all editors in the state receive. Those who decide to go make an advance deposit and on reaching St. Paul find the committee ready. They then pay the entire actual expense of the trip less the advance payment, and get an envelope on which is their name and the section and car which is to be their home. In the envelope is a coupon book with coupons which pay for everything—hotel bills, dinners, lunches, carriage drives and side excursions; the badges which often mean street car rides or theater tickets and to which is attached their names; the itinerary, giving in detail the trip with days, date, hours of trains and other information, and even tags for the baggage to secure its safe delivery to and from hotels. The minutest information is given and then the members of the committee follow this with their personal, omniscent attention. From time to time announcements of each day's program, or any change, is made in the cars and at hotels. The committee are there on all occasions to see that no one makes a mistake and that all are cared for, that all are seated for meals, are arranged in carriages for drives, and they are the last to eat, to sleep or to see, and the first to awake in the mornings. Often they miss many sights of the trip to interview railway officials, hotel keepers, street car magnates or local committees to perfect arrangements for our pleasure and comfort. All the excursionists have to do is to go, see, learn and enjoy. All honor and thanks to the committee for more than half the pleasure of the trip is due to their care, thoughtfulness and tact.

The committee, among others, also wish to extend the association's thanks to Col. R. C. Clowry, of Chicago, western manager of the Western Union Telegraph Company, and Mr. I. McMichael, of Minneapolis, the Northwestern superintendent of that company, for courtesies extended.

It was a jolly crowd of 150 that met Saturday evening, Sept. 16, at the Windsor hotel in St. Paul, which is the regular headquarters for Minnesota editors, and whose landlord, Col. Monfort, editor of "The Missing Link," is the friend of every pencil pusher. At 8 o'clock the special train of four vestibuled Wagner sleepers, with a day coach, pulled out of the Union depot over the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha road, to whose courteous officials, and especially to Mr. T. W. Teasdale, the general passenger agent, and Mr. McRea, his clever assistant, the editors owe much. The cars were decorated by big banners reading: "Minnesota Editorial Association." This train, through their kindness, was kept throughout the trip, and for a week was the home of as happy and good natured an aggregation of editors as ever went sightseeing. The road will always have a warm spot in the hearts of the excursionists, not only for what was done for them, but because it was found to be in its equipment and management one of the best in the country. All can heartily commend it to travelers wishing to reach Duluth, Chicago, Omaha, Kansas City, Denver, the coast or any intermediate points. Its passenger agent, Mr. Frank McCabe, accompanied the train to Omaha and was very attentive.

After the night ride, breakfast was served at the Paxton hotel, which was also headquarters for the day spent in Omaha on the return trip. It is that city's best hotel, and in equipment and service is as nearly faultless as a hotel need be. The ride on Sunday was straight across the great state of Nebraska over the splendid track of the Union Pacific road whose general passenger agent, Mr. E. L. Lomax, was very kind in granting privileges to the committee. A great corn and stock region was traversed, where corn lined each side of the road from the right of way to as far as the eye could see, just as wheat does in the Red River Valley. It was a great country and everywhere prosperity was evident, showing that Nebraska is no longer the state of mortgages. It was an all day and night ride to Denver. Yet it was a comfortable, easy ride over a fine road bed, the train making 60 miles an hour.

At Denver all went direct to the Windsor hotel, only a few blocks from the Union depot, and so easy of access. There for a day and night every kindness was extended by the landlord, Mr. Wiggins, and by his able and genial assistant, Mr. W. J. Renard. That Monday forenoon was a "go as you please." All visited the state's capital, a magnificent structure built of Colorado's gray granite; saw the city's fine retail stores and most all bought some souvenir in crystal, minerals or Indian work distinctive of Colorado's marvelous resources. Everywhere was met the thoughtful kindness of that prince of entertainers, Mr. Wolfe Londoner, who later in the day received the entire party in his great establishment, providing music and refreshments for them. Mr. Cooper, of the Republican, and president of the Denver Press Club, and others of the local papers, also added much to the day's pleasures. In the afternoon the Denver City Tramway Company, through Mr. C. K. Durbin, its superintendent, extended to the party a complimentary trip over its entire line, showing the extent of the city and giving an excellent idea of all its many attractions. It is a trip every visitor to Denver should take, for in no other way can so much be seen for so little expense. A stop was made at the park, a famed beauty spot where the First Nebraska's regimental band had just returned from Manila, where it won Dewey's praise by standing in the surf and playing, "There'll be a Hot Time," while the regiment disembarked. A stop was also made at Elitch's gardens, one of the most unique pleasure resorts in this country, where all had the pleasure of meeting that wonderful woman, Mrs. John Elitch, Jr., who manages the gardens, and has as friends all the strange animals in her menagerie. In the evening through the courtesy of Mr. Peter McCourt, manager of the Taber Opera House, one of the finest places of amusement in the West, and of Miss St. George Tussey, whose excellent company was filling an engagement there, all attended the theater and saw Miss Hussey in "Mrs. O'Shaughnessey," her great Irish play. It was a happy evening and the editors joined with Miss Hussey in the chorus of her Irish solo and woke the echoes of the opera house, as they had split the atmosphere of Denver with their yell:

"Gopher, gopher, gopher state,
Editors, editors, wise and great.
Boom-a-lac-a, boom-a-lac-a,
Rah, rah, rah,
Editors, editors, Minnesota."

Col. Ady, general agent and local representative of the Union Pacific, and Mr. Edwin R. Griffin, general freight agent of that road, in many ways made the way of the excursionists smooth. It was with a most grateful feeling to Denver and its people that on Tuesday morning the party pulled out in a special observation train over the Colorado and Southern road, through whose general passenger agent, Mr. T. E. Fisher, a day of rare enjoyment was provided the Minnesotians. This road is said to be the most profitable in the country, and certainly it is one of the most wonderful. It makes a steady climb up the mountains, along Clear river to Silver Plume. At Georgetown is the Great Loop, a triumph of engineering skill, where the road to gain a hundred feet of elevation winds about, making a perfect loop and where it continues to wind like a meadow brook, until you can look down and back and see the tracks below like terraces. At Silver Plume, after a visit to the Mendota mine, from which already $35,000,000 of ore has been taken, as delicious a lunch as was had in the whole seven days, a lunch that was a complete dinner, was served at the Silver Plume Pavilion, conducted by Miss Belle Burt, a young woman of great business ability as well as of charming personality. At Denver that evening another theater party was enjoyed through the kindness of Manager Hagen, at the Denver theater, where "Old Money Bags" was seen, a clever play, well given.

At 11:30 that night we returned to our splendid Wagnerian homes and started for Cripple Creek, the greatest gold producing district in the world, where entertainment including lunch in the mines, had been prepared by a number of the princely mine owners. For the planning of this trip the committe was greatly indebted to Mr. W. F. Bailey, general passenger agent of the Colorado Midland railroad company, whose chief clerk, Mr. J. B. Wiggenhorn, accompanied the party to Colorado Springs, expecting to extend courtesies at Cripple Creek, and who was a most genial and companionable gentleman. But a freight wreck stopped the train at Colorado Springs and forced a change of program. While the rest slept the committee was at work and when they arose they found a day of superb sightseeing arranged. Street cars and busses were in waiting and after just half an hour's warning the Alta Vista hotel, one of the best managed and best appointed pleasure resort hotels in the West, had the party seated in its dining room. In the morning the party divided. Nearly half went to the summit of Pike's Peak and then in the afternoon saw the Garden of the Gods. The rest took carriages for a drive through the Carden, which is truly one of nature's marvels, where the gods had their playground. They came back by way of Manitou Springs, a delightful beauty spot, and through old Colorado Springs, at one time capital of the state, and now called "Old Town." Here are many saloons to supply the thirst of the younger city, whose citizens crowd there, especially Saturday nights, and from this originated the saying, "There'll be a hot time in the old town tonight," written by a barber there. In the afternoon the street car company gave all who wished a complimentary ride on its cars to the great Cheyenne canon. The Colorado Springs street car system, of which Mr. Lawton is superintendent and his son manager, is one of its remarkable features extending from Manitou to the canons, and including nearly 35 miles of track. It is a great channel for sightseeing, for no other city in the world has so many of the marvels of nature within "street car distance." Its wonder of wonders, many think, is the South Cheyenne canon, with its seven falls, which was bought from the government by two young men, who now make $20,000 a year from a charge of 25 cents for each person entering there. At the Broadmoor Casino, a swell resort near the canon, a banquet was served that evening and here the representatives of the local press, and Mr. Gilbert McClurg, secretary of the city's chamber of commerce, who was a great help to the committee, both in the inception of the trip and in the exigencies caused by the wreck, were present. The editors and their ladies had the pleasure of an introduction to them by the ever tactful editorial Nestor, H. P. Hall. It had been planned that there should be no speech-making on this trip, but this occasion was so apropos for acknowledging appreciation of the spontaneous and generous attentions paid the party by the members of the local press, that Mr. Hall briefly expressed the feeling of all, and short responses were made by Mr. McClurg and by Mr. Wilson, of the Gazette. Nowhere else were the members of the local press so kind and attentive. When the committee called formally upon Mr. McClurg, eight members of the press, representing fully all the city's papers, called and extended through them to the excursionists the city's greetings and a cordial welcome. The street car company had cars in waiting and took Minnesota's jolly, noisy, well satisfied brains back to their train. The start was at once made on the return to Omaha, via Denver, and another night and day of ease and social pleasure, was spent rolling over the Union Pacific's and Omaha's splendid road.

Omaha was reached Thursday evening, and cars in waiting took every one to the Paxton, where supper was at once served and by eight o'clock all were at the exposition grounds. To say that they were amazed is but to say the truth. None had imagined the extent and beauty of the buildings and grounds. As the party entered the Court of Honor was ablaze with the illumination, the greatest electrical display the world has ever seen. Everywhere was thousands of lights outlining the buildings, colonades and lagoon, and glowing like fire bugs among the flowers and shrubbery, which in the utmost profusion, add color and brightness to the scene. It was fairyland, only beyond the imagination of any weaver of fairy lore. The buildings too in their extent and the charm of their architecture are wonderful. That Omaha has not only carried on this magnificent exposition for two seasons, but has made it profitable, is a proof of both the tremendous energy and of the business shrewdness of those of its citizens who have had the management of this remarkable enterprise. No one has any license to in any way belittle Omaha's Greater America Exposition. It was magnificent in its inception, and has in every respect been magnificently carried out. It is well worthy a trip from Minnesota and in many respects the exhibits are as noteworthy as they were last year. This is especially true of the government exhibit, and of the attractions on Midway. The Philippino village is genuine, and as complete and as satisfactory as was the famous Java village at the World's Fair. The Hawaiian village, the Indian encampment, the foreign booths and many other attractions are equally meritorious, while fun is rampant all the time, everyone being good natured and on pleasure bent. No one could have been kinder, more generous and thoughtful than the management was to us, and especial thanks are due Mr. J. W. Cutright, superintendent of publicity, and Secretary Smith. On Friday formal welcome was extended by Mr. Smith, which was a genuine and whole-souled greeting, a turning over of the keys of this second "White City" to the visitors. President Huntington, on behalf of the association, responded fittingly and in excellent taste. And then occurred one of the happiest incidents of the trip. Mr. E. P. Barnum, that three-score and ten kid, who holds the warm affection of every Minnesota brother editor, in one of his happiest efforts, extended the appreciative thanks of the association to the executive committee, and to President Huntington on behalf of the excursionists, he presented a handsome opal ring. Mr. Huntington's administration has been made memorable by this excursion, and he has won renewed admiration and regard by his ever happy manner, and his untiring efforts to make every one enjoy the trip to its utmost. His response showed his pleasure of this recognition of his endeavors and was gracefully expressed.

The day was one of unalloyed pleasure, and at six o'clock when the train pulled out for the return to St. Paul no one would have dreamed to see the party that it was at the end of a week crowded with travel and sight-seeing. Every one was enthusiastic, full of life, and with spirits at the full tide. It was only left to give the yell at St. Paul, and separate with a hearty "God bless you; may we meet again," from each to all, to close another model editorial excursion.

Doctor and Patient.

Dr. Brown—Aren't you rather inconsistent? You told me the other day that you are ten per cent. better than you were when you first consulted me, and now you have come here and want me to take 20 per cent. off my bill.

A Matter of Taste.

"I think I shall buy my husband a seat in the United States senate for a birthday present."

"How lovely!"

"Yes, it's either that or a diamond, and you know jewelry is not in the best of taste for a man."—Detroit Journal.

Eggs and the Drama.

"After mature reflection," wrote the editor of the Locustville Star of the West and Voice of Truth, "we have decided not to publish any more notices of extraordinary large eggs. We find that the notices tend to create the impression that Locustville is not a good theater town."

Of course, it was likely to hurt his circulation, but art was art.—Detroit Journal.

An Ounce of Prevention.

"Doctor, a friend of mine has assured me that sucking lemons will prevent sea sickness. Is that true?"

"Yes, provided you sit in the shade of a tall tree while you suck the lemon."—Standard and Catholic Times.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

For German Catholics.

Representatives hall at the state capitol, St. Paul, was gayly decorated in honor of the forty-fourth annual convention of the German Catholic Central association. Three hundred members were in attendance when President Adolph Webeer, of Racine, called the meeting to order. Below and around the speaker's desk were grouped the various officers. The vice presidents are George A. Scherer, of Peoria, and Joseph E. Host, of Milwaukee; recording secretary, Anselm Von Tesmar, Chicago; corresponding and financial secretary, Anton Bickel, Milwaukee; treasurer, John F. Beckmann, Terre Haute. President Weber referred, in his opening address, to the session in St. Paul fifteen years ago, and dwelt on the remarkable growth of the order since 1884. There are now 604 societies, with 49,934 members. The reserve fund amounted to over $1,000,000. There were 8,000 sick members assisted during the past year at a cost of over $175,000. For death losses, $115,000 more had been paid out, making a total of $290,000 disbursed for benevolent purposes.

Honored in Norway.

The stars and stripes floated in the breeze side by side with the beloved standard of Norway over Prestegaard's hotel, in Vossevangen, in that country, Aug. 1 last. The occasion was the arrival of Senator Knute Nelson of Minnesota, who was on a visit to his native nome after an absence of fully a half century. Senator Nelson drove up to the hotel in a peasant's one-horse cart, and, aware of his coming, the whole town was on hand to greet him. Later in the week he reached his old home at Evanger, where he was banqueted by the leading citizens of the place. Senator Nelson made a speech in the Norwegian language, in which he told of the prosperity of the Scandinavians in America, and how they dwelt together in harmony. He urged that the two peoples do the same at home, that they live in unity and stand together; that Norway and Sweden united were a great power.

Drowned.

Mrs. J. O. Johnson of Minneapolis was drowned in Lake Minnetonka, while out fishing with her husband. The fatality occurred about 5 o'clock in the afternoon, off Cottagewood. The lake was rough, and as Mr. Johnson attempted to pull up the anchor in order to row ashore a violent wave struck the boat, and Mrs. Johnson was thrown into the water. The husband managed to catch hold of her and in the struggles to save herself she pulled herself away and Johnson lost his hold. He then threw a line to his wife, but she seemed unable to catch it. She was rapidly sinking and quick action was necessary. He sprang into the water and after a hard struggle managed to reach shore with his wife, but all efforts to resuscitate her were of no avail.

Built Many Miles.

David C. Shepard, now living in retirement at St. Paul, built during his active business career more miles of railroad than any other man, living or dead. In total it equals the length of the great Russian trans-Asian railway, now in process of construction, with a thousand miles added. Mr. Shepard has built railroads in thirteen states and territories and in Canada. In 1853 he began work as a railroad contractor, building part of what is now the Erie road, between New York and Chicago. Then he came west and built 236 miles of road in Wisconsin. His greatest mileage for any one state is 1,452 miles in Minnesota. The total number of miles laid by Mr. Shepard is 7,026.

Crop Bulletin of Weather Bureau.

Stacking is generally finished and threshing from the shock is well advanced. Some threshing has been done from the stack, but in some of the central counties, where the August rains were so heavy, the stacks are still damp. Flax is ripe, and most of the crop is in stack. Corn is fully matured, and nearly all that is to be cut is now in shock; a little husking has been done. Sugar beets are reported a good crop. Plowing is going on satisfactorily. The seeding of winter rye and wheat is nearing completion; the early sown are up well.

Fell Sixty-Five Feet.

George Lauderdale fell 65 feet down an elevator shaft at the Washburn C mill in Minneapolis, and miraculously escaped death. One of his legs was broken above the knee and his jaw was broken. Dr. Stewart had Lauderdale removed to a hospital. He will undoubtedly recover.

The store of W. A. Murray, at Parker's Prairie, was entered by burglars, and some money and over $100 worth of jewelry stolen.

REPLY IS SENT.

Great Britain's Answer to the Transvaal—Says It Cannot Recede from Its Position.

London, Sept. 26.—The officials of the foreign office Monday evening gave out the text of the letter of the secretary of state for the colonies, Mr. Chamberlain, to the British high commissioner in South Africa, Sir Alfred Milner, dated September 22. The British reply expresses regret that her majesty's offer, No. 5, of September 8, had been refused, and says:

"The object her majesty's government had in view in the recent negotiations has been stated in a manner which cannot admit of misapprehension, viz., to obtain such substantial and immediate representation for the outlanders as will enable them to secure for themselves that fair and just treatment which was formally promised them in 1881, and which her majesty intended to secure for them when she granted privileges of self-government to the Transvaal. No conditions less comprehensive than those contained in the telegram of September 8 can be relied on to effect this object. The refusal of the South African government to entertain the offer thus made, coming as it does after four months of protracted negotiations, themselves the climax of five years of extended agitation, makes it useless to further pursue the discussion on the lines hitherto followed, and the imperial government is now compelled to consider the situation afresh and formulate its own proposals for a final settlement of the issues which have been created in South Africa by the policy constantly followed for many years by the government of South Africa. They will communicate the result of their deliberations in a later dispatch."

London, Sept. 26.—The Brussels correspondent of the Standard says that Dr. Leyd, British representative of the South African republic, now recognizes the hopelessness of any attempt to obtain European intervention.

DESTROY FILIPINO BATTERY.

Bombarded by American Warships—Aguinaldo to Release American Prisoners.

Manila, Sept. 25.—The United States cruiser Charleston, the monitor Monterey and the gunboats Concord and Zafiro, with marines and bluejackets from the cruiser Baltimore, left Cavite September 18 and proceeded to Subig bay to destroy an insurgent cannon there. Owing to the bad weather the operation was postponed until Saturday, when the warships for three hours bombarded the town of Olangapo and the intrenchments where the gun was situated. Men from the Charleston, Concord and Zafiro were then landed under a heavy insurgent fire, proceeding to the cannon, which was utterly destroyed by guncotton, and then returning to the warships. The Americans had one man wounded during the engagement.

Manila, Sept. 26.—Two Englishmen, who had been held by the insurgents since June, have arrived at Angeles. They report that the Filipino congress has resolved that 14 American prisoners shall be surrendered on Wednesday or Thursday. They have, however, no information as to the whereabouts of Capt. Charles M. Rockefeller, of the Nineteenth infantry, who disappeared in April last, and of whom no trace has been discovered. They assert that three Americans who were captured by the rebels are acting as officers in the insurgent army.

Slain by Robbers.

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 23.—The residence of Absalom Kesler, a miserly farmer, aged 80, living on the West Virginia side of the river, near Pawpaw, was discovered on fire at one o'clock Friday morning. Neighbors who hurried to the scene found Kesler and Albert Gross, his hired man, lifeless in the yard. The housekeeper, Anna Doman, had also been murdered, but her body was consumed in the flames. The object of the crime was evidently robbery. Kesler had kept a large sum of money in the house, but a few weeks ago he put most of his money in a bank here. The robbers secured about $200, it is thought. The two men were beaten to death and the house set on fire.

Death of a Noted Physician.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 25. — Dr. George A. Hendricks, professor of anatomy in the University of Minnesota, died Sunday night of acute Bright's disease. Dr. Hendricks came to Minnesota in 1889 from the University of Michigan, where for 15 years he was assistant to Dr. Corydon D. Ford, who occupied the chair of anatomy in that institution. He introduced the graded course in anatomy, of which he was the originator, in the university here, and it has been adopted by many other medical colleges. Dr. Hendricks was one of the best known physicians in Minneapolis.

Banker Accidentally Killed.

Charlotte, Mich., Sept. 25.—William Smith, president of the First national bank of this city, was killed Saturday by accidentally stepping on a moving log carrier, throwing him in front of the saw. The accident happened at Wolverine, Cheboygan county, where Mr. Smith owned vast lumber interests. Besides controlling the stock of the First national bank Mr. Smith was one of the wealthiest men in the county. He was a Shriner, Knight Templar, Knight of Pythias and Elk.

Left No Will.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 23.—Charles A. Pillsbury left no will. At least none has been found. His nearest kin were his wife, Mary A. Pillsbury, and his sons, John S. and Charles S. Pillsbury. They petition to the probate court for the appointment of administrators for the estate. The sum named as the probable value of the estate is $300,000 in real property and $300,000 in personal property. The inventory may show a much greater value. The petition will be acted upon October 16.

Big Strike Threatened.

New York, Sept. 25.—Strikes of carpenters, affecting in all, it is estimated, about 2,500 men, and which may involve many thousands of men in other branches of the building trades in sympathetic strikes, will be ordered at once, to enforce the demand of the carpenters' union for wages of four dollars a day and a Saturday half holiday.

Stock of Gold Coin.

New York, Sept. 25. — The stock of gold coin in the New York subtreasury is now $127,000,000. This is said to be larger than any previous holding of gold in 30 years.

Bandit Arrested.

London, Sept. 25. — The ringleader of the band of highwaymen who stole the sum of £12,000 September 12, while in transit to a large bank in this city, has been arrested.

FIFTY CENTS FOR NOTHING.

What will the inventive brain of man do next? This is a question some one asks almost daily. There is one, though, who leads all others, who for a quarter of a century has been making fine laundry starch, and to-day is offering the public the finest starch ever placed on the market.

Ask your grocer for a coupon book which will enable you to get the first two packages of this new starch, "RED CROSS" (trade mark brand) also two children's Shakespeare pictures, painted in twelve beautiful colors, natural as life, or the Twentieth Century Girl Calendar, all absolutely free. All grocers are authorized to give ten large packages of "RED CROSS STARCH" with twenty of the Shakespeare pictures or ten of the Twentieth Century Girl Calendars to the first five purchasers of the ENDLESS CHAIN STARCH BOOK. This is one of the greatest offers ever made to introduce "RED CROSS" laundry starch, J. C. Hubinger's latest invention.

OZARK AGRICULTURE.

How Farmers Practice Rotation of Crops in That Prolific Region.

Ozark humor appreciates the story that a scientist was quite amazed the other day at observing a farmer, after killing a nest of snakes turned up by the plow, arrange the dead snakes in the furrow before he went back to the plow.

"Why did you do that, my good man?" the scientist asked.

The farmer looked curiously at the scientist, and, seeing that he was really in search of information, replied:

"I do that so the plow will cover the snakes on the next round."

Seeing that the scientist was still mystified, the farmer continued:

"I cover the snakes so that they will decompose. That is what you call it, isn't it?"

"Yes?" said the scientist, with a rising inflection.

"Well," continued the farmer, "the decomposition of animal matter furnishes nourishment for plant life, I believe?"

"Yes?" again said the scientist.

"Then, snakes will make corn grow, won't they?" triumphantly asked the farmer.

"Yes?" said the scientist.

"And more corn will make more whisky, won't it?" said the farmer.

"Yes," said the scientist.

"And whisky will make more snakes, won't it? Mister, that is what we call rotation in the agriculture of this region."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Miss Proctor's Youthful Critics.

Miss Mary Proctor, the astronomer and lecturer, takes a deep interest in social settlement work in the big cities, and frequently gives her personal services toward entertaining poor children and adults. Generally her lectures are very well received. Many of her audiences often manifest better attention than those drawn from higher circles. Now and then there are exceptions. On one occasion a bright-eyed little boy who sat in the front row with his eyes fixed upon the speaker was asked how he liked it. "I guess," he said, "it was pretty good, but she ought to talk about lions and tigers. That's better for everybody." At another lecture a youngster criticised her as follows: "It's all very well to talk of weighing and measuring stars. There are some people, of course, who believe that sort of thing, but if she thinks she can fool us boys with such fairy tales she's very much mistaken."—Philadelphia Post.

Preaching and Practice.

THE ills of women overshadow their whole lives.

Some women are constantly getting medical treatment and are never well. "A woman best understands women's ills," and the women who consult Mrs. Pinkham find in her counsel practical assistance. Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass.

PRACTICAL HELP FOR SUFFERING WOMEN

MRS. MABEL GOOD, Correctionville, Ia., tells how Mrs. Pinkham saved her life. She says:

"I cannot thank you enough for what your medicine has done for me. I can recommend it as one of the best medicines on earth for all women's ills. I suffered for two years with female weakness and at last became bedfast. Three of our best doctors did me no good so I concluded to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After taking a few bottles of your medicine, I was able to do all my housework. I know that your medicine raised me from a bed of sickness and perhaps death, and am very thankful for what it has done for me. I hope that every suffering woman may be persuaded to try your medicine."

Get Mrs. Pinkham's advice as soon as you begin to be puzzled. The sick headaches and dragging sensation come from a curable cause. Write for help as soon as they appear.

MRS. DOLE STANLEY, Campbellsburg, Ind., writes: "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I was troubled with sick headache and was so weak and nervous, I could hardly go. A friend called upon me one evening and recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, saying that she knew that it would cure me. I then sent for your medicine and after taking five bottles of it, I was entirely cured. I cannot praise it enough."

FASHIONABLE AUTUMN AND WINTER SKIRT.

No. 105. This handsome skirt is made of fine quality all wool storm serge in the new fashionable shape; stylishly trimmed with black satin from waist, in fancy design as illustrated. Notwithstanding the modest cost of this ne plus ultra of fashion, none of the essential points that go to make up a strictly first-class skirt have been omitted. It is lined throughout with high grade percaline and substantial interlining; bound with best waterproof binding; made with under box plait and patent snap fasteners in the back to prevent spreading open; bound seams. The accompanying illustration, having been made from a photograph of the skirt, accurately portrays the gracefulness of each fold and line and gives a clear conception of the way it will hang when worn. This is a bargain of unusual interest to every lady who desires something not too expensive, at the same time possessing style equal to more costly garments and quality that is wonderfully serviceable. Colors are navy blue or black. Sizes: Waist, 22 to 30 inches; length, 39 to 44 inches. Larger sizes 20 per cent extra. Price

You'll enjoy wearing it because it possesses individual style, because the price is only about half the value. To be enumerated among our customers means to be in close touch with the centers of fashion at all times.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, Sept. 29, 1899.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—John E. Borsch is about moving into his new residence on N. Third street.

—The ladies M. E. supper at the City Hall was a success and netted about $28.

—President Burnes, of the Board of Education, says the Eagle's figures don't all add up right.

—Wood seems to be in demand; farmers are busy and don't like to take time to haul it to market.

—A. W. Wittman has had a couple of new floors laid in his residence, to keep up with the fashions. T. S. Kerr did the work.

—Dr. Catlin returned from his trip West last Saturday. Those entitled to vaccination certificates from him can now get them by applying at his office.

—Fur coats and other reminders of winter have already made their appearance on our streets. And those wearing them look more comfortable too, than these without them.

—This morning, too late for the train, photographer Wolfendon received news of his aged father having fallen down stairs and fractured his leg. George wheeled down to see him.

—Albert Eppel came home yesterday morning from Dakota. He says no wonder we think it is cold when they have a genuine old fashioned blizzard with three or four inches of snow, clear down to Breckinridge.

—Committees on the celebration in honor of Delano's share in the 13th Reg. Minn. Vol. met at the City Hall Tuesday evening and furthered afairs in the direction of making the celebration a success. Considerable enthusiasm is being manifested in the matter.

—While in Denver the quartette of excursionists called on Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Brasie, who have resided there for some time. They also received a visit from Mrs. Probst, and her daughter, Mrs. Lizzie McKiney. They all seem to enjoy western life but were glad to see acquaintances from Minnesota.

—Tuesday morning's frost was the first one in these parts that amounted to anything. It was a good one and laid out all kinds of vines right and left, and brought down the leaves in showers. It is very seldom that Wright county escapes a frost until the 26th of September. There is generally one in the first part of the month or sometimes even in August.

—The Delano Cemetary Association has at last succeeded in issuing a few deeds to lots, according to law, the plat now being on record at Buffalo. All persons entitled to deeds should now procure them. The association being without money for so long a time is a little short on finances, and would highly appreciate promptness of its debtors if they would call round and adjust their accounts.

—At a special meeting of the Board of Education held Monday night, the tax levy was voted as follows:

For teachers and janitor	$1,900.
Repairs	125.
Fuel	150.
School furniture	50.
School apparatus	50.
Library	25.
Bonds and Interest	1,200.
Text books	200.
Total	$3,700.

—Alves Roth has been gradually loosing interest in this world's affairs, save the intoxicating bowl, for several years and has arrived at that state where he would not be considered responsible for bills contracted, especially liquor bills. Unless he braces up materially soon he will doubtless be taken to the asylum. Any saloon keeper or other person that would supply him with drink ought to be made to feel the strong arm of the law and his license taken from him. The law is all right to suppress such things and the officers are sworn to enforce the law. They should do so.

—We clip from the Companion, from the Deaf and Dumb school at Faribault, Minn., the following, concerning the future wellfare of J. H. O'Leary, whose home was formerly at Delano, and who is well known by nearly everyone in the village:

"The Companion is authorized to announce the engagement of Mr. J. H. O'Leary and Miss Clara Halverson. We always did think that J. H. had too deep an affection for the whole sex, and the whole sex for him, to surrender himself to any one of them. But he is caught at last, and all his friends can do is to wish that he may find his bonds delightful."

—A great many of the pupils of Delano schools have been successfully vaccinated and have handed in their certificates to the principal. A few have neglected to do so and now find the weather growing colder and vaccination not so pleasant as during fine weather. When parents read that the South Dakota Regiment which came to San Francisco on the same boat as did the 13th Minn. is having smallpox and the whole regiment liable to be quarantined, and their curios, clothing tents, etc. consigned to the flames, they must wish they had complied with the resolutions of our State Board of Health as soon as they were notified. Some are doing so at this date.

Personal.

Mrs. Rosa Harris, of St. Paul, visited friends and relatives in Delano Sunday.

Constable Gotlieb Eppler, of Howard Lake, was in town Tuesday buying hogs.

Charley Coolen, of Smith Lake, visited friends and relatives in Delano over Sunday.

Mrs. Farber was called to Lake City to see her sick daughter Mrs. W. W. Thomas, Saturday.

Mrs. Eunis Brandon and children are visiting her father and other Delano friends this week.

John Steffes and Oscar Eppel wheeled to the city Saturday morning, returning Sunday afternoon.

Eddie Erickson returned home from Bemidji, Friday evening, where he has been working for a couple weeks with his father.

Mrs. Jennie Ball, of Grafton N. Dak. called on Delano friends yesterday, on her way home from the G. A. R. Encampment. She was elected on the National Executive Committee of the W. R. C.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Buckley and Dr. Catlin returned home Saturday night from their trip with the Editorial excursion to Colorado. Mrs. W. M. Mowatt came home on the Saturday morning's train. All enjoyed the trip.

Miss Maud Craig returned to her home at Princeton Mills, Saturday morning, after a two week's visit with old Delano friends. Members of the Christian Endeavor gave a party in her honor at the home of Mrs. Davis, Friday evening.

County Cullings.

The full board of County Commissioners met at Buffalo, Sept. 22.

Frank Humbert and John Effinger were granted a license to sell intoxicating liquors in the town site of South Haven for one year.

Recess till 8 a. m., Sept. 23.

Petition of John R. Streich et al for new school district, rejected.

Committees on proposed county roads between Silver Creek and Clearwater; between Victor and Woodland; and between Otsego and Monticello, reported favorably.

Proposed change in road in Clearwater rejected.

Request of T. G. Plant for abatement of taxes recommended to State Auditor.

Request of Geo. J. Shever for abatement of taxes laid over.

Board accepted offer of Martin Flenner and H. S. Saylor to make a diligent search of the records of different counties with a view of discovering personal property subject to taxation in this county that has escaped taxation and receive for their services one half the sums collected in taxes by reason of their reported findings.

The proposed vacation of the Ziebarth road was called up and the petition rejected.

The County Auditor was authorized and directed to advertise for bids for building a bridge across Mill Creek; bids to be opened Oct. 9 at 2 P. M.

The auditor was authorized to issue an auctioneer's license to A. H. Grant upon approval of his bond by the County Treasurer.

A long string of bills was allowed but claims of J. F. Lee, N. Rehaume, Joe Loundell, Nelson Rehaume, George Starr, George Rudolph, Margaret Sprague were laid over.

Claims of Sames E. McKaley, Mc Gaffey & Ellis and A. A. Bloom returned for correction.

Board adjourned till Oct. 6.

Growler Allen, who has recently sold out the Jackson Republic, was over to Annandale the 16th inst trying to buy out the Post Advocate. He says Satterlee wouldn't sell.

The selection of goldbug men to fill petty appointive offices in Wright county is a harder matter, after all, than some think. Just think of John Nugent taking the entire County Committee down to logroll with the governor for H. Tanner, who wrote those goldbug articles last campaign. But then it went, just the same. Even though when John Lind was through here he said from the car steps that Mike Doran should be relegated to the rear. Does any Wright county man believe that John C. Nugent is not a Mike Doran democrat.

Minnesota Editorial Excursion.

On Saturday, Sept. 16, the Minnesota Editorial Excursion, about 150 strong, left the Union depot at St. Paul, in a special train of four Wagner sleepers and a day coach, on their annual outing. The trip was to be made in one week, and to take in Denver, Georgetown and the Loop, Colorado Springs, Garden of the Gods, Omaha and the Exposition. The programme was nicely carried out, except, on account of a wreck on the road to Cripple Creek, we did not go there.

The executive committee deserve much credit for the completeness of the plan of travel and the ease with which members could defray expenses. The whole price being deposited with the treasurer and a book containing tickets for what was needed over the whole trip, also a printed line of travel so that none need get lost. Here is the ITENERARY.

SATURDAY, Sept 16.—Rendezvous at Windsor Hotel, St. Paul. 8 P. M., leave Union Depot over Omaha line.

SUNDAY, Sept. 17.—Breakfast, Paxton Hotel, Omaha 11 A. M., leave for Denver over Union Pacific line.

Dinner at "The Kaehler" at Grand Island, Nebraska.

MONDAY, Sept. 18.—Arrive at Denver 7 A. M. Headquarters Windsor Hotel. The party will "Go-as-you-please" until 2 P. M. 2 P. M., Trolley Ride about Denver. 6 P. M., Dinner. Evening, party at leisure.

TUESDAY, Sept. 19.—8 A. M., Special train on Colorado Southern line to Georgetown and "The Loop."

1 P. M., Lunch at Silver Plume at terminus of line, returning in afternoon to Denver. 6 P. M. Dinner. 10 P. M., take excursion special for Cripple Creek.

WEDNESDAY, Sept. 20—7 A. M. Breakfast at National Hotel. 8 A. M., Take electric cars to Victor, passing the mining settlements of the Cripple Creek district. 12 M., Lunch at National Hotel. 1 P. M. Take excursion special to Manitou Springs.

3 P. M. Carriage drive through Garden of the Gods to Colorado Springs, thence electric cars to South Cheyenne Canon. 7 P. M. Dinner at Broadmoor Casino.

8:30 P. M. Electric cars to Colorado Springs, then excursion special via Denver to Omaha.

THURSDAY, Sept. 21—8 A. M., Breakfast at North Platte. 1 P. M., Lunch at Grand Island. 5 P. M., Arrive at Omaha. Headquarters at Paxton Hotel. 6:30 P. M., Electric cars to Omaha Exposition.

FRIDAY, Sept 22—7:30 A. M., Breakfast. 10 A. M., Electric cars to Exposition. 1 P. M., Lunch on the Exposition grounds, at Philippino restaurant. 5 P. M., Dinner at Paxton's Hotel. 6:30 P. M., Excursion special to St. Paul.

SATURDAY, Sept. 23—7 A. M., Arrive at St. Paul and disperse.

The railroads over which we traveled seemed to use us all right. Much of the distance was made at the rate of a mile a minute. The eating houses and hotels generally received praise. The luncheon at Silver Plume was perhaps enjoyed most, on account of the railroad ride and mountain climb to mines. The natural scenery was grand; and the climate all that could be desired. The best climbers were E. P. Barnum and J. J. Green who climbed out at the top of Cheyenne Canyon, where a man is said to have lost his balance and fell to his death a short time since.

Omaha is quite a city and the Exposition shows considerable enterprise. It is nicely arranged, and a show well worth seeing.

G. S. Pease and wife, of Anoka, met us on the return trip at Omaha.

Everybody joins in pronouncing the '99 excursion one of the finest from all points of view.

Imperialistic Deceit.

Imperialism rests on deceit, injustice and brutal force. Every public supporter of McKinley's imperialism knows or ought to know, at the time he bought the tottering souvereignty of Spain in the Philippines for twenty million dollars that the subjugation of these islands was no child's play. Spain was powerful enough to subjugate a vast territory in America, part of North America, Central America, the islands and a large part of South America. But it did not succeed in three centuries in subjugating the island of Luzon entirely, because what they gained in six months they lost in the rainy season.

It is deceit from the beginning. It will be deceit till the end; till the people get tired of it and throw the tricksters overboard. Did those imperialists not deceive us when they reported the annihilation of the insurgents a dozen times, and the storming of Iloilo how many capitols of the same. Did they not represent the Tagals and their leader Aguinaldo as some kind of wild people similar to our Indians, and was not Otis ordered to muzzle and suppress the reports of the American correspondents in Manila, for the reason that the truth should not be known to the American people? And does not Dewey, who is greater and more honest than the whole imperialistic crew not declare that the inhabitants of Luzon are more able for self rule than the Cubans?

The former subjects of Spain on Luzon are Christians, fairly educated, though oppressed by the rich monastic orders. Many of their leaders, Aguinaldo himself, studied in some university in Europe, and as they freed themselves from the Spanish yoke by their own exertions it could not be expected that they would bow down before the presidential proclamation of unconditional surrender.

It is exaggeration to compare Aguinaldo with Washington or Lincoln, but McKinley could not stand that comparison either. Better compare him with Inarez who broke the empire in Mexico into pieces. Inarez was a civilized Indian.

Compare the former Spanish subjects of Luzon with our southern Negroes; the first we shoot down because they will not unconditionally surrender, and the others will be the backbone in nominating the next imperialistic candidate for president of the United States.

Who dares to haul down the American flag? Another imperialistic deceit, because nobody intends to do that. The stars and stripes were, before McKinley's rule, the symbol for the democratic self rule of the people, a menance for all despotism. McKinley tries to alter that, consequently we must have another standard bearer. That is all there is in that talk.

THE delights of an evening spent around a well-lighted reading table are not half understood. An illustrated magazine with its wealth of illustrations, its stories of adventure and love, its descriptions of travel which carry you to the remotest ends of the earth, and its instructive articles for young and old—these are the first requisites for your own enjoyment and the entertainment and proper education of your children.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

Both Together One Year for Only $1.80

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. For three years The Cosmopolitan has undisputedly claimed that it reached the largest clientele possessed by any periodical, daily, weekly or monthly, in the world. It was The Cosmopolitan which sent Julian Hawthorne to India to let the world know the real horrors of famine and plague. It was The Cosmopolitan which established at its own cost a great Free Correspondence University which now has over 20,000 students on its rolls. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $3,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.

St Paul Dispatch

25c per month for Daily. 75c per year for the Weekly.

The St. Paul Dispatch is the best Twin City daily; it has no equal in the Northwest as to size or quality.

The DISPATCH excels in Northwestern news, having a correspondent in every Northwestern town.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

A PLEA FOR THE BOY.

Don't send my boy where your girl can't go,
And say, "there's no danger for boys, you know,
Because they all have their wild oats to sow,"
There is no more excuse for my boy to be low
Than your girl: then please don't tell him so.

Don't send my boy where your girl can't go,
For a boy or girl sin is sin, you know,
And my baby boy's hands are as clean and white
And his heart as pure as your girl's to-night.
—Backbone.

THE Minnesota conference of the M. E. church was held last week at North field. The Minnesota northern conference is being held this week at Minneapolis.

CERTAINLY our country should send out to deal with a people fighting for their independence, a man who knows more than to offer them $40 apiece for their guns. Patriotism knows no price but liberty and independence.

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN has completed the lecturing tour in his own state, and is now to put in his time for awhile in Iowa. It matters not where he goes, he is sure of the largest audience of any man in America today.

CHAIRMAN JONES, of the Democratic National Committee, and Charles A. Towne have returned from Europe and the free silver forces will try to hold up their end of the coming campaigns in states where elections are to be held this year. We expect to hear of no losses to the silver forces.

SOME of the newspapers claim that the G. N. Ry is anticipating another strike. From the business methods used by the officials of the road with those they wish to employ in different capacities, it is no wonder they are anticipating a strike. Also when it costs more to bring a gun from St. Paul to Delano than it does to bring the same gun from Connecticut to St. Paul, by express, isn't there reason for some kind of an adjustment?

A YEAR or two ago our country was convulsed at the atrocities of Spain towards her subjects in Cuba and the Philippines; our young men gallantly enlisted to free these people from the tyranny of a Spanish government. Today the Philippines seem in no more safety of home or life than they then were, and yet our government officials are trying to enlist men to deprive them still further of their liberties and their lives. Why this change? Is not a Filipinos patriotism as pure today as it was two years ago? Is not his desire for independence as commendable now as then?

A GREAT pressure has been brought to bear, to try to force the presidency upon Admiral Dewey, who stoutly insists that he has honors enough. Also upon voters to try to nominate him for president or against his consent. Both parties are uniting, that is people in the Democratic party who oppose Bryan, and those in the Republican party who have tired of McKinley. But it wont work The American people have determined to settle some principles and they demand candidates representing those principles and they have no assurance of Admiral Dewey's political principles They don't know for which principle he stands. They do know he is an able Admiral and they don't care to pull him down from his well earned position to an untried and difficult place.

A Timely Warning.

Democrats, look out for wolves in sheep's clothing. An attempt is going to be made to get a number of traitors into the delegations to the democratic national convention next year from every state where it is possible to do so. The plan is to profess loyalty to the Chicago platform and Bryan, and thus secure seats in the convention without being suspected. We warn the people that it will be unsafe to send any delegates to conventions next year except men that are known to them to be tried and true. In an emergency like the present, where we are oppressed by the money power it will not do to take chances.—Broad Axe,

Expansion Etc.

MR. EDITOR: How have you been since you returned from your Editorial excursion among the canyons of Colorado?

You can now prepare yourself for the Minneapolis combination blowout when McKinley and the 13th arrive sometime this month. We say welcome to the boys in blue, but hardly think they are much interested in making a show for sight see'rs. We are glad to welcome back the boys from the swampy, sickly, crocodile climate to homes of luxury and comfort.

Now we never had much time for this expansion business, that is extending our public domain beyond the seas, ten thousand miles away. It seems too much like the same old story of Ahab and Naboth. "And Ahab spake unto Naboth saying give me the vineyard that I may have it for a garden of herbs. And Naboth said to Ahab, the Lord forbid it me that I should give the inheritance of my fathers unto thee." But through the cunning craftiness of his wife Jesebel, Ahab got the vineyard, but it proved to be a dear piece of property for him. So I fear that the acquiring of the Philippine islands will be another experience of the ammunition worth more than the game

Some of our imperialist friends compare the acquisition of the Philippines islands to that of the Louisiana purchase, but it is not a parallel case. Acquiring the territory adjacent to us was exoansion, but acquiring new territory beyond the seas is imperialism and is not in line with the Monroe doctrine. Our country is being overdone with some kinds of business with a war on our hands for imperialism, a combination of trusts, a high protective tariff and a Presidential campaign to cap the climax we will have the worst confused mess any country ever had unless it was Egypt when Moses declared his emancipation proclamation and led the children of Israel across the Red sea unto the happy land of Canaan. It seems our country, like individuals, is anxious for notoriety, and these kind of goods always come high.

I have before me a table of figures giving in round numbers the wealth of some of the millionairs. Of this country, it is said John D. Rockefeller, of New York is worth $250,000,000, Cornelius Vanderbilt, of New York (estate) $125,000,000, Andrew Carnegie, of New York, $120,000,000, John Jacob Astor, of New York. 100,000,000, William Rockefeller of New York $100,000,000, Claus Spreckels, of San Francisco, $40,000,000 and so we might go on in multiplying the list, but this is sufficient to show that the wealth of the country is getting into the hands of a few men.

In the list before me I have the names of 23 men in this country, each one said to be worth from $35,000,000 to $250,000,000, and out of the 23 men 17 of them are in New York. Is it a wonder that New York gets everything she asks for, from president of a chewing gum factory to president of the United States? Mr. Editor, these fellows can control a presidential campaign; bring on a war or a financial crisis, and block the wheels of industry if they like.

A goodeal is being said through some of the political papers about the advanced prices farmers are getting for their produce. We would not complain so much of the prices we get if it were not for everything we buy being doubled up on us, and they are still putting up prices, and very soon we shall have to go up in a balloon to reach them. Only a few days ago, at Chicago, the Northwestern Plow and Implement Association had a meeting and they made another advance of 25 per cent on farm implements, and the last of this month they have another meeting and will put up the price another twenty five per cent, and the end is not yet. The long and short of it is, Mr. Editor, the producer pays the freight and furnishes the oil to run the machinery. But we are living in hopes that a millenium may strike this country, or a year of jubilee, when all people will sit under their own vine and fig tree, none to molest or make afraid.

As to local news there is but little. Farmers are busy plowing, diging potatoes, husking corn etc.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 15, 1899.

Unless Mr. McKinley exhibits a little more backbone than usual, his party managers are going to compel him to drag Admiral Dewey along with him on the stumping tour upon which he is to start next week. They are now trying to get him to promise to ask Dewey to accompany him, knowing that Dewey would have to regard such a request as an order he must obey, regardless of his own wishes. Mr. McKinley has not yet agreed to become a party to this attempt to use the country's admiration for admiral Dewey as a republican vote maker, but there is danger that he will do so, notwithstanding all the administration talk for months past about Dewey being allowed to dispose of his time in any way he pleased when he got back home.

The administration is very glad of the Dewey excitement, which is now at white heat. It serves to distract public attention from the humiliating fact that the Filipinos, who have no navy, succeeded in sinking a U. S. gunboat and killing or capturing its entire crew, within twenty five miles of the city of Manila.

If the Cubans all feel as strongly concerning the action of Gen. Ludlow, in pushing aside the civil authorities in Havana and putting an end to a labor strike by arbitrary military authority, as Gen. Carlos Garcia, who is now in Washington, does, there is danger ahead. When the news of Ludlow's action reached Washington, Gen. Garcia sent Ludlow a telegram saying: "I beg to remind you that you are not in Russia", and speaking of that action he said: "Of all the blunders and arbitrary acts committed by the military authorities in Cuba this act of Gen. Ludlow, approved by Governor General Brooke, is the most vicious. Gen. Ludlow has been most unwise in taking military charge of affairs in Havana without being asked for help by the civil authorities. There was absolutely no need for such a display of brutal authority. The strike was as peaceable as any people's gathering can be. Gen. Ludlow has taken a wrong view of the objects of government in Cuba. He ought not to have meddled in the in the strike The civil authorities ought to have prevented his action, taking in advance the necessary precautions to settle the differences between the employers and the laborers. The charging on helpless laundry women, reported in the newspaper dispatches, shows that brutal force has been unnecessarily used in Havana. I protest against such outrages and denounce them as a violation of the rights my people are entitled to under the guidance of the American government. Gen. Ludlow's ukase, in which he threatened to plunge into the Cubanas fortress, a thousand or more men, is the most abusive ostentation of power that I have ever heard, including those issued by Weyler. I hope that the administration will take this matter up immediately, so as to prevent serious complications that may arise from the inability of Gens. Brooke and Ludlow to cope with the situation in Havana."

The Census Bureau is to be the same old political machine the republicans have invariably made it, and those who control the appointments don't care how much it will cost the people. An indication of this has just been given by the choice of a tabulating machine to be used. The Committee decided to use the same machines that were used ten years ago, although a new machine was offered which would do the work much faster. The decision is said to have been made because the new machines, if adopted, would have largely reduced the number of clerks required, which republican Congressmen protested against.

According to the talk of citizens of Michigan, who have been in Washington recently, the passing of Pingree is more pleasing than otherwise. One of them, Mr. M. I. Duke, of Grand Rapids, said: "Hon. Hazen Pingree's retirement from politics marks the finale of a stupendueus demagogue. He has accomplished very little in his spectacular career, save to spend the public funds recklessly and increase the taxes of the people. A great many who looked upon him as a modern Moses now see that he was the commonest sort of politician. His administration has been a costly one for the tax payers of Michigan, and now that the voters see him revealed in his true light they are thankful that his official career is ended."

A Washington man has received a letter from a republican friend in Ohio, from which the following is extracted: "You ought to see Hanna. He has the scare of his life on, and believes that McLean is going to win, unless he can get the disgruntled republicans back into the traces. He and his henchmen have dropped their bulldozing tactics towards republicans and are talking as sweet as pie to them. We are enjoying his scare, and will decide later whether we'll stay at home on election day."

"Following the Flag"

From Backbone we clip: "An examination of the records in the government bureau of statistics at Washington shows that the liquor traffic is "following the flag" into our new colonial possessions with strides that are simply appalling. In the year of 1898 we exported to Cuba malt liquors to the value of $885 -a total of $10,796

In the first five months of 1899 the value of the malt liquors sent to Cuba from the United States was $414,229 and of other liquors $58,052—a total of $472 272.

In 1897 we sent to Puerto Rico liquors to a total value of $2,354. In 1898 our liquor exports to that island were valued at $3.668. But in the first five months of 1899 the value of the liquor shipped by us to that little island was $191,422

The same story is true with regard to the Philippines; we sent $663 worth of liquor there in 1897, $337 worth in 1898, but $86,833 worth in the first five months of 1899.

At this rate "benevolent assimilation" will in future years, when history is truly written, mean wholesale poisoning. -Voice.

The Broken Record

By G. E. C. Peabody.

THE day was drowsy with sunshine, and even Muggins, six foot two and with the frame of a giant, felt the influence of the perfect California day, as he meditatively chewed the end of a lemon sucker and watched the last load of oranges leave for the packing house, with the Mexican Manuel perched high on top, his tall peaked sombrero bobbing wildly up and down as the heavy loaded wagon jolted over the narrow winding trail that by courtesy was called a road.

"I knew hit," rumbled Muggins from within the depths of his throat, as he saw the wagon lurch to one side and come to a sudden stop. "I knew hit! I told thet miserable greaser to look out for thet chuck hole, and now he's in hit up to his hub!"

"What is the matter, pop?"

Muggins' daughter, laden with poppies fresh from the mesa, rivaling the glow of health upon her cheeks, had come up where her father was standing shaking his fist at the excited Manuel, who was wildly flourishing his whip.

"Matter enough," grumbled Muggins. "Look thar!" he exclaimed, as he pointed in the direction of the now crazy Mexican, who was jumping up and down in his excitement.

"Stuck?" asked his daughter, shading her eyes with her hand and looking down the road.

"Worse than a tenderfoot with 40 acres of wash," grunted Muggins.

"Well, it serves you right! I told you to never trust him out of your sight. I never saw a greaser yet who knew enough to herd bees!"

"Since when, Beth," answered her father, drily, "has this yere ranch been given over to pettycoat government?"

"Ever since you married mom, I reckon," she answered, demurely.

"Look at him!" ejaculated Muggins, again pointing in the direction of the perspiring Manuel and ignoring the home thrust, for it was a matter of talk throughout the whole district that although Muggins bossed all the men within 20 miles, he himself was bossed by his little wife, who only tipped the scales at 100 pounds. "See him hitchin' up his right shoulder? Thet means thet he is swearin' in Spanish! Thar goes the other shoulder! He's swearin' with United States now! Thar they both go together! Thet means thet he is holding an international cussin' convention! Stop thet!" he bellowed; "I'll knock you off from thet thar wagin if you don't stop beatin' thet off hoss!"

"Pop," said Beth, taking hold of her father's arm and pointing off to the southwest, "do you see that bright line along the horizon?"

"Of course! Hit's the ocean! You don't suppose, do you, thet I have lived here 25 years to be told where the ocean is?"

"A little further on ther is an island," continued his daughter.

"Meanin' Catalina?"

"Exactly. They say the goat hunting over there is excellent."

"Wul, I ain't thar, be I?"

"No, and you ain't down there either," answered Bess dryly, pointing at the stalled wagon. "Leave the greaser alone. If he isn't able to swear the wagon out of the rut the case is hopeless. How many more loads are there to go?"

"Thet thar reptile down thar has got the end of 'em—Humph, he has got out at last! If he gits thet wagon stalled again I'll murder him!"

"The last!' cried Beth, glancing unconsciously at the rancher's clock—the sun. "Then you are coming out short on your estimate?"

"Not a bit of hit! On the contrary I am coming out with 75 more boxes than I thought I had."

"They must have been an uncommon spry lot of pickers," was Beth's comment.

"They wuz," chuckled Muggins. "The fact wuz, thet I promised the critter what picked the most oranges thet he might have the honor of the first dance with ye to-night when we celebrate the close of the pickin'."

"Oh, you did!" snapped his daughter, turning full upon him with an angry look in her eyes. "Well, all I can say is that I hope you can deliver the goods! Pretty pop you are! I'd like to see myself dancing with a greaser or a Chinaman just because he happened to pick the most oranges!"

"Wul, you see," said Muggins, apologetically, "them oranges had to be picked, an' I didn't see any other way to get them to do hit."

Beth threw the poppies she was carrying upon the ground and stamped upon them.

"I won't have anything to do with it!" she exclaimed.

"I asked mom," returned Muggins. "She said she guess hit wuz all right."

"But a greaser or—or a Chinaman!" burst out Beth. "Besides, I promised Arthur Bray that he might have the first dance, and I mean to keep my word."

"Who's him?" demanded Muggins, following with his eye a buzzard that was wheeling over their heads.

"You know as well as I do," retorted Beth.

"Meanin' thet thar one-lung tenderfoot, I'm supposin'. Wul, he's in on hit, too. He kim down to the orchard this mornin' to git a few ideas from seein' the golden globes gathered from their emerald nest, usin' his words. Wul, when he found how the land lay an' why them pickers wuz snatchin' off them oranges to beat the band he said:

"'I suppose, Mister Muggins—meanin' me—thet you have no objections to my enterin' this interestin' contest? Not thet I desire the pecuniary reward attached to hit, but the honor of bein' the first to dance with your daughter will be sufficient reward for my labors in your orchard.'

"Wul, I took from thet thet he wanted to git in on the proposition; so I told him to take off his coat an' sail in. I put him down in the lower end of the orchard with Hop Sing, so if he bothered anybody it wouldn't be nothin' but a Chinaman. I reckon," he added with a laugh, "thet he must have picked at least one box if he worked right hard."

They had been slowly walking toward the house where the orange pickers had gathered in the protecting shade of an immense pepper tree to await the count that would finally decide who had won the prize that was so much coveted.

The pickers, following the usual custom when oranges are picked by the box, had placed in each box as it was filled a small card bearing their name.

Muggins gathered these tickets together, and placing them in his hat, proceeded to assort them.

"Now, here," said he, as he took out the first ticket and looked it over, "here is a ticket what looks as though a hen with muddy feet had been walkin' over hit."

"All the samee me," answered Hop Sing with a cheerful smile.

"Yes, I reckon them hen tracks belong to you, Arthur Pearson Bray," read Muggins, going on with the count. "Wul, now!" he exclaimed in mock surprise, "so ye did pick one whole box all by yourself? Wul, I call thet pretty good for a tenderfoot!"

Muggins went on with his count, making caustic comments now and then which caused the pickers thus singled out to squirm while the rest laughed.

"Thar," said Muggins finally, as he took the last slip out of the hat and added it to the tally he was keeping on a pine board, "Now we will arrive at the interesting conclusion of this yere contest!"

Slowly and laboriously Muggins counted the marks opposite Hop Sing's name. Three times he counted the marks before he raised his head and stared at the grinning Chinaman.

"Twenty-six!" he ejaculated.

"All lite," answered Hop Sing, cheerfully.

"Do you mean to say," demanded Muggins, "thet you hev only picked 26 when you hold the record around yere, which is a hundred and three?"

"Belly sick," replied the Chinaman, drawing down the corners of his mouth. "Feel belly bad. No pick oranges when feelee bad."

"Humph," grunted Muggins, "I suppose a Chinaman can git sick like a white man, but I'll be hanged if I ever heard of one before. Where are you sick?"

"Feel belly bad here," answerd Hop Sing, making a general movement with both hands that covered his entire person.

"Humph," growled Muggins, looking critically at Hop Sing, who commenced to shrink into his clothes like a frightened turtle. "Your eyes look as though you had the colic an' your skin is yaller, but they are always thet way; so I'm hanged if I can see any way from telling a sick Chinaman from a well one. Well, I suppose hit is all right, but hit seems thet even a sick Chinaman ought to pick more boxes than thet.

"Thar!" exclaimed Muggins, as he finished the second count, "thet is more like hit! One hundred an' one! I reckon you have won, Juan."

The Mexican grinned and glanced sheepishly at Beth, who bit her lips and looked defiantly at her father.

"Them's all," said Muggins at last, throwing down the hat, "an' Juan has w——"

"I think," put in Bray, modestly, "that you have overlooked my account."

"Wul, I swear, so I have! Everybody hold their breath while I figger up what the tenderfoot has picked!"

This would have been a difficult matter had any one tried it, for Muggins counted and recounted the marks that he had placed opposite Bray's name.

"It's—it's—" he began, but he could get no further.

"It's one hundred and twenty-five!" cried Beth, triumphantly, glancing over her father's shoulder. "Mr. Bray has won!"

"'Tain't no such thing!" roared Muggins. "My eyes are weak an' I've been countin' 'em over twice! You git my glasses."

Beth brought the glasses, and her father, putting them on, started a recount. But it only resulted in adding one more box to the credit of Bray.

"Hit's broke the record!" gasped Muggins, "an' hit wuz done by a tenderfoot, too! Tenderfoot, shake! I've always known thet you couldn't tell how far a frog could jump by lookin' at him, but I never rated you higher than a polywog, an' thar wuz where I made a mistake."

That night when Bray led Beth out for the first dance he was telling her something that amused her greatly. Muggins for once in his life was mute, and Hop Sing, from his seat in a corner, grinned cheerfully and jingled five good American dollars hidden in some mysterious receptacle in his clothes. But what he thought of the crazy American who gave him those dollars for picking 70 boxes of oranges will never be known. —Detroit Free Press.

Bribe for Aguinaldo.

"NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—A special to the World says: Your correspondent is able to say, on authority, that the Schurman Peace commission offered every possible inducement short of absolute self government to Aguinaldo and his followers. Aguinaldo was promised, as the price for the restoration of peace in the the Tagalos tribe, a bonus of more than $5,000 a year, while the Tagalos remained peaceful. He was told that he could choose men from his tribe for the minor municipal offices.

With all these inducements, tempting as they must have been, Aguinaldo, as the recognized head of the insurgent movement, declined to yield. He insisted upon immediate self-government, and as his insistence was so firm as to make an agreement impossible, the American Commissioners ceased negotiations."

We have heard a great deal of denunciation against Aguinaldo for being a bribe taker—a boodler. How is this? Is McKinley a bribe giver?

Is the taking of a bribe a crime and the giving of one a virtue?

The island of Elba, where the great Napoleon was once confined, used to be the most forlorn place on earth, but the atmosphere there has recently changed very materially. The treating habit has been woefully abused in this country, and it is time that sensible men put a stop to the foolish practice.

This is told of Admiral Dewey: While cruising in the Mediterranean 14 years ago a squall struck the vessel and sailors bungled their work in such a way as to nearly cause the loss of a spar. They expected to hear something sulphurous when they reached the deck, but Dewey only said to his next in command: "Will you kindly tell me what was the matter just now with the agricultural population on the main topsail yard?" Needless to say the sailors would have much preferred a good hard cussing to being thus delicately classed as farmers.

Americans enjoy being humbugged. All think that French brandy is the best, and for that reason thousands of bottles of American brandy are each year sent to France, stamped with French labels and shipped back to be sold here as French brandy. The reports of the French government show this by stating that the manufacture of brandy in France last year amounted to 1,000,000 gallons, while the export was 3,000,000 gallons. The humbug shows up in the exportation from France of three times as much brandy as France made.

The Brass Foundry company at New Haven, Conn., has profited by the low price of copper coins in India to buy them by the ton to melt up. Nearly 10,000 bags, or about 250 tons, of these old coins have been brought from India as scrap copper to be melted up, as at the present price of copper they are worth more than their coin value. Scrap copper is worth 19 cents a pound, but for 19 cents silver several pounds of these coins can be bought in India, and, with proverbial Connecticut shrewdness, one foundry company in that state has profited financially by this fact.

AWAIT THE THIRTEENTH.

The Visitors to the Twin Cities will be Cared for by the Reception Committee.

The president's visit to to Minneapolis to welcome home and review the 13th Regiment Minnesota Volunteers, and the low excursion rates offered by the railroads will bring immense crowds to Minneapolis, and in view of the great concourse of people who will witness the historical spectacle, the executive committee has organized a department to be known as the Twin City Accommodation committee, whose work will be to assign all expectant visitors to nicely furnished rooms through correspondence, before their arrival in Minneapolis, thereby avoiding any practice of extortion and the many inconveniences which so often occur in large gatherings.

It is a great task on the committee, and all expectant visitors should write them at once, enclosing self-addressed envelope for circular, which will explain in detail the committee's work and how and where you can best be cared for.

This will be a great advantage to all strangers who intend to visit Minneapolis during the celebration, and a work which is deserving of a hearty support, and reflects great credit on the committee.

To avoid the rush at the eleventh hour, write them at once. All available rooms have been booked by them. Address Twin City Accommodation Committee, Board of Trade Rooms, Lumber Exchange, Minneapolis, and don't fail to enclose self-addressed stamped envelope.

THE NAVAL PARADE.

Magnificent Tribute Paid to Admiral Dewey and His Men.

Demonstration Viewed by 3,000,000 People—The Admiral's Journey to Washington—Meets President and Cabinet.

New York, Sept. 30.—No victorious king or prince coming home from a successful war ever received such a magnificent ovation as overwhelmed Admiral Dewey Friday as he stood on the bridge of the Olympia at the head of a magnificent fleet of steel thunderers of the deep, followed by a thousand vessels of peace, each tiered and coated black with people, and sailed over the bright waters of the upper bay and up the broad pathway of the sunlit river, whose banks were gay with millions of flags and streamers dancing in the wind.

Salute at Grant's Tomb.

As the tomb of Gen. Grant on Riverside drive was reached the fleet paid its tribute to the memory of the great warrior with a national salute of 21 roaring guns. The fleet then anchored and reviewed the almost endless procession of craft that steamed past. Toward the end the parade became disorganized and it took hours for the heterogenous flotilla to get by. Darkness at last brought relief to the tired admiral, who had stood on the bridge for six hours bowing his acknowledgments to the stentorian expression of homage.

Viewed by 3,000,000 People.

New York has never witnessed before anything approaching this wonderful, remarkable demonstration. The Columbian naval parade, the dedication of Grant's tomb and the reception of the North Atlantic squadron last fall all pale before this gigantic ovation to the sailor who in a single morning destroyed an enemy's fleet without the loss of a man or a ship. It is not beyond the mark to say that 3,000,000 people viewed the pageant from ashore and that a quarter of a million were afloat. There were nearly 500 vessels in all in the parade, and it took them more than three hours to pass a given point.

Great Land Parade.

New York, Oct. 2.—Saturday brought to a close the celebrations in honor of Admiral Dewey. The presentation of the loving cup, the gift of the city of New York, took place early in the forenoon. The great event of the day, the land parade, was witnessed by a multitude of persons, who thronged every available place. In the evening the crews of the Olympia and other vessels of the fleet were entertained at a smoker at the Waldorf-Astoria. Admiral Dewey was very tired at the end of the parade. He was driven at once to the residence of Manager Boldt, of the Waldorf-Astoria, escorted by squadron A and accompanied by Mayor Van Wyck. He dined with his lieutenants, Brumby and Caldwell. Admiral Dewey did not attend the "smoker." He was feeling too fatigued to leave his apartments, and retired at 10:15 o'clock.

A Continuous Ovation.

Washington, Oct. 3.—Admiral Dewey's journey here from New York was one continuous ovation, limited in its intensity only by the density of population. The special was given a clear track and the run to Washington was made without a stop except at Gray's Ferry, on the outskirts of Philadelphia, where engines were changed and a new train crew came aboard. The train arrived on time a few minutes before 7 p. m., Monday.

It was said by the railroad officials and trainmen that the ovation during the run from New York to Washington was the most remarkable demonstration that has ever taken place along the line.

A hearty reception awaited the admiral upon his arrival in the city. He was driven quickly to the white house where he was greeted by the president, the cabinet and many of his old associates in the navy department. Later on he reviewed the great civic parade given in his honor.

Much Fatigued.

It was 9:10 o'clock when the fatigued recipient of the day's demonstrations reached the residence of Mrs. Washington McLean, mother of the democratic candidate for governor of Ohio, on K street, where he will stay while in Washington. The admiral was met at the head of the staircase by Mrs. McLean and her daughters. Mrs. McLean welcomed the admiral and turned over the house to him, for his use during his stay in Washington. Mrs. McLean and the members of her family then left, going to her country residence in the suburbs of Washington.

AWFUL RESULTS.

Recent Earthquakes in Asia Minor Estimated to Have Caused Loss of 1,500 Lives.

Constantinople, Oct. 3.—It is now estimated that 1,500 persons perished in the earthquakes in Asia Minor, around Aidin. The first shock occurred at four in the morning of September 20 and lasted 40 seconds. The effects were appalling. Whole villages were completely destroyed. The earthquake was felt as far as Scio, Mitylene and Smyrna. The latest advices from the stricken area show that men, women and children were buried in the ruins of their dwelling places before they realized their danger. Numbers of bodies still lie beneath the debris.

Big Fire in Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, Sept, 30.—Fire early Saturday morning destroyed the Big Four warehouse, occupying a block bounded by Central avenue, Pearl, Plum and Second streets; sheds of the new Union passenger station, the freight depot, the Smith street bridge across the tracks and many passenger and freight cars. The new passenger station was only saved by pulling burning cars from the sheds. The loss of goods in the warehouse and loaded cars will affect many many shippers. The total loss will exceed $1,000,000.

Will Go to Chicago.

Chicago, Oct. 2.—President McKinley has sent positive word that he will be in Chicago to lay the corner stone of the new federal building and to participate in the autumn festival. According to the president's plans he will reach Chicago at four p. m. October 7, coming direct from Galesburg.

CAPT. CARTER'S DISGRACE.

Dismissed from the Army, Fined $5,000 and Sentenced to a Prison Term of Five Years.

Washington, Oct. 2.—President McKinley has approved the findings of the court-martial in the case of Capt. Oberlin M. Carter, of the engineer corps. This action was kept secret almost 24 hours to permit of the prompt arrest of the convicted officer. His sentence is dismissal from the army, a fine of $5,000 and imprisonment for five years.

Assistant Adjt. Gen. Simpson went to New York with the order of arrest and Capt. Carter was taken into custody Saturday and transferred to a cell at

CAPT. OBERLIN M. CARTER.

Governor's Island preparatory to being sent to the military prison at Leavenworth, Kan., which has been designated as his place of confinement.

Capt. Carter was appointed military attache at London in the summer of 1897 and had hardly reached his post of duty when he was recalled to answer charges preferred against him as the result of the alleged discoveries of Capt. C. E. Gillette who succeeded him in charge of the improvement of Savannah harbor and adjacent parts of the Georgia coast.

A board of inquiry, composed of army engineers, examined the facts and heard Capt. Carter. They unanimously reported "that he had failed to give watchful supervision; that he had falsified vouchers and certificates relating to absences and deceived and misled the chief of engineers in official reports."

Testimony was given that Capt. Carter was in league with a contractor or contractors and in the course of a searching inquiry made by the war department the judge advocate of the court-martial for the case made a calculation based on testimony which showed "that in one item of brush mattresses Capt. Carter's little group of contractors had got from the government upward of $1,700,000 to which they were not entitled."

ALMOST A PANIC.

Intense Excitement on New Orleans Cotton Exchange Caused by Sudden Advance.

New Orleans, Sept. 30.—The wildest panic ever witnessed on the floor of the New Orleans cotton exchange occurred Friday shortly after business opened and caused in the midst of the intense excitement the complete suspension of future business, pending the investigation of what, at the moment, was assumed to be a gigantic conspiracy to swindle the cotton exchanges of the country. The panic was due to an apparent terrific jump in the price of cotton, based on alleged Liverpool advices, and it was roughly estimated that $170,000 had been lost on local transactions as a result. Later in the day the exchange, after receiving legal advice, declared null and void all future transactions of the day. This action, however, promises to be bitterly contested, and litigation is likely to be the final outcome.

Friday is the first time in its history of 30 years that the New Orleans cotton exchange has been compelled to suspend business. During the panic of 1893 a similar attempt to suspend was made, but failed. The exchange took the ground then that suspension would injure it in the markets of the world. The directors feel that Friday's suspension was unavoidable and excusable.

BUSINESS STILL GOOD.

A Review of the Commercial Situation by Bradstreet Is Very Encouraging.

New York, Sept 29.—Bradstreet's says: "The notable feature of the business situation is the strength of agricultural products, notably the cereals, cotton and pork products. Fall trade continues good, though it is conceded at several markets that the biggest part of the fall business has been done, and that reorders from now on will cut the largest figure. Wheat has remained steadily strong, growing firmer toward the close on enlarged foreign buying and uncertainty as to the outcome of South African affairs. Sympathetic strength is displayed by corn and other cereals. Increased foreign demand is reported largely responsible, too, for the stronger tone and advances shown in hog products. There is a quieter tone at most markets for iron and steel, and large buyers have been, most of them, out of the market. There is no diminution in strength, however, and a number of advances, notably on southern iron and steel billets, are to be reported. Complaints of backward deliveries are as numerous as ever. Lumber remains active at most markets, though complaints of slow delivery, due to lack of cars, are also heard. Southern manufacturers have again advanced the price of stoves, which are now nearly one-third higher than a year ago, and plow manufacturers have also joined in this movement, marking the third advance within a year in this branch of farm implements."

Fire Losses in Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 2.—The large warehouse of the Minneapolis Sash & Door company was destroyed by fire Sunday, entailing a loss to this firm of $80,000. The adjoining warehouse of the Woodward-Holmes company, manufacturers of wooden and excelsior eave gutters, also burned, causing a loss of $12,000. Three adjacent dwellings and a store were also destroyed. Fires in other parts of the city caused much other damage, swelling the total loss to at least $110,000.

Big Fire at Bloomington.

Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 2.—The Illinois Cereal company's plant caught fire Sunday night at ten o'clock and the five large buildings were totally destroyed. Loss, $200,000; insurance, $150,000. The fire started from a dust explosion. The firm had been running day and night to supply the demand for their breakfast foods in this country and Europe.

Illinois Cavalry Reunion.

Chatsworth, Ill., Oct. 3.—Notices of the first annual reunion and banquet of the Illinois Cavalry Volunteers of 1898, which will be held at the Palmer house, Chicago, October 13, at seven o'clock, are being sent out by R. Finley Brown, of this city, treasurer of the association and chairman of the invitation committee.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

If there is one thing on which the housewife prides herself, it is that of having her laundering done nicely, so that the wearing apparel may be the admiration of all. The washing is a small matter, any one almost can do that, but to have the linens present that flexible and glossy appearance after being ironed requires a fine quality of starch.

GOLF AS A TEMPER TEST.

A Luckless Player Demonstrates How Easy It Is to Control One's Self.

A golf story which should certainly be added to the already excellent number to which the game has given birth possesses an advantage which cannot be claimed for all of them, that of being absolutely authentic. An enthusiast, who was somewhat of a tyro at golf, though of great distinction at other forms of athletics, had a series of misfortunes with which most people can sympathize. He was playing against a man whose opinion he valued, and he consistently topped his ball, sliced it, pulled it, lifted it into a tree, played a fine cleek stroke into a bunker, and made extraordinary straight long-distance putts in which the ball hopped genially across the hole into the long grass which skirted the green.

At first the player's demeanor was ominously sweet; he seemed positively to enjoy his strokes; then he grew mad; then he grew apparently careless, though his caddie noticed the carelessless was only assumed, as he was pressing horribly. The worst of golf is that you can never deceive either your caddie or your ball. At last, at the seventh hole, he grew wonderfully calm, and marched off to the next teeing ground, remarking to his trembling caddie that he would not trouble to hole out. After an easy preliminary swing or two he topped his ball, which trickled away about 20 yards to the right. Then the man took all his clubs and broke them one by one across his knee, remarking quietly to his opponent that "it is better to break your infernal clubs than to lose your infernal temper."—London Telegraph.

COMMERCIAL WIT.

A Parcel of Puns That Were Worked Off All Right But They Didn't Take.

Four traveling men sat on the sidewalk in front of the Windsor the other night telling stories. The man who smoked stogies had just finished a somnambulist tale.

"Reminds me of what the pickpocket said to his fellow-prisoner," commented the man with the nasal blossom.

"What was that?"

"I am here, gentlemen," he said, "as the result of a moment of abstraction."

The pun fell with a dull, sickening thud. But the man who smoked stogies came to the front again.

"Like the incendiary, eh? There is some similarity. He was there because of his habit of making light of things."

The blossomy man refused to be silent.

"But did you hear about the forger?"

"No. Why?"

"He was there on account of a simple desire to make a name for himself."

The man with the stogie meditated.

"That reminds me of the burglar," he casually remarked. There was a three-minute stage wait and the man who liked apple jack gave way to curiosity.

"Why?"

"As he said, through nothing but taking advantage of an opening which offered in a large mercantile establishment."

The blossomy man had departed, leaving a wide, far-reaching void.—St. Paul Globe.

A RARE INSTANCE.

An Unusual Experience Which the Bicycle Dealer Would Like to Have Repeated.

A heavy man with a square jaw walked into a bicycle exchange the other afternoon. The proprietor advanced to wait on him.

"Gimme a bike," said the square-jawed man.

"To buy?"

"Yep."

"What make?"

"Any old make."

"Here's our specialty—good machine."

"All right, is it?"

"Good as any made."

"How much?"

"Fifty."

"Dab a little graphite on the chain and pump her up."

The proprietor dabbed a little graphite on the chain and pumped her up. The square-jawed man pulled out a wad of the size of his wrist, skinned off a fifty and handed it to the proprietor. Then he ran the machine out to the curb, got on it and rode off.

When the proprietor got over being stunned he went to three or four friends on the block to get their opinion as to whether the $50 was counterfeit or the real thing. The bill was genuine, and the proprietor has been more or less dazed ever since.

"I can't understand such swift action as that in the bike business," he says, with a puzzled air.—Washington Post.

A Texas Judge.

In one of the remote counties of the Panhandle of Texas two lawyers were trying a case before a justice of the peace. It was 60 miles as the crow flies to the nearest law book, and the attorneys differed, of course, as to the law upon the main issue in the case. They were trying the case without the intervention of a jury, and his honor, who conducted a gambling house in connection with his hotel, saloon and livery stable, was in doubt as to what his decision ought to be. Finally Miller, the plaintiff's counsel, offered to bet Hoover, the defendant's attorney, $10 that he was right. Hoover did not happen to have that much of the circulating medium concealed about his person, and was naturally at a loss how to parry this forcible argument. The court waited a few moments on Hoover, and finally said: "Well, Mr. Hoover, the court has waited long enough. Miller's proposition seems to be a fair one, and, since you don't put up, I will decide this case in favor of the plaintiff."—Law Notes.

One of the bargemen ceased rowing and eyed the cup challenger critically. "Wot do ye call that 'ere thing you're on?" he demanded. "This," replied Sir Thomas, courteously, "is the yacht Shamrock." GOV. LIND'S BATTLE

FIGHT TO A FINISH FOR TAXATION REFORM.

His Triumph in Securing the Taxation of Corporation Franchises—Far-Reaching Results—It Means Millions to the People of Minnesota—Progress in Other State Reforms—Testimony From All Directions of Good Results in the Grain Department—Let the Good Work Go On—Other State Politics—National Political Gleanings—Return of National Chairman Jones and Towne—Points From National Headquarters—Reform Press Note and Comment of the Week.

Reform Press Bureau.
ST. PAUL, Oct. 2, 1899.

The course of reform in Minnesota keeps marching on.

The great triumph to record, is the successful effort of Governor Lind to have the corporations of the state assume something like their just share of the burdens of taxation.

The two great reforms in taxation undertaken by Governor Lind, as set out in his message to the last legislature, were the taxation of corporations, and the increase of the gross earnings tax of railroads. Defeat of the latter by the Republican legislature and the deep seated indignation of the people, are familiar to all. For the other, the only hope has lain in the State Board of Equalization, and to that Governor Lind addressed himself from the first.

Governor Lind, in recommending corporate taxation in his message, discussed all the phases of the franchise tax, and recommended not only that, but the laying of the proper burdens upon domestic and foreign corporations doing business in this state. He showed how such would be a legitimate source of revenue, and justified the tax both on economic grounds and from the standpoint of public policy. Had the legislature followed the course marked out by the governor, the laws of the state would have provided for this just relief of the people; but the legislature, having failed to take any action, the question was whether Governor Lind could reach it through the board of equalization. The supreme court decision of April last opened the way for direct taxation of franchises, but the governor was embarrassed from the fact that only one-half of the board of equalization was appointed by him, the other half being hold-over members, from the even numbered districts, as being Republicans and of Republican appointment, were of course liable to stand for the maintenance of the system which has heretofore prevailed. Results proved that this was a real difficulty, because in the showdown the Republican members stood pat against this reform.

There is now time and space for only the briefest summary of the proceedings in the case. The test case was the property of the Twin City Rapid Transit company, the Lowry properties, the facts concerning the taxation of which, in Hennepin and Ramsey counties, are familiar to reform readers. Last year the Minneaplis and St. Paul companies were assessed about $1,700,000. For this year the valuation was increased $250,000, evidently as a sop that would prevent further raise.

The principle offered by the supreme court decision referred to, as a way of reaching franchises, was this: Find the market value of the corporation's capital stock and from this deduct the valuations of real and personal property, the balance then being the franchise value.

Governor Lind, who had arranged that this question should be deferred by the board of equalization until his return from California, receiving the Thirteenth, applied the principle to the Rapid Transit company in this way:

Its stock is $15,000,000 common and $5,000,000 preferred, which was agreed by the company to have a value of 60 cents on the $1 for the former, but that of the latter was found somewhat complicated, since it was denied that all of it was issued. Governor Lind, therefore, conservatively waived the latter, and took the common stock only which would amount to $9,000,000. Taxing this as other property is generally taxed, to-wit, on about one-third its real value, Governor Lind asked the board by resolution, to make the Twin City company's valuation $3,000,000.

The company made the best fight possible, and was supported by the Republican side of the board. The matter went through a little less than the governor proposed, being finally made to be a valuation of $1,500,000, in Minneapolis, and $1,250,000 in St. Paul, total $2,750,000. This is, as will be seen, approximately an increase of $1,000,000 over 1898.

As stated, the reform members of the board stood shoulder to shoulder with the governor, with the solitary exception of Mr. McKibbin of St. Paul. The governor was ably seconded by the member from the Tenth district, Hon. Thomas J. Meighen of Filmore, and by the member from the Fourteenth district, Hon. Richard Glavin of Warren.

At this writing the attitude of the Twin City Republican papers is not clear, as there was a marked silence. Only The Tribune, Minneapolis, mentioned the political side of the matter, saying that the action was owing to the "more Populistic members of the board." It also said that the company would probably not contest the decision, and made the significant closing statement that "SO THE MATTER RESTS TILL NEXT YEAR." "Next year, if the Republicans win, we will get release," is the suggestion.

It should be stated that the case is but a test case, and the application of the action is to be expected in the case of all like corporations throughout the state.

What a comment, that in all the years of Republican rule no effort has heretofore been made for this great reform! Also, how politically insignificant, as well as appropriate, that Republicans of Minnesota should stand by the corporations. As Bryan would say of the trust-defenders nationally, they stand by one great Bible precept, "Remember thy Creator."

Straws show which way the wind blows. Minneapolis, Hutchison and other elevator men have good words for the new regime in the grain department. The state press abound in expressions of satisfaction from the farmers' side. The latter feel that they are at least getting all that their grain calls for, and that robberies by short weight and excessive dockage are stopped. A state official recently spending some time at Duluth, has this to say from the commission men's side:

"I met several commission men, and they said that genuine relief was experienced from the manner in which the state officers are discharging their duties. 'Formerly,' said one, 'the inspectors and those over them were more often to be seen lounging around and neglecting their business. Now the superior officers are around among the inspectors and weighmasters seeing for themselves what is going on. There is a marked difference and a great improvement in the service and every unprejudiced man will tell you so.'"

By the vigilance of new employes in the Minneapolis grain department, a source of large losses to grain shippers has been unearthed, being the losses from broken cars, by which grain has leaked along the tracks in transit and been lost, or run out in large quantities in the railroad yards, to be gobbled up and carried away. Short weights, in numerous cases, are now thus explained. In such cases responsibility for the shortage lies with the railroad companies. And thus the good work goes on, in the Lind administration.

Hanna's estimate that McLean, in Ohio, is merely a man with a pocketbook, is wide of the mark. He will prove a giant with a sledgehammer, and Hanna may as well prepare to gather up the pieces.

"Why didn't you go to Cuba?" demanded a Republican rough, in a far gallery corner, at one of Mr. Bryan's recent speeches. Quick as a flash, and sharp as a pistol, says the report, came this answer:

"I offered my services to a Republican president, the day the war was declared. That offer was never accepted. I then raised a regiment of my own. When the treaty of peace was signed I resigned because I believed that this country was in more danger than Cuba, and I came home to fight Republicans.

"I had five months of peace in the army, and have had constant fighting since I came out."

W. J. Bryan has given as signal proof of his patriotism as any man ever born under our blessed flag. That he did not fight Spaniards in Cuba, was because President McKinley in his selfishness feared to give him the opportunity. And of all the multitude of acts showing the small caliber, and narrow scope of manhood in William McKinley, none is more forcible than this case.

Chairman Jones of the Democratic national committee is on the ocean homward bound for the great battle which he will largely conduct in 1900, the Second Battle. Chairman Towne of the Silver Republican committee is home ahead of Senator Jones, and, at Lansing, Mich., is completing his magazine articles, so as to enter the fall lists as soon as possible. Upon the arrival of Senator Jones active work will be commenced, with headquarters at Chicago. His more immediate associates, for the present, will be Hon. J. G. Johnson of Kansas, member of all the sub-committees, and Hon. Sam B. Cook, who has long been at the head of the ways and means work. They are all able and faithful men and have the confidence of all. This is specially the the case in the Northwest.

Reports that smallpox had broken out in Kandiyohi county were unfounded. They all came from the "breaking out" of one Henry Feig. "More next week."

Wall Street was in a panic for the past two weeks, the news of the same being suppressed or doctored by the Associated Press. Stocks tumbled, margins were wiped out, money rose to twice or three times prevailing rates, and the banks, with surplus reserves wiped out, did what? Rushed to Washington for more notes, to be printed and sent them, under the national banking laws! Oh, yes, there is so very much too much money, most of the time, and especially when it is wanted. It is wrong for Uncle Sam to print money for the people, but just the thing to print it for the banks!

Here and there we have heard of friends being misled by the Republican statements that Mr. Bryan "weakened" on imperialism while on the Pacific coast. Let no one be fooled. He was sound to the core. Read his speech at San Francisco. It was published in full by The National Watchman, because suppressed by the Associated Press. By the way, The Watchman, which every "defender of the faith" should take, will next week print Bryan's Chicago trust speech in full. Get that, too, many copies of it, and circulate it.

The celebrated case in Michigan, brought in the courts by the friends of silver, to test the legal tender of the white money, has resulted in a victory for "daddy's dollar." Fred A. Baker, one of our Detroit leaders, refused a tender of silver dollars in payment of a mortgage, claiming, for the test, the unconstitutionality of the Bland-Allison act of 1878. The Michigan supreme court holds the tender good and sufficient, and Mr. Baker accepted this as final.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Testing the Anti-Trust Law.

The first case to go to the supreme court under the new Minnesota anti-trust law was perfected before Judge Simpson of Minneapolis, and the ruling will be looked for in the October term of the supreme court.

The case in question is that of Conrad J. Ertz, who brings suit against the Minneapolis Produce exchange, asking for damages because the exchange, as he claims, has conspired to injure his business by refusing to sell him goods or purchase from him.

The defendants urged that the exchange was a lawful organization, for a lawful purpose, and that a member of that exchange could not bring an action for its actions, and moved a discharge of action.

"When this proposition was first made," said the court, "I was not so certain as to the claim, but after looking the matter up very thoroughly I am of the opinion that the new law is very broad in its terms. I cannot see that there is anywhere to draw the line. If it is unlawful to restrain trade to a great extent, it is just as unlawful to restrain it in a lesser degree. If a corporation or association were allowed to restrain trade in the case of one party, they might in the case of two, and so on to the end, and there would be nowhere to draw the line. The motion will be denied."

Judge Simpson's decision stamps the Minneapolis Produce exchange as a trust, on the showing before him, or until there is evidence in a trial changing the showing.

A Fast Mail Indeed.

To show how distance is being overcome by railroad speed, Mr. Chas. T. Batelle, a young business man of Seattle, handed the editor of the Times a few days ago an envelope postmarked New York City, Aug. 28, 7 p. m., the reverse side containing these words: Seattle, Sept. 1, 11 p. m.

It takes but a little figuring to demonstrate that these postmarks indicate a lapse of just "100 hours" of time—or four days and four hours. It was only about two years ago that it took "six continuous days" of riding to cross the continent from New York to Seattle, and when this was reduced to "five days" the travelers rejoiced. What must their happiness be when they appreciate the fact that they can step on board a "lightning express" in New York City and step off a "Flyer" in Seattle in exactly "100 hours," and then have thirty minutes of leeway, as the Great Northern was due in Seattle at 10:30 September 1.

Left No Will.

Mary A. Pillsbury, widow of the late C. A. Pillsbury, and his sons, John S. and Charles S., have joined in a petition asking for the appointment of Charles M. Amsden, John S. Pillsbury, Charles S. Pillsbury and Frank H. Carleton as administrators of the estate. As far as known Mr. Pillsbury left no will. The estate is estimated as being worth $600,000, one-half of which is in real estate. The other half is in personal property. This estimate was hastily made, and the estate may prove to be of far greater value when the inventory has been completed.

Killed by a Blow.

Coroner Mosse held an inquest at the Rochester insane hospital over the body of John Simenson, a patient at that institution who died as the result of an assault committed by W. B. McGrority, another patient. Simenson was struck on the head with a base ball bat, causing a rupture of one of the cerebral arteries. The injury was not thought to be serious at the time, but the patient failed to rally and died.

AN EVENING CALL.

Brown Found Perkins Beating His Wife and Told Mrs. Brown All About It.

"I called on Perkins last evening," remarked Mr. Brown.

"Did you have a pleasant time?" inquired Mrs. Brown.

"Very. Perkins was beating his wife when I came in."

"What!"

"I say Perkins was beating his wife, but of course he stopped when I came in."

"Well, I should hope so."

"I begged him to go right on, but he said some other time would do just as well."

"You begged him to go on?"

"Why, yes. I didn't want to stop the fun, you know."

"Oh, you brute!"

"Eh?"

"Do you mean to say you could have looked calmly on while he beat his wife?"

"Certainly. Why not?"

"I thought you had at least a spark of manhood left. I suppose you will be beating me next."

"Yes, I think I could if you would play cribbage with me."

"Play cribbage?"

"Yes. That is what Perkins and his wife were doing."

"You horrid thing!"—San Francisco Examiner.

Pat's Guess.

Two park laborers sat on a curbstone opposite the Museum of Art and Science in New York, eating lunch out of their pails. "'Tis a foine building," said one of them, "you'd never think they'd put up that solid a strookchur just to kape dead boogs an' other crachures in." "Indade, no," replied the other, "but are thim big letters cut into the stone above the windies the names av?" "I deno," said the first speaker. He fell to spelling out the words, and presently a ray of intelligence succeeded the puzzled expression on his face. "Sure, I hav it," he said. "Thim is the names av the contractors." Patrick made a good guess, for the names graven in the stone were Aeschylus, Sophocles, Pericles, Herodotus, Socrates, Thucydides and Demosthenes.—San Francisco Wave.

Nearly always these operations become necessary through neglect.

If the menses are very painful, or too frequent and excessive, get the right advice at once and stop taking chances. It will cost you nothing for advice if you write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for it, and if you let the trouble run along it will surely cost you a great deal of pain and may mean an operation.

WOMEN AVOID OPERATIONS

MISS SARAH J. GRAHAM, Sheridanville, Pa., writes: "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I had suffered for several years with female troubles and doctored until I was discouraged. I felt wretched and tired of living. I had disease of kidneys, bladder trouble, dropsy and bloating, had womb trouble and a large tumor had formed; in fact all my organs were out of fix.

"Seeing a woman's letter praising your remedies, I wrote to her and she begged of me to try it, telling me all that it had done for her. I bought six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now cannot express my gratitude to you. The tumor began to come away in pieces and I got better all the time. I believe now that I am entirely cured.

"My doctors could not believe it at first, as they all had told me that my case was a hopeless one, and no human power could do me any good. They were astounded. If I can say anything that can help other women, I shall be glad to."

It is not safe to wait until the last moment. Head off trouble by prompt attention to it. Don't be satisfied without Mrs Pinkham's advice.

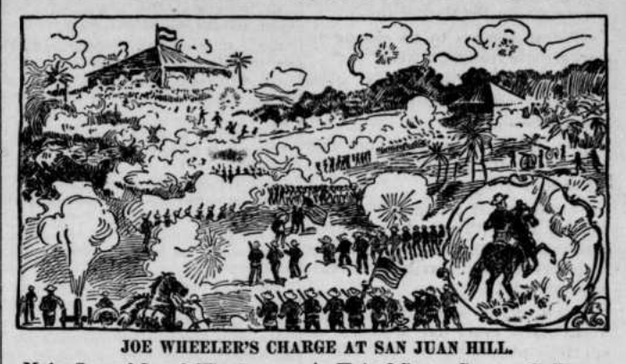
GEN. JOE WHEELER PRAISES PERUNA,

The Great Catarrh Cure.



JOE WHEELER'S CHARGE AT SAN JUAN HILL.

Major General Joseph Wheeler, commanding the cavalry forces in front of Santiago and the author of "The Santiago Campaign," in speaking of the great catarrh remedy, Pe-ru-na, says: "I join with Senators Sullivan, Roach and McEnery in their good opinion of Pe-ru-na. It is recommended to me by those who have used it as an excellent tonic and particularly effective as a cure for catarrh."

United States Senator McEnery.

Hon. S. D. McEnery, United States Senator from Louisiana, says the following in regard to Pe-ru-na:

"Pe-ru-na is an excellent tonic. I have used it sufficiently to say that I believe it to be all that you claim for it.—S. D. McEnery, New Orleans, Louisiana."

United States Senator Sullivan.

"I desire to say I have been taking Pe-ru-na for some time for catarrh, and have found it an excellent medicine, giving me more relief than anything I have ever taken.—W. V. Sullivan, Oxford, Miss."

United States Senator Roach.

"Persuaded by a friend I have used Pe-ru-na as a tonic, and am glad to testify that it has greatly helped me in strength, vigor and appetite. I have been advised by friends that it is remarkably efficacious as a cure for the almost universal complaint of catarrh.—W. N. Roach, Larimore, North Dakota."

DELANO DIARY

—Men are at work tapping the water main for the Meister Hotel.

—Wheat appears to be coming to market quite freely this week.

—Telephone companies and stock holders are trying to satisfy each other that each is right.

—Dr. Soper is preparing for cold weather by letting a full beard grow. —Norwood Times.

—Frank Parlitz, living near Quinn's crossing, met with a fracture of several ribs one day this week, by falling from his team and having the team back over him.

—Sportsmen innumerable throng the woods nearly every day in search of squirrels, pheasants, etc. etc. There seems to be about as many sportsmen as squirrels, pheasants or etc., etc.

—Numerous accidents from horses feeling good have resulted lately. We learn that Mrs. George Crandall and Mrs. Dixon, of Rockford, are each suffering with a broken arm resulting from runaways.

—Last week Frank Crolley was sent to Fergus Falls; this week Alves Roth has been sent, which makes the third this fall. People at Buffalo say Delano ought surely to have been given the new asylum.

—The weather this week has been equal to that of Denver, Colorado Springs or any other noted place. For fine weather no place beats Minnesota when she turns herself loose on a genuine Minnesota Fall.

—The Burke Clothing company's exhibit of potatoes was most attractively displayed in a highly ornamental booth made by Alfred Molander, the enterprising manager of the New Store.—Anoka Herald.

—Tomorrow, Saturday, Oct. 7, will be the regular Delano Fair Day. Winter is hastening on, and people having stock they do not care to winter will be seeking markets. There is apt to be a big fair and lots of business done.

—Everybody take notice that from this time on the butchershops of this city will be closed on Sundays, so make your purchases on the evening before. —Litchfield News Ledger.

A sensible move. What excuse can there be for running butcher shops seven days in a week?

—The street sprinkler on Monday forenoon was badly missed. Sunday was a dry day and Monday dry and windy, dust finding all the crevices in which to creep. But afternoon the sprinkler made its appearance, once again, and was much appreciated. A town without a sprinkler, don't know what comfort it is loosing.

—A large number of hogs are being raised and fattened in this neighborhood. Hograisers should be extremely cautious how they allow neigbors who have sick hogs or buyers and others who have visited sick hogs to come on their premises, as it is claimed that hog cholera is very easily carried about by people visiting different pens where they have been in contact with Be on your guard and don't loose your hogs in this way.

—Where the Eagle gets its authority for saying Alva Catlin went to St. Paul to enlist, we don't know. He wanted to get into the first company he could. He tried A and found it full. He then tried B. and found 130 names ahead of him but Capt. Diggles told the clerk to put Alva's name down as he was the kind of a man they were looking for. So he was in Company B, a Minneapolis company, Capt. Diggles, who was promoted to Major and killed in the Philippines.

—When we were small we learned a rhyme:

"It is a sin to steal a pin,
It is greater to steal a 'tater,
It is a whopper to steal a copper."

But we have for a long time kept quiet while our neighbors were purloining small items; taking "the products of others brains, without giving them credit, and palming them off on their unsuspecting readers as their own. We suspect this is one of the most aggravating of thefts. The most wholesale case we have noticed lately is where the Eagle published as a local the very full and entertaining description of the Editorial excurison outing, written and signed by Charles S. Mitchell.

Mrs. George Goetzman, of Howard Lake, was in Delano Monday evening. She expects to leave soon for California where her daughter Rosa is living.

William Bauman, Earnest Otto, and Mat Schaust as delegates from the Delano St. Anthony Benevolent Society attended the convention at Sleepy Eye, this week.

Editor A. L. Graves, of the St. Paul Broad Axe, was in town Tuesday on an inspection of manufactories trip. He was pleased with this section of country. From here he drove to Buffalo.

County Cullings.

From the Cokato Enterprise we learn that on Monday last, while hunting, Richard Steining, a 12 year old boy of Stockholm, accidentally shot himself, dying in a few hours.

Waverly people are discussing the advisability of building a new school house.

We are sorry to learn from the Buffalo Journal that Editor Eaton has been sick. Hope he may soon recover.

Among Our Exchanges.

Anoka Herald: Van Sant's boom hasn't gotten out of his reach yet, and he may consider that it will be safer to call it back before the naughty boys up around Minneapolis and St. Paul get their hammers out.

Broad Axe: The republican platform has been enlarged by the incorporation of the Sultanry of Sulu into our political system. In addition to the gold standard, tariff for trusts, imperialism and militaryism, poligamy slavery and piracy have been added. The blackest trinity of crimes in the whole calendar has been placed under the protection of our flag by President McKinley.

Duluth News Tribune: Alejandrino, a Filipino guy, comparing the American with the insurgent soldier, declares that the latter can exist on a handful of rice and a pair of linen trousers. If there is any fighting on hand the American soldier can get along with only the handful of rice.

Why don't the American government get the News Tribune editor to enlist a regiment of his kind of soldiers, and take them over to the Philippines?

Norwood Times: It is amusing to see nearly all of the gold democratic press trying to get a front seat on the Bryan band wagon, now, when they are forced to concede the Nebraska man's nomination. It will be only a matter of a few months before they are just as anxious to drop the anti-expansion red hot iron and grab for a place on the old Chicago platform. We venture to say there will be 16 applicants for every 1 foot of space on that platform before the 1900 campaign.

Tit for Tat.

Our flag does not mean one thing in the United States and another in Porto Rico and the Philippines.—President McKinley at Ocean Grove, N. J.

No, unfortunately. Wherever it floats it means freedom of the saloon fiends to entrap and enslave and damn body an soul. And no one is today accountable to so great an extent for this deplorable fact as William Mc Kinley.—Backbone.

Hill Employes Disgruntled.

It is reported that there is general dissatisfaction on some of the divisions of the Great Northern road among the conductors both passenger and freight, because they are required to furnish security bonds in the sum of $1,000 each. The cost of a bond is borne by the conductor and this amounts to $10 for the passenger conductor and $5 for the freight men. The freight conductors are said to be making more protest than the passenger ticket punchers, claiming that many trifling errors will be charged up to them that will materially reduce their salaries. On the Dakota it is said that ten conductors declined to furnish bonds and their resignations were effective Oct. 1. Between resignations and dismissals on the Great Northern it is said that a large number of men have gone out of the employ of the system of late. A St. Paul paper says that it is believed that the Great Northern is preparing for an anticipated strike. The "hobo" detective is said to be another disturbing element in the Great Northern trainmen circles. It is claimed that detectives have been employed to do the side door pullman act for the purpose of ascertaining if all freight conductors are faithful in observing the rules in regard to this class of travel.—Duluth News Tribune.

Goldbug Argument.

A professor of Columbia claims to be able to raise the dead. The Bryanites ought to get him to experiment on the silver issue.—Litchfield News Ledger.

Methodists Want No Canteen.

Northfield, Minn., Oct. 2—The Methodist conference adjourned today after adopting the following resolution:

That we deplore the fact that in violation of the moral and religious sentiment of the nation, the army canteen continues its infamous works.

That we protest against the Griggs decision as a flagrant violation of the plain intent of the anti-canteen law, and we earnestly petition President McKinley to exercise the additional power conferred upon him by the passage of said law, in the immediate abolition of the canteen.—Pioneer Press

Base Falshood.

One of the most contemptible political liars we ever knew publishes the following:

"The statement is made that Bryan, in deference to the wishes of eastern democrats, has assented to the proposition that the silver question will be held in abeyance next year and the campaign be made upon the question of imperialism. To this end Congressman Lentz will be sent to the Philippines to Consult with Aguinaldo. This action will be eminently proper and we hope that it may be carried out."

It certainly is strange that any person will so demean himself as to publish such falsehoods —Waseca Herald.

Hits Them Hard.

"Thus our usually fair friend, the St. Paul Globe, was led to declare the speech as stale and unprofitable," says Bro. Canfield of the Reform Press Bulletin when commenting on the action of the associated press, for not reporting Bryan's Chicago speech in full. Now Bro. Canfield, the Globe may be friendly to you and the state administration, but was always an enemy of Bryan and true democracy The Globe is trying to pose as a democrat by making national politics secondary to state issues. It is about time the democrats of Minnesota were awaking to the situation and crush out the two headed monster.—Norwood Times.

Passing of the Exposition.

Like the radiant glories of a summer sunset, or the resplendent liveries of the autumn forests, each a pathetic harbinger of approaching dissolution, stands today the beautiful white city on the banks of the Missouri river known to an admiring world as the Greater American Exposition. It, too is rapidly approaching its determination, for within the next few weeks this matchless creation of the architectural genius, the deft sculptor, the artistic gardener and the wizard of electricity will be but a cherished and dissolving memory. Few who have seen the marvelous beauty of architecture and stately proportions of its grand buildings, their courtly arrangement about the picturesque lagoon, the wonderful scenic grandeur of its parks and lawns by day and the peerless brilliancy of its nightly illuminations, have failed to reflect seriously upon the thought that soon this charming spectacle is to fade from human vision like the enchanting mirage of the desert. Today it stands as one of the most admirable and inspiring spectacles in all the world. The snows of winter will fall upon a barren field, for the exposition will have been torn away and the leased lands reverted to their owners. With the passing of this creation of almost celestial beauty will depart also the last opportunity likely to be afforded the people of this section to attend in their very midst a great exposition, at least for many years to come.

Webster's International Dictionary

Successor of the "Unabridged"

Standard of the U. S. Gov't Printing Office, the U. S. Supreme Court, all the State Supreme Courts, and of nearly all the Schoolbooks.

Warmly Commended by State Superintendents of Schools, College Presidents, and other Educators almost without number.

Invaluable in the household, and to the teacher, scholar, professional man, and self-educator.

THE BEST FOR PRACTICAL USE.

It is easy to find the word wanted.
It is easy to ascertain the pronunciation.
It is easy to trace the growth of a word.
It is easy to learn what a word means.

The Chicago Times-Herald says:—Webster's International Dictionary in its present form is absolute authority on everything pertaining to or language in the way of orthography, orthoepy, etymology, and definition. From it there is no appeal. It is as perfect as human effort can make it.

Ex-Speaker Reed.

There is no mistaking the following from Tom Reed, where he says:

"Some people seem to be afraid that these Filipinos will put their tongues in their cheeks at us. They have watched our failure as others have. I don't know how long it will be before the American people get tired of spending $50,000,000 a year trying to conquer these people, but it does not seem to me it will be very long. I can conceive that freedom is just as dear to them as it is to us and that they will fight for it just as long."

Tom seems to be about as much of a "copperhead" as the Herald.—Wabasha Herald.

THE delights of an evening spent around a well-lighted reading table are not half understood. An illustrated magazine with its wealth of illustrations, its stories of adventure and love, its descriptions of travel which carry you to the remotest ends of the earth, and its instructive articles for young and old—these are the first requisites for your own enjoyment and the entertainment and proper education of your children.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

Both Together One Year for Only $1.80

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. For three years The Cosmopolitan has undisputedly claimed that it reached the largest clientele possessed by any periodical, daily, weekly or monthly, in the world. It was The Cosmopolitan which sent Julian Hawthorne to India to let the world know the real horrors of famine and plague. It was The Cosmopolitan which established at its own cost a great Free Correspondence University which now has over 20,000 students on its rolls. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $3,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

TERMINAL LIGHTS.

Far out in midnight mists there shine
The Terminal Lights a glow,
That guide the trains in from the line
With many different flash and sign
Telling "fast" or "slow."

Oh how the 'sailors of the rail"
Watch the Terminal Lights.
When ending a trip, where the great wheels tread
In winter's frost or summers hail,
Down the weary nights.

When Heavens Terminals we see,
Shorter than our breath,
May all the lights dear shining be
And signal to us—"the way is clear,"—
Past the Vale of Death.

ED. E. SHEASGREEN.
Minneapolis.

PRESENT indications are that the next Presidential campaign will be fought out on much the same lines as that of 1896, and with McKinley and Bryan as the candidates

IN Rev. Savidge's book, "Modern Christianity", he says: "When men are good and honest and brave, we shall have Washingtons. When they are selfish and lawless, God will send Richelieus and Napoleons."

SOME papers are making a terrible fuss because Aguinaldo has been likened to Washington. But these same papers, for years, have been calling President McKinley, Napoleon. Surely the ordinary everyday American has his patriotism aroused much more readily by hearing the name of Washington than of Napoleon.

GOD in his infinite wisdom seems again to have favored the Filipinos who are fighting from patriotic motives to gain their freedom. This time a boat load of mules and horses bound for Manila, got into a typhoon and only 16 out of over 350 animals were saved. The mules were trained pack mules, and calculated to be very serviceable in helping our army follow the natives. Filipinos are firing on our men within four miles of the heart of Manila. This don't look very encouraging to people in this country to continue to try to take that country, after eight months fighting.

THE return of the 13th Reg. Minn. Vol. from the Philippines was celebrated in Minneapolis yesterday in grand style. Cheer after cheer welcomed them as they brought up the rear of the long procession. Thousands of friends from the country were on hand early to meet the boys. President McKinley and members of his cabinet, Gov. Lind and staff, and Mayor Grav and others rode in carriages in the parade. The day was fine and every available place on the front of most of the buildings was occupied by people watching the parade. The celebration was a grand affair. A number from Delano were in attendance.

REPUBLICAN speakers and papers, even members of the president's cabinet are at work trying to convince voters that there is not, and never has been, and that no man outside of a lunatic asylum wants an entangling alliance with England or any other country. If no man outside an insane asylum wants such an alliance, how came the news abroad in our midst that a movement of that kind was on foot? What did C. K. Davis, while sitting as a peace commissioner in Paris, mean by saying that the United States haven't a friend among the nations on the continent of Europe?

What did the Republican convention of '96, at St. Louis, mean when it resolved that "We are therefore opposed to free coinage of silver except by international agreement with the leading commercial nations of the world, which we pledge ourselves to promote, and until such an agreement can be obtained the existing gold standard must be preserved." Isn't that proof conclusive that an entangling alliance on money matters is what was wanted, or did they simply put that into the platform to deceive voters into voting with them just once more?

Another Sword Presentation May Take Place.

In the St. Paul Dispatch of Wednesday morning, Oct. 11, printed Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 10, appears a cut with the head of this article as explanitory note. It shows the political standpoint of the Dispatch, and as the Dispatch is a radical and rancid republican sheet, the political standpoint of the republican party and of "Napoleon" McKinley "the (modern) gentleman of destiny" and is enough to thoroughly disgust every loyal and patriotic American citizen.

The cut in question represents Uncle Sam presenting a sword to John Bull. Attached to the sword is a tag reading "Protection From Continental Intervention", thus implying that the United States, a republic, and a country of free people, will offer protection to England from European intervention, in her war with the Transvaal which is brewing, a war for pecuniary gain, subjugation, and the blotting out of a republic of free people; for the triumph of imperialism and the destruction of democracy; for the substantiation of patricians and the overthrow of the people.

This cut goes to prove assertions made, of Imperialistic aspirations of certain national politicians and others, and also to prove the fact that there are those outside of a lunatic asylum who have thoughts of "international agreement and entangling alliance", and also that the freedom of the American people is in danger.

In the revolutionary war our forefathers fought imperialism and expansion and gained their freedom as a nation. During that war there was a quite numerous, but most despised party, called Tories, who for selfish gain and want of any spark of patriotism, were willing tools of imperialism. During the civil war the word "copperhead" was an appelation given to all those who were in sympathy with the party striving to overthrow the republic and dissever the Union. Today there is a strong party of the bravest, truest, most loyal and most patriotic, who condemn our present imperialistic policy and sympathize with struggling Filipinos fighting for independence. These, the Dispatch and her like have bombastically been calling "copperheads", because as they say, they oppose the government, which is false, as it is merely a party. But those with imperialistic aspirations are seeking the overthrow of the Republic and are therefore "copperheads" and as they are in favor of imperialism in its place and sanction carrying on war against a people fighting for liberty, they are "Tories".

Imagine a republic with true democratic ideas standing shoulder to shoulder with a kingdom, in a war for the extermination of a republic. Look at a liberty loving and liberty giving people, champions of humanity, carrying on a war of extermination against people fighting for liberty.

A great change is perceptible in our government in its attitude towards oppression of the week by the strong. When such a cut can be published in a paper in the United States without arousing the indignation of all its citizens, it is a sign that patriotism and a love of liberty are giving place to baser passions.

Today's "copperheads" and "Tories" are a very treacherous foe,
Whose watchword is deceit, and whose aim is to overthrow
The republic of the people, and establish in its place
An empire, or a kingdom, and a man you call "his grace";
But there are hearts among the people that still are beating true
To liberty, democracy, republics and selfrule,
And the 'copperheads" and "Tories" must needs set an awful pace
For their "Gentleman of Destiny"—the man they'd call "his grace".

CAUSUS CONSCIENTIAE.

A Duty of the Press.

A free press is not only a bulwark of free government at home—it is the chief champion of liberty everywhere and for all men.

The press of the United States, which supported the aspirations of Kossuth, which nerved the arm of Garibaldi, which expressed our national sympathy with Greece, should not fail now to plead the cause of the two republics in South Africa, whose existence is threatened by Great Britain.

The voice of the united press, reinforcing the powerful petition to the President procured by The World, will leave neither Mr. McKinley nor the Government and people of England the slightest room for doubt as to public opinion in this country on the impending conflict.

If we have become a "world power" let the new power be invoked in the cause of Liberty!—World.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 12, 1899.

That Mr. McKinley is getting afraid of the Philippine question, and of imperialism generally, was shown by the announcement, practically official, made this week, that the administration had no further Philippine policy than to whip the Filipinos into submission and then turn the whole matter over to the Congress. This is clearly a republican trick, intended to affect votes in the fall elections. Mr. McKinley has not changed his imperialistic ideas; he has only become convinced of the necessity of making the majority in Congress, which he thinks he can control, responsible for the adoption of a permanent imperial policy. Perhaps he will tell those who will listen to the stump speeches he intends making from the rear platform of the parlor car in which he is now travelling about how he intends to leave this important matter to the wisdom of Congress, and perhaps he will bamboozle somebody with such stories, but it is very doubtful. The average American isn't an easy chap to bamboozle.

Admiral Dewey is a diplomat as well as a fighting man. He determined as soon as he heard about it that he would not join Mr. McKinley's political show in its flying trip to the west, and when they began hinting rather strongly to him that Mr. McKinley would like to have him do so, he quickly put a stop to it by accepting the invitation of the governor of Massachusetts to go to Boston on the 12th inst. It was a shrewd play on Dewey's part, as it gives the administration a strong hint that he doesn't intend to allow himself to be used as a vote getter.

When Boss Hanna was in Washington this week everybody noticed what a change had come over him. He no longer talked of the election in Ohio as a walkover for the republicans, but admitted that they had the hardest kind of a fight on their hands, and that McLean was a hard man to beat. His talk convinced those who heard him that the reports of his fright which have been coming from Ohio ever since he got back from Europe were not exaggerated in the slightest degree. He says he always fights best when scared. If that is true, he is now in the condition to put up the fight of his life.

News from the Philippines shows that the Filipinos are by no means idle while this government is preparing to crush them. They have been attacking our troops at several points this week with great vigor, with the same old results. We keep on licking them but they won't stay licked. Gen. Otis also wasted cable tolls to inform the War Department that there was nothing in his latest negotiations with the Filipinos. Nobody outside of the War Department supposed for a moment that there was.

Either Mr. McKinley must suppose that John Sherman has no friends left in Ohio or his enmity towards the old man has made him reckless of the consequences of putting a new indignity upon him. Sherman was in Washington, but no provision was made for him to participate in the ceremonies attending the welcome to Dewey, and he was not invited to the State dinner given at the White House in honor of Dewey. Three other ex-members of Mr. McKinley's cabinet—Gary, Bliss, and Alger—participated in the ceremonies and attended the dinner. This shabby treatment of Mr Sherman has been unfavorably commented upon, even by warm supporters of Mr. McKinley. It looks like trying to kick a man when he is down.

That the people seldom err in their judgement of men and things has been once more demonstrated, in Washington during Dewey week. Second only to the ovations given Dewey himself have been those given to Rear Admiral Schley every time he has shown himself where there was a crowd. The Navy Department clique may do what they please they cannot change the verdict of the people, that the principal honors of the War with Spain belong to Dewey and Schley.

The question of arbitration always strike those whose interests would be passed upon differently from what it does a rank outsider. In other words, most men will always agree that the other folks ought to arbitrate their disputes. Even ministers of the gospel share that bit of human nature. That is why there was quite a hubbub and a chorus of no's from the English minister's present when Rev. C. Cort, of Maryland, offered a resolution at one of the sessions of the Pan-Presbyterian Alliance, now sitting in Washington, declaring against war between England and the Transvaal Republic and that the dispute should be arbitrated. Every minister who spoke against the resolution declared himself in favor of arbitration on general principles, but he had some special reason for opposing it in this case. Among the delegates are ministers from both the countries named, and to a man they believe war to be unavoidable.

Late Literary News.

Under the title of "Christian Science and the Book of Mrs. Eddy," Mark Twain contributes to the October "Cosmopolitan" what is the most remarkable magazine article of the month, if not of the year. Twain discloses two phases of himself—the humorist and the keen, far sighted philosopher. He handles the cult a bit severely, perhaps, but he has his reasons for so doing and sets them forth most forcibly. His statement concerning Mrs. Eddy's book is characteristic. Of it he says, "It is the first time since the dawn of Creation that a Voice has gone crashing through space with such placid and complacent confidence and command."

The Greatest Issue Now.

Bourke Cochran is a single standard Democrat—either gold or silver—and supported McKinley in 1896. Recently asked as to what he considered the greatest issue before the country now, he said:

"It is the preservation of our republican form of Government. This will be affected by what we do in the matter of territorial expansion. First of all we must preserve and govern well the territory which we have already. I am willing to see annexed to the United States any land in which our present form of government can be established and maintained. That cannot be done in the Philippines. We have races enough already.—St. Cloud Times.

THE SATSUMA BOWL.

By M. B. Williams.

"WHERE on earth did you get that bowl?" Nelly Marshall said to old Mrs. Graves. She and her friend, Ellice Davidson, had stopped at the old woman's cottage on their return from a long, hot walk to get a drink of her cool well water.

As Mrs. Graves opened her cupboard to take out her one tumbler Nelly's curious eyes noticed on the top shelf a china bowl covered with dust, on which she pounced eagerly.

"That chiny bowl, is it, honey? Why, it was my mother's afore ever I was born, and she set great store by it. My father was a sailor, and he used to bring all kinds of queer things from his voyages. They're all gone but that one bowl, and somehow I've got it fixed in my mind that I won't have any good luck if anything happens to that bowl."

The two girls glanced at each other. Good luck and poor old Mrs. Graves seemed far apart. She was very old, and had survived all her family and friends. She picked up a wretched living by knitting and quilting. She owned the little cottage in which she lived, and with sturdy independence refused the charity of her neighbors, save during her attacks or rheumatism, which of late were frequent and severe. Everyone pitied and respected the desolate old woman.

"Well, what do you think of this?" Nelly breathlessly exclaimed, holding out the bowl, when Mrs. Graves had gone to the well.

"I see an old china bowl," laughed Ellice, "very queer-looking, and very dirty, and a little chipped at the edges."

"You see a genuine Satsuma!" Nelly said, impressively. "I question whether another such can be found in this country. Look at that diapering of dull gold at the base and edge, and those birds with outstretched wings in the center! Why, it's a treasure!"

"Is it?" Ellice answered, indifferently. "It just looks to me like a queer bowl. Very nice for a milk bowl."

"A milk bowl! You know I spent year before last with my aunt, Mrs. Davenport, in the city, and she and her friends were all deep in the study of ceramics. Aunt is a great collector of old china, and as she is very wealthy and a great traveler, she has some superb specimens. Why, she gave $40 for a Satsuma cup and saucer that isn't to be compared with this! One of her friends gave $300 for a pair of vases, and they were cracked. Oh, I'm an expert in china. I'd give anything in the world to own this bowl, and I'm going to have it, too! Hush! Here comes the old woman. Not a word to her of its value."

"Here's your bowl, Mother Graves," she said, handing it to her with an indifferent air. "It's very queer, and I would like to have it in my cabinet of curiosities. I suppose you wouldn't care to sell it?"

"Land sakes, no, honey!" laughed the old woman. "Who'd buy an old thing like that? I call it my luck bowl. It wouldn't be a mite of use to anybody but me, and it really isn't any use to me; but it's all that's left of my old life, and I think it would most break my heart to look in the cupboard and find it gone."

"Very well, Mrs. Graves, but if you ever change your mind and wish to sell it, let me have the refusal. I'll give you more for it than anyone around here."

As the girls walked home Nelly was silent and preoccupied.

"I'll have that bowl!" she cried out, suddenly. "Yes, it will be mine before many weeks. The old woman can hardly hobble about now, and it won't be long before she is laid up. That will be my time, and won't it be a triumph to show my aunt as fine a piece of china as she has in her whole collection—and at a bargain, too!"

Ellice looked at her friend in mute surprise. Nelly was a good girl, kind-hearted and humane, and yet she was exulting now that a poor, wretched creature should be tortured with pain, and laid up, helpless and hopeless, in order that it might give her an opportunity to possess an old piece of china! A mania for ceramics, she thought, was not likely to enlarge the sympathies or soften the heart.

"What will you give Mrs. Graves for the bowl?" she asked.

"Oh, a fair price. She'll think it more than fair. But of course I'm not such a fool as to offer even a quarter of its actual value. I couldn't begin to afford it. Don't look so grave, as if I were going to swindle the old woman! A pearl is only a pearl to one who knows its value, and to Mrs. Graves it is only an old, useless china bowl."

"But some one might give its value to the poor old creature."

"Now, look here, Ellice Davidson," Nelly cried, red with anger, "you talk as if I were going to take a dishonest advantage of the woman! Who would give 25 cents for it here? In this little out-of-the-way village the people have never even heard of Satsuma ware. Why, it will stay on that shelf till old Mrs. Graves is dead and buried, and then be thrown aside, or some old woman will keep her milk in it. No, I expect to get the bowl at a bargain, and my conscience won't trouble me if I take it."

"That's a matter between you and your conscience," Ellice said, quietly, and changed the conversation.

Nelly was correct in thinking the bowl would soon be in her possession. In less than a week Mrs. Graves sent for her. She found the old woman in bed in a cold room and suffering terribly from rheumatic fever. On a little table by the bed was a tumbler of water and a plate of food, sent in by some pitying neighbor.

"Seems as if that turns my stomach," she said, pointing to the food, "but it was mighty good in Mrs. Ives to send it, Jenny," to a little girl who had come in, "won't you pick up some chips and make a blaze, so you can boil some water and make a cup of tarragon tea? I'm just parching with thirst. Miss Nelly, I sent for you to tell you if you want that bowl I'll sell it. I'm too sick to work, and I haven't got a cent to buy medicine or firewood."

Nelly's heart beat high with delight.

"Certainly, Mrs. Graves," she said. "I meant what I said, and I'll give you what you ask for it."

"Do you think a dollar is too much?"

Nelly glanced at the abject poverty of the room, the poor old woman's pain-drawn face, and for very shame at herself blushed deeply. But the bowl must be hers.

"Mrs. Graves," she said, hurriedly, "I'll give you five dollars for the bowl, and here's the money." She took it out of her pocket.

"Five dollars!" exclaimed the old woman, in astonishment. "Miss Nelly, honey, I reckon it's because you want to give me the money. It ain't certainly because the bowl is worth half that."

"To me it is," Nelly said, hastily, with a sudden twinge of conscience, "and if I had more money I'd give it, but this is my last cent."

"Oh, I'm afraid you're paying high for just a whim! Please bring me the bowl, Miss Nelly, so I can tell it good-by before you take it away."

Nelly brought it to the bedside, and the tears were in the old creature's eyes as she took it in her trembling hands.

"It is all that is left me of the blessed old time. When I look at it I see them all—father, mother, husband and children, all lying in the churchyard. It was my wedding present from father, Miss Nelly. I remember the night I was married. Everybody wished me health and prosperity, but father, he says: 'Health and prosperity are mighty good things, but I wish for my children honesty and fair dealing with all the world.' Yes, those were his exact words. It is hard to part with the last thing I have of his." She pressed it to her quivering lips with a sob, and handed it to Nelly.

"Don't think I'm not thankful to you, Miss Nelly," she said, "because I'm sorry at parting with it. You have given me six times its value. God bless you! You've a kind heart. May God deal with you as you've dealt with a poor, desolate old woman!"

As Nelly hurried home with her treasure, these words kept ringing in her ears and beating at her heart. Somehow she did not feel as triumphant over the bargain as she had expected. But the next day she packed her bowl and took the first train for the city of New Orleans.

"Why, it's unique—it's worth its weight in gold, Nell!" her aunt cried, ecstatically. "Where did you pick it up? What did you give for it?"

"Oh, I got it at a bargain," was all Nelly would say.

There was a mettling of Mrs. Davenport's friends at her house that night to inspect the bowl. One of them, Mr. Wentworth, a gentleman of large fortune, whose collection of old china was one of the most costly in the United States, was enthusiastic in his admiration. "I never saw but one like this before, and it was in a private collection in Japan. It would be priceless if it weren't for that chip on the edge and that brown stain; but even as it is, it's worth $200 to any collector, and I'd be glad to give that or more to own it. If you ever care to part with it, Miss Nelly."

That night, when Nelly lay sleepless on her bed, the words of old Mrs. Graves kept ringing in her ears. "And he says: 'I wish for them honesty and fair dealing,'" and then the words so fervently spoken: 'May God deal with you as you've dealt with a poor, desolate old woman!"

When she rose in the morning her mind was made up. She told her aunt the story, concealing nothing of her own cupidity.

"And now, aunt," she said, "I look upon myself as only the custodian of the bowl. I am going to get all I can for it, and make, so far as I can, the poor old woman comfortable for the rest of her life."

When it was found that the bowl was for sale, the bidding was fast and furious among the collectors; but none went higher than Mr. Wentworth, and it became his property for $300.

The story of the destitute woman who had owned it became known in the circle, and another hundred was added to the fund for her support. When Nelly told Mrs. Graves what had been done, the old woman exclaimed, in devout wonder:

"O my blessed Lord, thou hast worked a miracle for me in my great need. I can't help crying, you dear, blessed girl. The tears are tears of relief, for you have lifted me out of the depths!"—Youth's Companion.

A Connecticut physician says that artificial hearts can be substituted for the real ones when the latter are worn out. He says the heart is a force-pump to send the blood through the veins and arteries and bring it back again, and that an artificial heart can be constructed to work automatically with clock work. He would join the arteries to the artificial heart, one at a time, and then remove the old heart. His explanation, however, is so mystified by scientific language that it is probably most people prefer the heart they are born with.

The "cigar bean" of Batavia is a wild fruit recently discovered in Batavia. The pod is like a cigar in shape and color, but only an inch long, and when put into water it rests on the surface for several minutes, then explodes like a torpedo, hurling the seed in all directions. If allowed to ripen in a warm place the pod gradually splits lengthwise from point to base. If left to ripen on the plant it splits open more suddenly.

CORNER STONE LAID.

New Federal Building in Chicago Appropriately Dedicated.

President McKinley Officiates—Premier Laurier of Canada and Vice President Mariscal of Mexico Witness Ceremony.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—In sight of thousands, on stands, in the street, in windows and on the dizzy heights of the towering buildings, the president of the United States on Monday threw the first trowel of mortar under the corner stone of Chicago's new federal building. The ceremonies were simple, but impressive, and were conducted without an incident to mar their solemn character.

President's Arrival.

Shortly before ten o'clock the president's carriage, drawn by four horses, appeared, President McKinley standing in the vehicle with his hat off, bowing and smiling to the cheering thousands. The familiar features of Gov. Tanner and Mayor Harrison were facing him. The salvos of cheers and shouts were tremendous. Next to the president, the governor and the mayor, the onlookers gave most of their applause to Vice President Mariscal, of Mexico, and Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Canadian premier.

The Ceremonies.

After prayer by Rev. Dr. Gunsaulus, and addresses by Secretary Gage and Postmaster General Smith, the contents of the box to be placed in the stone were read. Then President McKinley stepped forward and was handed the trowel filled with mortar. The president cast the mortar under the stone and Phinney's band played "America."

The president then walked back to his seat and the derrick men let the stone down in its soft bed, while cheer upon cheer went up from thousands of throats.

Secretary Gage then introduced United States Senator William E. Mason, who delivered an address.

At the conclusion of Senator Mason's address Secretary Gage announced the formal laying of the corner stone. The spectators arose at the first turn of the windlass. As the block descended there was an impressive silence and Dr. Gunsaulus invoked the Divine blessing on city, state and nation.

This was the closing event of the programme and the crowd was dismissed by Mr. Gage. The procession of national dignitaries from home and abroad left the grand stand and under escort of city detectives walked west on Jackson boulevard to the Union League club.

A SPLENDID PAGEANT.

Chicago Day Parade, with President of the United States at Its Head.

Before the eyes of the president of the United States, his cabinet and a host of guests of honor, including the premier of Canada and the vice president of Mexico; before a cheering multitude that packed the streets of the line of march, peopled roofs and filled windows with faces, the pageant climax of the fall festival, the Chicago day parade, took place Monday afternoon. Led by President McKinley, who received an ovation all along the route, the imposing procession wound through the streets, resembling lanes, between the gorgeously decorated sky-scrapers, rising like great, flaming towers, and through the splendid court of honor. Both war and peace contributed to the long, brilliant column that moved in martial fashion.

Grand Spectacle at Night.

While the pageant of the afternoon was most brilliant and memorable, it lessened in no degree popular curiosity and interest in the grand spectacular show of the festival, the parade of all nations, which started at eight o'clock at night. The Chinese dragon was the most popular feature. It was 300 feet long, carried by 200 men and emitted fire, and this section showed a lavish use of money as well as a great deal of thought and time. Led by a platoon of 50 police officers, the United States section came first. Its float was Columbia, representing the original 13 states, brilliantly illuminated. The sections following presented floats typical of life in the various countries: Germany, Venezuela, Switzerland, Brazil, The Netherlands, Austro-Hungary, Scotland, Armenia, Assyria, Belgium and China.

AT THE BANQUET.

President McKinley and Others Deliver Short Addresses.

Chicago's great Auditorium, which has been the scene of so many notable events, never held a greater gathering than Monday night, when the Chicago day banquet was held within its walls.

The material part of the banquet occupied nearly two hours, and it was almost ten o'clock before Toastmaster Stone rapped for order, and brought the intellectual part of the programme to the front in a brief address, at the conclusion of which he introduced Gov. Tanner, who, in a short address, welcomed the visitors on behalf of the state of Illinois. After he had concluded, Mayor Harrison, of Chicago, and Senator Shelby M. Cullom, of Illinois, were introduced in succession by Mr. Stone, the former extending to the visitors the welcome of the people of the city of Chicago, and the latter greeting them on behalf of the federal officials of Illinois.

Following the address of the president, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, of Canada, was announced to speak on "The Dominion." The greeting which was accorded the premier of Canada as he rose to his feet was hearty in the extreme. Cheer after cheer rang through the hall, men rose to their feet and waved their napkins frantically.

The welcome extended to Sir Wilfrid Laurier was repeated when the next speaker, Vice President Mariscal, of Mexico, rose and spoke in answering to the toast, "The Republic of Mexico."

Secretary Long responded to the toast "The Navy." "The Glories of the Grand Army of the Republic" were dwelt upon by Col. D. B. Henderson, of Dubuque, the next speaker of the national house of representatives. The last address on the regular programme was by Gen. Thomas M. Anderson, U. S. A., commander of the department of the lakes. After the conclusion of Gen. Anderson's speech short addresses were made by Gen. Wesley Merritt and others.

CALLED FROM EARTH.

Death at Mount Pleasant, Ia., of Ex-United States Senator Harlan—Sketch of His Career.

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 5.—The death of ex-United States Senator James Harlan occurred at his home in Mt. Pleasant, Ia., at 9:35 Thursday morning. The end was not unexpected, a collapse having taken place last Sunday. The immediate cause of death was congestion of the lungs, complicated with liver trouble. Over-exertion in attending the sessions of the Iowa Methodist conference last week aggravated his maladies and caused prostration. His daughter, the wife of Hon. Robert T. Lincoln, of Chicago, was summoned from New York city, and was present at the bedside.

[James Harlan was born in Clarke county, Ill., August 25, 1820. He graduated at Indiana Asbury university in 1845 and became a lawyer. He was elected the first superintendent of public instruction of Iowa in 1847; was president of the Iowa Wesleyan university at Mount Pleasant in 1853. He was United States senator from Iowa from 1855 to 1865; was secretary of the interior in Lincoln's second cabinet, 1865-66, and was again United States senator from Iowa from 1868 to 1873. In 1882 Mr. Harlan was appointed chief justice of the court of commissioners of Alabama claims, which position he held four years.

EX-SENATOR JAMES HARLAN.

In 1893, he was called from retirement to act as temporary chairman of the republican state convention. As such officer he made a speech which had a tremendous influence in checking the threatened bolt of prohibition for practical local option. He was a candidate for the republican nomination for governor in 1895, but his age was against him. He also served as a member of the Iowa soldiers' and sailors' monument commission, and was prominent in the councils of the Methodist church. Senator Harlan's wife died in 1884. She was a remarkable woman, and during the civil war did much to alleviate the sufferings of the union soldiers.]

A SALT TRUST.

National Salt Company Said to Have Almost Absolute Control of the Country's Product.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 6.—The Free Press says: The National Salt company, of New Jersey, capitalized at $12,000,000, has secured control of the salt industry of this state, and now has almost absolute control of the salt product of the entire country. Seventy per cent. of the Michigan salt manufacturers belonged to the Michigan Salt association, the output of which the trust is purchasing outright. The plants which did not belong to the association were dealt with separately, and are being leased by the trust for a period of five years. These blocks throughout the state which it is not necessary to operate are being closed temporarily, perhaps permanently. The "outside" plants still retain the right to manufacture what is called "patent medicine" salt, viz.: A high grade table product, with which the trust is not interested. It is considered likely that the National Salt company will not place a manager in this state, but will handle the product directly through its agents. Nothing is known of the prices paid by the combination for the Michigan plants.

TRADE REVIEW.

Condition of Business as Reported by Dun—Effect of the Dewey Demonstration.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: "The grand demonstration in honor of Admiral Dewey effectually stopped business of most kinds for two days at the chief city of the country, and yet the remaining transactions of the week would have excited wonder a year ago. At New York, where the interruption was greatest, payments through clearing houses exceeded $1,059,000,000 in four business days, a record never before approached, and outside New York the gain reflects a great expansion in the volume of that kind of business which does not depend on exchanges. It has been a week of remarkable monetary changes here and elsewhere. The Bank of England raised its rate 1 per cent. before and one-half per cent. more after its weekly statement, from 3½ to 5 per cent., with the hope that the outgo to New York might be checked, but the Bank of Germany lost also and raised its rate to 6 per cent., and the Bank of France lost heavily. While high rates were paid here for money required in speculation, no stringency embarrasses any branch of legitimate business, and the stock market has held up surprisingly.

"The merchandise exports from New York have been in four weeks $31,202,622 in value, against $22,748,494 last year, which with the increase in manufactured exports and in cotton exports from other points insures an enormous outgo for September, while the increase in imports at New York has been about $9,500,000 in value, apparently not enough to reduce the excess of exports for the month below $30,000,000."

Liberia in Danger.

Berlin, Oct. 6.—The Deutscher Colonial Zeitung in an editorial on Liberia says: Liberia must necessarily soon cease to exist. France and England are both indulging in machinations to annex the country. Liberia is of the greatest value to Germany, especially the Cameroons. Two-thirds of the Liberia firms are Germans, and Germany must therefore see that she gets a share of the territory or the whole.

Land Grant Troubles Settled.

Denver, Col., Oct. 6.—A special to the Republican from Trinidad, Col., says the Maxwell land grant trouble was settled Thursday through the efforts of State Senator Casimir. The settlers concede the title of land to the grant company, and the latter allows them to keep their homes on a liberal rental system, and agree to at once begin extensive public improvements.

Big Contract for Mules.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 7.—Agents of the British government closed a big deal in the local horse market Friday when they contracted for 1,200 head of mules to be shipped on Monday next to New Orleans, presumably for transportation to South Africa. The contract calls for sound mules 13¾ to 14½ hands high. The price is not stated.

FILIPINOS DEFEATED.

In a Battle Lasting Over an Hour They Are Finally Forced to Retreat.

Manila, Oct. 10.—Monday afternoon a body of insurgents was seen near La Loma church, four miles from the heart of Manila. They opened fire, the bullets falling among the tents of the Twenty-fifth infantry. The Americans manned the trenches and replied at a range of 1,200 yards.

The fight lasted over an hour, after which the insurgents retreated. One American was wounded.

Gen. Schwan's column, consisting of the Thirteenth infantry, a battalion of the Fourteenth infantry, two troops of cavalry, Capt. Riley's battery, of the Fifth artillery, and Lowe's scouts, continued the advance Monday towards San Francisco de Malabon, meeting with little resistance and suffering no casualties. The enemy fell back steadily.

Schwan's forces have entered San Francisco de Malabon. No resistance was encountered.

Manila, Oct. 10.—Maj. Bell, with 120 picked men of the Thirty-sixth regiment, made a reconnaissance Monday in the direction of Florida Blanco, four miles out of Guagua, and encountered a body of 100 insurgents, whom they routed, capturing a lieutenant and three armed privates. Near Florida Blanco they met another body of insurgents and routed them, capturing another armed lieutenant and one private. Returning with 20 scouts, Maj. Bell encountered the enemy a third time. The round reconnaissance resulted in scattering the insurgents in that locality.

Washington, Oct. 7.—A cable message from Gen. Otis to the war department Friday brings word of the loss of several hundred horses and mules on the transport Siam. The message follows:

"Manila, Oct. 6.—Steamer Siam, which left San Francisco August 19 with 45 horses, 328 mules, encountered typhoon 1st instant, northern Luzon, in which all but 16 mules lost. Animals killed by pitching of vessel and lack of air from necessary closing of hatches. No casualties among passengers.

"OTIS."

It is stated at the quartermaster's department that the mules which were lost on the Siam were the trained pack mules which were considered the most valuable sent to the Philippines.

DEWEY ACCEPTS THE HOME.

Glad to Receive It as a Gift from the American People—Wants It Furnished.

Washington, Oct. 7. — Admiral Dewey has elected to accept a house in Washington, already constructed, instead of having one built for his occupation. He frankly expressed his gratification at the tender, which he immediately accepted. He said had the proposed home been the gift of a few wealthy men he would feel indisposed to accept it. But he noted that the fund had over 43,000 subscribers, indicating that the home was to be really the gift of the American people, and as such he would accept it with as much pleasure as he had the sword bestowed upon him by congress.

He expressed his ideas as to the character of the home he desires, and asked that the house be modest enough in appointments and cost to permit of the retention of a sufficient sum of money from the purchase fund to defray the expense of furnishing it.

SOUTHERN INDUSTRIES.

A Long List of Manufacturing Plants Established Since the Beginning of October.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Oct. 10.—The more important of the new industries reported by the Tradesman during the week ended October 7 include a bagging factory in Texas, brick works in Alabama, a construction company in East Tennessee, a cornice works in Alabama, three cotton mills in North Carolina, electric light plants in Alabama, Tennessee and Virginia, a furniture factory in North Carolina, a handle factory in Alabama, hardware companies in Georgia and Louisiana, a heading factory in Tennessee, iron mines in Alabama, a $75,000 lumber mill (rebuilt) in East Texas, a knitting mill in Alabama, nail works in North Carolina, a $100,000 naval stores company in Florida, paint works in Virginia, a sash, door and blind factory in Alabama; a sugar refinery in Florida; a $200,000 tobacco stemmery in Kentucky, a twine and plow line mill in North Carolina.

Women Denounce Roberts.

New York, Oct. 7.—In the crusade against the seating of Congressman-elect Roberts, of Utah, inaugurated last winter, a representative gathering of New York women on Friday passed resolutions of protest addressed to congress and congressmen-elect. Miss Helen Gould led the movement. The occasion for the adoption of the resolutions was a meeting of the American Female Guardian society at the home for the friendless.

Boycott Practically Ended.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 9.—The boycott against the Big Consolidated railway system, caused by the strike of the operatives, is practically at an end. Nearly all the omnibuses operated by the strikers have ceased running, and the street railway men's union has issued a bulletin requesting all the labor unions to rescind the orders imposing fines on members found riding in Big Consolidated cars.

Great Demand for Lumber.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 7.—A special from Duluth says: In two days this week about 10,000,000 feet of lumber were shipped from here in vessels, something that probably breaks the records of all lumber manufacturing centers. Local lumbermen are preparing for a cut of 800,000,000 feet the coming season for mills in the Duluth district.

Forty Drowned.

London, Oct. 10.—Forty persons are reported drowned, according to a special dispatch from Naples, by floods, following severe rains, in the province of Salerno. A number of small villages and factories have been destroyed. Troops have been sent to the relief of the inhabitants.

Jockey Killed.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—J. Boyd, a well-known steeplechase rider, was killed at Hawthorne Monday by his horse striking against the wing of the hurdle, turning a complete somersault and crushing Boyd.

"What's in a Name?"

Everything, when you come to medicines. A sarsaparilla by any other name can never equal Hood's, because of the peculiar combination, proportion and process by which Hood's possesses merit peculiar to itself, and by which it cures when all other medicines fail. Cures scrofula, salt rheum, dyspepsia, catarrh, rheumatism, that tired feeling, etc.

Talmage and the Compositor.

"Many years ago, when my sermons first attracted the attention of city editors," said Dr. Talmage in a recent conversation, "you reporters used to make me fume and fret, but since I have come to know you better I have transferred my wrath to your adversary, the compositor. My eyes were opened when, after annoying blunders in print, I determined to report my own sermons for a certain New York morning paper. It chanced that the first time I reported myself I was preaching a sermon on the Penitential Psalms, in which sermon I said, with emphasis:

"'You will notice that in these verses the name of God does not appear once. Is not this significant?'

"Calm and confident that this time the sense of my sermon would not be distorted by careless reporting, I picked up the paper on Monday morning and read:

"'You will notice that in these verses the name of God does not appear once. Is not this magnificent?'"—Philadelphia Saturday Post.

THE PEOPLE THEMSELVES

WILL FURNISH THE SINEWS OF WAR, FOR THE FIGHT OF 1900.

Innovation in Political Campaigning. Corporate Wealth to Be Ignored, and the Dollars of the People Will Make Next Year's Campaign—The National Democratic Committee Takes Up the Work in Minnesota—Let Every Man Pledge His Mite—Other National Political Points—State Political Affairs. Complete Roster of Those Executing the Game and Fish Laws—Twin City and State Capital Points and Gossip.

Reform Press Bureau.
ST. PAUL, Oct. 9, 1899.

The presence in Minnesota of Hon. A. W. Thomas, Chicago, accredited representative of the ways and means of the Democratic National Committee, is a matter of the utmost importance to the reform cause. It is the first move in Minnesota for the battle of 1900.

Mr. Thomas has covered large sections of the Northwest and the Pacific coast, has met with cordial interest everywhere. There is no time nor space here to say more than that he is ably carrying out the National Committee's plan originally known as the Harvey plan, for raising campaign money among the people themselves. It is the dollar a month subscription plan, which has thus far proven a success.

In this work there is the same co-operation of all the allied forces which fought together in '96, and which won the fight in Minnesota last year, as there is every reason to expect there will be in the great battle next year. All the possible resources that the people can command will be needed, as the trusts and the combines will pour out their millions against the peoples' cause at the command of Hanna, as they did in 1896.

During the present week Mr. Thomas is prosecuting the work in the Twin Cities, after which he will visit the chief cities of the state. No words can too strongly commend his work to the people. We bespeak for Mr. Thomas a cordial reception by all friends of the cause.

The head of this work, as at present organized, is Hon. S. B. Cook of Missouri, who is in charge of the ways and means work, with office at 1044 Unity Building, Chicago. He succeeded Mr. Harvey, who is out in the field, still in the work, his enemies to the contrary notwithstanding.

In organizing the Minnesota work Mr. Thomas would emphasize the fact that co-operation with all the reform forces is earnestly aimed at. The national committee and its sub-committees would act with the state comittees, and these in turn with their local or other co-operating forces. In this way only, dropping all partisan distinction, but relying on the earnest support of the people themselves, can we hope to succeed in the work or to win.

"Sharp Eye on Gold," is a Twin City headline of a gold paper. Yes, sharp eye on the Wall street panic, where, under the gold standard cornerings of the money market, money has been as high as FORTY PER CENT during the past week. Who is there who does not know that with free coinage a corner in money would be impossible?

"Stand and and deliver" is the trust demand on almost every solitary business in the land, in some one or more lines. The American Anti-Trust league recently had representatives go through New York manufacturers, as to the effect of trusts on the commodities, with the result that of 500 house visited, not one was found WHERE ANY COMMODITY CONTROLLED BY TRUSTS HAD BEEN REDUCED IN PRICE, but each and every other had been increased all the way FROM FIVE TO ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY PER CENT. The list, given alphabetically, included brooms, envelopes, enameled ware, builders' hardware, iron beds, copper wire, chairs, furniture, flour, glass and glassware, iron products of all kinds, iron wire, especially barb wire, nails, steel goods, knit goods, photo paper, plumbers supplies, rubber goods, ranges, shoes, spools cotton, salt, stoves, tinware, wall paper, etc., through a great list.

Oh, yes; trusts reduce prices, in a horn. Reduce them when necessary to kill some concern that holds out of the combine, but as soon as the competitor is strangled up go the prices and out go the men and salesmen that can be dispensed with, out into the cold, cold world. Down with the trusts.

Say. The Thirteenth's home.

Let this be perfectly understood. If President McKinley discovers the lack of enthusiasm running through the people, while in the Northwest, he must not charge it to lack of respect for the high office he holds, but should know that it is divided between disgust at the pin headed managers of the affair who could not refrain from showing partisanship in its management, and belief that McKinley is dead wrong in his Philippine policy.

And make no mistake. It is the reception to the Thirteenth that is the feature of the occasion, and not the presence of Mr. McKinley.

"McLean will be the next governor of Ohio," writes a well posted Ohioan on the Buckeye situation. United labor seems entirely on our side, owing, as the same authority states, to Republican and Democratic attitude in the great Hocking Valley strike. McKinley, as governor, sent carloads of soldiers to break down the union, while John R. McLean sent carloads of flour and groceries to relieve the destitute.

Hon. William Banquet Baldwin, Minneapolis, has his plans for the Bryan banquet next winter already under way. It is proposed to gather all the leading Democrats of the whole Northwest at the biggest banquet affair ever produced in the United States. And Mr. Banquet Baldwin is the man to do it.

It seems, from an unreported incident of the Chicago trust convention, that J. C. Hanley, of Ours, brought down the house in the course of his speech. He said that he had had a two hours talk with McKinley about trusts, and Mc told him that the trusts should be under control, and then said that if the people would only have confidence enough to return him to power, "he would father the necessary laws."

Roars of incredulous laughter greeted this statement, and a voice called out to Mr. Hanley, "Why doesn't he do it now?" And then they all laughed some more. In fact the people nearly all know when to laugh. McKinley and the Republican party controlling the trusts? 'Twould make almost any animal giggle.

Appeal to Reason: "There is one thing only to do. The public (government) must erect competing plants and employ the people and sell the goods to the people at cost. Against such stores and factories the trusts will be helpless."

Our friends should not be misled as to results of taxation reform in the corporation franchise tax got through the board of equalization by Governor Lind. The situation was that, since the decision opening the way was only made in April, there could be no application of the principle until it had been before the state board. The only case to which the application could be made, as a test one, was the Lowry street railway properties, concerning the just taxation of which the friends of taxation reform had made so long and so consistent a struggle in Ramsey county. All that could be done by the governor and the board was to apply the principle in the selected case. This having been done it will be the duty of the county assessors next year, under instructions of the state auditor, to list each and every corporation in the state applying the franchise tax principle.

It will go without saying that if this be faithfully done the result will be that millions on millions of corporation capital will be brought to their just burdens, that have hitherto entirely escaped taxation.

That will be a reform record worth going before the people on in 1900 in this state, should there have been nothing else.

The record that is being rounded up by the new game and fish department, at the head of which is Hon. John Beutner, executive agent, makes of interest the list of those officials associated with Mr. Beutner in such successful discharge of duty. It is the universal testimony of those in best position to judge, that the state's fish and game department was never before so efficiently conducted. There may be less of daily comment or "puffs" of the office, but out in the field where the work is being done, it is managed most efficiently, as shown in daily official and other reports.

Fish and Game Commission:

A. T. Williams, president, Minneapolis.
Jacob Danz, second vice president, St. Paul.
W. W. Ward, secretary, Fairmont.
A. L. Cramb, treasurer, St. Cloud.
S. J. Donnelly, attorney, St. Paul.
Executive agent, John Beutner Proctor Knott.
Agent's secretary, James Rooney, Duluth.
Superintendent of fisheries, W. H. Morgan, St. Paul.

Deputy Game Wardens:

Henry Myerding, St. Paul; James Donaghue, Minneapolis; P. O. Stephens, Detroit; N. B. Chase, Brainerd; Charles D. Hanley, Park Rapids; William Byrnes, Graceville; Joseph Arth, Forest Lake; Henry Rehbein, Duluth; George Kinney, Tower; J. E. Bouvette, Hallock; Herman Nootnagel, Brandon; L. B. Bartow, Chowen; Cecil Sharpe, Fairmont.

The following are the commissioned wardens, given by congressional districts:

First District—F. G. Corveneaux, Austin; N. C. Jenson, Albert Lea; F. H. Lolor, Winona; Henry Roberts, Waseca, and J. H. Keenan, Blooming Prairie.

Queerness of Men.

It's a wise child that knows its own father when it sees him out in company.

It doesn't take much of a man to tell how a thing ought to be done. The one who does and does it deserves the praise.

The man who goes to church may not enjoy the sermon, but he generally goes home with a good appetite for the Sunday dinner.

It is claimed by some people that baldness indicates great brain power, but the makers of alleged hair restorers keep on getting rich.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Too Many.

Hoax—Newed must have been surprised when the nurse showed him the triplets.

Joax—Yes; he could hardly believe his census.—Philadelphia Record.

In Technical Terms.

A reporter fell on a slippery pavement the other day. He did not use "unparliamentary language," as some would have done, but bit his lips, rubbed down the bruises, and, with a benevolent smile radiating his countenance, remarked:

"We don't cherish any ill will, but for entertaining reading matter commend us to the obituary notice of the man who ought to sweep this pavement."—Tit-Bits.

What He Had.

Guest—What have you got?

Waiter—I've got liver, calf's brains, pig's feet—

"I don't want a description of your physical peculiarities. What you have got to eat is what I want to know."—Boston Traveler.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

The Fair Was Profitable.

The profits of the last state fair are over $20,000, the exact amount not being ascertainable antil all the bills have been audited. The books now show a balance of $23,000.

The record is a brilliant one, showing that the fair has been the most successful in the state's history. Last year's fair closed with a balance of $5,672.87.

The total receipts were $91,876.74, derived from the following sources:

Balance from 1898, $5,672.87; state appropriation, $4,000; entry fees, $200; stall rent, $755.50; forage, $814.45; privileges, $5,084.60; race account, $116; miscellaneous receipts, $4,561.14; railroad tickets unaccounted for, $6,653.

The total receipts from tickets, including railroad tickets, for which settlements have not yet been made, are $61,879.20. As last year's receipts from the same source were $36,951.75, there is an increase in this item of $24,927.55.

The expenditures already foot up $68,000, and will be more than $70,000, the chief items being: Premiums, $14,527.73; races, $14,077.25; permanent improvements, $5,954.97; attractions, $7,730.18.

The chief increases in receipts were in tickets and sale of privileges.

Frogs.

Minneapolis has become the largest primary frog market in the world. The total receipts of frogs and frog legs in the city for the current year will be somewhat in excess of 200,000 dozen, which means that 2,400,000 croakers have paid the extreme penalty. The business has reached such proportions that an army of men now depend upon frog catching throughout the state for a livelihood. It is said by frog connoisseurs that the Minnesota article is vastly superior to other brands in points of flavor, and for that reason eastern and southern epicures have a great preference for it. One large firm handles the business exclusively. While the receipts from the business did not exceed $1,000 five years ago, they will run close to $15,000 now. Swell restaurants in New York, Chicago, Cincinnati and other cities have standing orders for so many dozen per day.

Fell from a Window.

Julius Hartneck, of Morgan, went to Springfield, and after looking for his sister, who is the wife of Jos. Schleif, went to the hotel to stay for the night. Mrs. Schleif has been gone from her husband some time. During the night a policeman found the body of Hartneck by the side of the hotel building. Upon investigation it was found that Hartneck had fallen from a second story window and received severe bruises in the head and body. He was taken to the village lockup, where he was cared for.

Fell from a Plow and Killed.

A farmer named Frederick Martin, living in the town of Foran, about 10 miles south of Wells, was killed by falling under a sulky plow. He had been driving the team on the plow and was going to the house for dinner. His son and a hired man went in ahead of him, but when the old man did not come they went to look for him. They found him dead under the plow. The pole was broken and the horses had run away.

News in Brief.

Two Chinese laborers entered the state at St. Vincent, but were apprehended by United States custom officials and are now in their custody.

While Ottie Darges and Abram Anderson, two small boys at Little Falls, were quarreling, young Darges stabbed Anderson with a pocket knife in the right breast. Young Anderson is in a precarious condition.

The board of regents of the state university has materially increased the salary of President Northrop. He has been receiving $6,000 per annum from the state. Hereafter he will be paid $625 every month instead of his former monthly stipend of $500.

A flock of 10,000 sheep arrived at New Brighton, to be fed during the winter.

State Auditor Dunn has sent notices to county auditors that the state's levy this year is 1.4 mills for the general fund, the lowest in 15 years. Last year, and for several years previous, the levy was 1.5 mills. It has not been as low as that since 1884, when the state called for 1.3 mills. The lowest levy was 1.1 mills in 1881.

The Philippine War.

This contest is proving much more stubborn than we had anticipated. It needs a vigorous contest to straighten matters out. We should tackle the Philippines and overcome them as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters does dyspepsia, indigestion, malaria, fever and ague, and liver and kidney diseases. The battle is short and decisive, and for fifty years the Bitters have always won. If you are ill, and don't know what's wrong, try it.

Motto of the Siamese Nation.

Have you heard the motto of the government of Siam? And having heard it, have you repeated it? And having repeated it, have you caught its purely personal application? And having caught it, have you tried it on your friends? This is the motto: "Ah Wa Ta Nas Siam." It sounds unintelligible nonsense, but keep saying it over as long as you can and as fast as you can and you will discover at last that the eastern patois has a western sense that aptly classifies many a remorseful subject of Uncle Sam. For "Ah Wa Ta Nas Siam" is easily evolved into "Ah, what an ass I am."—Chicago Chronicle.

Honest Methods Win.

This is a fact that sometimes is overlooked in these days of hurry and scramble, but it is a fact none the less. The success of the John M. Smyth Co., Chicago, whose advertisements are appearing in this paper, is a marked illustration in point. A tremendous business has been built up by this firm strictly on its merits. Good goods properly described and offered at a very low price, the unlimited capital of the firm enabling it to buy on extremely advantageous terms. See the striking advertisement elsewhere in this issue and write the John M. Smyth Co., 150 to 166 West Madison St., Chicago, for its mammoth catalogue. Every family should have it.

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS FREE.

One of the Grandest Offers Ever Made.

The first five persons procuring the Endless Chain Starch Book from their grocer will each obtain one large 10c package of "Red Cross" starch, one large 10c package of "HUBINGER'S BEST" starch, two Shakespeare pictures, printed in twelve beautiful colors, as natural as life, or one Twentieth Century Girl Calendar, the finest of its kind ever printed, all absolutely free. All others procuring the Endless Chain Starch Book will obtain from their grocer two large 10c packages of starch for 5c, and the beautiful premiums, which are being given away. This offer is only made for a short time to further introduce the famous "RED CROSS" starch, and the celebrated "HUBINGER'S BEST" cold-water starch. "RED CROSS" laundry starch is something entirely new, and is without doubt the greatest invention of the Twentieth Century. It has no equal, and surpasses all others. It has won for itself praise from all parts of the United States. It has superseded everything heretofore used, or known to science in the laundry art. It is made from wheat, rice and corn, and is chemically prepared upon scientific principles, by J. C. Hubinger, an expert in the laundry profession, who has had 25 years of practical experience in fancy laundering, and who is the first successful and original inventor of all fine grades of starch in the United States. If you would have the best, ask for "RED CROSS" and "HUBINGER'S BEST," which are the finest starches on the market to-day. The jobbing houses all handle it, the retail grocer has it on his shelves, you find it in all the homes, while the careful housewife has adorned the walls of the home with the beautiful Shakespeare pictures, which are being given away in introducing "RED CROSS" and "HUBINGER'S BEST" starch.

SAFE COUNSEL FOR SICK WOMEN

EVERY woman suffering from any female trouble can be helped by Mrs. Pinkham. This statement is based on sound reasoning and an unrivalled record. Multitudes of America's women to-day bless Mrs. Pinkham for competent and common-sense advice. Write to her if you are ill. Her address is Lynn, Mass. Absolutely no charge is made for advice. "I suffered seven years and would surely have died but for your help," writes MRS. GEO. BAINBRIDGE, Morea, Pa., to Mrs. Pinkham. "It is with pleasure I now write to inform you that I am now a healthy woman, thanks to your kind advice and wonderful medicine. I can never praise it enough. I was a constant sufferer from womb trouble, and leucorrhœa, had a continual pain in abdomen. Sometimes I could not walk across the floor for three or four weeks at a time. Since using your medicine, I now have no more bearing-down pains, or tired feelings, and am well and hearty. I shall recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all my suffering friends as the greatest remedy for all female weakness."

MRS. SUSIE J. WEAVER, 1821 Callowhill St., Philadelphia, Pa., writes: "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I had inflammation of the womb and painful menstruation, and by your advice I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Have taken four bottles and used one package of Sanative Wash and feel like a new woman. I thank you so much for what your medicine has done for me."

MRS. M. BAUMANN, 771 W. 21st St., Chicago, Ill., writes: "After two months' trial of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I can not say enough in praise for it. I was a very sick woman with womb trouble when I began its use, but now I am well."

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, Oct. 13, 1899.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Dr. Niven at Waverly, Oct. 26 and 27.

—Dr. J. S. Shrader has a bran new barn on the rear of his second street lot.

—A few cases of pinkeye have been reported among horses in this vicinity. Be on the lookout for your teams.

—Charley Flannigan, late of the Philippines, came up on last nights train to Waverly. His parents met him in the city.

—A few flocks of ducks have been chased up and down the river this week by numerous hunters; but it seems hard to get a shot at them.

—Some of the Watertown band boys came over Sunday and practiced a few pieces with our band boys preparatory to the 13th Reg. reception on Friday, the 13th.

—A meeting of the 13th celebration committees was held at the City Hall Tuesday evening. Arrangements were reported as moving on toward a splendid celebration.

—Philippine soldiers of Delano to be welcomed home to day are Jenner P. Chance, George Dyer, Elmer Erickson, George B. Kurtz, William Steffes, of Co. I, and Alva G. Catlin, of Co. B. 13th Minn. Vol.

—Farmers are making good use of the fine fall weather to get in their crops and do their fall plowing. Now is the time to do these things, for it want be long till winter comes and things will be frozen up.

—Grand preparations have been made for the reception of the boys of the 13th today in Delano. People from a distance began arriving this morning very early; the day bids fair to be fine and the welcoming home a grand success.

—Rev. J. L. Farber has been assigned to Cedar Mills and Spring Grove for next year. Rev. J. R. Davies, Excelsior. Rev. J. L. Parmeter, Brooklyn Center; R. R. Atchison, Forest Heights, Minneapolis; Duluth Lester Park, J. W. Powell.

—W. D. Freeman has a new fangled "Col. Seller's stove" which he proudly exhibits to all visitors. He claims it is a wood sayer and much more pleasant to operate than the old fashioned affair, and just as satisfactory as a cooker or heater.

—Rev. Charles Thayer, of Minneapolis, preached last Sabbath afternoon and evening at the Presbyterian church. Arrangements have been made for a student of Macalester to preach at Rockford and Delano. Next Sunday services at 10:30 A. M. at Delano, and in the evening at Rockford.

—We have been authorized to give notice that Rev. A. F. Thompson, M. E. preacher, appointed by the last conference to the Delano circuit, will hold services Sunday morning at the Montrose church, Sunday afternoon at Watertown, and Sunday evening at Delano.

—A large number of Delanoites visited Minneapolis yesterday and witnesed the parade and demonstrations on the home coming of the 13th. All the Delano boys were in their places in the ranks, Jenner Chance bringing up the rear with the tattered and torn red cross flag of the hospital corps.

—It is a wonder some enterprising individuals do not start a pork packing establishment here. Many hogs are marketed every fall, and in fact all the year round. It seems as if they could be killed and packed as well and as cheaply here as any other place, thus adding to our village another paying industry.

—While in Omaha recently, Ye Editor called on an old friend of his, Rev. Charles W. Savidge and had a splendid visit. Rev. Savidge is one of the leading preachers of that city, and pastor of the People's church. He is also the author of several good books. A copy of one of his latest "Modern Christianity" he presented us with. We have read it through and find much that is good.

—One of the City Dads has intimated that perhaps Oak street might be vacated in the near future. Our village already has Second street vacated across the R. R. track and allows Fourth street to remain unopened. If now they begin to close up the thoroughfares, gravelpits, etc., in the other direction surely people will have a fine time getting about town.

—Street Commissioner Welker and crew have, this week graded up the ground for sidewalk on Bridge street from 2nd to 3rd, and incidentally graded down the alley back of Miss Whites' property. If they would continue their grading up the alley from Bridge street to R. R. Ave. it would make that thoroughfare a much pleasanter place to travel in wet weather than it is now.

—Some people appear quite indifferent about reporting births and deaths occuring in their families. Sometime when they wish to get possession of an inheritance or perchance a pens on and it becomes necessary to refer to the public records they will wish they had complied with the law and had their family record kept straight. Or if they shou'd be obliged, as the law provides in such cases to pay a fine, perhaps they would be more careful.

—Dr. Niven at Delano, Oct. 28.

—Quite a number from Delano attended the funeral of A. Y. Eaton, at Buffalo, on Wednesday. Many more would have gone had the weather been fine.

—A new drain was put in this week, along the south side of Bridge street between 3rd and 2nd streets. It was a much needed improvement, and we hope that it will effectually obliterate all signs of the quagmire that formed at the end of the alley between those two streets, afrer every little rain in summer or thaw in spring. It may also prove of some service in preventing the formation of a gully down the middle of the hill and a ditch across at the bottom. If it will do these things it is a most commendable improvement.

—Yesterday morning at about 4:30, two trains carrying one batallion of the 13th reg, consisting of the companies from Redwing, Stillwater, St. Cloud, and Co. L, of Minneapolis, passed through town on their way to St. Paul. The trains were vestibuled and made pretty fast time through town. The regular passenger was late, and was crowded with passengers going to Minneapolis to see the parade and was followed in a few minutes by a long excursion train also heavily loaded. A considerable crowd boarded each train here.

Thirteenth Minnesota.

The people of Delano and vicinity did themselves proud to day in their reception of the boys who returned from Manila. The Buffalo band, the Hanover band and the Delano and Watertown band met the boys at the depot. Forty old soldier; school children with flags, the boys from Manila and others were in line. A rousing dinner for everybody; singing, music and speaking the presentation of a badge to each of the returned soldiers and a warm welcome and a general good time served to make the day one of the greatest in the history of our village.

Personal.

A. F. Corey is teaching in Stockholm again this winter.

Dr. Connelley, of Rockford, was a Delano visitor Tuesday.

J. W. Mounts, of Rockford, attended the Delano fair last Saturday.

William Hawkins and family, of Hassen, spent Sunday with Delano friends.

Mrs. W. C. Batdorf and children returned home from Lake Minnetonka, Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Zook, of Minneapolis, visited at the home of Frank A. Cramer this week.

Mrs. Joe Lindsley returned home Tuesday evening from a protacted visit with Ohio friends.

John Sleight and family drove over Sunday with his daughter Lotta, who is attending the Delano school.

Mrs. Lillie Smith, of Omaha, came up last night for a short visit and to help welcome home the 13th.

Swan Erickson came home from Bermidji Tuesday evening. He reports the Delano colony there flourishing.

Miss Edna Coffin, of St. Peter, is in town today attending the celebration, and visiting relatives and friends.

John Lenz, of St. Michaels, drove over to attend Delano Fair last Saturday. He thinks of spending the winter in California.

Mrs. William Hawker and Mrs. Rev. J. R. Davies returned Monday morning from Minneapolis where they attended M. E. conference.

Dr. Niven.

will be in Waverly, Oct. 26 and 27 and at DELANO October 28. All kinds of dentistry. Painless extracting.

Lost.

A valuable ring on the streets of Delano, a few days ago. The finder will please leave at the office and be rewarded.

County Cullings.

And now we have it straight. "John Lind was elected governor because he relegated to the rear the silver question of 16 to 1 in his campaign last year, and he will be wise enough to see that it is not to prominent in 1900".—French's Monticello Times.

The M. E. conference at Minneapolis distributed preachers for this section of country as follows: Litchfield district, J. B. Hingeley, Presiding Elder Annandale and Grace church, Roderick Murray; Armstrong, Rockford and Mound City, to be supplied by W. C. Hodgson; Buffalo and Endeavor, J. W. Valentyne; Cokato, Dassel, and Lake Jennie, supplied by John Doran; Delano, Montrose and Watertown, A. F. Thompson; Howard Lake and Smith Lake, J. F. Pickard.

Honest Men In Politics.

So scarce have honest men in politics become, that many say no politician can be honest and succeed. And when one looks about him and sees the honest men who have started out to win honor or position honestly, and have been shelved, switched off the track by intriguers and tricksters, it is rather discouraging. And then to see others, once considered honest, now truckling and trading and trafficing with those supposed to have influence for their assistance at the next election; throwing party principle to the dogs, so long as a few votes can be made for their individual advancement it does look, sometimes, as if that is the way it must be done But tricksters get found out. The people are not so easily fooled as they once were. The game has been played too many times, and under the Australian system a voter can mark his ballot for the man of his choice. He can, if he knows the nominee of his own party has by trickery obtained the nominatin, cast his vote for his opponent. The trouble then comes in that the political manipulators succeed, often, in getting men nominated against each other, for the same office in each party, between whom there is little or no choice. The way to obviate this difficulty is for honest, intelligent voters to attend all primary elections and vote for delegates to county convention who will be sure to help select none but good men as candidates for any office. In this way and in this way only can the tricksters be beaten and competent men nominated for office. Do your duty.

Among Our Exchanges.

World: From the American standpoint the Boers are right, and Americans should have the courage to so declare.

Aitkin Republican: What has become of Col. Bryan? He seems to be completely "faded" since Dewey arrived in the United States.

Pioneer, Ida Grove, Iowa: Ida Grove will see the largest crowd on the 14th of this month that she ever saw. It will be Bryan Day. The crowd that witnessed Ringlings circus was not in it in comparison to what this one will be. Everybody regardless of politics will be glad to see Bryan.

Anoka Herald: The Herald takes particular pleasure in quoting in another column the hearty and manly endorsement of Judge Giddings by the Cambridge Independent, a paper which opposed his election last fall. It is gratifying to know that the judge is giving such general satisfaction and his supporters and friends are glad to hear at least a portion of the opposition acknowledge their error.

Duluth News Tribune: The newspapers that do not approve of Theodore Roosevelt have been raking him for several days past because he seems to entertain the idea that he had something to do with making Dewey an admiral. On this point, Dewey's testimony is at least admissable. The admiral remarked to Teddy on board the Olympia: "You are the man who sent us to the Philippines. I owe everything to you, and I want to tell you, governor, that you are the only visitor I've had for whom I've turned out the men." Later while entertaining his visitors he said: "I want to propose the health of the man who had more to do with making me an admiral than any other man in the United States—Theodore Roosevelt."

Waseca Herald: The rejection of that car of oil by deputy inspector Hanley, at Janesville, has created quite an excitement among the oil magnates. It appears that this is the first rejection of oil in the state for a long time, although for years the "stuff palmed off as oil," has not compared "for burning qualities with 'hog grease'". The oil company sent one of their head men from Indiana to look after the matter and take an appeal to the state inspector. The result is that Mr. Hanley has been sustained in his test. The oil company is now trying to get around the matter by mixing the rejected oil with a higher grade. This matter of illuminating oils is one of great importance, and our law is very lax and difficult of enforcement; still the oil inspectors, by rigid and careful inspection, may do much to improve the quality of oil. Gov. Lind's administration is certainly on the right track so far.

DIED.

EATON.—At Buffalo, on Sunday, Oct. 8, A. Y. Eaton, aged 57 years, 3 months, and 5 days.

ALCINIUS YOUNG EATON was born in Columbia county, Ohio, July 3, 1842. Attended the common school, Beaver Academy, and graduated at Mount Union college in 1867. Taught Latin and Greek at Wyoming Academy, Deleware, for three years; graduated from Ohio Law School in 1870. Traveled in Texas, and over a part of South America. Practiced law in Texas. He returned to Ohio, then to Minnesota, locating at Delano, in 1880, where he taught school and afterwards practiced law. He was County Attorney of Wright county, and in 1886 was elected State Senator and again in 1888.

He moved to Buffalo in where he married Miss Nerissa Walker. There he was President of the village, and a member of the school board, and editor of the Buffalo Journal. He was an able speaker, a fine conversationalist and a man of warm friends. He belonged to the Masonic and I. O. O. F. societies.

He leaves a wife at Buffalo, and a sister in Ohio, and a host of friends wherever known to mourn his death.

The funeral was held at the late residence of the deceased, and was under management of the Masonic fraternity; Rev. Valentye participating. Large numbers of I. O. O. F. from neighboring lodges were in attendance. The remains were laid at rest in the Lake View cemetery.

COPYRIGHT 1898 BY COSMOPOLITAN MAGAZINE

THE delights of an evening spent around a well-lighted reading table are not half understood. An illustrated magazine with its wealth of illustrations, its stories of adventure and love, its descriptions of travel which carry you to the remotest ends of the earth, and its instructive articles for young and old—these are the first requisites for your own enjoyment and the entertainment and proper education of your children.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

Both Together One Year for Only $1.80

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. For three years The Cosmopolitan has undisputedly claimed that it reached the largest clientele possessed by any periodical, daily, weekly or monthly, in the world. It was The Cosmopolitan which sent Julian Hawthorne to India to let the world know the real horrors of famine and plague. It was The Cosmopolitan which established at its own cost a great Free Correspondence University which now has over 20,000 students on its rolls. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $3,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.

St Paul Dispatch

25c per month for Daily. 75c per year for the Weekly.

The St. Paul Dispatch is the best Twin City daily; it has no equal in the Northwest as to size or quality.

The DISPATCH excels in Northwestern news, having a correspondent in every Northwestern town.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

"SAMPSON ON DEWEY" is the head line of a half column article going the rounds of the press. The public would much prefer reading about three lines of Dewey on Sampson.

THAT fellow that hung Aguinaldo in effigy at a point along the line of march of the 13th in St. Paul, expecting to hear rousing cheers for his "patriotism" from the returning boys probably felt better before the 13th marched by than he did afterwards.

FROM the rumblings along the railroads and from other sources, it sounds as if the coming fall elections will occur about the time of one of the big gest strikes our country has yet seen. Nothing like having an issue of sufficient importance to override the silver question, in the eyes of the gold bug.

OTIS is reported as having cabled that he thinks the war in the Philippines ought not to be brought to a speedy conclusion "as the natives are fast becoming sick of independence." Who wouldn't fast become sick of the Otis-McKinley independence? Perhaps the object of the war is to make every body sick of independence, so that they will help to seat Emperor Napoleon?

AND now it's Switzerland, the land of William Tell. And as an excuse for terminating treaty relations with that patriotic little republic, some one has offered, that some insurance companies have been legislated against by different states of the Union, hence the necessity of terminating treaty relations. What else will they find as excuses to wipe all republics off the face of the globe?

THOSE fine horses that were used to haul the Presidental party about Minneapolis last Thursday would have looked better to most people if they had not had their tails bobbed off so short that they could not keep the flies off themselves. And the party would have lost no respect in the eyes of the people if it had been pulled about by horses that had not been trimed up to ape those of Monarcial Aristocracy. Americans want no monarchical manifestations even in the trimming of the horses that haul their servants about the country.

INTOXICATING liquors seem to be the worst foe many of our soldiers have to face. In fact it is rapidly coming to be admitted on all hands that the drink habit is the greatest curse of our land today. And it is claimed by the prohibitionists that whenever President McKinley would say so, the curse would be eradicated from our army. This is not denied, but good Methodist brethren are apologizing for him that he dare not antagonize the whisky element by enforcing the law of the land on this subject. How weak.

PRESIDENT MCKINLEY has been making speeches in western states thanking the boys for remaining in the Philippines when their time had expired, and claiming that the officers and men had notified him that they would remain until a new army was organized to take their place. When they were offered travel pay to reenlist for six months, and refused to take it, preferring to come home, it looks as if the president had been misinformed as to the public sentiment of the men. One returned volunter has suggested that Otis must have sent the president that news if he get it.

THE Minneapolis Tribune has a cut of "President McKinley has expanded considerably on his trip through the west." The picture represents the president of the United States bloated out so that his clothes are entirely too small for him. The picture of our president never ought to be made to look like that. It is wrong. But there is an idea expressed. The present head of our government has "grown too big for his breeches". Come to think of it he was elected by citizens of the United States to administer their laws, not to go tinkering with foreign lands and making laws for peoples of all shades and conditions thousands of miles away, collecting taxes from them to send our boys over there to be killed off.

ST. CLOUD had a big time this week with the meetings of the Woman's Club Convention and the Minnesota Libary Association at the same time. The City has been well advertised.

HON. C. A. TOWNE had a warm reception on his return home to Duluth from Europe where he has been traveling. He has been asked to be the nominee for Congress from the Sixth district again he is the right man al right.

WOULDN'T it be a great scheme to have President McKinley who is carrying on a war against the Philippine inhabitants arbitrate between England and the Transvaal? And then Queen Victoria could do us a like favor between the Philippines and the U. S. Wouldn't that be an easy way to rid the world of Republics or republican tendencies.

Came to Us.

John H. Peyton, sent on an investigating tour to the Philippines by Bishop Doane, chairman of the Episcopal board of domestic and foreign missions, returned the other day from his trip, and is reported to have unburdened himself as follows:

Without any qualifying exceptions the Tagalos are the most religious people I ever saw or read of; and the contrast was rather pronounced when he added a few moments later: There are 45,000 American troops on the island of Luzon. I cannot give figures, and it is not needful to do so. The United States has in and around Manila at this moment, or had when I left a few weeks ago, 45,000 drunkards, rakes, and gamblers. Of course there are exceptions, but they are not worth mentioning. The statement is sufficiently accurate. When American troops landed in Manila there was only a saloon or two in the whole place, and this one or two bore respectible names; were nothing at all like what we know as saloons. Manila is today a hell hole. There are 430 or more saloons, typical places of the western frontier, or worse, and, as I live, the saloons are more respectable than are many of the other places within the city which Americans have either planted or keep alive by their support."—Litchfield Independent.

Does the president then claim that the canteen came to us too.

Have We Got the Philippines?

Ex Gov. Alva Adams, of Colorado, in his speech at the late Democratic meeting in Texas said:

I am opposed to McKinleyism and militarvism but I am not ready to defy Aguinaldo or to recognize in him a second George Washington. I favor ending this war, and that speedily. The Spaniards killed 350 men in battle but incompetency has killed 3,500 men in the Philippines and the blame and responsibility for this slaughter, this ruthless murder of brave Americans must rest where it belongs. The question is, have we got the Philippines or have they got us?

Not of Our Seeking.

President McKinley, in his speech at Madison said:

"My fellow citizens, the Philippines came to us not of our seeking. None of us ever dreamed when this war commenced that we were to have either Porto Rico or the Philippines. We went to war for civilization and for humanity, to relieve our oppressed neighbors in Cuba. I was one of those that held back till the last moment, hoping that war might be averted. I did not want to involve my country in bloodshed. But the war came and a few of those who wanted it are now trying to shirk its responsibilities. Man plans but God Almighty executes. We cannot avoid our responsibility. There was no fault in the victory; there must be no halt in upholding it. We have got the Philippines and our flag is there."—Duluth News Tribune

Two Prices for Peace.

The President's commission to the Philippines secured peace and harmony with the Mahometan Sultan of Sulu and permission to fly our flag on his coast on these terms:

1. Recognition of his Sultanship.
2. Retention of slavery and polygamy, the twin relics of barbarism, as "recognized institutions" in the Sulus.
3. An allowance by the United States of $250 a month to the Sultan and $510 a month to nine of his chiefs for the maintenance of their satrapy, their harems and their slave drivers.

This may be thought by "disloyal" and "carping" critics a high price for peace. But what did we offer Aguinaldo and his civilized and Catholic followers as our best terms of peace?

1. Unconditional surrender and unqualified recognition of the "sovereignty of the United States."
2. Military government.
3. "Benevolent assimilation"—a fine name for the Ohioizing of the Filipinos.

Why this vast difference in the two prices offered for peace in the Philippines? And why should a barbaric satrapy, cursed with slavery and polygamy, get so much better terms than our former allies at Manilla, who Admiral Dewey says are better capable of governing themselves than are the Cubans?—World.

Mr. Bryan at His Best.

In defending American principles and denouncing the wrong, the hypocrisy and the danger of McKinley's Archbeck imperialism Mr. Bryan is at his best, no man now before the people can match the splendid eloquence, the biting irony, the blistering invictive and the pitless logic of Mr. Bryan's speeches on this subject.

At Keokuk he swept away the whole defence of McKinley's war in the Philippines with this single sentence:

Must we keep these islands because Dewey sank a Spanish fleet? Schley sank one, and we promise to free Cuba.

To the Chadbandish cant that the Hanna-McKinley purpose in the Philippines is to elevate and improve the inhabitants Mr. Bryan scornfully replied:

Republicans give three reasons for imperialism: Money in it, God's in it and we are in it. When I find a man who has been trampling the rights of the people here I don't believe he is going across the ocean to be good.

Speaking on this question Mr. Bryan carries the people with him. What a pity we could not have had a straight vote on this square issue! -World.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 12, 1899.

Senator Jones, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee returned to Washington this week, entirely restored to health. Since his arrival he has familiarized himself with the political outlook and says that the situation in Kentucky, while somewhat involved, is not serious and that he is confident Goebel will win. Ex-Senator Blackburn, who was in Washington several days this week, says he was never more certain of anything in his life than that Goebel will be the next governor of Kentucky. Senator Jones says that all the information he has had from Ohio has been decidedly favorable to democratic success in the State, and gave this plain talk for the benefit of the kickers in the party: "I consider it the duty of democrats everywhere to stand by the nominees of the party and not to indulge in factional fights. The principles which the candidates represent are far more important than any squabbles among the local politicians, and the defeat of the standard-bearers in this campaign will have a harmful influence in stopping the furtherance of national issues."

Speaking of the proposed removal of headquarters of the National Committee from Chicago to Washington, Senator Jones said it was a matter that would be left largely to the judgement of Vice Chairman Johnson, who has had charge of the committee affairs for some months. Of the general outlook Senator Jones said: "Nationally the democratic party is in the best of shape. We have the best of it on all the issues. We are opposed to trusts, and we shall put ourselves on record as being against them. The anti-expansion sentiment is growing every day, and the people know that the democratic party is consistent in its opposition to imperialism. I can only reaffirm the position which was taken before I went away. I cannot see how a man can believe in the Declaration of Independence, and at the same time clamor for the subjugation of a people who are fighting for freedom. The war in the Philippines is wrong in principle and will prove costly in its prosecution. Silver will not be overshadowed by the other issues before the public. It is as vital as ever, and the arguments in its favor have lost none of their force simply because there are other questions also to be considered." Senator Jones will go to Arkansas in a few days, to remain until Congress meets.

Wall street operators always know that when a republican administration is in power they can count upon assistance whenever their manipulations create a stringency in the money market. Consequently they never hesitate to create a stringency if thereby they can secure a profit. It is the old old story and nobody was surprised at the official announcement, made this week, that the U. S. Treasury had once more lent its aid to the money sharpers of Wall street by deciding to anticipate the payment of the interest upon the entire public debt for the remainder of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1900.

The plans of the administration in the Philippines have not been entirely successful, because the condition of the roads, which have been fully set forth since the abolishment of the press censorship, have made the intended military movements during the present week comparative failures although the men have been through hard-ships they are not likely to forget. Although Otis tried to carry out the orders, which were expected to bring results to justify Boss Hanna's claim that the war will soon be over; insinuations are being thrown out in administration circles about his having been too precipitate in trying to move troops with artillery and supply trains before the roads were in better condition. Otis hasn't any admirers to spare outside of the War department, but there is a general disposition to object to his being made a scapegoat because of his inability, from natural causes, to carry out orders which never would have been issued except for Hanna's report that something must be done to arouse some administration enthusiasm in Ohio.

The war between Great Britain and the Transvaal Republic seems likely to result in giving the commander of the South Atlantic Squadron a prominence that was not thought of when Admiral Schley was assigned to that position. One of the ships of that squadron—the Montgomery—has already been ordered to South African waters to look out for American interests, and it is said at the Navy Department that the Chicago, which will be Admiral Schley's flagship, will follow as soon as she can be got ready to make the trip, which will be in about two weeks. When Schley starts on that trip he will carry the good wishes of thousands, who would like to see him win new honors, and who know that he will do so if the opportunity offers.

AUTUMN SONG.

The stubble fields are growing brown,
The leaves are falling, falling,
And in the edges of the wood,
The quails are calling, calling;
The oak is scarlet on the hills
In autumn's dreary weather,
And bonfires of the golden-rod
Light up a leaf-besprinkled sod
Where asters, hazy as the skies,
To low, still winds lift dreamful eyes,
And russet ferns are whispering low
To all the fading things that grow
In wayside nooks together.

The ripened nuts are dropping down
In slow and tuneful patter,
And all through woodlands ways we hear
Brisk squirrels chirp and chatter;
They watch their harvest as it falls,
While plaintively the plover
Among the stubble seeks to find
Something that summer left behind,
And bluebirds, from their empty nest,
Make little flights to east and west,
And seem to sing of falling leaf,
And summer, with a reign too brief,
Among the dry brown clover.

The flowers of happy summer days
Are dead by roadside hedges.
Save some belated daisy blooms
Along the meadow's edges.
Oh, sad, sweet season of the year,
In spring's bright balmy weather,
When larks come back to build and sing,
And high in heaven the bluebird's wing
Is flashing in the sun, as he
Drops down a rippling melody,
With all sweet things that disappear
At this still twilight of the year
Come back again together?

HELD UP FOR THEIR FARES

The Only Way the Conductor Could Collect from a Train Load of Lumbermen.

A GROUP of railroad men sat together one day last month on the cool and airy office balcony of the Union depot in Detroit. They were conductors and engineers for the most part, though some of them had seen service in many branches of railroading. As they smoked and chatted and listened to the puff puff of the engines and the clanging of bells in the yard below they were reminded of mishaps and adventures that had befallen them or their acquaintances in the course of many years on the road. As their cigars grew shorter their stories grew longer and stronger, until one wound up a lurid tale bristling with shining pistol barrels, flaring torches, frightened passengers and masked bandits in a midnight setting on a lonely Nebraska prairie.

"Well," said the Old Timer, when the silence following this recital began to grow oppressive, "you can talk about the wild and woolly until your tongue is tired, but I'll tell you there was a time right here in Michigan when we trainmen had customers to deal with that would simply have telescoped and derailed all the reckless highwaymen west of the Missouri."

"When was that?" asked the former speaker, dubiously.

"That was along some time after the war, say, in the early seventies, and the place was up in the woods in the northern part of the lower peninsula. Those were the days when the great lumber camps were in the height of their glory. A single railway track ran up into the heart of the forest, and was used all winter for hauling logs and freight. Men went up into the woods in the fall of the year and came out in the spring. These were about the only occasions upon which a passenger train went up into the wilderness.

"It was all right taking the lumbermen up in the fall. That was easy. They were dead broke, perfectly sober, and as quiet and orderly as a Sunday school class just before Christmas.

"But coming home!

"They were the most obstreperous passengers a conductor ever had to collect fares from. The way those wild-eyed woodmen coming out in the spring would pile into the cars and scramble through a train would take the nerve out of most any conductor in the United States to-day. They were just like a band of schoolboys just let out for a lark, only ten times more dangerous. Their pockets were stuffed with greenbacks and whisky flasks. They shouted and fought, cursed and sang out of pure high spirits. They were good-natured, as a rule, and only anxious to get home and spend their money, but any show of restraint upon their actions or movements would plunge them instantly into an ugly and furious temper.

"There was a conductor working for the Detroit, Lansing & Northern in those days whose name was McLaughlin. He was a professional wrestler before he took to railroading, and was considered one of the best in the country. He was a man of fine physique, strong, lithe and over six feet tall. He it was whom they sent up to the camps to bring the lumbermen home, and as he never failed to collect at least three-fourths of the fares he was looked upon as a wonder.

"The log rollers came to know him in time and had great respect for his prowess. They looked for his coming in the spring and sometimes arranged friendly bouts between Mac and whoever happened to be champion scrapper of the season.

"But there came a spring at last when Mac did not appear. He had left the Detroit, Lansing & Northern railroad and gone west. I think he now runs on the Northern Pacific railroad out of Minneapolis. In his stead the wondering lumbermen now saw a medium-sized man that in no respect resembled the muscular and giant framed Mac, swing off the train when it slowed up at the station in the woods. The new conductor was Johnny Hall, who had been sent out to do the best he could in Mac's place.

"The passengers to be immediately proposed to themselves what they thought would prove a humorous and agreeable pastime. Every man jack of them agreed not under any circumstances to pay his fare to the new conductor. So they boarded the train in high glee at the prospect of a free ride home.

"Meanwhile John Hall had not failed to notice a few signs which, when he remembered the evil repute in which his passengers were held by all railroad men, gave an ominous look. He walked forward and spoke a few words to his engineer. 'You can't get back to civilization a minute too soon, Steve,' he said. 'Jerk her through the woods for all she'll stand.'

"It was just nightfall when they pulled away from the lonely station and plunged into the gloom of the forests of hemlock, pine and tamarack that lay before them for 150 miles. Johnny Hall started at once to collect his fares. He appeared at the rear end of the last coach with his punch in his right hand, his lantern hanging from his left arm and one burly brakeman alongside of him.

"There was one husky woodchopper in the last seat. 'Fares, please,' said Johnny.

"'Fares be darned,' said the passenger.

"The other passengers continued their conversations or gazed unconcernedly through the windows into the black night.

"'Pay your fare or get thrown off the train,' said the conductor, in even tones.

"Like a gladiator waiting for the word, the unruly passenger prepared to spring upon his victim. He half rose from his seat, when something happened. The pliers which the conductor carried in his right hand suddenly met the passenger between the eyes and he tumbled to the floor. It was blow for blow, and Johnny Hall knew better than to let his antagonist get in the first one.

"'Cover 'em, Bill,' he said, and the big brakeman instantly whipped out two murderous looking colts and turned them on the astonished occupants of the car. Nobody stirred while he sung out: 'Anybody that tries to leave this car is a dead man. Keep your seats.' All kept their seats, and everybody paid his fare, too. No one had any arguments that could stand up against the muzzles of two loaded guns, and once having paid they wanted to see everyone else pay, too, so they made no interference.

"In the second car no one knew what had happened in the first. But the moment the two men stepped inside and the door slammed behind them, the eyes of everyone there caught sight of the two revolvers. In the twinkling of an eye the hand of the man in the first seat reached his hip pocket. But before he could draw it away Johnny Hall's lantern had circled the air and came down with terrible force, flooring him instantly.

"'Throw up your hands,' shouted the brakeman at the same moment, and all the other passengers in the car had a race to see who could get his hands up over his head first. They went through the car from the last seat to the first and got every fare in cash.

"After that Johnny came to the conclusion that it was a waste of time to stand upon ceremony. So the first intimation the occupants of the remaining car got of the advent of the conductor was the sharp command hurled at them in stentorian tones: 'Throw up your hands,' and the sight of two loaded pistols turned point-blank upon them. The conductor would ask each one how far he was going, take his money out of his pocket, make the right change and put it back. Then he would pass on to the next.

"And that is the story of how Johnny Hall held up his own passengers. Steve, at the throttle, was jerking her through according to orders. They smashed along through the woods, tore across lonely swamps and rattled over shaky, wooden bridges. Red flames shot out of the smokestack into the dark night and the cars lurched from side to side as they banged along.

"Johnny Hall continued on the road many years and became one of the most popular conductors in the state, and it was only the other day that he made his last run; and I know that John Hall was plucky to the end, for a braver man never ran a train out of Detroit."—Detroit Free Press.

Latest News

London, Oct. 20.—The Daily News Capetown correspondent says: It is rumored here that news has reached De Aax Junction that the Boers attacked Mafeking in force, but were repulsed. The defenders, seeing the enemy retreating, pursued them for some distance.

Then a feint was made, and they commenced to retire on the town, allowing themselves to be driven in by the Boers, who, eager to retrieve their position, again advanced to the attack and were drawn over kidite mines laid for the defense of the town.

It is reported that 1,500 Boers were killed by the explosion.

President McKinley completed his western trip and arrived in Washington yesterday afternoon. He will at once begin work on his message to Congress.

The Chicago Platform.

"That platform to my mind, is like Jefferson's first inauguration adress—not for a day but for a generation. I do not expect to live long enough; I—and I am a young man—I do not expect to live long enough to see the Democratic party withdraw from that platform a single plank put there in 1896 (wild cheers).—William Jennings Bryan in his Dallas, Texas, speech.

Suite Against Settlers.

FERGUS FALLS, MINN., OCT. 20.—A great many farmers in this section are very much alarmed over the action of the Northern Pacific Railroad Co. the legil department of the road having instituted suits to secure possession of certain lands, patents for which were issued to settlers by the general government some years ago. The company claims that it never received the amount of indemnity land to which it was entitled and that the land offices were in error in issuing patents to the settlers. Fifteen cases were filed in the district court in this city Wednesday. A meeting of those interested has been called for October 28 to see what action can be taken in the matter. The lands involved are some of the best in the country and an adverse decision would mean the loss of a great many fine homes.—The Minneapolis Tribune.

The Dewey arch in New York will remain as it is for one year, provided the relic hunters do not carry it off.

Three lion cubs recently added to the menagerie at Central park, New York, have been named Dewey, Olympia and Manila. That is certainly a hard combination to beat.

Sometimes it takes thousands of dollars to develop a first-class race horse, but when a man does secure a flyer the animal is a regular mint. Flying Fox, the horse that won the English Derby this year, has won $150,000 in stakes this season.

The papers of Iowa contend that the cornfields of the state look finer and better than those of Kansas. The way to test this, says the Chicago Tribune, is to select samples from the fields of both states, stand them side by side and let the cornstalk.

A Roman camp has just been discovered on the banks of the Narenta river in Herzegovina. A section 330 feet long by 270 feet wide has been traced, and part of the walls, gates and towers are still standing, and many tools and weapons have been dug out of the earth there.

Young Cornelius Vanderbilt, it seems, gets only $10,000,000 from his father's estate. This is because he insisted on marrying the girl he wanted and not the one his father wanted him to have. We have a great admiration for a young man who will put up with $10,000,000 for the sake of the girl he loves.

In order to advertise his occupation a citizen of Avondale, N. J., has had printed some cards which read thus: "Thomas P. Daly, justice of the peace, commissioner of deeds, notary public. Conveyancing done accurately at low rates. Wills written. Parties married or sent to jail with neatness and dispatch."

In the district court of Minneapolis Kate Acker was recently given a divorce, with the right to resume her maiden name, which was Kate Schafrankowa. In rendering decision the judge said: "Decree of divorce will be entered with costs assessed to defendant, and plaintiff is allowed to resume the name of—of—the one she asks for."

Katie Foy, a laundry girl employed in a big laundry in Wilkesbarre, Pa., was terribly burned on the arm a few days ago. She has 15 girl companions in the laundry, and when volunteers were asked to give a piece of skin from their arms for grafting upon her burned member, every one of the girls offered herself. The survey of the island of Porto Rico, now being made by the United States authorities, demonstrates that in such matters the Spaniard knows but little. The Spanish surveys are very unreliable, and the island is being found to be much smaller than shown on the Spanish records. For instance, the Spanish survey shows that it is 50 miles from Ponce to Port Viento, while the actual distance is but 43 miles.

Liquor sometimes makes a great slave of a man. Martin Dutton, of Poughkeepsie, offered his son, Gould M. Dutton, $5,000 if he would take the Keeley cure, $5,000 more if he would remain sober a week, and $10,000 a year as long as he never touched a drop of liquor. Young Dutton has begun to take the Keeley treatment, and he says he is through with liquor forever. Dutton has an attractive young wife, but at present they are living apart because of his affinity for liquor.

An Italian newspaper gives a list of the various persons and their nationality who have been canonized or beatified by the Church of Rome during the last 400 years. It will be noticed there were no saints from Great Britain nor the United States.

At the meeting of the international geographical congress held in Berlin recently it was proposed that an international census be taken in order that the world's population might be determined. Prof. Keltie, who introduced the resolution, said that it was a discredit to the nineteenth century that the estimates of the number of human beings on the earth vary from 100,000,000 to 200,000,000. It might be gratifying to know just how many people inhabit the earth, but we hardly believe it would be worth the $1,000,000 that the world's census would cost.

In spite of the craze for cutting which has infected the medical fraternity for years it is reassuring to note that some members of the Mississippi Valley Medical association still doubt the advisability of cutting a man open the moment he has a pain under his right-hand lower vest pocket—that locality being the approximate stamping ground of appendicitis. As one delegate said, the patient may merely be suffering from the ordinary stomachache of commerce and it would be inadvisable to open him up and send him a bill for $500 merely because of a few green apples.

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

Advices from Apia say that the natives have proclaimed Tamasse as king, despite the recent agreement of the United States, Germany and Great Britain to abolish that office.

With a scouting party Maj. Cheatham encountered a force of rebels strongly intrenched at Montinlupa, near Manila, and drove the rebels from their position. In the engagement three Americans were killed and two wounded.

In the Orange Free State martial law has been proclaimed and British subjects have been warned to leave at once.

In Santo Domingo a conspiracy to assassinate Provisional President Vasquez and Gen. Isidro Jiminez, the head of the recent successful rebellion and candidate for the presidency, was discovered.

The latest news from South Africa is to the effect that Kimberley is besieged by the Boers and is isolated, that the Boers now occupy Newcastle and Charlestown, and that they are pushing southward toward Ladysmith, where the British are expected to take a firm stand. The Boers blew up an arsenal train near Mafeking.

Reports to the war department from Gen. Otis say that Gen. Schwan's forces have completely routed the Filipinos in the southern portion of the island of Luzon.

The Chinese empress has chosen Pu Tsuan, aged nine, son of Duke Tsailan, to succeed the emperor.

LATER NEWS.

The result of the first finish fight between the Columbia and Shamrock for America's cup and the yachting supremacy of the world is a complete victory for the American boat, the American skipper and the American crew. The Columbia passed the line 10 minutes ahead of the Shamrock.

Gen. Wm. R. Shafter, who for over a year has held the position of major general of volunteers, was placed on the retired list the 16th.

The insurgents made an attack on Angeles, but were driven back. The Filipinos used artillery, exploding a few shells. An American scouting party near Balinate captured 11 Filipinos. Another, near Maycauyan, captured a Filipino major. All were taken to Manila.

A burglar who had entered the general store of J. D. Vriezelaar, at Motley, Io., was shot and killed by the proprietor. The identity of the burglar is not known, but in his pocket was found a book containing the name E. M. Kennedy, Waterloo, Io.

Emperor William has issued a decree that all regimental commanders shall strongly revive the cabinet order of six years ago, forbidding gambling in the army.

Tom Philpot and Joseph Fields were ambushed at Rengtown, Ky. Philpot was shot in the head and Fields in the stomach.

Abraham Moore, the former cattle king of Nebraska, was sentenced to one year in the Chicago jail and a fine of $1,000 for obtaining money under false pretenses.

Eight Slav miners were lodged in jail at Springfield, Ill., charged with being implicated in the riot at Auburn, in which one man was killed.

A rear-end collision occurred near Granite Canyon station, Wyo., on the Union Pacific railroad, between a stock train and an eastbound fast mail, killing two men and injuring three others.

The little oyster sloop Dream, on fire, drifted into Rock Creek near Baltimore, Md., bearing evidences that a murder had been committed on her deck. The dismembered portions of a white man's body, supposed to be that of Capt. Oliver Caulk, her owner and commander, were found after the fire had been extinguished. A colored deck hand named Frank Collier, is missing, and he probably shared the fate of the captian.

An unfortunate accident to the Shamrock threw the second race to the Columbia within half an hour after the start, and caused great disappointment to all interested. Owing to the Shamrock's jumping in the heavy sea running, her topmast was broken and the mast and the big club topsail were carried away. Fortunately no one was hurt.

An explosion in the Shenandoah City mine at Pottsville, Pa., entombed 22 men. Ten of the miners were recovered alive.

The British parliament convened in extra session the 17th.

The big fight between Jeffries and Sharkey was postponed to Nov. 3 on account of an accident to Jeffries' arm.

The price of wood pulp advanced 100 per cent in the eastern markets on account of the scarcity of wood and water.

Fire destroyed the paper box factory of the W. C. Ritchie company at Chicago. Everybody is believed to have escaped excepting Alexander McMasters, the superintendent.

In the Rabbit's Foot mine at Eureka, Nev., ten pounds of giant powder exploded, killing James Redford and Oscar Slott.

Owing to the appearance of yellow fever at Miami, Fla., the town has been placed under quarantine.

A special dispatch from Cape Town says that 300 Boers and 18 British have been killed in a battle at Mafeking. Colonel Baden-Powell made a sortie from Mafeking in force, and attacked the Boers, who were investing the town. After fierce fighting, the British carried the day.

Bell's regiment, moving from a position northwest of Bacoor, drove the enemy out of Porac. One American was killed and one wounded. The Filipinos lost a number of killed and wounded. The Americans captured two bullock carts of ammunition.

FORCED TO RETREAT.

British Troops Retire from Town of Newcastle—Kimberley in Peril.

Pretoria, Oct. 17.—Gen. Kock, of the Transvaal army, occupies Newcastle with a strong force of burghers. The town was taken Saturday, the British force having retired to Ladysmith.

The burghers have destroyed the bridge over the Molopo river at Mafeking.

A whole train load of dynamite on the Cape railway in Bechuanaland has been blown up by the Transvaal commandos operating there. The locomotive escaped to Mafeking amid a heavy fire from the burghers.

London, Oct. 16.—The only salient facts in the morning's telegrams are that the Boers have advanced beyond Newcastle and formed a lager near Bannhauser, about 12 miles north of Dundee, and that Kimberley is isolated and probably invested. Kimberley has thus become the immediate center of interest.

Washington, Oct. 17.—The state department has been informed by the cable companies that telegraphic communication with the Transvaal has been completely interrupted. The department is thus cut off from communication with United States Consul Macrum, at Pretoria.

Cape Town, Oct. 16.—Flowerdew, the engine driver of Capt. Nesbitt's train, which was derailed and bombarded by the Boers, states that if the train had returned when warning was received that the Boers held the line it could easily have made its way back to Maribogo, but Capt. Nesbitt insisted upon an endeavor being made to reach Mafeking. Flowerdew says:

"When the pilot engine was derailed, we spent a half hour trying to replace it on the track. Then the Boers commenced firing, and several men were wounded. The firing was kept up all night, but without effect. The Boers were careful to concentrate their fire upon the engines, so as to save the armored carriage and ammunition trucks. At dawn they commenced to bombard the cars. I escaped by crawling 1½ miles on my belly in the sand. When both engines were destroyed Capt. Nesbitt exhibited flags of truce, but the Boers continued their firing for another quarter of an hour. There is no doubt that all the others on the train are prisoners and that the carriage and the ammunition intact fell into the hands of the Boers."

ANGELES ATTACKED.

Filipinos Open Fight Early in the Morning—One American Killed and Seven Wounded.

Manila, Oct. 17. — The insurgents made an attack upon Angeles at 2:30 Monday morning. One American was killed and seven were wounded. The Filipinos used artillery, a few shells exploding. The Seventeenth, Ninth and Thirteenth regiments engaged the enemy, who retired at 5:30 a. m.

Civil war is reported to be the result of the attack made by the followers of the sultan of Jolo upon the followers of Dato Jokanine, in which nine of the latter were killed and their mutilated bodies left on the beach near the town of Jolo.

The insurgent capital has been moved again, according to reports brought to Manila by escaped prisoners. It has been taken from Tarlac, and Aguinaldo has set up his government in the mountains to the west of that city.

The insurgents are very active about all points which are held by the American troops. Every day one hears of a new plot on the part of the insurgents to attack the towns which have American garrisons.

SHAFTER RETIRED.

Formal Order Sent to Him, But He Will Remain in Service for Some Time Yet.

San Francisco, Oct. 17.—Gen. William R. Shafter, who for over a year has held positions of brigadier general in the regular army and major general of volunteers, received a formal order Monday placing him on the retired list of the regular army. Monday was Gen. Shafter's sixty-fourth birthday, and he retires by operation of the law which fixes the age limit of officers of the regular army. He will, however, remain in command of the department of California until relieved by order of the president or until mustered out on July 1, 1901, on which date the enlistment of all Spanish war volunteers will expire, as provided in the war act of congress.

Snow in Colorado.

Leadville, Col., Oct. 17.—For more than one week a snowstorm of unprecedented severity for this time of the year has been raging in the mountains surrounding Leadville. One band of 1,500 sheep and the herder with them are lost. Other large flocks have reported heavy losses and no word has been received from many others known to be still in the mountain pastures. In the canyons losses from floods and slides have been heavy and through trains have been indefinitely delayed.

Famous Case Ended.

Wilmington, Del., Oct. 14.—In the United States district court Friday Judge Bradford granted permission to the district attorney to enter a nolle prosequi in the case of United States Senator Richard R. Kenney, indicted for conspiring to aid and abet William H. Boggs, defaulting paying teller of the First national bank of Dover, who is now serving a term of imprisonment for robbing that institution of $107,000.

Fire in Saginaw.

Saginaw, Mich., Oct. 13.—Fire Thursday did $60,000 damage to the plant of the Brewer Lumber company, at Carrollton, a suburb of this city. The shingle mill, planing mill, cooperage mill, which manufactured stock for salt packages, a portion of a plant for the manufacture of barbed wire reels and 2,000,000 feet of lumber were destroyed. The company will rebuild at once.

Mules for the Transvaal.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 17.—Twenty-five carloads of mules for the Transvaal, purchased in this market by the English government within the last ten days, were started for New Orleans Monday. Another train load will follow for the same point within a few days. An estimate on 500 tons of hay for use in the South African campaign was made Monday.

Given a Life Term.

Oquawka, Ill., Oct. 14.—The jury returned a verdict of guilty, with a life sentence, against Neece, who deliberately mashed in the head of his wife with an ax in Gladstone last fall.

STEAMER BURNED.

Fire Destroys the Nutmeg State Off the Atlantic Coast and Twelve Persons Perish.

New York, Oct. 16.—The Bridgeport line steamer Nutmeg State was burned in Long Island sound, off Sands point, L. I., at sunrise Saturday morning, and 12 persons were burned to death or drowned. The dead are: Samuel Jaynes, baggage master; Nils Nilsen, Charles Anderson, Patrick Coffee, Bernard Hendry, Thomas Murphy and John Connors, members of the crew, and five unknown passengers.

The burning of the steamer was replete with horror, heroism, brutality and self-sacrifice. Few if any lives would have been lost had not a swarm of maddened freight handlers darted up from the furnace below decks and swept women and children into the water in their mad rush for safety. These men, great, rough, brawny fellows, whose stock in trade was their strength, spared nobody. They fought their way to the steamer's bow, which was not on fire, and swept into the huddled crowd there, pushing many over the side into the sea. Until their advent the crew had behaved fairly well, the captain's orders were being obeyed and the boats were being filled with women and children. But the rush of the freight handlers upset all plans.

The origin of the fire is unknown. It started amidships, and was discovered by the chief cook when he left his cabin at 5:30 o'clock in the morning. He immediately gave the alarm, and then went to work waking the passengers. At first everything was done in perfect order. The captain ordered his crew to quarters. They responded with fire buckets and hose, and for 15 minutes fought the fire. Soon the captain realized that the ship could not be saved, and he directed Pilot Weatherwax to ran the boat ashore. At full speed the doomed craft sped toward the rocks of Sands point.

It was during this race for the shore that the most agonizing incidents occurred. The first boat lowered was full of women and children, when it was seized by the freight handlers, and the people in it were spilled out. In the water they fought each other for their lives. They tried to crawl over one another as they clung to the boat's sides, to oars, life preservers, steamer chairs or anything else that floated. Those who had hold of the boat tried to beat back those who struggled to reach it. Men who had placed their women and children in the boat dived from the steamer into the tangle and sought to save them. Thirty or 40 persons were struggling in the water when boats from the steamer City of Lawrence picked them up.

BOLD TRAIN ROBBERY.

Successful Holdup on the Northwestern Within 50 Miles of Chicago—Dynamite Used.

Chicago, Oct. 14.—Five masked robbers held up train No. 9 of the Northwestern railroad shortly before midnight Friday at Tower W, between Maple Park and De Kalb, 47 miles west of Chicago, shot at Dan White, the engineer, ran away with the engine, and blew open the express car and safes. When the robbers had rifled the car they disappeared.

The bandits first held up and bound the operator, then they stopped the mail train, held up the crew and dynamited the safe in the express car, taking everything of value in the safe. The charge of dynamite blew a hole through the roof and floor, disabling the car. They then cut the engine loose and ran it two miles west of Maple Park and abandoned it.

General Manager Antisdel, of the American Express company, said the robbers had secured at least $25,000 in cash, in addition to an amount of jewelry and other valuables.

Fire in Chicago.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—Fire early this morning in the six-story building, 130 to 136 West Washington street, caused a loss of approximately $175,000, and gave the firemen no end of trouble before they effectually subdued the blaze. The heaviest losers are: J. Pieser, manufacturer of pancake flour, $25,000; Chicago Folding Box company, $30,000; Imperial nickel plating works, $15,000; Walker-Ehrman Manufacturing company, $12,000; Excelsior Quilting company, $20,000; Fowler Cycle Manufacturing company, $10,000. Loss on building, $60,000.

Presents Its Estimates.

Washington, Oct. 17.—The interior department estimates, completed Monday, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1901, aggregate a grand total of $170,500,000. This amount includes $145,172,000 for the entire pension service, of which $144,000,000 is for all army and navy pensions, the remainder being for agencies, salaries, etc.; the census bureau, $9,664,000; Indian service, $6,800,526; the genral land office, $1,690,000; patent office, $1,051,190; and geological survey, $500,000.

Monument to Slain Miners.

Carlinville, Ill., Oct. 13.—Five thousand miners from Belleville, Staunton, Gillespie, Worden, Clyde, Marissa, Litchfield, Sparta and other coal mining towns in central Illinois were present Thursday at the first anniversary celebration of the Virden battle. A monument commemorating Joseph Gietterie, Ernest Kamerer and Ellis Smith, the Mount Olive miners slain in the battle, was unveiled by W. Hefti, president of the Beleville district, United Mine Workers of America.

Earthquake Kills Thousands.

Amsterdam, Oct. 13.—A dispatch to the Handelsblad from Batavia, capital of the Netherlands, Indies, Java, says that a violent earthquake has visited the south side of the Island of Ceram, next to the largest of the Noluccas, between Booroo and Papua, completely destroying the town of Amhei, and killing, it is estimated, some 4,000 people, as well as injuring some 500 others. The dispatch says that details of the disaster have not yet been obtained.

Honors for a Prelate.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 16.—Forty years ago last Friday Bishop H. W. Whipple was consecrated bishop of Minnesota. Sunday the event was celebrated in all of the Episcopal churches of his diocese. In this city special services were held, the feature being musical programmes of unusual excellence, with sermons by the rectors reviewing the able services of the bishop in the state since his consecration.

HAT WAS NOT SUCCESSFUL.

The Owner Tried to Economize, But Her Efforts Met with Fearful Results.

This is a plain, unvarnished story of a lady who trimmed her own hat. She was endeavoring to economize and conceived the brilliant idea that by purchasing the trimmings and the frame she could construct a hat that would be quite as hideous as the ordinary or extraordinary millinery creation and at much less cost. So she made a dozen or more trips downtown and finally had gathered togetner a trunk full of bits of ribbon, steel buckles, gauze, flowers, birds, fiber chamois, bolts, rivets, barbed wire, varnish, bicycle cement, galvanized iron, linerusta walton and all the singular ingredients of a woman's hat, together with a fearful and wonderful name that looked much like a wire waste basket after a tug of war with a steam engine. Then she haunted the display windows and changed her mind something like a thousand times regarding the manner in which she would trim that hat.

She sewed on and ripped off the birds so often that they looked much bedraggled and were, indeed, very sad-looking birds, but she finally succeeded in assembling the hat and then, as she was going on a visit to her mother and sisters, who lived in a small city, she wore the magnificent creation, calculating that they would go into convulsions over her hat. And they did. After they had kissed her several times and assured her of their undying love her mother, who is a wise woman, with a keen sense of the proprieties, bade the elder of the unmarried sisters ring for the carriage. "I am so glad to see my dear daughter," she said, "that I must buy her something. Now, you drive down to the millinery store and buy her the prettiest hat there before any of her friends see her."

And after the economical daughter had departed for the millinery store the remaining members of the family fell upon the floor and screamed with laughter, for they knew a good thing when they saw it, even if they did live in a jay town.—Chicago Chronicle.

Woman and the Automobile.

It has long been scentifically demonstrated that a woman cannot throw a stone straight. It now appears that she steers an automobile the way she throws a stone. There are awful possibilities in the near future. A wabbly bike can be dodged by an athletic sprinter, but a wabbly automobile has a horror all its own.—N. Y. Press.

If time is money some people's time must be counterfeit.—Chicago Daily News.

"You May Bend the Sapling But Not the Tree."

When disease has become chronic and deep seated it is often difficult to cure it. That is the reason why it is best to take Hood's Sarsaparilla when disease first shows itself. In long-seated, tenacious cases, Hood's Sarsaparilla is also wonderfully successful.

THE MASK OFF

M'KINLEY THROWS OFF THE CLOAK FROM IMPERIALISM,

And Announces the Intended Forcible Conquest of the Philippines—Clear Issue Now Laid Before the American People—"Choose Ye Whom Ye Will Serve"—The Partisan Imposition Practiced Under Cover of the Thirteenth Reception—The All-Absorbing Occasion—Other Political Matters—Congressman Towne's Return, and the Demand for Him to Make the Race in the Sixth District—Governor Lind's Ringing Tribute to the Volunteer Soldier, Now Replaced by the Imperial Legions of the Regular Army—Note and Comment of the Week.

Reform Press Bureau.
ST. PAUL, Oct. 16, 1899.

The mask is off, and as clearly as William McKinley has ever been known to state a principle or policy, in the shifty and evasive character for which his political life is conspicuous, he has declared his policy to be for the conquest of the Philippines, with all that this implies. He is for imperialism, mentioned in set terms, and defended with its concomitants of army and arbitrary powers; for a colonial system, with its army of civil bloodsuckers, and its corrupt bureaus dispensing to the favored, with the imperial approval, the franchises and grabs. The money from these will be from the impoverished subjects, while the latter share, with the people in America, the burdens of the extended and corrupt military establishment. Finally, concluding an open defense of this policy, the president gave his assurance that our subjects when conquered should not be held as serfs and slaves, but actually promises government of liberty "regulated by law;" should have "taxation without tyranny," justice without bribe," "education without distinction," (sic) and an actual protection in "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness"—the latter actually all that he was able to apply literally from our boasted Declaration. Thus does he overturn our American fundamentals of absolute liberty and equality of government by the consent of the governed, of no taxation without representation, of justice in life and property, of trial by jury, and of full political, religious and social freedom.

William McKinley, message, April 11, 1898: "I speak not of forcible annexation, for that cannot be thought of. That, by our code of morality, would be criminal aggression."

Mr. McKinley, doubtless with Hanna's advice, shrewdly secured a great hearing for his uncloaking, the greatest ever known in the Northwest, or probably that could have been obtained in any other part of the land. But it was an abuse of the occasion, such an abuse as underlay nearly all of the arrangements, in the basely partison use carried out to the letter, especially the Minneapolis management and committees. The latter were made almost exclusively Republican, and on the stand from which the President spoke, outside of Governor Lind and staff, and Mayor Gray, there was scarcely a solitary Democrat or partisan opponent to be seen, so careful was the management to have the president surrounded by those who would applaud his unmasking.

Had that management had less care for partisan opportunity and more for the people, there would have been fewer blunders, such as the closing out of the marching column, at division points, the breaking of it up at several different points, and the disgraceful riding down of a portion of the G. A. R. columns by the "imperial" Lowry carriage containing the president, with its liveried outriders, "So werry Henglish, you know," and at the Exposition stand which left more than 500 seats vacant, while the betters of the pinheaded committeemen struggled for places to stand on in the gaping and half disgusted crowds. The same is true of the shutting of the people out of the Exposition, where thousands might without inconvenience have witnessed the dinner to the soldiers and participated in the greetings. Besides, there was food for thousands, especially for the veterans, who, turned away, had stood or marched in line for four hours.

And what a rebuke, that when, as elsewhere, Sampson was mentioned as the hero of Santiago, the people shouted "Schley," "Schley," for Democrat Schley!

The credit (?) for most of the blunders is given to Chairman Phelps, with copious sections of advice from Congressman Fletcher, with both of whom the people will soon have opportunity for settlement, since Fletcher is after a third term, and Mr. Phelps is credited with the ambition of succeeding Jim Gray, who was snubbed by the installing of President Northrup as master of ceremonies. The boys who love Our Jim won't do a thing to both of the gentlemen named, some time next year!

But let no one be deceived. The reception was to the regiment, and it was a magnificent one. All hail, noble sons of a noble state! Welcome home from duty nobly done. Now let us all give them the glad hand of encouragement in peace, as we have praised them for military valor.

That was a magnificent tribute paid the volunteer by Governor Lind in his splendid address. Governor Lind preceded the president, and as if intuitively [illegible] what was about to be promulgated, it struck deep to the governor's heart, that in proposed imperialism, we arrive at a moment of deep solemnity. "We have," he said, "reached a stage in our national development which eliminates the volunteer soldier from the sphere of national activity and influence for the future." "His mission under the constitution is to suppress insurrection and to repel invasion." "For purposes of conquest he is unfit, for he carries conscience as well as a gun." How these shafts must have struck home to McKinley!

The return of Hon. Charles A. Towne to his home, after his foreign trip, was under circumstances alike of just pride to himself, and of pleasure to his personal and political friends in all parts of the Sixth district and in the state at large. These honor Mr. Towne as one of the few great men Minnesota has produced. They love him for his noble qualities of heart and mind. They realize that he has now become a national character, and look forward to the time in the near future when he will be called to high station on account of his statesmanship and magnificent courage of convictions.

The unanimous demand that Mr. Towne be again the candidate of the reform forces for congress was long since forecast in these letters. Of course, the leaders in the Sixth who thus declare are only presenting the sentiment of the people in the different parts of the district or they would not assume to forestall the popular action. But the people are for Mr. Towne's renomination, without, so far as it is known, a dissenting voice. And it is now certain that the three conventions, Democratic, People's Party and Silver Republican, will unanimously unite in the renomination. As to Mr. Towne's probable action—well, all know his usual response to the plain call of duty!

Charles A. Towne will be the next congressman from the Sixth district. Paste that in your headgear, Mr. Goppite.

"Jerry J." is again dishing up Minnesota politics from his Journal bureau in Washington—this time devoting extensive space to showing the hopelessness of Republicans carrying Minnesota next year. This he makes clear from every point of view, first, that Republicans will not have money to corrupt the state with as formerly. Next, they have retired all their old-time leaders and managers. Next, all the noble horde of office-holders, who have whooped it up under the Bixbys and the Steeles, are fed at the public crib no more, and so are "out of politics." Next, the Republicans will be everywhere on the defensive. They defeated the gross earnings law and turned down every recommendation of Governor Lind for taxation reform. They stood solid in the board of equalization against Governor Lind in the successful fight for taxation of corporate franchises. They have no leadership and have the weakest state committee they ever had. There is no party enthusiasm. They are without a campaign fund, and have no way to get one. There is, in detail, the malodorous record of the last senate. The railroad companies that have furnished transportation to Republican speakers and workers and contributed cash, have quit. Finally there is the splendid record Governor Lind has made in the office, on which point "Jerry J," rebuking those who falsify, shouting, as they pass through the graveyard to keep up courage, says:

"Lind's record in the office of governor will be another strong campaign argument. He is the shrewdest politician in public life in the state. The Republicans are continually crying out about his "mistakes," when they know, if they know anything, that from the point of view of the people, he is giving as satisfactory an administration as the state has had for years. What is the use of denying this fact. The people know it, and Republicans who protest too much that it is not true will do so at some sacrifice of reputation for sagacity and judgment. The people will not be fooled, and an attempt to magnify for political effect the unwisdom of certain of the governor's acts will be abortive and may recoil with tremendous force. His attitude on the gross earnings bill is of itself a tower of strength. He has acted from the first day of his term carefully, intelligently, sanely, his eyes on the future, his ears catching every sound coming up from the common walks of life. He has made no mistakes thus far upon which a campaign can be hinged, and the Republicans who are shouting loudest against him know this best. A campaign based upon his "mistakes," and with nothing of importance to stand with it, will re-elect him, possibly by 40,000 majority."

But "Jerry J." is simply wild in giving currency to the report that railroads contributed to the Lind campaign fund last year. They neither gave $10,000 or any part thereof, and this is as good a place as any to set at rest each and all such stories, with the following absolutely truthful explicit and emphatic denial:

There was not one dollar of money contributed by a railroad corporation or any other corporation, received or used in the campaign of 1898, not one dollar of money, and not a pass or mile of free transportation furnished for the campaign of the allied reform forces.

The Democratic organization will be "tickled to death" at the big, fat figures "Jerry J" gives for its campaign fund for 1900. For the $75,000 "Jerry J" professes to see, is more than 10 times all the money that John Lind's election cost. Yes, 10 per cent of that sum divided in two is nearer last year's figure. And Jerry is wild as to Public Examiner Pope heading any organization at present raising campaign funds.

And "Jerry J" threw a regular London fog, so thick you could cut it with a knife, over the prospective candidates, Van Sant, Collins, Clapp, et al. Another Hennepin candidate is the only thing says "Jerry," forgetting the dreadful mess last year, when Hennepin and Eustis hogged the nomination, and he further says that Bob Dunn is ruled out by the opposition of Republican senators.

A Dash of Gayety.

The doomed man feared the people who waited along the way to the scaffold.

"See how they stare at me!" he cried, agonizingly.

"Yes, that's what you might call rubbering it in!" observed the executioner, playfully, deeming it not amiss to inject an element of gayety into this otherwise somber affair.—Detroit Journal.

Too Serious.

"Do you think his intentions are serious?" asked her best girl friend.

"Altogether too serious," was the reply. "He asked me yesterday if I would consent to have my life insured in favor of my husband when I married."—Spare Moments

He Didn't Like Chopin.

"Pardon the pronunciation, madam," replied Peripatetic Paderoosky, "but Chopin is not popular with me."—Catholic Standard Times.

The Conclusion.

"And you say the idiot of a teacher told you that you had an extravagant fool of a father?"

"That's what he meant?"

"But what did he say?"

"He said it was criminal folly to waste money on the education of such a chump as I am."—Indianapolis Journal.

THE 13TH AT HOME

The Gallant Boys are Given a Royal Reception.

Minneapolis Turns Out a Grand, Imposing Parade.

President McKinley is Given a Continuous Ovation.

The Minnesota regiment won its final and most signal victory at Minneapolis, the 12th, when it captured the great state of Minnesota.

President McKinley shared in the honors of the occasion, but that was all. The magnificent demonstration welcoming home the soldiers who for nearly seventeen months have been bearing arms for their country, was for those soldiers first and last.

President McKinley joined in the welcome, and his part was to review the regiment at its final passage. It was a soldiers' day and McKinley day, but the soldiers first.

Nature seemed to be at outs with the spirit of the affair, and for a time frowned, but that was the only discord. The celebration is practically over now, though it will be days before the soldiers will be allowed to settle down to private life. They have had their breakfast, have marched through the streets of Minneapolis, while thousands of people shook their hands in a frenzy of delight and yelled themselves hoarse. They have been feasted by the good people of Minneapolis, and now the regiment is a thing of the past.

It may retain its organization and hold reunions in the years to come, when they will remind each other of the way they raided Chinese joints in Manila, repulsed the insurgents when they attacked the railroad, and captured the pretty girls of San Francisco, but all these things are sweet memories to be cherished for the future. As an active fighting body its work is done, and it will lay aside the sword and rifle.

It didn't make a particle of difference to the people of St. Paul if the early morning of the 12th of October was as gray and dismal as an October morning could be. The morning was everything but rainy. The air was heavy and muggy, and there was a feeling that there might be a downpour any minute, but happily that calamity did not materialize, and the worst the crowd suffered was muddy feet.

As early as 3 o'clock in the morning little groups of people, twos and threes, fives and sixes, began to appear on the streets, slowly trudging down town. The numbers increased as the gray morning hours advanced, until by 5 o'clock the streets were as lively and thronged as they are at 8 o'clock on ordinary days. All had the one meeting place, the Union depot.

As soon as the train stopped there was a mad rush for the platforms of the cars, and then there was no more guard. The soldiers crowded out and into the arms of their friends. After a year and a half the boys were home. Most affecting were the greetings.

Men and women rushed into each other's arms, and their lips touched in long and affectionate kisses. Women sobbed on the breasts of the men they had waited so long to see, and tears in plenty coursed down the cheeks of the returned warriors. Such a home coming was worth a journey half around the world.

In 15 or 20 minutes the second section of the Northern Pacific train appeared, only to have the same scenes repeated. Then, about 20 minutes after 6 o'clock, the Great Northern train pulled in with the third part of the regiment, and the boys were all at home.

And the breakfast. The women of St. Paul certainly did themselves proud, and every man of the regiment must have felt glad that he returned with the regiment as guests of the state. There was coffee, whole boilers and many boilers of it. There were sandwiches, there were doughnuts, bread and butter and more coffee.

The boys appreciated the speeches, but they appreciated the breakfast, too, and at this point a sergeant discovered that the women had not been thanked.

"What's the matter with the women of St. Paul?" he shouted as he jumped on a chair. In an instant every member of his company was on his feet and there was a wild yell of "They're all right," followed by the company yell.

The special train bearing the president and his party arrived in Minneapolis over the Milwaukee road at 11:10 o'clock this morning, one hour and 40 minutes behind schedule time. Owing to this delay the local committee was compelled to cut short the time spent by President McKinley at the residence of Thomas Lowry, and after a stop of half an hour to secure a little rest carriages were taken to Park avenue and Twenty-sixth street, where they joined the parade.

At the Milwaukee Union depot the crowd of people was so immense that it was found inadvisable to carry out the original program and have the party make its egress through the main entrance. Fifteen minutes or more were spent by the police in an endeavor to clear the entrance, and finally the train was backed down to Sixth avenue south, where carriages were waiting to take the distinguished guests.

He was in Minneapolis about the time the soldiers left St. Paul, and soldiers and president met at Twenty-ninth street and Park avenue. Then the grand parade was formed, the line passed down Park avenue and worked over to Nicollet avenue. It was one great outburst of enthusiasm all the way, the march being through immense crowds, which choked the side streets almost, and between and under the arches, flags and decorations of almost every conceivable form.

The parade, as a whole, was excellent, and was carried out practically as announced by Marshal Shuey. While some of those expected failed to appear in the marching column, there were yet enough left to consume an hour's time in passing the review stand.

The president and party, and Gov. Lind and staff, together with Mayor Gray and members of the local committee, made their appearance at the review stand just before 1 o'clock, and as soon as the street could be cleared the procession moved down Nicollet rapidly.

A platoon of police led the column, followed closely by Marshal Shuey and Chief of Staff Wheaton and their aides, all mounted. Danz's military band followed, and after it Marshal Gilmore and aides, in charge of the first division, led by Hengen's band. The Fourth Minnesota National Guard were first in the line, with the Minnesota state band, and as they passed the spectators gave vent to their pent-up enthusiasm and cheered lustily. The boys marched with the precision of veterans, and altogether presented an appearance that justified the plaudits showered upon them. Next came the Brainerd band at the head of a detachment of the Third Minnesota National Guard, and these boys were not forgotten by the spectators. Battery B was at the end of the first division and were immediately preceded by the Tribune band.

R. R. Henderson was marshal of the second division, which had at its head the University band and the University Cadets. The boys created a very favorable impression, and were especially noted by the president and Gov. Lind. Following the cadets came the Sons of Veterans, the Wesley battalion, the First Congregational Boys' Brigade, the Marine band, Hastings naval reserves and the Eldridge Zouaves. The naval reserves and the zouaves were especially objects of attention and flattering comment, the latter varying the monotony of ordinary walking by executing a number of difficult evolutions while in sight of the presidential stand.

The third division was in charge of George H. Hutchins and aides, and comprised the uniformed bodies of secret societies, many of which made a very pleasing appearance. Music for the division was furnished by the Concordia band, Mankato, which deserves especial praise, and Ringwall's military band, which is well know here and needs no praise. The naval corps, under command of Capt. Herbert Watson, brought up at the rear of the division.

The Fourth division, under command of Marshal C. A. Clausen, contained the old veterans, and was one of the most interesting features. At their front, as if in contrast, come the boys of the newsboys' band. As the youngsters passed the president they played as they never have before, with the evident intention of giving Mr. McKinley something to remember them by. But the curiosity of the little fellows overcame their discipline, and after passing the stand heads were turned and necks croned to get a better view of the spectacle, somewhat to the damage of the music.

At the rear of the Fourth division came the half hundred returned volunteers of the 13th regiment, and the hearty cheers accorded them as they marched by with uncovered heads showed to the boys that they, too, are close to the hearts of the people of the state.

Last, but best of all, came the 13th regiment.

Words fail to describe the tumult which arose on every side as the gallant boys came into sight. The cheering was tremendous. Men and women sprang to their feet and waved whatever they could get hold of, whether hat, handkerchief or parasol, and the din was so unearthly that the effort made by this or that spectator to catch the eye of Tom, Dick or Harry were entirely without avail. The boys are veterans now, and that fact was evident by the manner in which they carried themselves during the march. No provocation was great enough to induce a man to turn his head or return a greeting.

The band followed close behind the colonel and turned out its best music for the benefit of the president and his party, and for Governor Lind.

With clock-like precision the boys marched past, and the hearts of the onlookers swelled with pride at the thought that they belong in Minnesota. President McKinley watched them with undisguised emotion, and as his eye scanned the ranks of brown and hardy men his countenance seemed to clear, and a smile broke over his features. Every salute given him by an officer was scrupulously returned, and it was plain to be seen that his heart was with the boys, and that all that had gone before was as nothing to him by way of comparison.

But all things have an end, and when the last man of the gallant 13th had passed, those in the rear ranks, carrying a captured insurgent flag, the crowd again broke into the street. Then the president and party resumed places in their carriages and were rapidly driven to the Exposition building.

There was an immense audience gathered around the exposition platform. It was an audience which might have inspired any orator to his happiest efforts. Sympathy was in every face, and the vast crowd hung on the words of the speakers as on the words of a prophet.

The little speech by President Northrop was in his happiest vein, as were the remarks of Mayor Gray and the members of the cabinet. But the address of President McKinley was the one important event of the occasion, and as he always does, the executive rose to the occasion with an address which fitted the case to a nicety.

"I tell you," shouted the old gentleman, "I'll not give my consent. I'm not the man to buy a pig in a poke or decide a case after hearing but one side of it. I don't believe he was ever a soldier or ever saw a battle in his life. I don't care so much for that, but it's the false pretenses. I'm a veteran and I know a soldier when I see him. I'll give him marching orders the next time he calls."

"But, papa, see how straight he walks and what a trim figure he has. And he has told me about lots of battles."

"Bosh! There haven't been lots of battles since has was big enough to fight. I tell you that he's a false alarm. I'll trap him yet. I'll bet a house and lot that he can't go through the manual of arms."

"But he can. He took a cane and showed me the whole thing. It was just grand."

"What in creation do you know about it? You couldn't tell the difference between a 'right shoulder, shift,' and a 'double quick.' Did he enlist from Detroit?"

"No, Chicago."

"O, of course, some big city where it would take time to look him up. He's a fraud."

"Do listen, papa. He knows all about you grand army people, and says that you're the finest, bravest, most intelligent military men that ever kept step to fife and drum. He likes beans and coffee for cold lunch, and every night he was here he turned the lights out at ten just from force of habit."

"No! And he said that about us veterans, hey? Well, I'll have a talk with your mother."—Detroit Free Press.

Where a Good Pistol Is Admired.

Hon. William Wortham, long state treasurer of Texas, was in a New York jewelry store one day when he noticed a showcase filled with splendid jeweled revolvers, with silver and gold grips and chased barrels, having precious stones set into the butts.

"Lemme see one of those guns," he said to the clerk.

"Which one, sir?"

The gold one with the big ruby in the handle."

The clerk took it from the case. It was marked $300, and it looked even worth more. The Texan took it tenderly in both hands and held it admiringly up to the light. Then drawing himself up to his full height, which was six feet and a half, he rested the revolver upon his left elbow, crooked for the purpose, and looked over the sights down the long store. Those persons who saw involuntarily dodged.

"Say," said Mr. Wortham, with quiet but intense enthusiasm, as he returned the weapon, "if I was to wear that gun down in my state the people would be falling down on their knees begging to be killed with it!"—Chicago Evening News.

Catching Up.

"Is your town growing?" asked the Pittsburgh man of a fellow-traveler on the cars.

"Well, no; I can't say it's growing," was the reply; "not growing to speak of, but it is improving in tastes right along."

"You mean that the people are assuming a higher standard?"

"I do, sir; yes, sir. We now get bananas every day from Cincinnati, and five out of six groceries keep shredded codfish and limburger cheese. We don't look for any building boom or influx of strangers, but we'll hold our own and gradually work up to electric doorbells and oysters on the half shell."—Utica Observer.

"I had doctored for some time, but no medicine seemed to help me, and my physician thought it best for me to go to the hospital for local treatment. I had read and heard so much of your Vegetable Compound that I made up my mind to try it. I was troubled with falling of the womb, had sharp pains in ovaries, leucorrhœa and painful menses. I was so weak and dizzy that I would often have severe fainting spells. I took in all several bottles of Lydia E. BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, Oct. 20, 1899.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Dr. Niven at Waverly, Oct. 26 and 27.

—John Rader says that the 8th Minnesota always did like roast pig.

—Willie Mowatt has turned carpenter and has been doing some shingling recently.

—The round elevator has been having some repairing done and improvements made during the week.

—Rev. Thompson arrived in town this morning with his household goods from Cedar Mills. He moved across country by teams.

—Paul Plotnik, who is having a good time hunting far out upon the prairie, supplied a lot of our citizens with some fine ducks on Wednesday.

—Harris Williams has moved into the Wenzel residence on N. Third street. W. H. Frazee has moved into the brick residence on N. Third street.

—The old soldier turnout in the Delano 13th reception was, in proportion, and in general appearance, far ahead of that in Minneapolis the day before.

—Watertown and Delano cornet bands have formed an alliance, and propose to have one good band. This will insure both towns good music on important occasions.

—Peter Burke, one of the old settlers of the town of Franklin was takes to Buffalo this afternoon to be examined as to his sanity. He has been acting strangely for sometime.

—The first flurry of snow of the season came down early Thursday morning. It did not stay long; but served to hasten up farmers and others with their fall work.

—President Burnes and his assistants deserve much praise for the splendid style in which the school children participated in Friday's parade, especially on the home stretch.

—On Sunday afternoon and evening the weather was quite warm the thermometer indicating 80 deg above zero; but before Monday morning it was down to 40 above. Quite a drop in a few hours.

—"Keeping cows for profit", a treatise on up to date dairying is being sent out gratuitously by The DeLaval Separator Co., 74 Courtland St., New York, which concern offers to send a copy to every reader of the GAZETTE on request.

—The Soo road had a bad head end collision at Rockford station Wednesday evening. Two engines were smashed but no one injured. The evening passenger ran through an open switch into a freight train on the side track.

—Rev. A. F. Thompson, the new M. E. Minister on this circuit preached at Montrose Sunday morning, Watertown in the afternoon and at Delano in the evening. He had good a congregation here, and we hear that he had at the other points.

—The head foreman of this office wishes to thank the main sail of the Eagle for the ease with which he let him down about the born head over a marriage notice, and wishes him good luck in his peregrinations after an electrotyping outfit.

—Nailing loose boards onto the barn, repairing the chicken house, banking up the dwelling, and putting on storm windows and doors has occupied many of our citizens lately. These cold nights remind people that they must prepare for winter in this country.

—Under the latest law parents who do not report births and deaths in their families are guilty of a misdemeanor as follows:

"Whoever neglects or refuses to give such notice for the period of (10) days after the occurance of a birth or death shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than (#5) dollars nor more than twenty-five ($25) dollars."

—From reports around town it appears that the chicken banquet season has opened on schedule time or before, and the feathered delicacies sprung suddenly into demand last Monday night. Bartlett furnished a fine flock of chickens and ducks free, and without his knowledge at the time.

—It seems as if Delano had grown to porportions that would enable an ice man to exist among its inhabitants. A man in the business could handle all the ice in town to better advantage than can each individual that wants ice in summer. Some of our citizens have, during the hot season, brought ice from the cities.

—"Dad" Coursen, a former employ at the Eagle Office, has gone to the Printers Home, at Colarado Springs to live. The instution is a fine one and nicely kept up for old printers. "Dad" will enjoy it. Brother Buckley and Ye Editor visited the Home while on the recent Editoral excursion, and were shown through by the Superintendent Chas Deacon.

—George Dyer has quite a display of relics and curiosities from the Philippines, in Mealey's store window. Among them are two Spanish cavalry carbine, a Mauser rifle and amunition, several Spanish and Filipino cavalry swords and bayonets, Chinese butcher outfit, Filipino shoes, Chinese pipes etc All of the boys who went to the Philippines from here brought back relics, but none got as fine a collection as Dyer.

—Dr. Niven at Delano, Oct. 28.

Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Chancellor returned from the farm near Hutchinson Monday evening.

C. H. Vorse and family, of Buffalo, came over Friday and enjoyed Delano's big day.

C. M. Coffin, late of Benson, has moved into the Grafft House, cor. 3rd and Elm streets.

Henry Grafft, of St. Paul, visited his sister, Mrs. C. H. Buckley, and family, here this week.

John C. Arup accompanied Rev. Thompson to Cedar Mills this week to assist him in moving to Delano.

Henry Conzet came home from Fesenden, N D. last week, and has gone to the pineries for the winter.

Three of the school teachers residing out of town took advantage of Friday's holiday to visit their homes.

J. M. Stone has become possessed of a couple of houses and lands in York state and is preparing to move there.

Delano's members of Co. I, 13th regiment, went to the city Wednesday, to attend a reception in honor of that company.

Len Reider, who has been working in a butcher shop at East Grand Forks, returned this week to Delano for the winter.

Rev. J. L. Farber left yesterday with a car load of household goods, etc., for Hutchinson, where his family is to live this winter.

Mrs. A. D. Smith, who has been visiting a week with her father John Cunningham, started home to Omaha, Wednesday evening.

Editor Dudley, who has charge of the Buffalo Journal for the present, came over with John Cady, Friday to help celebrate the return of the 13th.

Misses Amanda and Minnie Erickson were home from Minneapolis Friday to welcome their brother Elmer on his return from the Philippines.

Rev. B. F. Sherwin, of Clinton, passed through town on his way to Watertown, Saturday, to attend Masonic lodge, and to preach Sunday morning.

H. S. Lord, of Buffalo, was a Delano visitor Tuesday. He was over to see the returned 13th boys to get news of his son John now in the Philippines.

Dr. Niven.

will be in Waverly, Oct. 26 and 27 and at DELANO October 28. All kinds of dentistry. Painless extracting.

Lost.

A valuable ring on the streets of Delano, a few days ago. The finder will please leave at the office and be rewarded.

County Cullings.

One of Jim Hill's cabooses burned last Thursday at Montrose; the origin of the fire is unknown.

The Chatham post office has been discontinued. Patrons of that office now get their mail at Buffalo, Maple Lake, or wherever most convenient.

Buffalo Schools will be reopened on Monday, Oct. 23. They were closed on account of scarlet fever. The house has been disinfected and precautions will be taken to prevent the spread of the disease.

It will soon be time to commence talking about county conventions for electing delegates to state conventions to send delegates to the national convention to select a candidate for president. Have your eyes open and your ears open and see that delegates from your precinct are elected who are favorable to your choice.

A large number of our people were at Delano last Friday, in attendance at the 13th reception, and all who were present pronounce it the grandest event of its kind ever given in this part of the country. The good people of that village deserve great credit for the arranging and carrying out of the splendid program—Carver County News.

A daily mail from Delano to Rockford should again be carried. The route was discontinued a couple of years ago, and people having occasion to use it have been lamenting the fact ever since. It comes handy in doing business at the county seat also. Sending all the county mail to Minneapolis or St. Paul and out again is a nuisance. The direct route is much more convenient and satisfactory.

Jas. Boxell's lecture "come off" at Annandale, Saturday evening as advertised. his subject was "Why I was Arrested and why I was not convicted." We have no official report of the lecture but it is said every one who was trying to collect evidence came in for a roasting. A collection was taken up which amounted to $14 50.—Howard Lake Herald.

Joe Boxell has appealed from the order of the court granting possession of his children to his wife.

SHORTHAND SELF-TAUGHT How? By the study of the Manuel of Phonography, by Benn Pitman and Jerome B. Howard. A perfect self-instructor. Over 355,000 sold. Thousands have mastered it; so can you. Sold by all booksellers, or we will send it by mail, with the Phonographic Reader and Phonographic Copy Book for $1.25.

THE BENN PITMAN SYSTEM has for 44 years been the standard. Called by the U. S. Bureau of Education "The American System." First prize, World's Fair. Full information with hints and helps to self-instructed students, free.

THE PHONOGRAPHIC INSTITUTE CO., 422 W. 4th St., CINCINNATI, OHIO.

MAPLE PLAIN.

Mr. Editor, the lower lights are still burning. W. J. Bryan is in for the race at a pace of 16 to 1. Free coinage, expansion or imperialism, trusts and monopoly will be the issues in the next presidential campaign.

That monkey war with the Filipinos will come in for a large share.

We are glad there is no political campaign on this fall. It will give the people a chance to rest, read their bible, say their prayers and ease up on their conscience.

Most everybody is looking for better days, but to the most of them they never come, but whatever we have let us have equal rights to all and special privileges to none.

The late rain we had will help plowing and corn husking. There is quite a good deal of plowing to be done yet, and farmers are not near through husking.

James Turnham will soon have his new house ready to occupy. It will be one of the finest houses in the village when finished.

Herb Hall, of Fesenden, N. D. was here for a few days last week on business.

Byron Hall and Mrs. John Hamilton drove to St. Paul last Sunday to attend the wedding of Miss Laura Stultz and Charles Hamilton.

A. Baker, assistant county superintendent of schools for Hennepin county was visiting some of the schools in our town about a week ago.

The case of Jackson against Drake comes off in Minneapolis, Thursday, 19th of present month.

The people of our town who attended the reception at Delano last Friday, given the soldier boys, home from the Philippines, speak of it with great praise. It was indeed a grand affair.

William and Dann Budd have gone off on a hunting excursion, They may come back by way of the Klondike.

Rev. W. Bursell, of Minneapolis, will preach memorial sermon of Dr. O. R. Fassett at A. C. Church, Rockford, next Sunday forenoon. Everybody invited.

A good many of the nimrods are on the hunt now days.

Among Our Exchanges.

Duluth News Tribune: General Otis hopes to hold Manila until the fall campaign opens.

Litchfield Review: Philippino rivers swollen by heavy rains are about as savage as Philippine bullets, at any rate they are causing as many deaths.

Prison Mirror: "Consistency, thou art a jewel," but what can we say of the law that sells liquor to a man and then locks him up because the liquor made him drunk.

Farm, Stock and Home: The flag of the republic should not come down, but when it becomes the flag of conquest and despotism it ought to come down long enough to be reorganized.

Delano did herself proud last Friday in the receptions of her sons who were members of the 13th Minnesota. Old and young from far and near were entertained in royal style, and as for the soldier boys, there was nothing too good for them.—Waverly Tribune.

Waseca Herald: President McKinley as commander-in-chief of all the military forces of the United States could, if he would, abolish the canteen and the use of intoxicating liquors by the "scratch of a pen." He doesn't do it, and yet some people claim he is a good Methodist. Bah!

Oregon Agriculturist: This has been a good year for cheese factories and their patrons in Oregon and Washington. The price of cheese has been well maintained throughout the summer and the cows have given an unusually large amount of milk as a result of the long continued period of good pasturage.

Le Sueur Sentinel: Porac in the island of Luzon, recently captured by our troops and then evacuated, was promptly occupied by the Philippians. Until we are able to capture and hold the territory we capture, the war there will in no sense amount to anything. To take territory and then abandon it, simply is a confession of weakness.

Bede's Budget: The return from Europe of Chas. A. Towne, former congressman from this district, was marked with a cordial welcome at Duluth on October 11, by his intimate political friends of the state and he was urged to make the congressional race again next year. He has already left to take part in the campaigns in Kentucky, Iowa and Nebraska.

Le Sueur Sentinal: One of the indications which point to the defeat of the dominant party in Ohio in the pending contest is that republican journals and leaders are already hedging. They say in view of the war between the factions in Ohio, it would be unfair to regard a republican defeat or a greatly reduced plurality in that state as a rebuke to the administration. Yes. Just so. It would simply mean that the party "got licked" if they are defeated and that the people are tired of Hannaism.

Oregon Agriculturist: The gate receipts at the Minnesota State Fair this year amounted to $53,000. The receipts from all sources exceeded the expenditures by about $20,000. There were entered for exhibition at the fair 345 horses, 825 cattle, 300 sheep, 249 swine, 916 fowls. There were 1,244 entries of fruits and flowers and 876 of vegetables. In addition to these there were ten county exhibits. These figures are worthy of the consideration of those persons who think state fairs are dying out. This was the fortieth annual state fair in Minnesota.

Death of Ex-Senator Eaton.

The many hearts of county and town will deeply feel sad at the announcement of the death of ex Senator Eaton.

Mr. Eaton was at one time a citizen of our town who was more than worthy of any honor that its people might confer upon him. It was A. Y. Eaton who organized the Delano Odd Fellow lodge and helped clasp the band that binds together in friendship, love and truth its brotherhood, and its chain of love may well feel a sad and silent touch at its missing link.

The city of Buffalo has indeed lost one of its best citizens. When its people arose to do honor to any anniversary it might see fit to celebrate, Mr. Eaton would welcome them in a kind manner long to be remembered, from an inexhaustable encyclopedia of knowledge and wisdom that he was possessor of. His words of welcome were highly received and appreciated by the most wise, as well as lowly and ignorant. Brother Eaton never failed to express a decided interest and love for Buffalo, the worthy city in which he lived, died and peacefully sleeps.

COPYRIGHT 1899 BY COSMOPOLITAN MAGAZINE

THE delights of an evening spent around a well-lighted reading table are not half understood. An illustrated magazine with its wealth of illustrations, its stories of adventure and love, its descriptions of travel which carry you to the remotest ends of the earth, and its instructive articles for young and old—these are the first requisites for your own enjoyment and the entertainment and proper education of your children.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

Both Together One Year for Only $1.80

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. For three years The Cosmopolitan has undisputedly claimed that it reached the largest clientele possessed by any periodical, daily, weekly or monthly, in the world. It was The Cosmopolitan which sent Julian Hawthorne to India to let the world know the real horrors of famine and plague. It was The Cosmopolitan which established at its own cost a great Free Correspondence University which now has over 20,000 students on its rolls. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $3,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.

St Paul Dispatch

25c per month for Daily. 75c per year for the Weekly.

The St. Paul Dispatch is the best Twin City daily; it has no equal in the Northwest as to size or quality.

The DISPATCH excels in Northwestern news, having a correspondent in every Northwestern town.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

JOAQUIN MILLER TO THE BOERS.

The Sword of Gideon, Sword of God
Be with ye, Boers. Brave men of peace,
Ye hewed the path, ye brake the sod,
Ye fed white flocks of fat increase
Where Saxon foot had never trod;
Where Saxon foot unto this day
Had measured not, had never known
Had ye not bravely led the way
And made such happy home your own.

I think God's house must be such home,
The priestess mothers choirsters
Who spin and weave nor care to rome
Beyond this white God's house of hers,
But Spinning sing and spin again.
I think such silent shepherd men
Most like that few the prophet sings—
Most like that few stout Abram drew
Triumphant o'er the slaughtered kings.

Defend God's house! Let fall the crook.
Draw forth the ploughshare from the sod
And trust, as in the Holy Book
The Sword of Gideon and of God—
God and the right! enough to fight
A million regiments of wrong.
Defend! nor count what comes of it.
God's battles bides not with the strong;
Her pride must fall. Lo, it is writ!

Her gold, her grace, how staunch she fares!
Fame's wine cup pressing her proud lips—
Her checkerboard of battle squares
Rimmed 'round by steel built battleships!
And yet meanwhiles ten thousand miles
She seeks ye out. Well, welcome her!
Give her such welcome with such will
As Boston gave in battle's whir
That red, drear day at Bunker Hill.

—JOAQUIN MILLER.

The Heights, Oakland, Cal., October, 1899.

If the gold combine and its favored monopolists succeed in their plans, the individual business men will soon become a thing of the past, and all opportunity for advancement permanently shut out for present and future generations. This is a matter for young men to study and consider seriously.

Didn't Want to Kill McKinley.

When asked why it was that the 13th sit quietly and listened to President McKinley say that he thanked them, officers and men, for sending him word that they would remain in the Philippines until another army was raised to take their place, one returned soldier said: "Do you suppose we wanted to kill the old man right there?"

Why Are We Fighting Filipinos?

If we got the Philippines by conquest from Spain, we must have got only what Spain possessed. If we purchased them from Spain we must have got only what Spain had to sell. As we now occupy more of the islands than Spain did, what can we be chasing Filipinos about the islands for?

Which Is Right.

While on his recent speaking tour President McKinley said: "Never was there more amity and good feeling and good fellowship existing between the United States and other nations of the world than today".

While acting as a peace commissioner, Senator Davis gave out that the United States have not a friend on the continent of Europe.

Which is right? Or have friendly relations been changed?

Another Benedict Arnold.

One of Mr. Bryan's noble Filipinos has offered to betray his leader, Aguinaldo, and deliver him into the hands of Gen. Otis for $50,000. This is the kind of people Col. Bryan and Edward Atkinson are shedding their bitter tears over, because of their cruel oppression by the imperialistic policy of William McKinley. But murder will out, and the true status of the Filipinos is bound to make itself known despite the "weepa" of the "aunties."—Aitkin Age.

Oh no Caarley, those kind of fellows generally get on the other side: as for instance, the Sultan of Sulu, and Benedict Arnold. No patriot is shedding bitter tears over them,

Why Men Are Republicans.

Is it any wonder that men who are so prejudiced to party as to read no papers but those published by Republican editors, in their own state and carefully censored for political purposes, continue to be republican, and claim in public that they are republican right or wrong? These republican organs abuse everybody that is not inside their own ranks. They even abuse their old leaders for years, because they do not agree with them in one or more particulars. They call democrats donkeys; populists fools and simpletons; prohibitionists cranks; while they say that American patriots who insist that love of country is patriotism and to be commended are "copperheads" and "rebels".

Democrats are for the majority ruling: for government by consent of the governed: equal rights to all and special favors to none.

Populists are for reforms well worth considering, and not to be put down by high handed mockery and ignoble names.

Prohibitionists have a perfect right to demand that the laws of the land be enforced as to army canteens" and other matters pertaining to temperance as well as other laws are; and from a Methodist president they have a right to expect that temperance laws will not be neglected or dodged.

Patriotism, love of country is today as noble an attribute of the true American as ever he was. He loves his native land, and he is willing for others who are equally patriotic to have their God given rights. Patriotism knows no bounds save independence, liberty, rule by the people; and is the same whether at Lexington or Bunker Hill, on the Alpine peaks of Switzerland, or in Cuba or the Philippines. Resisting oppression of any kind, by a nation is right in the eyes of the people, and right will prevail.

MAPLE PLAIN.

MR. EDITOR: Do my brother farmers see any visionary dollar wheat. They say large bodies move slow and so does the wheat pit. Almost all other industries combine together and establish a price on their labor, their products or their money, except the farmer, but he only trusts to providence and the shrewd politician for guidance. The providence part of it is all right but the shrewn politician would sell out a whole kingdom for self agrandizement. Most of the farming population are too sectarian for their own good financially. They quarrel and fight over politics while the otcer fellow is pulling dollars out of their pockets.

Some people are always willing to go on the winning side and take their chances what may follow. But it seems we need no gift of prophesy to warn us of the approaching danger, for it can easily be seen with the naked eye. The clouds are getting thicker and the storm is gathering fast. It can be seen far above the horizon, and the voice of the croaking politician is heard above to groans of hodmen, the hewers of wood and the drawers of water. While the poor are pleading for justice and equal rights, the task master gives his whiplash another twirl and they fall in line, and prices are again doubled up on the consumer. But gentlemen if you get what you voted for do not squeal. You said in 1896, give us high protection, and you could not get it much higher unless you went up into the heavens. Many articles have doubled, such as nails, lath, etc. and still the republicans want high protection. In 1896 anything but high protection and a single gold standard was unsavory meat to the followers of the present administration.

Congress will meet in a month or two and the first thing they will do will be to look after the money question by saddling a single gold standard upon the people It will come hard on the people, but it will fry the fat out of them as effectually as Moses brought water out of the barren rock.

Webster said Congress had no right to demonetize either gold or silver. They were endowed as instruments of exchange before there was any Congress, and it is said James G. Blaine was of the same opinion. The fallacy of a fifty cent silver dollar is without a precedent, and the man who advocates its existence in honesty should be ashamed of his ignorance. Congress never made a dollar that was not a dollar.

The administration papers are all the while telling about the silver issue being dead. It is not dead but is alive and will be with us in 1900, as much as Lazareth was alive after his resurrection. The republican party may win the race in 1900, but in order to do it they will have to fix up a lot of fence. They will be put on the defense in every issue. The money question will be an issue. The truths will be an issue. And the war with the Filipinos will be an issue they can not climb over or get around. These poor Filipinos had been fighting Spain for over 300 years to try and establish an independent government of their own, but without success. Spain had bothered them for a long time but could not conquer them, so she sold out to the United States. Now we have undertaken the job at a high price and the sacrifice of many precious lives. The 13 colonies in this country rebelled against their mother country on account of unjust taxation and being denied the right of representation. Is it strange the Filipinos should fight for their rights as well as we. This is no war that was declared by Congress, but the administration and members of the third house. Some may justify themselves by saying this is a God given war and is for the sake of humanity. In the start when we fought Spain in Cuba it might pass as such but this war against the Filipinos will never be recognized as a war of humanity but one for conquest and subjugation. Some say it would be unwise to arbitrate; it would lessen our pride as a nation etc. Not a bit of it. It should not lessen our pride nor our standing as a nation, but give us recognition more fully among other nations. Some say wherever the flag goes there it must stay. So say we all if it is right and proper it should be there.

The American Female Guardian Society of New York, at one of their meetings unanimously opposed the seating of Mr. Brigham H. Roberts, congressman elect from Utah. In principle this may be all right. They establish their objections on the grouns of his being a full fledged polygamist. But our humane female society should go a little further in way of correcting the morals of the country. It seems our president has entered into a treaty with the Sultan of Sulu, a professional polygamist to make him a subject of the United States through the Philippine purchase. How is this Mr. Editor. We condemn polygamy in Utah, but our president is willing to accept this full blood Mohammedan with his plural wives into full citizenship, without even asking him to say grace. Accepting slavery along with him, a thing that more than thirty years ago cost this country millions of money and thousands of precious lives. If this is our status as a nation, better do away with our foreign missionary board for such declarations brand it as a lie. It would seem everything is being done on a war basis. England and South Africa have crossed swords, regardless of President Kruger's ultimatum in which it seems he offered everything that was just and fair. The queen's speech to parliament was a declaration for war against the Boers of South Africa. It seems to us England is encroaching upon these poor people of the Transvaal. Parliament has been called together by the queen for the purpose of providing for expenditures, etc., etc.

Our country now has her full quota of enlisted men both regulars and volunteers, amounting in all to 100,000, 65,000 regulars and 35,000 volunteers. What a vast army of men called out to fight these poor Filipinos who never done us any harm. I believe to shoot and kill these poor people is a crime against God and humanity.

We have often heard it remarked that individuals received chastisement and sore affliction according to the evil deeds they had done. If this be true will it not apply to nations as well as individuals. It certainly will. Then we as a nation, by the providence of God have grown rich and multiplied in strength during the last century, should ward against encroaching upon the territory of other nations and the rights of the people. Might does not always make right.

The Paradise of Thieves.

To the other wrongs growing out of the war upon the Filipinos, we now have charges of stealing and corruption on a large scale. Napoleon E. Guyot, of Company G, First Colorado infantry, who was detailed at Manila for work in the office of the auditor of public accounts, gives out some statements that are startling. He gives dates, names places, and amounts showing that officers of the government, under Otis, are plundering both our own government and the people of Manila outrageously. He says: "Such a mass of falsification, duplicating of names on pay rolls, overcharges for merchandise, etc., I never before saw or dreamed of in alll my experience."

The English firm of Warner, Barnes & Co. seems to be the favorite of Gen. Otis and Colonels Brainard and Pope. Mr. Guyot says that he recorded one bill for fancy groceries, and on check-it with the prices in any store in Manila for the same goods, found a net steal of $5,000.

The Springfield (Mass.) Republican publishes a long list of items and specifications, which if true (and so far they are not denied) ought to cause the arrest of Gen. Otis and his under officers and their punishment. We have no doubt that if McKinleyism prevails in the next election Manila will become the thieves' paradise.—Waseca Herald.

Free Shaves for Strikers.

The Barbers' union of Superior offers to shave men of the longshoremen's union that are out on a strike, free of cost on presentation of credentials. The barbers take this method of displaying their sympathy and desire to assist the strikers.—Duluth News Tribune.

GIRLS ARE ANGRY.

Students of Radcliffe College Resent Reflection of Harvard Professor.

Intimation on His Part That the Girls Are a Menace to the Best Interests of Harvard University.

Radcliffe girls are discussing with a good deal of interest the left-handed plea for their college's better endowment, to which Prof. Barrett Wendell has recently given publicity in the columns of the Harvard Monthly. Prof. Wendell disapproves of the growing intimacy of Harvard's relations with Radcliffe.

"If the practice (of permitting properly-qualified Radcliffe students to take certain advanced courses in Harvard university) continue and increase," he remarks, "Harvard may suddenly find itself committed to coeducation, somewhat as unwary men lay themselves open in breach of promise."

The position of Harvard and Radcliffe Prof. Wendell then proceeds to analyze. He does full justice to Harvard, but there are those who insist that, while he does not misrepresent Radcliffe, he fails to say all that might be said of the dignity and reticence the girls' college has always evinced in its dealings with Harvard.

Radcliffe has never presumed upon the privileges Harvard has seen fit to bestow upon her. But, of course, Prof. Wendell's article was not written for Radcliffe's benefit, though he ingeniously gives a twist in his closing paragraph which may tend to calm the rising wrath of the girl students.

Prof. Wendell's article is occasionally funny. According to him, Radcliffe has worked "perceptible harm" to Harvard instructors. The light-minded thereabout wonder whether Mr. Wendell is using words with his usual accuracy and precision when he asserts that "when a man likes to teach women he is in real danger of infatuation."

This is because his "mental muscle" suffers relaxation in teaching girls, inasmuch as they offer, when contrasted with men students, "a comparative lack of mental resistance." Now that the "original type of annex student—serious, mature, stimulating—is no longer dominant," he holds that this danger of "infatuation" has naturally increased.

NEW MARVEL OF TELEGRAPHY

Method Invented by Hungarians by Which Many Thousand Words an Hour are Sent.

A wonderful method of quick telegraphy has been discovered by two Hungarian engineers, Antin Pollak and Joseph Virag, which enables the sending of nearly a hundred thousand words an hour.

The method has just been tested on the telegraph lines from Buda-Pesth to Berlin. Representatives of the German ministry of commerce viewed the apparatus working in Berlin, while a delegate from the French government and a representative of an American cable company, together with Hungarian officials, inspected the working of the invention in Buda-Pesth.

A number of telegrams were exchanged between Buda-Pesth and Berlin, and it was found that the average rate of wiring with the new apparatus was 22 words a second, giving 1,320 a minute and over 79,000 an hour. These results were witnessed and testified to by experts.

The new apparatus is a marvel of ingenuity. Messages are first perforated on a slip of paper. These signs are then transmitted with lightning speed over the wires, and are received as photograms at the other end, where they can be read and quickly prepared for delivery.

LOSSES BY FIRE.

In United States and Canada for Nine Months of 1899 They Exceed Losses of Same Period of 1898.

The fire loss of the United States and Canada for the month of September, as compiled from the Journal of Commerce and Commercial Bulletin records, amounts to $12,778,800. The following table will show the losses for the first nine months of 1899 in comparison with the same period in 1898:

Month.	1898.	1899.
January	$9,472,500	$10,718,000
February	12,629,300	18,469,000
March	7,845,200	11,493,000
April	8,211,000	9,213,000
May	11,072,200	9,091,900
June	9,206,900	5,714,850
July	8,929,750	11,426,400
August	7,793,800	9,703,700
September	14,203,650	12,778,800
Totals	$89,164,000	$99,608,650

It will be seen that the 1899 losses so far exceed those of the same months of 1898 by over $10,000,000.

GERMAN EXPORTS.

According to Official Returns Those to the United States for Last Three Months Show an Increase.

German exports to the United States for the three months ended September 30 reached, according to the official returns $22,372,355, an increase of $1,767,084 over the corresponding quarter of last year.

Of this aggregate the Frankfort consulate general returns $10,769,164, an increase of $2,227,546, and the Berlin consulate general $11,603,191, a decrease of $460,457.

The falling off in the Berlin returns is due to the decrease of sugar exports. The exports of general merchandise show an increase of $1,341,364.

Knows All About Yachting.

Every man who ever wore a yachting cap considers himself fully competent, says the Kansas City Journal, to explain all the fine points of a yacht race.

INCREASING THE REVENUE.

France Adopts a Novel Postal Advertising Scheme to Raise Needed Money.

France, whose national debt has been growing every day since it paid its millards of redemption money to Germany, after exhausting, apparently, every conceivable means of taxation, has lately taken to advertising as a means of money-making. This method has been seized upon by numerous municipalities, which have sold the space on certain public buildings to advertisers, as the panels of city railway cars are disposed of in the United States.

As public buildings as well as the packages in which several kinds of monopoly goods are sold are entirely under the control of the government, it is evident it has advertising facilities at command which entirely eclipse in extent and value anything that private advertisers can offer. The value of these can be greatly enhanced by legal restrictions upon the owners of private property, preventing the sale of space for similar purposes.

The first government enterprise in this field is the "Lettre announce" or advertising postpaid letter sheet. One-half the sheet, of ordinary letter size and rather poor quality, is devoted to advertising, except a space reserved for the address, on which is printed a 15-centime postage stamp. The letter is written on the other side of the sheet, which is then ingeniously folded and held by a gummed flap. The whole thing is sold for ten centimes—that is, two-thirds of the price of a single postage, or exactly the same as a postal card. The purchaser saves one-third the postage, and gets his paper and envelope for nothing. The new system will evidently take the place of the postal card. It will decrease the sale of postage stamps, but the receipts from the advertising will enable the government to make a substantial profit.

INSUFFICIENT AMMUNITION.

Complaint of Artillery Officers on Coast Defense Work — Not Enough Practice.

Artillery officers on coast defense work complain to the war department that the fund for ammunition for experimental and practice purposes is insufficient. It does not admit of the thorough instruction of men who handle the guns, with the result that reports from the coast fortifications present the rather serious aspect of an enlisted artillery force possessed of an inferior knowledge of the big weapons and an inexpertness in firing them.

In the navy much time and money is expended annually in training the gun crews in accuracy of fire. Records are kept on each ship of the gun practice which is carried on under the conditions of actual conflict. The result has been the stimulation of interest in such matters and the education of the enlisted men to splendid marksmanship.

In the army, according to reports received at the war department, there is little opportunity to train the men in the handling of the coast guns under actual service conditions. More than one appeal has come to Washington for an increase in the allotment, now pitifully small. Congress will be urged to make a more liberal provision for this necessary equipment of the coast artillerists.

GIRLS FORM A "PIE" SOCIETY.

Missouri University Co-eds Improve on the Old Greek Letter Fraternities.

The Eight Nu Pi is the unique name of a unique society which was organized at Columbia, Mo. It resembles somewhat a college Greek letter fraternity. The last two syllables of the name are formed by Greek letters, but the first is simple English. The name is of artfully concealed significance. Translated into English it is "Ate New Pie."

The essential qualifications for membership are beauty and a relish for pie. The first requirement of a member is to learn to cook a pie. The initiation is entirely conducted by means of new pies, several of which are served in rapid succession to the "frat."

The object of the society, aside from the pleasure to be derived from pie parties to be given by the order, will be to improve the quality of American pies by instruction in the art of baking. The present members and originator of the society are Miss Younger, of Bowling Green; Miss Ayers, of Arkansas, and Misses Gould, Ringo and Storm, of Kirksville.

Cheap Paper Making.

There is talk in Canada of manufacturing news paper at a cost not exceeding one cent a pound and of competing in the market on this side of the border. It is considered that such a thing is possible if the manufacture be conducted on a large scale. News paper produced at a cost of a cent a pound, even with duty and freight charges added, would be a disturbing element in the New York market, for example, and would compel our manufacturers to do some very close figuring.

Modest and Forty.

A New York man advertises as follows: "I want a wife; she must be wealthy; I am poor, healthy, 40, excellent character; no time for nonsense." The Chicago Times-Herald wants to know why any rich lady in our land should now remain unhappy?

Students at Italian Universities.

In 1877 the number of students at the universities of Italy was under 9,000. This year it is nearly 26,000, or more, in proportion to the population, than Germany or France can boast.

Cheap Tours.

Englishmen may now spend a fortnight in Paris or Switzerland for $35, or enjoy a Norwegian tour for $50.

Latest News

Latest news from South Africa says that Gens. White and Yule have joined forces, and comes as a great relief to British officials as both columns were in great danger.

It is reported that the incapacity of the intelligence Dept. of the Boers saved Gen. Yule's column from a great disaster. The column made a very exhausting march, chiefly by night, so as to escape molestation.

The British were forced to evacuate Dundee to the Boers.

A cable from Berlin announces that Emperor William will visit England next month despite the advese sentiment of his people. It had been reported he would not visit England on account of the Transvaal war.

The Boers under Gen. Cronje are bombarding Mafeking. Women and children were given time to leave the town before operations were commenced.

Duluth Herald.

One of the North Dakota volunteers, whose parents reside in Duluth, came home the other day, and he talks most energetically against the idea of keeping the Philippines as part of the United States. He says that the soldiers—at least those with whom he came in contact—fought against the Filipinos because it was their duty as members of the American army acting under orders from the administration at Washington, but their hearts were not in the work, because they believed the Filipinos should given the independence that they demand.

The Chicago Platform.

"That platform to my mind, is like Jefferson's first inauguration adress—not for a day but for a generation. I do not expect to live long enough: I—and I am a young man—I do not expect to live long enough to see the Democratic party withdraw from that platform a single plank put there in 1896. (wild cheers).—William Jennings Bryan in his Dallas, Texas, speech.

Admiral Farragut's old flagship, the Hartford, has been reconstructed at San Francisco and is again in commission. She is a small and vulnerable craft compared with a modern armored vessel.

A complete English dictionary contains four times as many words as are found in any other language, and the vocabulary grows fast. In yacht racing a "rubberneck" means a trespasser upon the course.

The Atlanta Constitution tells of a place in that city where the following sign may be seen: "James and John Brown, literary establishment. Campaign speeches, obituaries and poetry written while you wait."

A new drink in France is called piquette, and, though it was discovered but a year ago, over 50,000,000 gallons of it has been consumed. It is made of dried apples, raisins and water, with a little sugar and a bit of fermentation.

That was a happy conception and based on historic precedents of announcing Admiral Dewey's arrival in Vermont by bonfires on the mountain tops. It was the primitive way of telegraphing and has told many a patriotic message.

The American army mule is a tough proposition, but he cannot stand everything. The steamer Siam, which had over 330 mules on board, bound for Manila, encountered a typhoon on the way, and the chief kicking done by most of the animals was kicking the bucket.

The funeral at Pine Ridge, S. D., of Conquering Bear, the Indian chief who after winning 100 battles against unfriendly tribes died from getting off a trolley car the wrong way, was attended by six of his wives, with faces painted black for mourning, and 123 of his children and grandchildren.

Ella Ewing, the giantess, has completed her residence near Gorin, Mo. The house was built on a scale proportionate with Miss Ewing's needs. The doors are ten feet high and the ceilings and windows look like those of fabled giants' castles. She is still growing, and is now eight feet and four inches tall.

The "good Indian" is soon to have his first monument. The Minnesota Valley Historical society is about to build a granite shaft 52 feet high to the memory of the good Indians who befriended white settlers during the Sioux rebellion of 1862. The monument is to be located on state land near the village of Morton.

Dr. Lewhess, of London, an enthusiast on the question of automobiles, is now making preparations for a trip across Europe to Peking in an "auto" of his own design. He says he will cover the 8,000 miles between London and Peking in 90 days. Country roads on that continent must be of an entirely different brand from those we have in this land.

As the weather has become somewhat chilly for aquatic outings, the fool who rocks the boat has retired up stage and the idiot who points "unloaded" guns advances into the full glare of the footlights. He will be supported by the slope-headed Aztec who pulls chairs from beneath people who are about to sit down and by the zany who strews banana peelings on the sidewalk and derives boisterous entertainment from the results thereof.

The sultan of Turkey has ordered the repairing and rebuilding, with government assistance, of all Armenian churches, schools and monasteries destroyed in the riots of 1896 and 1897. This is a heavy contract, as some of the oldest monasteries in Asia Minor were destroyed and hundreds of churches and schools. The same order removes restrictions imposed upon Armenians and in a general way complies with the demands of the European powers.

New York city is excited over another terrible murder case. The dismembered body of a beautifully formed woman was found scattered all over the city, the torso being found in the river by a boy, the arms in another place a mile away, and other members and pieces of the body in different places about the city. All parts of the body have now been found except the head. The police have been unable to disclose the identity of the murdered woman, nor have they anything more than "clews" as to the murderer.

If they only had revolutions and rebellions and wars on the South American plan in other parts of the world it would be possible to have more of them and thus add to the excitement and gayety of nations. In Venezuela, for instance, all the plans are made for another uprising, and so perfect is the stage management of the spectacle that there is every assurance that there will be no fighting when the government is overturned. The present ruler will simply bide his time and watch for an opportunity to sneak into the state house again when no one is looking.

If there were more Spaniards like the Duc d'Arcos, the Spanish minister at Washington, his country would appear in a better light before the world. The duke pays a great tribute to Admiral Dewey as a brave and noble man, who fully deserves the honor he is receiving. And what is still better, the duke says there are now absolutely no differences between the United States and Spain, and it is the hope of all true Spaniards that this condition shall exist, and he adds that it is the ambition of his life "to bring about the very utmost of good feeling and good will."

In order to refute the charge that the automobile is a menace to the safety of pedestrians a paper published in Paris, where the motor carriages are extensively used, publishes a list of accidents caused by horse and horseless vehicles, which is greatly in favor of the latter. Automobiles, according to this showing, caused one death and 33 wounds, while during the same time 67 persons were killed and 745 injured by horses. The moral is plain; sell your horse and buy an automobile. At the Paris rate, the horse is the best advertising medium the horseless carriage can have.

BLOW TO A TRUST.

Illinois Supreme Court Renders an Important Decision Against the Glucose Combine.

Springfield, Ill., Oct 20.—The supreme court of Illinois, in an elaborate decision handed down Thursday evening, forbids the transfer of the American Glucose company's plant at Peoria to the Glucose Sugar Refining company, of New Jersey, and declares the trust agreement entered into with the latter corporation to be illegal. This is believed to be the first decision by any court rendered in a case in which the legal questions involved in the modern trust have been presented fully and passed on.

The supreme court holds that the facts presented show that the combination to regulate and fix the price of glucose and grape sugar and their products and by-products was illegal, and that the agreement not to manufacture or sell within a certain territory, coextensive with the corn belt, was in restraint of trade.

The case was one begun by George F. Harding, of this city, and the Chicago Real Estate & Loan company, of which he is the president and owner, and makes the American Glucose company the principal defendant. The American Glucose company is one of the six concerns which the trust absorbed, and the purpose of the litigation is to prevent the sale of the American Glucose company to the trust.

By the terms of the decree the trust will lose property, including an extensive plant at Peoria, for which it paid over $2,000,000, and the stock and property will revert to the original owners, of whom the complainant is one.

Besides pronouncing against the legality of one of the most powerful trade organizations formed in recent years, the decision will make it dangerous to interests involved to form combinations in the future which have for their purpose the absorption of a sufficient number of concerns to control the output of the product involved. It will also place at the mercy of the law the many combinations of capital and business interests which have recently been made, provided they are incorporated under the statute of the state of Illinois.

HE CANCELS ENGAGEMENTS.

Admiral Dewey Follows Advice of His Physician—Home for the Admiral Selected.

Washington, Oct. 23.—Admiral Dewey, on the advice of his physician, has canceled the dates for his visits to Philadelphia and Atlanta and will accept no more invitations of this sort before next spring. The following official statement on the subject was made at his office here Saturday:

"Acting on the advice of his physicians, Admiral Dewey finds that it will be necessary to cancel the engagements he has entered into to visit certain cities and to decline all invitations for the present. He finds that the mental strain incident to such visits is seriously affecting his health."

The Dewey house committee, which had in charge the purchase of a home for the admiral from the moneys received by popular subscription, has selected the house 1747 Rhode Island avenue, Northwest, known as the Fitch house. The price of the house was $50,000, but as the committee has only $48,000 on hand, Mr. Fitch, the owner, contributed that amount necessary to bring the sum up to $50,000. The solicitor of the treasury will examine the title to-day and the purchase will be made and the property turned over on Tuesday. It is a matter of interest to note that the house selected finally was that which Admiral Dewey indicated as his choice before the committee began its work of examining more than 60 houses.

A MOB'S REVENGE.

Negro in Mississippi Burned at the Stake for Participation in an Awful Crime.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 21.—A special to the Scimitar from Canton, Miss., says: The little town of St. Anne, 20 miles east of Canton, in Leake county, was Thursday night the scene of a horrible tragedy—a sequel to the burning of the Gambrel family the night before. Joe Leflore, a negro, who was captured by a posse, confessed that he, in company with other negroes, had tied Mrs. Gambrel and her four children to the floor of the house, saturated the surroundings with kerosene, and burned the unfortunate people alive. The negro, after the confession of the awful crime, was promptly roped to a stake and burned to a crisp, while the citizens looked on in grim silence.

A Disastrous Wreck.

Wabash, Ind., Oct. 24.—A frightful wreck occurred on the Wabash road about four miles from here about 7:30 o'clock Monday evening, by which one man was killed, seven box cars and a new engine were completely wrecked. Thirteen loaded cars broke loose from freight train No. 73 and ran down a grade to a point where there is a sharp curve in the track. Train No. 91, coming west at a lively rate of speed, struck the cars with terrible force. The engine was thrown 20 feet from the track and the cars were smashed into splinters.

Postal Money Orders.

Washington, Oct. 24.—The annual report of the money order system of the post office department shows a total issue during the year amounting to $224,958,363, an increase of $20,364,492 over last year. The total earnings of the system aggregating $1,591,638, show an increase of $395,004. On these orders a war revenue tax of $579,886 was collected. There were 4,396 new money order offices added and 29,607,870 domestic and 968,501 international money orders issued.

Iowa Troops Landed.

San Francisco, Oct. 24.—The Fifty-first regiment of Iowa volunteers, numbering 764 men and 46 officers, under the command of Col. J. C. Loper, arrived here from Manila on the transport Senator. Adjt. Gen. Byers, of Iowa, representing Gov. Shaw, and 300 citizens of Iowa met the Senator at the Golden Gate in a number of tugs. They received a royal reception from the volunteers.

DRIVEN FROM TRENCHES.

Rebels Near Calamba and Angeles Routed with Heavy Loss—Son of Gen. O. O. Howard Killed.

Manila, Oct. 24.—The insurgents around Calamba and Angeles have bothered the Americans lately with their repeated attacks, like most of the Filipino attacks, consisting of shooting a lot of ammunition into their opponents' camp from long range. Maj. Cheatham's battalion of the Thirty-seventh infantry, three companies of the Twenty-first infantry, a battery of the Fifth artillery and a gatling gun sallied out Monday morning from Calamba, drove the Filipinos from their trenches and pursued them for three miles, inflicting heavy loss on them. One American was killed and three were wounded, all of the Twenty-first infantry.

Lieut. Ferguson, with 20 scouts of the Thirty-sixth regiment, reconnoitering near Labao, encountered a party of mounted Filipinos. He killed six of them and captured eight, with ten rifles.

Four men from the gunboat Marivelos were lured ashore 18 miles from Iloilo by a flag of truce and the insurgents killed one of them, wounded one and captured a third. The gunboat was unable to fire for fear of wounding the Americans.

Washington, Oct. 24.—The following telegram confirming the report of the death of Capt. Guy Howard was received at the war department from Gen. Otis Monday:

"Manila, Oct. 23. — Capt. Guy Howard, assistant quartermaster, and quartermaster of volunteers, killed yesterday near Arayat, while on launch on Rio Grande river, by concealed insurgents. His clerk, a civilian employe, and native, wounded. Scouting detachment, Thirty-sixth volunteers, encountered insurgents southwest Santa Rita, scattering them, killing six, capturing eight, and ten rifles. No casualties. Gen. Lawton operating at San Isidro.

"The forwarding of supplies to that point continues, attended with some difficulty on account of lack of transportation, which will be supplied soon. Insurgents of southern Luzon attacked Calamba. These were driven off. No casualties.

"This morning Kline, commanding at Calamba, vigorously attacked insurgent force concentrating on his front, routed them from trenches and pursued thee miles. His casualties, one private, killed, one corporal and three privates wounded. Enemy's loss unknown."

Manila, Oct. 23.—An American officer was killed and two men were wounded by the Filipinos in an attack on a launch with Gen. Lawton's expedition in the Rio Chiquita, near San Isidro. The rebels fired volleys from the shore.

San Francisco, Oct. 23.—Gen. Funston received the following telegram from Adjt. Gen. Corbin:

"In view of the recent increase of the volunteer forces it is now possible for the department to avail itself of your further services as a brigadier general, of which the secretary of war directs me to inform you. Should it be agreeable to you orders will issue for your return to the Philippines as soon as your former regiment has been mustered out and received by the people of Kansas. Please signify your pleasure in the premises at the earliest possible convenience."

An hour later Gen. Funston announced that he would return to the islands. He will return to Kansas with the Kansas volunteers, who will be mustered out October 28. He then will report in Washington for duty in the Philippines.

CUP REMAINS HERE.

Columbia Easily Beats the Challenger in the Final Contest for the Trophy.

New York, Oct. 21.—Through wild and hoary seas, in a breeze that approached the dignity of a gale, the gallant sloop Columbia on Friday vanquished the British challenger Shamrock by six minutes and 18 seconds, actual time, and six minutes and 34 seconds, corrected time, thus completing the series for the America's cup with a magnificent rough-weather duel and a glorious Yankee victory. For the eleventh time the attempt of a foreigner to wrest from America the yachting supremacy of the world has failed. The trophy won by the old schooner America 48 years ago is still ours, a monument to the superiority of American seamanship and American naval architecture and a standing challenge to the yachtsmen of all nations. To Sir Thomas Lipton, whose name is now added to the list of defeated aspirants for the honor of carrying the cup back across the Atlantic, failure was a crushing blow. His hope had been high, but, like the true sportsman that he is, the sting of defeat has left no bitterness, and with undaunted courage he intimates that he may be back with a better boat to try again. The boats have had two fair and square races, one in light airs and the other in a heavy blow, and Sir Thomas is perfectly satisfied that he was beaten by the better boat.

Perish in a Blizzard.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 23.—A special to the Times from Great Falls, Mont., says: Nine men perished in the recent blizzard. Five bodies have been recovered and it is probable this is not half the list. The last body found was that of H. Herald, a sheep herder. The sheep had eaten off his beard, clothing and part of his boots. Several bands of sheep without herders have been wandering in that country and point to unknown deaths.

Secretary Long Commended.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 24.—Resolutions were adopted at Monday's session of the Woman's Home Misionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal church, commending Secretary Long for his recent official decision forbidding the sale of strong drink in the navy and requesting President McKinley to give his sanction to the enforcement of the anti-canteen law. Mrs. Clinton B. Fisk, of New York, was reelected president.

To Build Big Steel Mills.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 20.—Steel mills which will rival in size the big Johnson plant at Lorain, O., will soon be established at Fairport Harbor, a few miles east of this city. The cost is said to be $5,000,000. Cleveland capitalists are back of the enterprise. The name will be the Holly Steel company. One thousand acres of land have been secured, with a frontage of 4,500 feet on the river.

A Big Pump.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 24.—A Free Press special from Houghton, Mich., says: The second largest pump in the world, having a daily capacity of 40,000,000 gallons, was started at the Tamarack and Osceola stamp mill Monday. The Calumet and Hecla has the largest pump, its capacity being 60,000,000 gallons daily.

Passing of the Horse.

So soon as nature sees an improvement, there is a change. The candle gave way to electricity. The spinning wheel to machinery, the horse to the automobile. The fact that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has been sold for over half a century, proves its value. There is nothing to equal it for stomach or liver trouble. It is Nature's own remedy, and the only one to cure dyspepsia or weak stomach.

Good for Girls Only.

Dewey anecdotes relate that the admiral traces his start in life to a severe whipping a school teacher gave him, whereupon he resolved to lead a new life. This anecdote will be read out loud by the mothers, but it will not fool any boy. It is harder to fool a boy than a girl with fairy tales.—Atchison Globe.

A MAGNIFICENT WOMAN

Holds Up Peruna as the Ideal Remedy For Female Catarrh.

Mrs. Clara Makemer.

Mrs. Clara Makemer, housekeeper for the Florence Crittenden Anchorage Mission, of Chicago, writes the following letter from 302 Chestnut street, Chicago:

"Peruna is the best tonic I have ever known for general debility, a sure cure for liver complaint, and a never failing adjuster in cases of dyspepsia.

"I have used it in cases of female irregularities and weak nerves common to the sex, and have found it most satisfactory."

From early girlhood to the end of the child-bearing period few women are entirely free from some degree of catarrh of the pelvic organs.

With Peruna the thousand and one ailments dependent upon catarrh of the pelvic organs can be wholly averted.

A Thrifty Damsel.

A spirit of thrift was shown by a young woman who entered a car with sundry boxes and bundles. Another young person came in at the next station and recognized her.

"Oh, my, who is to be married?"

"Nobody; and me last of all."

"Then what are the flowers for?"

"A funeral; our teacher died, and we girls put together to get this wreath."

"Poor thing; did she know she was going to die?"

"I don't think so;" then, after a pause, she added, cheerfully: "but she does by this time," all being said in the most unconscious way.

"How much was the wreath?"

"Two dollars and sixty cents. I only had two-twenty-five."

"Did you pay the difference?"

"Dear, no. I made him give it to me for two dollars, so I saved my own quarter I put in, but I'm going to make the girls think I paid two-sixty."

"Well, that's right; the wear and tear is worth a quarter, surely."—Detroit Free Press.

OLD LIBERTY BELL

DID NOT RING OUT IN VAIN IN 1776.

So Declare Patriotic Men of All Parties, in Conference at Chicago—Representatives of More Than Thirty States Condemn the McKinley Policy in the Philippines, and Organize For His Defeat and For Americanism—Governor Lind's Tribute to the Volunteer Among the Key Notes—Other National Political Echoes—Mr. Bryan's Triumphal Campaign—Towne in Nebraska, Kentucky and Iowa—State and Twin City Political Points of the Week.

Reform Press Bureau.
ST. PAUL, Oct. 23, 1899.

Did our liberty bell ring in vain?
Was our Declaration a lie?
Must we turn to the old world again
With the penitent prodigal's cry?
Must we arm us and march in the van
Of Europe's barbaric parade
And boom out a gunpowder gospel to man
To open a pathway for trade?
Shall we strut through the world and blaster and brag,
With the dollar mark stamped on the brave old flag?

Again is to be recorded, by personal knowledge, more flagrant exercise of the monopoly of news, in the censorship of political information by the Associated Press, the case of the anti-imperialist conference at Chicago, held several days during the past week. The Associated Press gave neither the facts, as to representation, nor the spirit or the plans of the conference. But for the fact that General Carl Schurz' address was sent out in advance to the Northwest, enabling the fair minded papers to print portions of the same, there has been but the merest skeleton given the people, of what was the most important, most patriotic, most far-reaching gathering, as many believe, in the present generation. There is space for but the merest condensation, but every Reform Press reader will in time have opportunity for learning the whole proceedings, as they will be published in pamphlet form.

Every state in the Union was represented by letters or personal delegates, the latter coming from 30 states. More of them were life-long Republicans than of any other political faith. Many were gold Democrats who had stumped for McKinley. An instance of change is Captain Patrick O'Farrell of Washington, who stumped five states for McKinley, and was the author of the famous Silver Catechism of which Hanna circulated 2,000,000 copies in the close districts. He declared he would now go 16 to 1, high tariff or low tariff or for "a yellow dog" in preference to McKinley. Veteran fathers of the Republican party from all parts of the country were in evidence. At the opening session over 100 conferees were present, reinforced until a larger hall (Central Music hall) was required, and it was filled to its capacity at the open sessions, in spite of the careful suppression of announcements by the administration-controlled newspapers. Extremes on other issues are sunk for the moment, as shown in the fact that Cleveland's former Secretary of agriculture, Mr. Morton, presided over one of the open meetings, and our Towne over the other. It was, in a word, a meeting of the Phillips, Garrisons and Wades of anti-slavery times, represented by the Townes, Schurzs, Atkinsons, Cockrans, Welchs, Bigelows and the rest, who are at the front to arouse the American conscience against the destruction of American liberty by American conquest.

When organization is completed the term "Americanism" or "American policy" may supplant the term "Anti-Imperialism."

Ex-Congressman Towne was able to reach the meeting from his Iowa engagements, and was at once chosen to preside over the great meeting addressed by Bourke Cockran.

Minnesota was well represented otherwise. A feature of one of the sessions was the reading of that portion of Governor Lind's address to the Thirteenth, in which he referred to the passing of the volunteer, in the passing of the country to the policy of conquest and aggression. The sentence that "for purposes of conquest, he (the Volunteer) is unfit, for he carries a conscience as well as a gun," was the subject of several addresses, and brought out from the official records, that more than 8,000 of our volunteers at Manila expressed desire to be withdrawn from shooting down the liberty-seeking Filipinos!

A complete plan was arranged, and one for organization will be completed by the authorized committee. The former is to have the whole American nation rise by petition to congress in substance as follows:

That congress direct the president to suspend hostilities, by informing the Filipinos that our purpose is to give them self-government and independence, and that meanwhile, as they go on organizing their government, we will protect them by our flag and assist the authorities established to maintain peace, and will say to the world, "Hands off," now and hereafter.

This is substantially the recommendation of Mr. Bryan from the first.

These petitions will be circulated for signers by the organization effected in the different states. The committee for Minnesota will be as follows, under the Chicago appointment:

At Large—Governor John Lind, St. Paul.

First Congressional District—Hon. Milo White, Chatfield.

Second District—Hon. F. M. Curry, Mankato.

Third District—Hon. O. M. Hall, Red Wing.

Fourth District—Hon. G. Wilrich, J. M. Pottgieser, St. Paul.

Fifth District—Hon. S. M. Owen, Rev. S. W. Sample, Louis R. Larson, Rev. H. M. Simmons, Ralph Whelan, Minneapolis.

Sixth District—Hon. Charles A. Towne Duluth; Hon. J. H. Sheets, Long Prairie.

Seventh District—Hon. R. M. Probstfield, Moorehead; H. M. Wheelock, Fergus Falls.

The following is the substance of the declaration of principles:

Imperialism is hostile to liberty, and subjugation is "criminal aggression" and open disloyalty to American principles.

The McKinley policy would extinguish the spirit of 1776, and the slaughter of Filipinos under that policy is a needless horror, and we protest against extension of American sovereignty by the Spanish method.

The president shall promptly assemble congress for the cessation of war and announcement of our purpose to give the Filipinos independence. A self-governing state cannot accept sovereignty over an unwilling people.

The real firing line is not about Manila, but the foe is of our own household. The treason of 1861 was to divide the country, that of 1899 is to destroy its fundamental principles and its noblest ideals.

Whenever this war shall be ended the contest must still continue until the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States are rescued from the hands of their betrayers.

Issues of currency reform, tariff, even our debauched civil service, and the truth-suppressing censorship, while of great importance, must even wait while representative government and Liberty itself is imperiled.

The solemn pledge to defeat any person or party that stands for the forcible subjugation of any people, whether candidate for the White House or for congress, men who would betray American liberty for un-American ends.

"We hold," with Abraham Lincoln, "that no man is good enough to govern another man without that other's consent. When the white man governs himself that is self-government, but when he governs himself and also governs another man, that is more than self-government, that is despotism. Our reliance is in the love of liberty which God has planted in us; our defense is in the spirit which prizes liberty as the heritage of all men in all lands. Those who deny freedom to others deserve it not for themselves, and under a just God cannot retain it long."

Finally: "Co-operation is invited of all men and women of the land loyal to the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States."

McKinley's abuse of the welcome of returning soldiers, as a stumping opportunity, was deeply resented in various parts of the Northwest, notably South Dakota. In Minnesota, only respect for the presidential office saved politician McKinley from open rebuke.

It has leaked out that there was a redeeming feature at Minneapolis in lifting the veil from the hypocrisy and cant which thinly veiled the hypocritical purpose of the sacred show. It was at the Lowry dinner, where a very select few crossed legs under the mahogony, following the exposition hippodrome. The statement is from a gentleman who sat within hearing of Secretary Wilson. The banquet, as the Exposition show, was preceded by a grace by Bishop Joyce, and the reverend gentleman evidently felt that the occasion and the company especially needed the Divine Mercy, and so prolonged his devout utterances far beyond the patience of the undevout and hungry secretary, who finally gave in an undertone an expression of his impatience as follows: "Why does the ——— ——— fool keep it up so long? He is putting that ——— stuff up for the newspapers." The secretary was unduly impatient. He knew very well that the whole show, prayer and all, was put up for the newspapers, to fool the voters withal.

On the return to Chicago, Wednesday, the president was at Evanston, where is located the great Methodist institution, where he brought great cheers from the crowd by referring to himself as an alumnus of the Northwestern university. On his departure the records were searched, and it was found to be no such thing; that he had neither attended nor received any degree, so far as could be ascertained, and the officials issued statements, that the president was in error. Whisky lost Andy Johnson his head when swinging round the circle. Vain political ambition answered the same purpose in McKinley's case.

Bryan has made tremendous campaigns in Kentucky and Ohio. Towne is making the same kind of a campaign in Iowa and Nebraska. Look out for earthquakes.

And, speaking of Towne, the call is from one end of the Sixth to the other, that he make the race next year.

And Query: Who is the congressman in the Sixth, anyhow? Is it Judge Boobar or John Morris? Here's a Page worth examining. Eh, Bede?

The Minneapolis lying about big wages in the woods, has brought out the official statement in the lumbermen's organ there, that the reports are not true. BRITISH TROOPS WIN.

Fierce Engagement Fought at Elandslaagte — Boers Attack Town of Glencoe.

London, Oct. 23.—The war office publishes the following dispatch to the secretary of state for war, the marquis of Lansdowne, from the general commanding in Natal, Sir George Stewart White, regarding the engagement Saturday at Elandslaagte, between Glencoe and Ladysmith, when the British, under Gen. French, routed the Transvaal forces under Gen. Jan H. M. Kock, second in command in the Transvaal army, who was himself wounded and captured and has since died:

"The whole force was under Gen. French, with Col. Ian Hamilton commanding the infantry. I was present in person from 3:20 p. m. to 6:20 p. m., but did not assume direction of the fight, which was left in the hands of Gen. French. Although desultory fighting took place earlier in the day, while reenforcements, sent out later on ascertaining the enemy's strength, were arriving from Ladysmith, the real action did not begin until 3:30 p. m. At that hour the Boers held a position of very exceptional strength, consisting of a rock hill about a mile and a half southeast of Elandslaagte station.

"At 3:30 p. m. our guns took a position on a ridge 4,100 yards from the Boers, whose guns at once opened fire. This fire was generally well directed, but somewhat high. Thus, contrary to previous experiences, their shells burst well. The imperial light horse moved towards the left of the enemy's position, and two squadrons of the Fifth lancers toward his right. During the artillery duel mounted Boers pushed out from their left and engaged the imperial light horse. In a few minutes the enemy's guns ceased firing, and our artillery was turned on the mounted Boers, who opposed the imperial light horse. The latter at once fell back. After the artillery preparations our infantry advanced to the attack, supported by our guns in the second position. The Devonshires held the enemy in front while the Manchester regiment and the Gordon highlanders turned his left flank.

"The Boer guns, although often temporarily silenced, invariably opened fire again on the slightest opportunity, and were served with great courage. After severe fighting our infantry carried the position. At 6:20 p. m. this was accomplished, the enemy standing his ground to the last with courage and tenacity. The Fifth lancers and a squadron of the Fifth dragoon guards charged three times through the retreating Boers in the dark, doing considerable execution.

"We captured the Boer camp, with tents, wagons, horses and also two guns. The Boer losses were very considerable, including a number of wounded and unwounded prisoners. Among the former are Gen. Jan Kock and Piet Joubert, nephew of Commandant General Joubert. One goods train, with supplies for Glencoe camp, and nine English prisoners were recovered.

"Our loss, I regret to say, was heavy. It is roughly computed at 150 killed and wounded. The collection of the wounded over a large area in the dark and the arrangements for sending them in have thus far occupied our time and attention. A full list will go to you later. Our wounded and those of the enemy are now arriving by trains. Besides Boers, we have many Hollanders, Germans, and prisoners of mixed nationalities. The behavior of our troops and of the colonial forces was admirable.

London, Oct. 24.—The Daily Telegraph has received the following from Ladysmith, dated Sunday at 2:10 p. m.: The Boers, reported to be 9,600 strong and under the command of Commandant Gen. Joubert and President Kruger in person, are again attacking Glencoe. Gen. Yule, commanding our troops, has moved his camp back into a better defensive position.

The parliamentary secretary of the war office, Mr. George Wyndham, made a statement in the house of commons Monday, saying:

"Lord Wolseley sums up the position in Natal, early this morning as follows:

"'In the battle of Elandslaagte, October 21, two guns were captured from the Boers, who lost heavily.

"'A large column of the enemy appeared advancing from the north and west on Gen. Yule, who consequently had fallen back from Dundee and was concentrating at Glencoe Junction. In this operation we gather in the wounded and medical attendants left at Dundee.

"'Gen. White was in position at Ladysmith, and is being reenforced from Pietermaritzburg.

"'The enemy appears to be in large numerical superiority.'"

A GOOD YEAR.

Treasurer's Report Shows W. C. T. U. to Be in a Flourishing Condition—Convention Opened at Seattle.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 21.—The national convention of the W. C. T. U. met here Friday. For several days trainloads of delegates from all parts of the country have been arriving and when the convention was called to order there was a large attendance.

Mrs. Lillian M. N. Stevens, president of the organization, delivered her annual address.

Mrs. Helen M. Barker, the national treasurer, reported a balance of $3,435. This is larger than last year, covering 11 months, as the convention was held a month earlier, and was encouraging. The Willard memorial fund amounts to $3,268. The life membership fund received during the year $2,106. The bequests aggregated $2,000. The organizing work cost $1,200 and the superintendents had expended over $7,000. All in all, it was stated, the outlook from a financial standpoint was very satisfactory.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 23.—The national headquarters of the W. C. T. U. will be removed from Chicago to Rest Cottage at Evanston, Ill. This move is provided for in an amendment to the constitution of the organization adopted at Saturday's session of the national convention. There was a long and heated debate over the proposition, which was supported by all the national officers. The vote, taken shortly after noon, was 174 for the amendment and 22 against it.

Illinois Christian Endeavor.

Rockford, Ill., Oct. 20.—Several hundred delegates are in the city to attend the thirteenth annual convention of the Illinois Christian Endeavor union. At the first session, at Second Congregational church, Thursday evening, services were led by Prof. Bilhorn, of Chicago, and Dr. Ely, of Rockford. Addresses of welcome were given by Mayor Brown and Rev. H. M. Bannen, and were responded to by Vice President W. S. Dewey, of Cairo. The president, A. E. Turner, of Lincoln, gave an address on "The Secret of Success."

Increased Earnings.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—The earnings of the Chicago Great Western railway, "Maple Leaf Route," for the second week in October, 1899, show an increase of $25,837.22. Total increase since beginning of fiscal year (July 1) to date, $324,602.64. The 2½ per cent. semi-annual dividend on preferred stock A is already earned in the first quarter of the fiscal year, and a surplus besides of $10,231.78.

BOUND TO FAIL.

The Loss of Football Players Sealed the College's Doom.

This promising young Detroiter, six feet in the clear and trim as a racing spar, went into his father's office the other day and gave him a shock. "What is there for me about the establishment to do?" he began, without prologue.

"We'll find a place for you, my boy, when the time comes."

"But now? What is there now?"

"See here, my son, if you've been getting into trouble, and need money, say so. Don't approach me in this roundabout way. I'm no spring chicken, and I've been over the course. Out with it."

"I don't owe a dollar and there's nothing to conceal from you. I can see that there will be no more college for me, and I'm not going to stay around home as a deadhead."

"No more college? Some one must have misled you. The business was never more prosperous, and I have plenty. Of course you'll go back and complete your course. I'll swell the allowance if you think best."

"No, I've concluded to cut it all and go to work. I'm not so fickle as to take up with another alma mater. Besides, the other fellows would all be new. I would have no class memories, and I'd simply be a cat in a strange garret."

"Certainly you'd not change. No one thought of such a thing. Go back and finish with the boys you started in with."

"Father, you don't understand. That institution won't last three months. Four of the best football players have sent word that they must drop out. It is all up, and I want a job."—Detroit Free Press.

QUALITY AND NEWS.

Fame and Excellence Are Determining Factors in Successful Development—One of the Important Functions of High-Class Newspapers.

In presenting interesting phases of scientific and economic problems, high-class newspapers frequently give information of as great value in their advertising columns as in those devoted to the publication of the principal events of the day; and when the fame of a product is extended beyond its natural limits into foreign lands, and a large demand created throughout Great Britain and her Colonies and the principal seaports and cities of Europe, Asia and Africa, it becomes a pleasant duty to note the fact and to tell of the points of excellence on which so great a success is based. We refer to the now world-famed laxative remedy, Syrup of Figs, the product of the California Fig Syrup Company. The merits of this well-known excellent laxative were first made known to the world through the medical journals and newspapers of the United States; and is one of the distinct achievements of the press. It is now well known that Syrup of Figs is an ethical proprietary remedy, approved by the most eminent physicians everywhere, because it is simple and effective, yet pleasant to the taste and acceptable to the system, and not only prompt in its beneficial effects, but also wholly free from any unpleasant after-effects. It is frequently referred to as the remedy of the healthy, because it is used by people who enjoy good health and who live well and feel well and are well informed on all subjects generally, including laxatives. In order to get its beneficial effects, it is necessary to get the genuine Syrup of Figs, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is often ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Railroad Enterprise.

The constantly increasing business of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad has necessitated very material additions to the telegraph service. During the past year nearly 2,000 miles of copper wire, 166 pounds to the mile, have been strung. New lines have been placed in service between Baltimore and Pittsburg, Baltimore and Parkersburg, Newark, O., to Chicago, Philadelphia to Newark, Philadelphia to Cumberland and Cumberland to Grafton. During the summer several of these wires were quadruplexed between Baltimore and Cumberland and duplexed west.

Like all new Baltimore & Ohio work, the lines are constructed in the best possible manner.

MRS. PINKHAM says that irritability indicates disease. Women who are nervous and snappish are to be pitied. Their homes are uncomfortable; their dispositions grow constantly worse. Such women need the counsel and treatment of a woman who understands the peculiar troubles of her sex.

EVERY-DAY TALKS WITH WOMEN

MRS. ANNA E. HALL, of Milldale, Conn., was all run down in health and had completely lost control of her nerves. She wrote to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for advice. Now she writes:

"I wish to thank you for what your Vegetable Compound has done for me. It has helped me more than anything else. I suffered for a long time with nervousness, pains in back and limbs and falling of the womb; also had neuralgia in my head and could not sleep. I told my husband that something must be done, for I was nearly frantic with pain. Having read of the wonderful cures Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had performed, I determined to try it. I have taken it and am happy to say I am cured. I recommend it to all my friends and never tire of telling the benefit I have derived from its use. I have you alone to thank for my recovery."

MRS. ELLEN FLANAGAN, 1810 Mountain St., Philadelphia, Pa., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—Three years ago I was a sufferer from chronic dyspepsia, was irritable and cross, and can say that after taking seven bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was entirely cured. I take great pleasure in writing this to you and would be pleased to be interviewed by any one who is afflicted with that distressing complaint. I am very grateful to you."

Dewey Had No Grievance.

"Where do you take command of the fleet?" a lady friend asked Dewey just before he left for Manila.

"At Hong-Kong," he replied.

After a silence the lady said:

"Aren't you aggrieved, in view of our possible trouble with Spain, over being ordered to the remote Asiatic station, which can hardly be in the picture in case of war?"

"Sailor's luck!" replied Dewey. "Moreover, I haven't entertained grievances for years."

And then he added, evidently as an afterthought: "Besides, you know, Spain owns the Philippines."—Ladies' Home Journal.

READ WHAT A PROMINENT PHYSICIAN Has to say who has had 35 YEARS of active Practice of Medicine

I have never before in my 35 years of practice of medicine given my testimonial or recommendation to any patent medicine, but there is a remedy, the result of which has come under my own observation; for there is no Disease which has so baffled the medical skill of all ages as Rheumatism and to find a Reliable remedy for the same. At last we have found it in "5 Drops," manufactured by the Swanson Rheumatic Cure Company, Chicago, Ill. The "5 DROPS," has proven itself wonderful for its curative power in Rheumatism, not as a Temporary Reliever only, but to give a Permanent Cure even in chronic cases. Sometime ago, I had among others several Rheumatic cases under my treatment who had prescribed for these patients the very best Remedies which I skillfully selected, but without desirable results. I then heard of "5 DROPS" and of its Wonderful Cures, and prescribed it to a few patients who found relief from its use within a few days. After that I prescribed it to a great number and to my surprise, I will say that in the course of Two or Three Weeks after they had used "5 DROPS" and "5 Drop" Plasters they were Cured. Among these were a few who had, for a number of years, been suffering with Chronic Rheumatism, who had plodded their way around on Crutches. They came to my office without Crutches, and told me they were perfectly Well. They give all the credit to "5 DROPS" and to "5 Drop" Plasters and this is their testimony to the Swanson Rheumatic Cure Company for their kindness and for the good results in way in which they are placing these Wonderful Remedies among suffering humanity, which they told me to write to the Company as an acknowledgement. As I have seen the Curative Power of "5 DROPS" and "5 Drop" Plasters, in a great many instances, I can Truly Recommend them and also that the firm is perfectly honest and reliable to deal with.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Dr. Niven at Delano, Oct. 28.

—Don't forget the Halloween social at Maxfields.

—Nov. 30 has been appointed by President McKinley as Thanksgiving day. Have your turkeys ready.

—The family of C. D. Older, formerly of N. Rockford, is occupying a portion of the Grafft residence. Mr. O. is at Brown's Valley, working at his trade, plastering.

—The celebrated shooting contest closed Monday night. Dr. Soper got first prize, Aug. Lindert second, J. W. Craven third, and G. J. Bradley fourth. There was a hot time.—Norwood Times.

Dr. Niven at Elk River, Oct. 30 & 31.

—Paul Plotnik, John Eppel, and Otto Metz, returned home this week from Donnelly, where they have been hunting ducks and other game for a couple of weeks. They report having had a fine time and well pleased with the trip. Delanoites will now have to fall back onto their regular rations of beef steak or ham.

—Last Saturday evening a number of friends surprised Edward Erickson at his home on 4th street, the occasion being his 17th birthday. He was presented with a soveneir as a token of friendship and wishes for many more happy birthdays. The evening was spent in games and music. Refreshments were served.

—Dr. H. M. Bracken, secretary of the State Board of Health, of Minneapolis, came up this morning in sequence of the small pox scare.

He examined those who were suspected by some, and diagnosed no symptions of small pox.

He also examined into sanitary measures taken by exposed parties and pronounced it satisfactory.

—The Minneapolis Journal is taking up a penny collection from the children to buy Dewey a watch. We understand that the Admiral is well supplied with watches now and don't need it. This is straining matters a little too fine, asking everybody to show financially how much they love a man who has finances enough of his own, and who did his duty. It would please Dewey and other heroes, not fiuanciers, better to have the pennies contributed to buy wooden legs, or comforts of life for some of the poor men who helped all they could, and need even pennies.

—From very convincing evidence it appears that there are those in our midst who occasionally stay from the path of righteousness and good citizenship in that they have a habit of misapropriating, purloining, and obtaining without the consent of the owner of the obtained, any article which they happen to need or take a fancy too, and is supposedly safely ensconsed in barn or woodshed. Last week some pieces of harness very mysteriously disappeared from a barn on the alley in the rear of 3rd street. This is not the first occurance of the kind, but is merely a continuance of the petit larcenies which have bothered the same neighborhood in various ways and to greater or less extent, for a number of yeors passed, during the winter months. The thing is becoming monotonous and a stop will be put to it if possible.

—Dr. Bracken, secretary of the State board of health, writes to Dr. McMahon, of this city, that he recently visited Albert Lea and found 53 cases of smallpox in that city and its vicinity, and recommends that great care be exercised in Waseca to prevent the introduction of the disease in this city. This is good advice to say the least; but the Albert Lea Tribune ridicules the "small pox scare," and especially Dr. Bracken, claiming that the so-called "small pox" is only chicken pox, and that the whole excitement was gotten up by certain doctors in order to coin dollars for vaccinating the people. Whether or not vaccination is a preventiye of small pox seems to be debatable among physicians—some claiming that there is more danger from vaccine than from small pox. It is not a pleasant thing to have small pox in a community, and every precaution should be taken to prevent its introduction or spread.—Waseca Herald.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 12, 1899.

Mr. McKinley found, when he returned from his stumping trip of 5,000 miles, more indignation among government employes than has existed since the Garfield campaign, when Jay Hubbell and Dorsey, of Star route notoriety, held up the Federal employes and forced campaign contributions under threat of dismissal. The reason is the circular letter sent out by Boss Hanna's Ohio committee, asking Federal officials to chip in to keep Mc Lean from carrying Ohio. The Civil Service Commissioners, who draw their salaries at the pleasure of the man whose renomination for President depends largely upon Ohio going republican, had not a word to say about the circular letters received by employes of every department in Washington, but they made a bluff at doing something by going to the Post Office Department and requesting that the order of the department, issued about a year ago, prohibiting political assessment of postal employes, be conspiciously posted in all Ohio postoffices, as they had been greatly shocked to learn that the employes of the Toledo post office had been asked to contribute to the republican campaign fund. An order was at once issued complying with the request, and all hands winked at each other and thought "how devilish sly we are". Nobody expects Mr McKinley to do anything to stop the squeezing of government employes. He has just come from Ohio and he knows how desperate the case is, and how much he has at stake. He knows that there is an organized movement among prominent republicans to prevent his renomination, and that if his party fails to carry Ohio it will stand an excellent show of succeeding.

How desperate the republican situation in Ohio is may be judged by the talk of republicans. For instance, Perry Heath, who owes his present official position to Hanna, and who has just returned from Ohio, has been discounting republican defeat in the State by saying that the republicans are so busy handling their prosperity that many of them may not have time to vote. He also says that Mr. McLean has the democrats of the State better organized than they have ever been before. Democratic advices from the State are without exception favorable to the success of McLean.

Gen. J. R. O'Beirne, who was refused recognition by the State Department as Diplomatic agent of the Transvaal Republic, because of his being an American, was waiting for Mr. McKinley when he returned to Washington, for the purpose of trying to persuade him to set aside the decision of the State Department. Having considerable political pull he succeeded in getting a private interview with Mr. McKinley, but it is not likely that he succeeded in anthing else. Mr. McKinley has troubles enough of his own without reaching away over to South Africa for new ones.

The first of next week Admiral Dewey, who has been in Washington all this week will go to Atlanta, to present Lieut. Brumby the sword bought for him by the appreciative Georgians, and on the 31st inst. he will be the guest of the city of Philadelphia. That will be likely to wind up the big Dewey receptions for the time being, as the Philippine Commission, of which he is a member, is expected to meet in Washington early next month to prepare its report, and he will have to attend the meetings.

In addition to presenting Rear Admiral Schley with a handsome jeweled sword, the Royal Arcanum, of which Admiral Schley is a member, has presented Mrs. Schley with a beautiful silver loving cup, inscribed, "Presented to Mrs. W. S Schley by the Royal Arcanum. 1899." The presentation took place at the hotel in which Admiral Dewey is making his home.

That the negroes will soon cease to vote the republican ticket seems practically certain. One of them—Rev. Alex. Walters, D. D., of New Jersey,—who is now in Washington, expressed some forcible views on the subject. For instance, he said: "My advice to the negroes is to make friends with the ruling classes of the South by voting the Democratic tisket, especially when they are invited to do so. We are doing it in the North. We are surelp at the parting of the ways. There is great restlessness on the part of the Afro-American republicans. A large majority of them in New York State will vote the democratic ticket at the next election."

Before Mr. McKinley went on that stumping trip he went out of his way to say that he intended to leave the future of the Philippines to the judgement of Congress; now he says that he intends to tell Congress in his annual message that the Philippines must be ours for keeps. As it is only about six weeks to the opening of Congress, he will probably not have time to change his opinion again, although he has been known to do the trick in less than six hours.

Suite Against Settlers.

FERGUS FALLS, MINN., OCT. 20.—A great many farmers in this section are very much alarmed over the action of the Northern Pacific Railroad Co. the legil department of the road having instituted suits to secure possession of certain lands, patents for which were issued to settlers by the general governmemt some years ago. The company claims that it never received the amount of indemnity land to which it was entitled and that the land offices were in error in issuing patents to the settlers. Fifteen cases were filed in the district court in this city Wednesday. A meeting of those interested has been called for October 28 to see what action can be taken in the matter. The lands involved are some of the best in the country and an adverse decision would mean the loss of a great many fine homes.—The Minneapolis Tribune.

THE delights of an evening spent around a well-lighted reading table are not half understood. An illustrated magazine with its wealth of illustrations, its stories of adventure and love, its descriptions of travel which carry you to the remotest ends of the earth, and its instructive articles for young and old—these are the first requisites for your own enjoyment and the entertainment and proper education of your children.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

Both Together One Year for Only $1.80

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. For three years The Cosmopolitan has undisputedly claimed that it reached the largest clientele possessed by any periodical, daily, weekly or monthly, in the world. It was The Cosmopolitan which sent Julian Hawthorne to India to let the world know the real horrors of famine and plague. It was The Cosmopolitan which established at its own cost a great Free Correspondence University which now has over 20,000 students on its rolls. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $3,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.

St Paul Dispatch

25c per month for Daily. 75c per year for the Weekly.

The St. Paul Dispatch is the best Twin City daily; it has no equal in the Northwest as to size or quality.

The DISPATCH excels in Northwestern news, having a correspondent in every Northwestern town.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

ALVA EASTMAN is making a big fuss because Gov. Lind didn't spend Sunday in St. Cloud. Suppose he had, wouldn't Alva have howled worse than now?

THE Anoka Herald is advertising its new Hospital for Insane as a veritable fire trap. It blames Gov. Lind of course. But how about Anoka and Hastings having the appropriation divided?

ALMOST the entire population of the United States appear to be favorable to the Boers as against England. If our administration goes further towards taking the side of England than England did towards helping out the United States against the Spaniards it is liable to be very severely criticised in all parts of the country. The people of the United States favor republics all right enough as against monarchies.

A LATE number of the St. Paul Globe devotes nearly a column to the David B. Hill idea of "I am a Democrat." If the Globe would advocate Democratic doctrines and none other this advertising would be unnecessary. The Globe says: "There is a way to achieve, in November, 1900, the greatest Democratic victory in the party's history." Of course, fall right in with the rank and file of democracy, and nominate the people's choice for every office and the victory is ours.

SOME people keep repeating publicly that our country is at peace. They must think the people don't know anything. Did anybody ever hear of our having 100,000 men in the army in time of peace and still calling for more? Why do we need one of the greatest navies in the world at the Philippines and on the way; making demonstrations in the Mediterranean sea, if we are at peace, and peaceably inclined? We are a peaceable nation. Our people love peace and not war for aggression.

Justifying War.

51. An behold, one of them which were with Jesus stretched out his hand and drew his sword, and struck a servant of the high priest's, and smote off his ear.

52 Then said Jesus unto him. Put up again thy sword into his place, for all they that take the sword shall perish with the sword. —St. matthew XXVI, 51, 52.

When we read of some of our prominent church people, preachers, bishops and all, advocating carrying on a war with swords and guns for the spreading of the gospel, we are led to wonder what they do with the above and other texts found in the bible.

Now, if the meek and lowly Saviour, when on earth, would give such advice concerning the defense of his own body from the hands of enemies, is it to be supposed that he meant for his followers to go abroad in the land and beat and pound his teachings into the heads of poor suffering humanity. Can the booming of cannon, the rattle of musketry, or the glitter of sword, at the close of the nineteenth century be reconciled with these teachings of Christ Himself while among men?

19. Dearly beloved, avenge not yourselves, but rather give place unto wrath: for it is written, Vengence is mine, I will repay sayeth the Lord. —Romans XII, 19.

Instead of giving place unto wrath, some of the brethren talk for exterminating, if need be, the inhabitants of lands they never saw, lands inhabited for hundreds of years. Have they quit preaching from this text until after the war?

Would it not be more Christ like to put up the sword and to live peaceably with all men, as far as possible? Would it not tend to spread the doctrines of Christ much wider and to impress them more forcibly upon people in Christian lands to not increase our armies from 25,000 to 100,000 men in times of peace? Would it not look more peaceably inclined to not be striving to build the biggest navy in the world? Are some of those familiar with these teachings living up to them, or are they allowing the wealth of others to influence their actions?

Would it not be Christian to act, and to pray, for the coming of the time prophesied?

4. And he shall judge among the nations, and shall rebuke many people: and they shall beat their swords into plough-shares, and their spears into pruning hooks. Nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more. Isaiah II, 4.

Small Pox.

Owing to the prevalence of small pox in our state it is well for people to be posted on the symptoms The disease is contagious An incubative stage, from the time of exposure till the first symptoms appear, is of from 10 to 15 days generally. During this time some appear well, others more or less ailing with pale or sallow skin.

The first real symptoms commencing with rigors or chills usually in the evening; fever with its accompanying headache, backacae, loss of appetite, restlessness, or drowsiness. Backache is usually a prominent symptom. On the second or third day of the fever rash appears: sometimes later. Then the fever abates. The disease may in its early stages be mistaken for measles or other eruptive fevers or skin diseases. The pustules mature about the sixth day after they have shown themselves; the face becomes swollen. The desquamative or shedding off stage begins about the fourteenth day of the disease, and is completed usually at the end of the fourth or fifth week of the disease, when the patient is restored to health

The disease is very contagious and fatal where not modified by vaccination. Vaccination so changes it as to prevent in many cases very much sickness, and many are able to be about through the entire course of the disease, now called varioloid.

Different cases may differ much in length of time or in severity of symptoms. Persons knowing themselves exposed should be careful and note the early symptoms and be isolated from others as much as possible. As the weather becomes cooler and the houses closed more tightly the rooms where patients have small pox are liable to become more impregnated with the virus and more danger of spreading the disease is to be expected.

Aguinaldo's Peace Terms.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Senor Antonio Regidor, now in London, will sail for the United States within three weeks, and as a fully accredited representative of Aguinaldo, will present to President McKinley new terms for ending hostilities and reconstructing the government of the islands. The coming of the representative is kept a close secret by the Administration, but from a high authority I learn that these are the exact terms Aguinaldo desires:

One. Absolute free trade between the United States and the Philippine islands, carrying with it the fullest commercial favor between the two countries.

Two. Perfect religious freedom, as now exists under the government of Aguinaldo, the same being a concession made by him to the wishes of the United States.

Three. Coaling stations for the United States upon all important islands of the archipelago, to be selected by the United States and ceded outright forever by the Filipinos. This would include Manila.

Four. Military reservations at Manila, Iloilo, Panay, Mindoro, Negros, Masbate, Samar, Mindonca and such other islands as may be determined upon by both governments.

Five. The employment of United States officials in the customs and all other internal branches of the government, to be selected by the United States and paid by the Filipino government.

Six. The introduction of American police system.

Seven. The establishment of a judiciary as now exists in the island of Cuba.

Eight. The reconstruction of the entire Filipino government upon lines as nearly consistent with those prescribed by the Constitution of the United States and adapted to the requirements of the natives.

Nine. Recognition of the Filipino government as an independent republic, under a protectorate of the United States.

Senor Regidor will be the most important political emissary ever sent to the United States by the Filipinos. He will have more power than Agoncillo, who was summarily driven out of Washington after presenting a memorial to Congress, which was notable alone for its indiscreet attack upon the United States. Senor Regidor will represent Aguinaldo himself. Regidor is said to be a man of great ability and learning, having had a long experience in European diplomatic circles.—World.

Some folks have a queer idea of what constitutes aggression. Here is a London correspondent who seriously assures his American readers regarding the Boers that—unless they are willing to ...put themselves on the wrong side of the moral question, they will have to keep their ill organized army encamped on the borders for nearly two months until the British are prepared to attack them with an overwhelming force.

The notion that one country against which hostile preparations are being made by another country must not strike a blow until these preparations are overwhelmingly complete, under penalty of putting itself on the wrong side of the moral question, is good enough for comic opera.—The Public.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 27, 1899.

Imperialism is to bring many new things, and among the rest a new committee of the House, which can be depended upon to report just such legislation concerning the imperial colonies as may be ordered by His Majesty, William I. Under ordinary circumstances all bills introduced in the House relating to new territory owned by the government would be referred to the committee on Territories. But the chairman of the committee on Territories in the last House, who cannot be denied the same position in the next House without a marked breach of courtesy, is under suspicion, so his committee is to be supplanted, so far as the new possessions are concerned, by a new one which can be depended upon. Whether the name of the new committee has been selected is not positively known, but the proper name for it will be the Committee on Imperialism, for such it will be popularly known. There is also some talk of establishing a similar committee in the Senate, where there has already been wrangling between the Committee on Territories, and that on Foreign Relations over the control of bills relating to the new possessions, but such a programme cannot be carried out in the Senate as easily as in the House. The republicans have a majority in the Senate, but there are a number of republican Senators who are opposed to imperialism and all its trimmings.

Mr. John R. McLean is confident that he will be the next governor of Ohio. He was in Washington for a day this week and he told his friends that the prospects for democratic success were improving every day and that he had not the slightest doubt of his election. He also said that Col. Bryan's short visit to the State was of great benefit to the democrats notwithstanding republican statements to the contrary.

A striking case of bad judgement and management on the part of some official connected with the Navy Department came to light this week, when it was announced that the converted yacht Vixen, which was recently ordered to South American waters, would be put out of commission and probably sold. After the Vixen had been fitted up with a modern battery and otherwise equipped as a gun boat, it was discovered that there was no room aboard her to carry a sufficient amount of provisions, for her crew, for even a moderately long voyage. It is evident that somebody neglected their duty in not making this discovery before the government had gone to the expense of converting the yacht into a gun boat.

The country has no reason to feel proud of the final action of the Naval Board on construction as to the plans of three new battleships, which were this week determined upon, since it is admitted, even by the members of the board, that these battle-ships, when completed, will be inferior in almost every respect to the latest battleships of Great Britain, France, Germany, Russia and Japan. Because American crews are best in the world is no reason why millions of the people's money should be spent in building inferior ships for them, and Congress should prevent these vessels being constructed. If we can't build battleships equal or better in every way than those other nations are building, we would better build none. The board also decided upon the plans for three new armored cruisers. The oddest part of this whole business is that although these six warships are to cost more than $40,000,000, not one of the famous fighting officers of our navy were consulted or even asked to make a suggestion to the board, which is composed of naval officers known as able theorists, but not as fighters.

Senator Proctor has not given up the idea of holding Admiral Dewey in reserve as an anti-McKinley candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination because the McKinley crowd succeeded in alarming the Admiral about his health to the extent of causing him to abandon his intended trips to Atlanta and Philadelphia. On the contrary, he is more determined than, and the announcement that Admiral Dewey would make trips to the South and the West in the early spring is understood to be due to Proctor's influence; and a friend of Proctors said that the McKinley crowd had played right into Proctor's hand by keeping Dewey quiet this winter, as a boom started in the spring, if the conditions seem to warrant one, will be much more likely to be effective than one started at this time. Admiral Dewey is now a Washington real estate owner, the deed for the house purchased for him with the $30,000 donated for that purpose being now in his possession.

All of the members of the Philippine Commission, except Gen. Otis, are in Washington, but the Commission will not begin holding meetings until next week.

Philippine Questions.

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 31.—Governor Scofield has written a letter on the Philippine questions in which he says it would be dangerous to the republic to keep them. The governor writes:

"The real issue presented is this: Shall the government, after it has suppressed the insurrection, plan to retain permanent possession of the Philippines and make that archipelago a portion of our territory and its 8,000,000 or more of people a part of our population? Is it exsedient for this country to permanently add to its territory and its population those far off islands and their group of motly inhabitants?

"Possibly I may be taking a rather melancholy view of the situation, but it seems to me that the continued existence of our present form of government is threatened by this problem. We are a great nation, but we have our limitations. It is folly to talk of maintaining permanently our supremacy over those people without working toward assimilation It is worse than folly -it is criminal. Supremacy over the islands must mean either a control having in view the ultimate uplifting of the people to our level or a control for the purpose of enriching ourselves materially at their expense."

THE BETTER TIME.

Could young days last for all our time,
And change and chance be clever,
Could what we have keep pure and prime,
Nor fade our fortunes ever;
Could joys that once like summer smiled
Still every burden lighten,
And lovely scenes, that once beguiled,
Along our way yet brighten;
Could budding hopes in beauty bloom,
Ere comes the time of dotage,
Could every stalk, with tasseled plume,
But have an ample fruitage;
Could all the seasons bring us good
And only good be given,
It well might then be understood,
That here on earth is Heaven.

But this we know can never be,
The fact needs only stating,
For even blinded eyes can see
The need we have of waiting;
The happy birds in early spring,
Back from the south come flying,
But soon again are on the wing,
And summer time is dying;
A little while, with softened skies,
The earth grows warm and mellow,
And then the beauty fades and dies
And flowers and fields are yellow;
A little while and we are blessed,
And every joy has greeting,
But soon, with grief and care oppressed,
We find that all is fleeting.

And so the seasons onward run,
And here is much of sorrow,
Our hopes must wait "the world to come,"
And blossom there to-morrow;
To-morrow, that glad day and wide
With bliss and blessing crowded,
And peace and joy on every side,
Shall never be beclouded;
There all our hopes, on lofty wing,
Shall rise from death's dark portal,
Exulting with delight to sing
The glorious song immortal;
No blighting frosts shall chill that day,
Nor climes nor changes sever,
The friends that there, enrapt, shall stay,
Forever and forever.

The Lace of the Empress

ACCORDING to the calendar of street songs, it was about ten years ago that Marquis de St. Pol sat by his open window mending his coat.

Far down below in the street a hand-organ was grinding out "McGinty," which classic was then in its prime.

The sound of children's voices singing and a husky shuffling of feet indicated an impromptu ball on the pavement, and the marquis leaned out to look.

"They dance, my angel," he announced as he seated himself again. "It is gay, the youth!"

The marquise, who sat propped up in a big chair, smiled faintly, but did not open her eyes.

"Art thou very tired, my dearest?" asked the old man, anxiously, pulling the coarse thread with a jerk through the cloth.

"It is the spring air, Anatole."

The marquis looked at her with tear-prismed eyes. "It is the hunger," he thought.

After a pause the marquise asked: "Hast thou no lessons to-day, Anatole?"

"Only one. This great heat is too much for rich people, dear." He spoke with quite unconscious irony. "I must go now. Do you think you could eat a nice little ragout when I come home?"

She hesitated. "If—if I could only have a little sweetbread timbale," she said, longingly. "But yes, my friend, a ragout will be charming."

He kissed her good-by with a trembling mouth, and, carefully drawing on his old gloves, went out.

"Une petite timbale de riz-de-veau," he muttered, stepping carefully over a baby who had gone to sleep on the stairs. "Mon dieu, mon dieu!" It was very warm, the bricks steaming in the sun after a shower.

The organ man had gone on, leaving an excited little group of children behind him.

"Hello, Mr. de Poll," cried one of them, a little girl, carrying an extremely fat baby. "Mother was took up this morning, so I've gotter take care of all of 'em. But I'll go in to see Mrs. de Poll jes' the same. They took her off in the Black M'riar. It took four men to hold her," finished the child, proudly.

When the marquis reached home that afternoon a strange sight met his eyes.

The marquise sat as usual in her big chair, but her shabby, dark gown was almost entirely hidden by a delicate film of beautiful old lace. "Sapristi!" ejaculated the old man.

His wife laughed. "I showed it to Suzette, but she did not even know who Napoleon was," she said.

A pretty color was in her faded cheeks as she looked up at him.

He sat down heavily. "It is very beautiful; shall I put it away?"

"Non, cheri. Leave it a little longer, and let us forget that we are poor."

The marquis winced. How could he tell her that his last pupil found the hot spring weather too enervating for more lessons?

With a sigh he undid a parcel he had brought with him, and displayed a little tin in which was the promised ragout

But the marquise could not eat it. It was greasy, and tasted like cat, she said, trying to laugh.

"Now, dear, if you will put the lace away, I will not put it on again; it makes me homesick. Oh, Anatole! Paris! The Bois, to-day! If we were in a carriage, driving down the Champs Elysees!

"And see the lights budding out in the sweet-smelling dusk! And then, dear, we'd go to a restaurant and have a timbale de riz de veau, and a salade, and a little Chablis! Oh, Anatole, it is dreadful to be old, mon ami."

She put her head down on his shoulder and they both cried.

Some one was playing "McGinty" on a concertina, and the air smelt of cabbages.

Presently the marquis rose and put the lace tenderly away in the little trunk, among the old camphor balls which had almost lost their odor. Even camphor-balls cost money. There was a little Madonna on a bracket over the bed, and the two poor old exiles knelt before it and prayed, as they did every night. But the old lady only half-finished her prayer. "I am so tired, mon cher. She will understand."

Mrs. Morris Devereaux was just rubbing her beautiful nose with a bit of chamois skin dipped in fuller's earth, when a footman announced that Mr. de St. Pol wished to see her. "Tell him I'm extremely sorry, James, but I am just going out to dinner. And tell him that we are leaving town Monday, to save him from coming again. I suppose he wants to give me some more lessons, poor old man."

"If you please, madam," answered the servant, hesitatingly, "I think something is wrong with the old gentleman."

"Oh! Very well, I'll come. Bring my cloak, Emily."

The marquis was standing by a little table, on which lay a package.

"Madam," he said, bowing low as she entered, "I have taken the liberty to present myself before you with some lace which—h'm—I should like to sell."

Mrs. Devereux's face lighted up. "I am always glad to see lace," she answered. He broke the string of the package with nervous hands, and with an artistic instinct flung the lace over the back of a dark velvet chair.

"Oh!" exclaimed Mrs. Morris Devereux.

The marquis watched her anxiously.

"It was given to my wife's grandmother by the Empress Josephine," he said.

"Oh!" cried Mrs. Devereux again. "Of course, I will buy it," she added, touching the frost-like fabric lovingly. "But—a family treasure—"

The marquis cleared his throat. "Madam, I will be frank. There are occasions when one's family feelings must be set aside," he said in French. "Circumstances cause me to part with this tribute from a sovereign. I part with it more willingly to you, Mme. Devereux, of whose famous collection I have heard. The lace of the empress will have worthy associates."

She was too kind-hearted to smile.

"I am very grateful to you, M. de St. Pol, for giving me such an opportunity. And now—the price?"

A slow blush mounted the old man's face.

"Madame, do you think $200 too much? There are ten meters."

"The lace is worth three hundred. If you will wait one minute," she added, some instinct prompting the words, "I will give you the money, to save your going to a bank."

Five minutes later three $100 bills were buttoned away under the threadbare coat of the marquis, and his white head bent over Mrs. Devereux' hand.

"Madame, I thank you," he said. "Allow me." And he kissed her fingers.

As she put on her gloves she saw something sparkling there that was not a diamond.

It was a tear.

The next evening Mr. and Mrs. Devereux gave a dinner.

Mrs. Devereux was very beautiful, in a black gown covered with lace. "I bought it of the old Frenchman we all read with last winter. You remember, Molly?"

Mrs. Peter Bispham looked at her enviously. "I suppose nothing would induce you to part with it?"

Mrs. Devereux set down her champagne glass with a smile.

"Nothing on earth," she answered.

Just then James, the sympathetic footman, whispered to his mistress:

"Mr. de St. Pol is there again, madame; he told me to ask you to come—for God's sake."

"Madame," cried the old man, as he entered the drawing-room, "I must have it again. It is killing her." Tears rolled down his cheeks.

"I don't understand. Who? What is killing her?"

"The lace, ma femme." He held out a roll of bank notes with a trembling hand. "She is very ill. We were poor, oh, so poor! And she wanted a timbale de riz de veau—and she needed wine and medicine. I had no more pupils, and I—I stole the lace and sold it to you. I have spent $20, and now she is crying for the lace and I can't comfort her. Madame, I will work. I will pay you the rest. Oh, madame, she is old, we are both so old!"

An hour and a half later Mrs. Devereux entered her own drawing-room in a dark street dress and hat.

"I beg everybody's pardon," she said. "I was called away suddenly, and had no time to explain. Morris, do you think they'll ever forgive me?"

Her husband laughed. "I trust so. But where were you?"

"That is a secret; but I have cried! Are my eyes red?"

"A little."

"And you needn't envy me my lace any more."

"Why? Was it stolen?"

"No, but—it's going back to Paris next week."—Baroness Von Hutten, in Westminster Budget.

A cablegram from Paris this morning says a statement is circulated there, on good authority, that a second battle has been fought at Ladysmith in which 1,000 British were placed hors d'combat, the remainder of Gen. White's army retreating to Pietermaritzburg.

A cable from Cape Town says the Boers are bringing heavier guns to join in the bombardment of Ladysmith.

The Boers are also appearing eleven miles south of the city where they intend blocking the only avenue of escape of the British.

Gen. Buller intends to throw 12,000 men into Orange Free State at this point within a fortnight, if Gen. White holds out.

Gen. White is reported wounded.

Gen. Funston arrived at his home, Topeka, Kansas, yesterday, with the 20th Kansas.

Boer Bravery.

Durban, Oct. 27.—An interesting incident in connection with the Elandsgate fight is reported here. When the fire of the British guns became to hot, eight Boers ran forward out of cover and, standing together, cooly opened fire at the imperial light horse, with the evident purpose of drawing the latter's fire, while their comrades retired. Seven of the brave eight were killed.

Which Is Right.

While on his recent speaking tour President McKinley said: "Never was there more amity and good feeling and good fellowship existing between the United States and other nations of the world than today".

While acting as a peace commissioner, Senator Davis gave out that the United States have not a friend on the continent of Europe.

Which is right? Or have friendly relations been changed?

The governors of the 13 original states are each to furnish a tree to be planted at Valley Forge by a patriotic association. Gov. Wolcott, of Massachusetts, has sent a tree grown near Plymouth Rock on land surveyed by Emerson and Thoreau.

Ex-Gov. Andrew H. Burke, of North Dakota, now inspector of United States surveyors general and district land offices, was a New York waif, and when a child was sent west to a good home in Indiana by the Children's Aid society. In the same party of children was Gov. John G. Brady, of Alaska.

The Californians are still picking wealth out of the ground, but instead of that wealth being in the form of pure gold, as was the case in their father's time, it now comes from the orchards and vineyards. According to the estimates of experts the farmers of California will this year receive for their products upward of $15,000,000, or an advance of more than $3,500,000 over last year. The state is still an Eldorado.

When the great vineyards and wine establishment of E. E. Myers in the Santa Cruz mountains were threatened recently by a forest fire a syphon was placed in one of the big wine vats, and 40,000 gallons of wine were used in fighting the fire. Mr. Myers says that $5,000 worth of wine was used in fighting the fire, but that the property saved was worth 20 times that amount. This opens up a new field for the use of American wine as a fire extinguisher.

The Washington Humane society has passed a resolution regretting that the committees of arrangements in New York and Washington for the reception of Admiral Dewey "disregarded the humane sentiment of the people of the country in providing docked horses for the carriage used for the guest of honor, thus giving countenance on conspicuous occasions to a senseless and barbarous fashion which it should be the duty of all right-thinking people to discourage."

The Engineering News has taken an automobile census, and finds that there are now 10,000 of the new-fangled machines in Europe, 5,600 of them being in France, and a third of that number in Paris. The News says that there are now 500 automobiles in the United States, but that Americans have their orders in for 4,000 machines, and hundreds of others would purchase the machines if they could get them without waiting several months for the factory to fill the orders.

Walter Wellman, the journalist and arctic explorer, recently returned to New York from his 16-months' trip in the arctic. Sixteen months ago he left New York to start on his arctic expedition, a magnificent specimen of American strength and manhood. He returns a nervous and physical wreck, hobbling around on crutches. Lord Wolseley, field marshal of the English army, has had a remarkable career as a soldier, and his advancement has been wonderful. His army history may be summarized as follows: Ensign, 1852; captain, 1855; major, 1858; lieutenant colonel, 1859; colonel, 1865; deputy quartermaster general, 1867; assistant adjutant general, 1871; major general, 1873; quartermaster general, 1880; adjutant general, 1882; general, 1883. For his services in Ashanti he received $125,000, and for his conduct of the Egyptian campaign he was given $100,000.

A New York woman has gone into reform in a novel way. She thinks the way pies are now made is a disgrace to civilization and she proposes to give Americans real pie—the kind your mother used to make. The intention is all right, but the fact is, when a man gets old enough to talk about the pies his mother used to make he has lost the appetite he had in his youth, and that was what made the old-fashioned pies taste so good. Pies will never taste to him as they tasted when he came from school and drifted into the kitchen for "sumpin to eat."

The lesson in geography last year was the islands of the Pacific. This year it is Africa. People who have not studied the map of that continent for some years will find it greatly changed. There is no longer any "unknown territory." The French, Germans, Dutch and English have divided the country pretty thoroughly among them, with a few small slices left for the Italians and Portuguese. A study of the various divisions shows that in the matter of territory the British are considerably in the lead, and the chances are that their boundaries will be increased.

Near Atwater, Ill., a hand car was run down by an engine and John Norvil, George Cramer and Samuel Allen were killed.

Heavy rains and winds for four days did extensive damage throughout the province of Santiago de Cuba.

Fire nearly destroyed New Boston, a suburb of Portsmouth, O.

In Alabama leading republicans met at Birmingham and adopted resolutions indorsing the administration of President McKinley and his foreign policy in particular, and demanding his renomination and reelection.

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

The meeting of the British and the Boers in decisive battle probably will come soon, the battleground will be in British territory, and the Boers will be the attacking force. Three columns of the Boers were advancing upon Ladysmith.

The death of Florence Marryat (Mrs. Frances Lean), the well-known authoress, occurred in London.

Gen. Young's troops drove a force of Filipinos from their trenches near the Tuboatin river. The Americans lost two killed and one wounded. Ruperto Santiago, one of the wealthiest Visayans, who had taken the oath of allegiance to the United States and who posed as a friend of Americans, was arrested at Iloilo, charged with organizing a revolutionary junta.

The latest advices from South Africa gave promise of a battle at Ladysmith. The situation was causing great alarm in London, where the impression prevailed that the British forces in Natal were at a disadvantage. Mafeking was bombarded by Boers and at last accounts was still besieged, and the water supply had been cut off. Further details of the engagement at Dundee show the British retreat to have been a rout.

In the San Pablo mine near Gavilanes, Mexico, a cave-in caused the death of five miners.

A Manila dispatch says that Gen. Young scattered the insurgents north of San Isidro, and Capt. Evans struck a robber band on Negros and killed ten, wounded many and captured 20 prisoners. Refugees report that Aguinaldo is moving to Bayamburg with 2,000 men instead of attacking Gen. Young.

In Venezuela Gen. Hernandez has started a revolution against Gen. Castro, who recently ousted President Andrade and assumed control of the government.

THE BATTLE OPENS.

Boer Artillery Begins Shelling Ladysmith.

GUNS SOON SILENCED, HOWEVER.

Gen. White's Troops Engage Those Under Gen. Joubert—The Latter Defeated—Losses on Both Sides Heavy.

London, Oct. 31.—The war office here has received a dispatch which says Gen. White has fought an engagement, presumably with Gen. Joubert's force, which was pushed back after several hours' fighting. The British lost about 100 men and the Boer losses were much greater. The Boers were in larger numbers and had better artillery. Gen. White's dispatch, which was dated 4:30 p. m. Monday, read:

"I employed all the troops here except the obligatory garrison before the works, sent a mountain battery, the Royal Irish fusiliers and the Gloucesters, to take up a position on the hills, to clear my left flank. The force moved at 11 yesterday evening, and during some night firing the battery mules stampeded with some of the guns, which, however, I hope to recover. These two battalions have not yet returned, but are expected this evening.

"I detailed two brigade divisions of field artillery and five battalions of infantry, aided by cavalry, under Gen. French, to attack a position upon which the enemy yesterday mounted guns. We found this position evacuated, but our force was attacked with considerable vigor by what I believe were Gen. Joubert's troops. They had many guns and showed in great numbers. Our troops were all in action and we pushed the enemy back several miles, but did not succeed in reaching his laager. Our losses are estimated at between 80 and 100, but those of the enemy must have been much greater, the fire of our guns appearing very effective.

"After being in action several hours I withdrew troops, and they returned unmolested to their cantonments. The enemy are in great numbers and their guns range further than our field guns.

"I have now some naval guns which have temporarily silenced, and, I hope, will permanently dominate the enemy's best guns, with which he has been bombarding the town at a range of over 6,000 yards."

Assault on Ladysmith Begun.

Ladysmith, Oct. 31. — Firing commenced at 5:20 in the morning, the Boers shelling Ladysmith with 40-pounders.

After seven shots the British guns succeeded in silencing the Boer fire.

A force of Boers is now advancing on the British left flank.

Brisk Fighting in Progress.

Ladysmith, Oct. 31.—The naval brigade arrived Monday morning at half-past nine and soon commenced firing with six quick-firing guns with great precision. The Boer 40-pounders, which had begun to shell the town, were temporarily disabled at the third and fifth shots. Brisk fighting is in progress on the right and left flanks.

Crisis Reached.

London, Oct. 31. — The dispatch from Ladysmith, which was sent at express rates, came through in the remarkable time of two hours. It shows the crisis which the present stage of war operations has reached and the expected attack on Ladysmith by the joint Boer forces has opened.

A dispatch from Durban, timed 9:55 in the morning, supplements the press dispatch with the information that the Boer shells were chiefly directed at the station and that no damage was done up to the time the message from Durban was forwarded.

That the heavy guns of the Boers, from which so much was expected, should be so speedily silenced, as indicated in the press dispatch from Ladysmith, is a matter of great surprise; but the subsequent advance of the burgher force on the British left flank shows the attackers were in no way dismayed thereby and were still full of the same self-confidence and daring they have already exhibited on various occasions.

Reassuring News from the West.

The latest news from the western border has apparently reassured the British authorities as to the ability of Mafeking and Kimberley to withstand assaults.

A dispatch from Fort Tuli, forwarded during the evening of October 24, announces that Blackburn's force, in the skirmish at Rhodes Drift, killed 12 Boers.

A Kaffir spy reported that many more Boers were lying in the drift, dying. Blackburn died of his wounds on returning to Fort Tuli. Scouts there report that the Boers are concentrating strongly on the Rhodesian border, with maxims.

British Repulsed.

Lorenzo Marques, Delagoa Bay, Oct, 31.—A dispatch received here Monday from Pretoria, under date of October 28, says Gen. Cronje, the Boer commander, announced there that the British garrison at Mafeking made a bayonet attack on Commandant Louw's laager, near Grandstand, but were repulsed, leaving six dead on the field, and it was believed that many of the attacking party were wounded. The dispatch adds that Saturday morning Col. Baden-Powell asked for an armistice in order to bury the dead. Gen. Cronje consented to this, the Boers assisting in placing the dead in the wagon going to Mafeking.

Cannery Burned.

Fairhaven, Wash., Oct. 31.—The Aberdeen Packing company's cannery was burned Monday. The loss is estimated at $150,000. The cannery and contents were insured for $70,000, $20,000 of which was on buildings. There were 15,000 cases of canned salmon in the building and very little will be saved.

Aged Clerk Dead.

ENTERS CABANATUAN.

American Troops Meet No Resistance, Insurgents Having Fled to the Mountains.

Manila, Oct. 31.—Maj. Ballance's battalion of the Twenty-second infantry entered Cabanatuan Monday, meeting with no resistance. The natives welcomed the Americans, shouting "Viva los Americanos." The insurgent troops had fled to the mountains. Gen. Bates will be appointed military governor of the Mohammedan islands, with headquarters at Jolo, until Zamboanga is occupied. Gen. Fred Grant will command Gen. Bates' brigade.

Manila, Oct. 31.—Three companies of Col. Bell's regiment have had two encounters with the insurgents near Labam and scattered them. The insurgents left four officers and eight men dead on the field and the Americans captured three prisoners and several guns. On the American side one man was killed and two officers and six men were wounded.

Capt. French took a reconnoitering party beyond Labam after he had met the enemy and was reenforced by Maj. Bishop with two companies. The insurgents brought up cavalry reenforcements and there was a second fight, during which their leader, Maj. Salvador, was killed. Many were wounded and carried away.

Col. Bell has been given a free hand around Bacolor. He has 60 mounted men scouring the country daily and they are killing many Filipinos in skirmishes.

Manila, Oct. 31.—The Spanish commission which entered the insurgent lines a month ago with money to relieve the wants of several thousand military and civil Spanish prisoners returned to Angeles Monday. The commissioners report that they spent most of the time in Tarlac and the vicinity, where there are some 2,700 sick Spaniards in the hospital. The Filipinos ill-treat and ill-feed them, refusing to surrender them, as well as the other Spanish prisoners, in the hope of compelling Spain to recognize the independence of the island.

There are 14 American prisoners, they say, at Tarlac, all of whom are well treated. Lieut. J. C. Gillmore, of the United States gunboat Yorktown, who fell into the hands of the insurgents at Baler, on the east coast of Luzon, last April, where the Yorktown had gone on a special mission to relieve the Spanish garrison, is at Bingat.

The commissioners have brought a letter to Gen. Otis from a relative of the murdered Filipino, Gen. Luna, who wishes to avenge the assassination by Aguinaldo's officers and who asks a personal interview with the military governor. According to the commissioners' statement, Aguinaldo, who is still at Tarlac with 3,000 troops, wishes to continue the war, although he has a high opinion of the American officers and soldiers. Gen. Lawton he calls "El General de La Noche" (the night general), because that commander has attacked him so often in the darkness that he never knows when to look for him. Aguinaldo is said to be well supplied with arms and ammunition, and he is able to get plenty of rice from the northern provinces.

With the Spanish commissioners came a large number of women, the families of eight prominent officers of the Filipino army, who recently applied to Gen. Otis for permission to send their families to Manila. Upon the receipt of the military governor's reply, the nature of which has not been disclosed, the women and children started under escort from Tarlac for the American lines. When they arrived Monday Gen. MacArthur compelled them to halt about a mile beyond our outposts, where they will remain while their credentials are being examined.

DEWEY TO WED.

Announces His Engagement to the Widow of the Late Gen. W. B. Hazen.

Washington, Oct. 31.—Admiral Dewey announced to some of his more intimate friends Monday night the fact of his engagement to Mrs. W. B. Hazen, of this city. Mrs. Hazen is the widow of Gen. Hazen, formerly chief signal officer of the army, who died about ten years ago, and is a sister of John R. McLean, democratic candidate for governor of Ohio. Mrs. Hazen has no children, and since her husband's death has made her home with her mother. She is a woman of large means, about 40 years of age, and popular in the best social circles of Washington. The date for the wedding has not been fixed.

Admiral Dewey on Monday took possession of his new home. The last of the furniture was arranged in the new house and the admiral's trunks were brought up from the apartments he has been occupying at the Everett.

Juror Goes Insane.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 31.—A Sioux Falls (S. D.) special to the Journal says: The trial of Joe Kirby, a prominent and wealthy Sioux Falls attorney, for receiving stolen postage stamps, came to a sudden end through the temporary insanity of a juror, C. C. Suber, a farmer. The case went to the jury Saturday, and on a vote it stood eleven to one for conviction. Suber favored conviction. He was sent to the hospital at the expense of the government, but the case must be tried again, for the fourth time.

Stray Bullet Kills Woman.

Ironton, O., Oct. 31.—C. P. Moore, of Green River, Ky., resisted arrest for disorderly conduct Monday afternoon and a running fight with the officers ensued. Moore emptied a 38-caliber revolver and one bullet which went wild went through the window of a residence, killing Mrs. Lot Henthorn, wife of a clothing salesman, who was watching the fight. Moore was finally captured after he had received slight wounds in the head and legs.

That card playing is still a popular pastime in England is shown by the fact that during the last financial year the stamp duty of threepence was paid on no fewer than 1,952,456 packs made for sale or use in the United Kingdom. From this source the exchequer received £24,405 14s., which was supplemented by a sum of £5,346, representing the customs duty of three shillings ninepence per dozen packs on playing cards imported from abroad. Add to these figures £34 paid as license duty by makers, and we have a total revenue of £29,785 14s.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

TO GET A LIBRARY.

The Minnesota Library Commission, which was established by act of the last legislature, consists of Miss Margaret J. Evans, Northfield, president; Miss Gratia A. Countryman, Minneapolis, secretary; Dr. Cyrus Northrop, Minneapolis; Warren Upham and John H. Lewis, St. Paul, the first two named being the appointed members.

The act which created the commission also authorized it to purchase collections of books which shall be loaned by groups of libraries to any town, village or community within the state. Each of these libraries will contain fifty books, and will be loaned for six months at a time to any place making the proper application. At the end of that time it must be returned to the commission, to be exchanged, if desired, for another. A charge of $1 will be made for each library to cover the cost of freight and transportation.

To secure these libraries, the people of a community must organize a library association of at least ten tax payers, who shall sign an application promising to be responsible for the safe return of the books and the observance of the rules. Libraries will also be loaned to any public library, if the application is signed by the library trustees; or to any association library, providing that no charge is made for the use of the traveling library.

These libraries will be ready for circulation about Jan. 1, 1900. Rules and application blanks may be obtained from the secretary, Miss Countryman, at the Minneapolis public library, to whom all communications should be addressed.

SINGULAR DEATH OF A DRUNKEN MAN.

A most remarkable case of accidental death occurred in a Duluth hotel. John Gustafson, a settler at Chicago bay, on the north shore of Lake Superior, was proving up on a claim, and during the day imbibed too freely. He retired about midnight. His partner, M. C. Harvig, was already in the room and asleep.

In the morning Harvig awoke and found Gustafson hanging to the hinge of the door, cold and lifeless. He had fallen forward head first from a sitting position on the edge of the bed. The back of his collar caught on the small knob on the top of the lower hinge, and he was evidently so drunk that he could not get up, and he strangled there. When found his head was not more than a few inches from the floor, and he was bent double. How he ever hung there in that position without slipping off is a mystery. His face was so black from the strangulation that it would be difficult to tell from it alone whether he was white or black. He was an unmarried man, and had no relatives in this country.

LANDS IN GOOD DEMAND.

State Auditor Dunn has found land values in the southern part of the state booming. He reports that at the sale in Watonwan county all the land offered was sold save two pieces. One tract sold at $61.25 per acre, and several sold above $50 per acre. In all about 900 acres were sold.

A report from the sale in Wright county also shows that 360 acres were sold at prices ranging from $5 to $10 per acre, the average being $7. All of the tracts offered save one were redeemed by the parties holding them.

A GENEROUS GIFT.

Through the efforts of the Evening Herald, Andrew Carnegie has offered to donate $50,000 to the city of Duluth to erect a building for a free public library, conditioned upon a satisfactory site being provided by the city. The offer is the result of a communication sent to Mr. Carnegie several months ago, drawing Mr. Carnegie's attention to what Duluth has done and is doing for its free public library, and the need of a library building in this city.

REAFFIRMED.

The Anderson law, taxing unused railway lands, has been sustained by the supreme court once more. In the case of St. Louis county against the Duluth & Iron Range Railroad Company, the court expresses the opinion that the legislature cannot make an irrevocable contract exempting private property from future taxation.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

The Boy Had a Situation and the Father Was Going to Be an Agriculturist.

"How's your boy doing?" inquired the man whose business takes him occasionally to a rural community where he knows all the inhabitants.

"Fine."

"Has a good job, has he?"

"He ain't got a job no more. He's got a situation. He started in with a job, where he didn't get nothin' but wages—four dollars a week. But he done so good that they boosted him right along, so that now he's gettin' ten dollars a week. That there ain't wages. That's salary."

"How are your own affairs prospering?"

"First rate."

"Still pursuing your old business?"

"No. I'm a farmer now."

"Why, isn't that what you always were?"

"No, sirree. I don't fool myself with no flatterin' notions. Up to a little while ago, when the wave of prosperity struck, I wasn't nothin' but a common cracker. But I've bought an extra piece of ground an' lifted a couple of mortgages, an' now I'm a farmer. Ef the luck holds out I'll have some money in the bank in a few years. Then I'm goin' to buy a three-minute hoss and a buckboard and mow the grass in front of the house and be an agriculturalist."—Washington Star.

Conventional Confusion.

"It is curious," remarked the Lay Figure, "that people think the dumdum bullet poisonous."

"Not at all," rejoined the Unconscious Imbecile. "You see, immediately the dumdum bullet enters a body it mushrooms. Now, most people don't know the difference between a mushroom and a toadstool, and a toadstool is poisonous. Curious? Why, it's the most natural thing in the world for people to think that."

FROM THE GUNS OF THE PEOPLE'S ARTILLERY.

Here and There in State and National Politics—Echoes From Governor Lind's Address to the Thirteenth—Other State Political Points—"Liberty and Freedom" Dropped From McKinley's Thanksgiving Proclamation—Hanna's "Stand and Deliver"—McLean Helped Pay McKinley's Debts—Washburn for Knute Nelson's Place—"The United States and McKinley's Bribes"—Hennepin and Ramsey County Politics—The Week's Round-Up.

Reform Press Bureau.
ST. PAUL, Oct. 30, 1899.

What ails the Republicans, anyhow, that they are so much disturbed with Governor Lind's speech welcoming the Thirteenth? No criticism of the conduct of himself and staff can be made as to the parade or on the presidential grand stand. They are not to blame for having divided attention on the former, nor for having been courteously received on the stand, though sandwiched into the packing of the same that was done for partisan purposes. What did Governor Lind say, then, that was inharmonious or displeasing? He said of the volunteer, in all his campaigns, under Southern burning suns:

"The honor of the state was in safe hands. The confidence of the people was not misplaced."

Finally thanking the returning veterans for their service, Governor Lind referred to the "Presence of the president to greet you," and then appealed to the people not to let plaudits alone suffice, but to assist the volunteer in returning to the ranks of civil life, in which, said the governor, "they will need patriotic co-operation as well as the words of cheer and good will."

The governor also said that while it was an occasion for rejoicing, yet "to the thoughtful citizen it is also one of solemnity." The stage reached in our national development "eliminates the volunteer soldier from national activity and influence for the future." This was because the volunteer soldier, whose part in the development of the country's institutions has been to furnish most of the material for its history and the glory and traditions of our people, has fulfilled his mission."

"His mission, under the constitution," said the governor, "is to suppress insurrection and to repel invasion. With a country united in interest, and in spirit, with the same language, institutions and ideals, an intelligent and patriotic people, the possibility of a future insurrection cannot be conceived."

"We are the largest and wealthiest civilized nation," said the governor. "Last year's demonstration of our vast power, and the ability to instantaneously transform seventy millions of people into efficient, warlike activity, an activity more intelligently and successfully exercised than ever before witnessed, has placed our country beyond the possibility of invasion or attack. Nations, like individuals, do not court destruction. They will profit by Spain's example."

Finally the governor said:

By our growth and development the mission of the American Volunteer has come to an end. For purposes of conquest and subjugation he is unfit, for he carries a conscience as well as a gun. The volunteer soldier has always stood for self government, liberty and justice. With your generation he will pass from the stage of our national life. His fame and his example will continue the heritage of our people—the theme of story and song. May the spirit which has actuated him ever guide our people and temper the strength of the nation which has outgrown him, with the eternal principles for which he has fought and died.

Now, which of all these declarations is the cause of criticism? Is it the appeal for assistance to the soldier, to find employment? Is it the tribute to his valor, or his proud part in the history and glory of the institutions of the country? Is it untrue that the constitutional mission of the volunteer is to repel invasion and suppress insurrection, and that with these forever assured against, the mission of the volunteer has ended? Ah, we know very well that the offense was in the statement that the volunteer is unfit for conquest, "BECAUSE HE CARRIES A CONSCIENCE AS WELL AS A GUN." But to criticise that is to admit that conquest is the purpose of the McKinley administration, now alas, reluctantly admitted by Republican apologists, nay, made plain by the president himself, in the very presence in which the lofty and patriotic sentiments of Governor Lind were delivered. Criticism of these declarations is admission of the intent and purpose of imperialism. Denial of their truth, is to undermine the foundation principles of the republic. Let the Republicans take whichever horn of the dilemma they choose.

Mislead by the administration Twin City press, several country papers, including the Preston Times, Tracy Trumpet, Austin Transcript and others comment that Governor Lind "ignored" the presence of the president. This is entirely false, as the governor distinctly referred to the "presence of the president" as here to "join in the welcome to the Thirteenth." Welcome was the purpose of all. And the trouble with the goppitos is that they wanted a political boom made of the occasion instead of a mere welcome. The only impropriety of the whole affair was committed by President McKinley, who made his welcome the stump speech for which the partisan management furnished the opportunity. That's the plain English of it all. Every goppite knows it.

The Thanksgiving proclamation, under imperialism, does not contain the words "liberty" or "freedom," for the blessings of which we are wont to give thanks. Moreover, McKinley declares we are on "friendly terms with every power on earth." McKinley has not only brought us a new Declaration of Independence and a new Constitution, but a new sentiment for Thanksgiving Day, dropping liberty from the catalogue of blessings, and boldly proclaiming falsehood.

"Stand and deliver," says Hanna, in a brazen faced demand, by circular, to every postmaster in the United States, to contribute money to carry the fall elections for Hanna. And to date Postmaster Lovejoy, Minneapolis, is the only official to publicly defy Hanna. Lovejoy's bald-headed boldness is doubtless due to the fact that he and Congressman Fletcher "stand in with McKinley," from the fact that they set up the pins for the partisan use of the Thirteenth occasion.

That great national organization, the Womens' Christian Temperance union, having denounced the un-American McKinley policy in the Philippines, it is in order to hear those women denounced as "traitors" and "copperheads," with such sundry other epithets as "women politicians," and "men in petticoats," by the goppite press. And yet the cause of Americanism is marching on.

Somebody who kept tab on the McKinley hypocrisy and cant of his recent tour, finds that he uttered the word "patriotism" 193 times, "The Flag" 176 times, and "providence" 103 times, in his published speeches. In the name of "Providence" he purchased the Philippine war from Spain. "Under "The Flag" he "assimilates" Filipinos with their native soil in the "liberty" of extermination. Disguised as "Patriotism" he gives the cue for all men to be denounced as "traitors" who still stand by the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution.

The difference: An expansionist believes with the McKinley of 1898, that "forced annexation is criminal aggression." The imperialist agrees with the McKinley of 1899, that foreign conquest and the destruction of liberty is American patriotism.

The downward slide of the Republican party from what it was a generation ago is the toboggan slide of Lincoln down to Hanna. And that's no lie.

Governor Bushell of Ohio makes the revelation as an act of justice that John R. McLean contributed to the payment of McKinley's debts on the solicitation of Mark Hanna. Yet Hanna's mud batteries are turned on McLean with all possible virulence. Nor has McKinley the manhood to stop them. What base ingratitude!

Three columns of reiteration of Senator W. D. Washburn's anti-trust attitude are published in the Cincinnati Enquirer of the 22d inst. "No man should be elected," he declares, "who is in sympathy with trusts." If the Republicans were wise they would substitute Senator Washburn for Knute Nelson as candidate for the senate next time, in doing which they might save themselves no end of trouble.

The Swedish Republican Union of Hennepin has banqueted, and with the aid of such prominent Swedes as Judge Steele, Captain Van Sant, Judge Collins, Bob Evans, Congressman Stevens of St. Paul, Jadam Bede of Morris and Clerk of Court Dar Reese, have agreed that the issues next year will be "expansion and sound money." 'Tis swell. The hands of the clock might have had to be turned back, if the eminent Swedes mentioned had not acted so early.

The crack of the huntsman's rifle is heard in the north, and Game Warden Beutner has increased his force to prevent violation of the law. Moose can only be killed from Nov. 5 to 10, and deer only from Nov. 1 to 10.

Grand work is being done in Ramsey county, preparatory to sweeping out the corrupt Republican gangs in Ramsey and St. Paul. St. Paul will unquestionably be redeemed next spring.

And the waters are "moving" also in Hennepin. Mayor Gray's splendid administration of Minneapolis, is building up the allied reform forces on solid foundations.

Minnesota was represented at the National Dairy convention, Chicago, by Dairy Commissioner Bowler and Assistant Commissioner White. They found that the Minnesota department was clear up to the front with any of the states.

Insurance Commissioner O'Shaughnessey is out with his first annual report. It was delayed from lack of appropriations, the fault of the Republican legislature. That odoriferous body crippled about every department of the state government not in Republican hands.

Poor, miserable Aguinaldo was offered a colonel's commission, and so says First Assistant Postmaster General Heath, if he would desert his fellows and use his influence for submission. Yet McKinley says the government gives no bribes. And how about the Sulus?

"The United States pays no gold for peace," declared McKinley at Fargo. McKinley paid the polygamous, slave-holding Sulus as follows, per month:

To the Sultan	$250
Dato Rajah Muda	75
To Dato Attik	60
To Dato Calbe	75
To Dato Joakanain	75
To Dato Puto	60
To Dato Amir Haissin	60
To Hadji Butu	50
To Habib Mura	40
To Serif Saguin	15

Oh, yes, we can see the point. He paid for the Sulu harem in silver.

Catching Up.

"Is your town growing?" asked the Pittsburgh man of a fellow-traveler on the cars.

"Well, no; I can't say it's growing," was the reply; "not growing to speak of, but it is improving in tastes right along."

"You mean that the people are assuming a higher standard?"

"I do, sir; yes, sir. We now get bananas every day from Cincinnati, and five out of six groceries keep shredded codfish and limburger cheese. We don't look for any building boom or influx of strangers, but we'll hold our own and gradually work up to electric doorbells and oysters on the half shell."—Utica Observer.

The Place for It.

"Well, gentlemen," remarked the president of the club, "motions are in order. It has been suggested that we have a banquet. What shall be done?"

HANDY CIDER PRESS.

To Make One Requires Neither Much Money Nor an Abundance of Ingenuity.

To make a cider press take a plank 2 by 12 inches by 12 feet; soft wood will do, but hard is better. Saw two pieces four feet long and two pieces two feet; cut again in each of the long pieces, four inches from the end and one-half inch deep and as wide as the thickness of the short pieces; Then spike the four together as illustrated. Get a carpenter's iron bench screw at a cost of about a dollar, which does for the screw. For the cheese crib, get two hoops made of heavy hoop iron. Punch holes about 1½ inches apart and fill with staves about 2 feet long and 1¼ inches wide and with small nails or screws fasten the staves inside the hoops, leaving them one-fourth inch apart. There should be a false bottom to catch and conduct the cider. For a grinder take a clean salt or flour barrel and saw into it at the bilge. Then take a board and saw out a false head a little smaller than the barrel head, and tack it on the outside of the tub head. This is to support the tub bottom. Then take a piece of 3 by 4-inch by 3 foot scantling and chop off about half the wood from one end so as to taper, smooth and round off the end. A block of hard wood with a hole bored one-half inch deep for the screw to work in must be made to keep from bending. Such a press can be made for $3 or $4. Bushels of apples go to waste on many farms which could be utilized by making into cider or vinegar.—A. C. McPherson, in Farm and Home.

HOGS ARE CLEANLY.

If Farmers Would Bear This Fact Constantly in Mind There Would Be No Cholera.

The health of hogs does not depend in any measure on the promiscuous feeding of drugs. If proper attention were given to all the hogs in the country the makers of cholera cures would have no demand for their medicines. When it is said they live off the ignorance of the public it is but to tell the truth, and is not saying anything against them or their remedies. These men who have studied hog cholera in all its phases are the first to say that the disease first gets its foothold in filthy pens and yards and from drinking stagnant water. From this start herds that are properly cared for become infected, and, if the season is favorable for the development of the germs of disease an epidemic of hog cholera follows that sweeps hogs worth untold thousands, says the Swineherd.

It cannot be said too many times that hogs are cleanly by nature. They are the only domestic animals that will habitually have a certain place in which to deposit their droppings, keeping the remainder of the range clean if they are allowed to do so. Give pure water and plenty of green feed during the period of development, and hog cholera, if it comes at all, will come from an outside source. Once it has arrived prompt measures to check its ravages should be resorted to and persisted in until the disease is checked.

HORTICULTURAL NOTES.

Whenever trees are received from the nursery they should be heeled in by the roots until they are wanted for planting.

How large the small-fruit plat should be depends upon the size of the family. For a full supply an acre will not be too much.

A good dressing of wood ashes can be applied to strawberries at this time with benefit. They may be applied on the surface.

Lice on trees may be killed by dissolving a pound of potash in a gallon of water and applying on the affected parts with a brush.

One pint of linseed oil, four pounds of rosin and one pound of beeswax, melted well together, make a good grafting wax.

When weeds or grass are allowed to grow with the vines they rob them of the plant food that rightfully belongs to the plants.

Plant raspberries in rows five feet apart and three feet apart in the row; blackberries in rows eight feet apart and three feet apart in the row.—St. Louis Republic.

Lime, Salt and Plaster.

The principal materials used as stimulant fertilizers are lime, salt and plaster. The real object in liming soils is to correct some physical condition. If land is too heavy, a dose of about 40 bushels per acre of slacked lime will lighten it. If too light, a similar application tends to make it more compact. If sour, as a result of turning under green crops, or from other causes, the action of the air slacked lime will be to sweeten the soil. A dose of lime about once in every five or six years will be sufficient.—Farmers' Review.

Stomach Worms in Sheep.

Stomach worms in sheep have given unusual trouble among the flocks of Ohio this year, says a bulletin of the Ohio experiment station at Wooster. The treatment advised is two teaspoonfuls of common gasoline with four ounces of sweet milk, well shaken together to form an emulsion. Mix the dose for each lamb separately and give three doses, each 24 hours apart. These worms may be found in the fourth stomach in a writhing mass. They are white, thread like and three-fourths inches long.—Farm and Home.

MASSACHUSETTS ROADS.

They Are Constructed Under the Supervision of Trained Engineers and Well Kept Up.

Massachusetts spends annually about $50,000 on her state roads, and has now completed some 222 miles of permanent highways. The work is under the charge of a state commission of three persons, with offices in Boston, and a large corps of engineers. The commission meets, on the average, oftener than once a week, at headquarters, and holds a meeting during the year in each county in the state. It also calls all the engineers together at the end of the season to discuss the year's work in detail. Massachusetts was one of the first states to undertake systematically to improve her highways, and also about the earliest to provide instruction in road building. Complete courses of instruction are given in the Institute of Technology and the Lawrence Scientific school, Harvard university, photographs, models and drawings being used in the lecture rooms, and visits being made to works in process of construction. This work is admirable, but it requires time to educate road engineers, and in the meantime many miles of highway must be maintained and new roads constructed.

The Massachusetts highway commission has always endeavored to disseminate information and give as much instruction as possible. The work done during the last five years has been located in nearly one-half the 353 municipalities of the state, while some 50 more have built modern roads; so a very large number of towns and cities have had experience in building good roads.

The first chance to take the contracts to construct state roads within their own territory is given to the towns, and many have availed themselves of it; so it has come about that hundreds of men throughout the state have had practical experience in building high-class roads, and competent foremen can now be readily secured where a few years ago it was almost impossible to find them. Town officials, too, have learned scientific methods and the value of modern road machinery in a most practical way, as they could not learn it if modern roads were not being constructed before their own doors.

There are about 60 resident engineers employed by the commission, and one of them is stationed wherever a state road is built, to instruct the contractor and enforce proper methods, and he remains in charge until the road is completed. Above these are five divisional engineer and a chief engineer. In this way the work is thoroughly systematized, theory and practice are brought into play and large numbers of persons become acquainted with the principles of constructing modern good roads.—Country Gentleman.

NEW CATTLE CRIB.

In Old Barns That Are Crowded for Room This Device Will Be Found Very Advantageous.

The cut shows a small device for economizing room in the cattle crib, while still giving all the room needed. The stanchions are brought almost to the edge of the feeding floor (giving more width in the tie-up, which is greatly needed in many cases), while the partition in front is hinged at the bottom and falls out to give space for hay, ensilage, etc., which is fed to the stock. If feed boxes are required, they can be made of a shape to set handily in the space before the cattle. At night the partition is shut up, forcing the cattle to step back to the rear of their platform, which insures a clean bed for them for the night. In many old barns that are crowded for room this device will be found very advantageous, a narrow "tie-up" being a source of great inconvenience in doing the work, and a serious impediment as well to a cleanly carrying on of dairy operations, as with the narrow tie-up it is very difficult to keep the cows clean.—N. Y. Tribune.

Wood Ashes for Apple Trees.

In some recent tests it was found that the foliage was greatly improved in sections of orchards treated with wood ashes, and that the trees were freer from disease. The color of the fruit was also improved in some seasons and with some varieties, but during the seasons which favored the perfect development of the fruit the color was not heightened. Apparently the use of ashes has a tendency to hasten the perfect development of the fruit. Some seasons this ripening process was carried so far where ashes were used that the apples did not keep as well as on portions untreated. — Prairie Farmer.

Early Frosts Kill Insects.

Early and late frosts are disliked by farmers, but such frosts do more harm to insects than the severe cold of winter, as they catch many insects out of ground or just below the surface. It has been noticed that when the winters are severely cold, and the ground remains frozen until well into spring, insects are more numerous the following summer than when the winters are mild. It is the alternate freezing and thawing that does the damage to insects, especially when there is a warm rain followed by a sudden freezing of the ground below the surface.

Ropiness and Its Cause.

This peculiar condition of milk or cream is due to a number of micro organisms which often come onto a dairy farm quite suddenly. We can assign no plausible cause for their appearance, and while ropy, stringy or slimy milk impresses us by its unwholesome appearance, it is perfectly harmless.—Dr. F. E. Engelhardt.

A QUEER COMBINATION.

It Was a Justice of the Peace, a Pickpocket and a Little Prayer Book.

Justice "Bill" Hall was chuckling the other day over a little adventure that befell him, and which he related as follows:

"It was during the festival week," he said, "and you all know how the downtown streets were crowded. I was walking down State street, and, happening to look in one of the big store windows, saw a pile of books, which reminded me of a commission given me by my wife that morning. I went in and bought a book and put the parcel in my overcoat pocket.

"As I came out into the crowd on the street again I felt a hand go into my pocket, and turned quickly, but not quickly enough to catch the would-be thief, a tough-looking young man, who skipped off in the crowd and was immediately lost to view. I couldn't help laughing to think how horribly disappointed he would have felt if he had succeeded in his theft, because the parcel in my pocket contained a common little prayer book.

"There's what I call a ludicrous combination—a thief trying to rob a police justice of a prayer book—a combination that probably has never before and never will again arise in the history of Chicago."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

The Isthmus of Panama.

Its engineers believe that they have solved the problem of the successful completion of this great enterprise. If so, it will prove a great benefit to humanity, no more, truthfully speaking, than has Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the remedy which never fails to cure afflictions of the stomach—for of what use is prosperity without health? The Bitters invariably strengthens weak stomachs and torpid livers, and is one of the blessings of the age.

Too Late.

A horseman burst into the prison yard.

"Reprieved!" he shouted, and waved a paper aloft.

"Too late," replied the warden, sadly.

"Is the man hanged already?"

"No; but he has eaten the hearty breakfast of ham and eggs, coffee and potatoes!"

Executive clemency was all right in its place, but it could not be suffered to interfere with the conventional course of events. Yes, the horseman's steed was undeniably foaming, but even that availed little or nothing under the circumstances.—Detroit Journal.

Every reader of this paper should give special heed to the offers which are appearing from week to week by the John M. Smyth Co., the mammoth mail order house of Chicago. In this issue will be found their advertisement of a thoroughly up-to-date, first-class sewing machine, at the astoundingly low price of $14.25. Coming as this offer and other offers do from a house with a commercial rating of over one million dollars, and of the highest character, they mark an opportunity that the shrewd buyer will not be slow to take advantage of. The John M. Smyth Co., 150 to 166 West Madison street, will send their mammoth catalogue, in which is listed at wholesale prices everything to eat, wear and use, on receipt of only 10 cents to partly pay postage or expressage, and even this 10 cents is allowed on first purchase amounting to one dollar.

The Fuel Problem.

"I suppose you had money to burn in the Klondike?"

Jason Crow, Oscarville, Ga., Says:

"I feel it my duty to write and let you know what your medicine, '5 Drops,' has done for me. I have had rheumatism about 18 years, but was able to be up most of the time, until a year ago last May, when I was taken down and not able to move about. About six weeks ago I saw your advertisement and wrote for a sample bottle. After taking a few doses, it did me so much good that I ordered some more for myself and friends and in every case it has done wonders and given perfect satisfaction. Dr. Woodliff, my family physician, who has had rheumatism 15 years, is taking '5 Drops,' and says it is the most efficient rheumatic medicine he has ever used. May 31, 1899."

The above refers to "5 Drops," a perfect cure for rheumatism, kidney and all kindred complaints. The proprietors, Swanson Rheumatic Co., 164 Lake St., Chicago, offer to send a 25c. sample bottle for only 10c. during the next 30 days. Be sure to read their advertisement of last week.

WOMEN do suffer!
Even so-called healthy women suffer!
But they are not healthy!
The marks left by pain are on the young faces of many of our daughters. Pain that leaves its mark comes from a curable cause. If that cause is not removed its influence reaches out and overshadows a whole life. The reason Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been so uniformly successful for over a quarter of a century in overcoming the suffering of women, is that it is thorough and goes directly to the cause. It is a woman's remedy for woman's ills.

MUST WOMEN SUFFER?

MISS EMILY F. HAAS, of 148 Freeman St., Greenpoint, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:
"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I wish to state that I used your Vegetable Compound with the greatest success. I was very sick for nearly a year with hysteria, was down-hearted and nervous; also suffered with painful menstruation and pain in back and limbs. I often wished for death, thinking nothing would cure me. I had doctors, but their medicines did me no good. At last, by the advice of a friend, I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am happy to say it has entirely cured me.

JENNIE SHERMAN, of Fremont, Mich., Box 748, writes:
"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I feel that I must write you and tell you what your medicine has done for me. I had neuralgia of the stomach for two years, so bad that I could not do any work. I had two or three doctors, but did not seem to get any better. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills and improved from the first, had better appetite, and after taking three bottles of Compound and one box of Liver Pills, can say that I am cured. Your Vegetable Compound is a wonderful medicine."

FIRST WALKING MATCH.

Resolved Itself Into a Running Match, and It Was for Territory.

In 1706 William Penn bought from the Indians a tract of land bounded on the east by the Delaware, on the west by the Neshaminy, and running as far north "as a man can go" in 1½ days. After his death his son, Thomas Penn, thought it would be a good idea to survey the boundary. On August 25, 1737, this was done.

Three men lined up for the start, James Yeates, a Jean Yankee; Solomon Jennings and Edward Marshall, an old hunter. The sheriff, the surveyors and a number of Indians who wanted to see fair play accompanied them on horseback.

The three men ran.

"You are not walking," protested the Indians; "you are running."

"They are going," replied the sheriff; "and that's what the treaty says—as far as a man can 'go' in a day and a half."

So the Indians went home.

Yeates collapsed on the second day's run and died two days later. Jennings lived in shattered health but a few years longer. Marshall was tougher—in better training, we would say nowadays. He kept on, reached the end of the blazed trail, seized the surveyor's compass and still kept going in the same direction. When Sheriff Smith at noon said "Halt!" Marshall had covered 68 miles through rough forest, or twice as far as the Indians had expected.

The sellers were "only Indians," you see.—N. Y. World.

Thoroughbred.

A New York society dame, who is an ardent upholder of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, owns a little fox terrier of which she is exceedingly fond. A man who called on her the other day was admiring the dog and asked her mistress how she, with all her humane theories, could have allowed the cruel dog fancier to cut off Snap's tail and ears to the fashionable degree of brevity. The dame drew herself up and replied, with some hauteur:

"My dear sir, Snap expected it. Every thoroughbred fox terrier expects to have his tail and ears shortened." And that humbled man went away saying to himself: "That's the first time I ever thought of 'noblesse oblige,' as applying to fox terriers."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

His Last Fling.

As they bent solicitously over him, the man who had been kicked by a horse opened his eyes. "Have you any last wish?" they asked him.

"Yes," he murmured. "Have an automobile hearse at the funeral."

—Some fine live hogs from this vicinity found their way to the city markets this week. Delano is keeping up her reputation as a hog market.

—O. Styner, of Armstrong says he will try to get the Epworth League, of that place to come to Delano some Sunday evening soon and meet with the Delano league, and hear our new preacher.

—Unless some of the buyers and sellers of stock take a little more pains with the dumb brutes under their charge than they have been doing on fair days here, it would be in order for the Village Marshal to aid them in caring for the animals.

—Vaccinations are still being done. Most of the school children of Delano district have been vaccinated and revaccinated until they were entitled to certificates. Many older and younger than schoolable age have also taken the precautionary measure against smallpox.

—The Rebekahs surprised sister Mrs. John Sturman last night and had a big time, the occasion being the 17th anniversary of the wedding of John Sturman and Miss Belle Miller. A liberal lunch found its way to our office, this morning. May they enjoy many happy returns of the anniversary.

—Quite a number of Delanoites intend visiting Waverly Saturday to attend the reception of the soldier boys and hear Gov. Lind speak. We understand the governor will go up on the morning train and return in the afternoon, which will give people along the G. N. line on this side of Waverly a good opportunity to attend the meeting and hear the governor.

—The Haloween social at Maxfield's Tuesday evening was a complete success. There were about a hundred present and all had a good time, especially the young folks, if noise is any indication. A number of young ladies apparelled themselves as ghosts and paraded around town in the early evening, amusing themselves at the expense of pedestrians and passers by. The evening was spent in various amusements. The fortune teller was the center of attraction a share of the time where nearly all were assured of a long life, great riches, and untold happiness. The mythological jack o' lantern was in evidence in corners and other places, where they served as lights. After spending a very enjoyable evening the gathering dispersed about eleven o'clock. Most of the young folks went around town for a short time observing the rights of Haloween eve', according to time honored custom —An entertainment will be given at the City Hall, Delano, on Monday evening, Nov. 6th by the well known dramatic reader and elocutionist, Miss Josephine Bonaparte Rice.

Miss Rice is favorably known as one of the best dramatic readers in the country and her audiences are always enthusiastic in their praise of her very interesting and highly amusing program. She gives scenes in costume from "Macbeth" and other Shakespearean plays, in which she is unexcelled, and she also reads comical and pathetic pieces from standard authors.

The Eastern papers speak highly of Miss Rice as an artist of high merit and she ought to be welcomed to Delano by a large audience.

The program also contains piano solos and vocal numbers by Ida May Paulson, a lady gifted with a most remarkable contralto voice, whose deep notes are so phenomenally rich and powerful as to resemble a baritone, and she is therefore often called the lady baritone.

Miss Paulson is well known throughout Minnesota, having for several seasons appeared as soloist with the "Sappho Quartette" of Minneapolis.

Altogether this is an entertainment appealing to the refined and musical people and we hope to see Delano turn out strong to enjoy it.

—Green and Bartlett have received a car load of apples.

—Alva Catlin is still under quarantine for small pox at Minneapolis. He was in the desquamative stage when he went there and is expected out soon.

—At the last meeting of the K. P's, the returned soldiers from Manila who belong at Delano, presented the lodge with a fine ebony gavel brought from the Philippines.

—Perhaps if a crowd gathers at the depot tomorrow at 10:45, a. m. or at 4 p. m. they can catch a glimpse of Gov. Lind. Possibly he will make a five minutes speech.

—Waverly's reception of the Spanish war veterans, Saturday, Nov. 4, is to be a grand affair. Gov. Lind will address the boys during the afternoon. The soldiers are expected to appear in uniform. Free to the boys. Invited guests.

—The Secretary of the State Board of Health claims that 53 cases of small pox have occurred at and near Albert Lea this fall. Papers report cases as having been at Appleton, Round Lake, Willmar, St. Cloud, Stillwater and other places.

—Our townsman, Andrew Reider, received news this week of the death of his brother, Leonard Reider, aged 61 years, in Neurinburg, Germany. Deceased visited his brother here once, and was known to some of our citizens. Two of his sons, Leonard and John have been citizens of Delano for several years.

—A letter from the Superintendent of the Hospital at Fergus Falls says of the patients lately sent there from here that John Stein is able to help in the dining room, is improving. Aloes Roth has had a fever but is ont again, but is still noisy. Peter Borke has had erysipelas and other troubles but was improving some bodily.

Personal.

County Cullings.

William Quinn, of Waverly, shook hands with a few friends at the depot on his way home from Minneapolis, one day this week.

H. C. Bull and wife, and John Tracy, of Cokato, were Minneapolis visitors Tuesday; also Messers McVeety, Latham and Woolley, of Howard Lake.

We acknowledge the receipt of a polite invitation to attend the banquet and dance at Waverly in honor of the returned soldiers of the American Spanish war, to be given Saturday, Nov. 4. Gov. Lind is to be present during the day and address the vast crowd who will gather to see and hear the governor.

The Advocate-Post, concerning our item about God in his infinite wisdom, favoring the Filipinos by a typhoon killing most of a boat load of mules and horses sent over to aid in conquering their country says: "Now Bro. Catlin does your idea of the Almighty lead you to believe that he would deal so unfairly with his dumb animals?" Did Brother Satterlee never read of the plagues of the Egyptians who imposed tasks upon the Israelites? Has he not read of the murrain of beasts, where the Egyptians lost all their cattle, and the children of Israel none? Did he never read of the Egyptians pursuing the children of Israel into the Red sea?

"And the Egyptians pursued, and went in after them to the midst of the sea, even all Pharao's horses, his chariots, and his horsemen."

He also quotes Napoleon, a good man to quote on imperialism: "The Lord is on the side of the heaviest artillery." But how would that apply in the case of David and Goliath?

LATER. How does Brother Satterlee account for the mules carrying Queen Victoria's artillery over to President Kruger's side or the battlefield the other day?

Litchfield Independent: We have always entertained a great deal of respect for G. S. Pease, the enterprising and independent editor of the Anoka Union, and it pains us to see him belittle himself by his spiteful smart aleck style of printing John Lind's name in his paper as "jacklind". It doesn't hurt Gov. Lind a particle, but it does lower Pease inestimably in the public mind.

The Minneapolis Journal Says

"The Burlington buffet library car is one of the most convenient ever put on wheels. Besides all the periodicals and literature provided, there are duplicate whist boards for the amusement of the traveler. Goodness only knows what is "limited" in the way of beauty, comfort and luxury on the Burlington "Limited."

Another Benedict Arnold.

One of Mr. Bryan's noble Filipinos has offered to betray his leader, Aguinaldo, and deliver him into the hands of Gen. Otis for $50,000. This is the kind of people Col. Bryan and Edward Atkinson are shedding their bitter tears over, because of their cruel oppression by the imperialistic policy of William McKinley. But murder will out, and the true status of the Filipinos is bound to make itself known despite the "weeps" of the "aunties." —Aitkin Age.

Oh no Caarley, those kind of fellows generally get on the other side; as for instance, the Sultan of Sulu, and Benedict Arnold. No patriot is shedding bitter tears over them,

DIED.

METZ.—At St. Joseph's hospital, St. Paul, Saturday, Oct. 28, 1899, at 1:15 p. m., Lillian Marie, aged twelve, only child of Capt. Charles E. and Nettie Metz. Funeral from family residence, 736 Marshall Ave., Tuesday, at 2 p m.—Pioneer Press.

Mrs. Metz was formerly Miss Nettie Atwood, at one time a resident of Delano, where her many friends sympathize with her in her loss.

Help the Cause.

There has never been a political campaign that will equal in importance that of the one to be fought next year. The republican party, backed by the money power of this country and Europe, is alert and agressive. Flushed by the victory of three years ago it will reek by every means in its power to maintain its supremacy.

Democrats must be up and doing. They must wage an unceasing war upon their enemies. In no better and more effective way can this be done than by the circulation of good, sound democratic newspapers. The publisher of the Chicago Dispatch, the great national democratic weekly, will send to every new subscriber for three months a copy of the Chicago Dispatch for ten cents. If you are not taking the great political weekly, send in ten cents at once. You should not only do this yourself, but you should induce all your friends to join with you. By a little effort you can easily raise a club of ten or twenty subscribers.

THE delights of an evening spent around a well-lighted reading table are not half understood. An illustrated magazine with its wealth of illustrations, its stories of adventure and love, its descriptions of travel which carry you to the remotest ends of the earth, and its instructive articles for young and old—these are the first requisites for your own enjoyment and the entertainment and proper education of your children.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

Both Together One Year for Only $1.80

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. For three years The Cosmopolitan has undisputedly claimed that it reached the largest clientele possessed by any periodical, daily, weekly or monthly, in the world. It was The Cosmopolitan which sent Julian Hawthorne to India to let the world know the real horrors of famine and plague. It was The Cosmopolitan which established at its own cost a great Free Correspondence University which now has over 20,000 students on its rolls. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $3,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.

St Paul Dispatch

25c per month for Daily. 75c per year for the Weekly.

The St. Paul Dispatch is the best Twin City daily; it has no equal in the Northwest as to size or quality.

The DISPATCH excels in Northwestern news, having a correspondent in every Northwestern town.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

THE GIRL BEHIND THE DESK.

We've heard about the girl behind the man behind the gun,
We've heard her praised for victories that with her help he won;
So we think that it will do no harm, where praising is the rule,
To praise awhile the girl behind the teacher's desk at school.

Who is it who has to bear the brunt of everybody's spleen?
Who is it on the bicycle never may be seen?
And who dare not have a fellow, else they'll think she is a fool,
Who is it but the girl behind the teacher's desk at school.

Who was it taught our soldiers brave how to read and write?
And who probably took an active part when first they tried to fight?
Who taught them when there's danger to have courage and be cool,
Who was it but the girl behind the teacher's desk at school.

What other girl do we expect to be so still and meek?
What other girl when smitten must turn the other cheek?
What other girl to keep her place must labor like a mule?
No other, but the girl behind the teacher's desk at school.

So now you see the girl behind the men behind the gun,
Although she is a heroine she's "not the only one;"
And when you talk of bravery, we think 'tis rather cruel,
To mention not the girl behind the teacher's desk at school.

THOSE old Boers are pretty tough "chawin" for the British lion.

ONE of the dailies had a cartoon a few days since representing Admiral Dewey with his eye on a $30 baby carriage. Wonder if the Dewey baby carriage penny collection will come next?

HON. CHARLES A. TOWNE seems to be the choice of the fusion forces of the Sixth district for Congress. Page Morris is expected to be his opponent again. Just where J. Adam Bede will come in don't appear at present but we would not be surprised if he would ce a Towne man as against Morris for another term. Mr. Towne is an able man and would represent the Sixth district well.

THOSE newspapers that persist in abusing Gov. Lind for making a "political speech," on the occasion of the Minneapolis reception of the 13th Reg should give out their views of President McKinley's speech, on the same occasion, when he thanked the boys for sending him word that they would remain in the Philippines until he sent a new army to take their places. If he ever received such word it must have been from Gen Otis, not from the boys.

OUR Republican friends are talking up one of their old schemes of placing a scandinavian on the ticket against John Lind for governor. This would insure the Scandinavians the office. There are republicans who have strongly intimated that they would like an opportunity to vote for some one else than a Swede. Others claim that John Lind is all right. When it comes to playing the nationality racket for governor it will be found that those playing it are in poor business politically.

SINCE Ohio has gone republican and Nebraska for fusion there seems to be more of a certainty that Bryan and McKinley will run against each other for President in 1900. It looks too, as if most men who think about the issues of the day could make a choice between these two without having other candidates in the field. Bryan is for the Chicago platform of 1896, with a plank against imperialism in all its forms. In fact the Chicago platform is, in itself, against anything of that kind. McKinley is of course now tied up to gold standard, big armies, military and despotic government. It is easy for people who love our country and who believe in American institutions to decide between these.

STRANGE ISN'T IT? Before the recent elections voters were assured that the United States had no alliance with England or any other country; and that no one outside of an insane asylum ever dreamed of such a thing. And that four Generals were surrounding Aguinaldo and would surely end the war in the Philippines in a few days. Now, so soon after election the news comes from London that the United States and Great Britain are to enforce the "open door" policy in China! And from the Philippines is flashed the inteligence that Aguinaldo is safe, 75 miles from where they had him corralled!! Does our Uncle Sam think our western people will continue to swallow such stuff, without investigation? Especially when wheat is on the down grade and what has to be bought is nigh?

What Combines Would Do.

The Buffalo Gazette thinks the gold combine will sink every individual business man in oblivion. Wonder what it thinks the silver combine would do if given a chance?—Aitkin Republican.

Possibly the silver combine, with the same opportunities, might want to monopolize the money business, in the same manner the gold monopolies do. But as they are laboring today for only their honest deserts, to be on the same footing as the gold monopolies are; to divide up the money business it seems as if they ought to have that privilege. We don't believe in combines of gold or silver running money matters. The two metals together, one as good as the other for all money purposes is what suits the people best.

Flag To Be Loved.

"You tell me that you want our flag to be feared, but I tell you that I want it to be loved."—W. J. Bryan.

This is an appropriate warning at this time. Our flag has been carried to foreign lands, and hoisted over things not American. It now floats over a Sultan with his harem; it floats over slaves, in lands divided from ours by thousands of miles of water; over a people taxed without representation. It is evidently being carried into foreign lands for purposes of plunder, and "aggressive assimilation".

The flag of Washington, of Grant, the flag of our own national independence and of the adoption of thousands of oppressed of other lands who have rallied beneath its starry folds; the flag born of noble impulses, of the heart beatings of independence, of liberty, upheld through foreign invasion to our native land, and that floated victoriously over a reunited nation after years of bitter internal warfare; the flag for which much of the best blood of this nation has been poured out; the flag respected by all men, in all climes, and dearly loved for what truly American it represents, can not be used for other purposes with impunity. Carrying our flag into foreign lands to frighten people into "being good" and of becoming American citizens is not the proper thing. It is not American. Things contrary to our professions of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness to the oppressed of every land cannot be carried on under the folds of the flag of our country for a very long time.

The people, once in four years, have an opportunity to declare their feelings concerning these things by voting for or against men representing such proceedings. Though they may for a season be misled, and by the very dislike of reflecting in the least on the emblem of our country, follow ambitious men chancing to have power temporarily, at the very first opportunity they will so emphatically declare in favor of America and its free institutions that the flag will be used only legitimately and be all the more dearly loved for having resisted another opportunity to become representative of Imperialism.

Lots of Money In Banks.

"There is lots of money in banks" is continually dinned into the ears of everybody, daily. "Interest is cheaper than it has been for years" we are told, consequently "prosperity is here" "Banks can't let out their money". "The government has more gold on hand than for years". "The country never was so prosperous". These are the arguments hurled at the man who dares say that he don't see that he is any better off financially than he was ten years ago. Though he has worked hard and saved closely for a decade he can sell out for little if any more than he could when he began. Some in debt claim they have had hard work to keep interest paid up to say nothing of paying principle.

Is it a sign of prosperity to the country; to the people who labor for a living, to have the banks full of money which they can't let out at interest? When people have learned by severe experience that they cannot use money, or labor, or anything else to advantage enough to afford to pay interest, even cheap interest, is it a sign of good times? Scarcely a man in the country but would gladly borrow a hundred dollars or so if he was sure he could pay it back easily, when due; but when he knows he could do nothing of the kind, besides being afraid he would be obliged to pay a premium on gold, as soon as the gold standard is safely fastened on the country, with which to pay his debt with interest he dare not borrow.

Because banks can't let out money is no sign that times are good. There are other reasons than because people have money, for their not borrowing. The banks are demanding gilt edged security and plenty of it to insure them not to be looser, before they will loan money, more so than ever. People a few years ago considered good, who could borrow money on their own note now must have something more than a note to offer. People are afraid to borrow what they know is so hard to repay. Others couldn't borrow if they dared and desired to, because their securities would not be considered safe.

The government has millions piled up and laid away, so we are told. How can it be? When we are expending millions daily; much more than ordinarily, how can we legitimately have millions accumulated in excess of what is required? Of what use to the people is millions of money in the hands of other, in the hands of the government, piled up doing nobody good?

If the government has millions of gold on hand and an equal amount of paper redeemable in gold, outstanding is the surplus real or fictitious?

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 3, 1899.

Mr. McKinley has played his last card in his effort to prevent Ohio going democratic, and he is by no means confident of its winning. Finding that the Philippine Commission was not likely to get out its preliminary report on the hints given its members, in time to influence the voters, he sent for the members to come to the White House, and told them in person to get up a preliminary report at once. The Commissioners had not been out of the White House an hour before the press was furnished semi-officially with a statement saying that this preliminary report would be a thorough endorsement of the administration's Philippine policy from a to z, and that it would recommend the permanent retention of the Philippines by the U. S. In short, the Philippine Commission is going to report what Mr. McKinley wishes them to report—what he and members of his administration have been talking for weeks. Yet, he imagines that this report is going to influence public opinion sufficiently to stop the alarming increase of adverse criticism of his Philippine policy. He will know better by and by. Men who draw big salaries for small work may be willing to have their opinions made for them, but the people at large who are under no obligations to the administration have a habit of doing their own thinking.

Another striking proof of the love of the republican party for the "dear working people" has just been given by the administration. The War Department has issued an order discontinuing the making of uniforms in this country, for the soldiers in the Philippines, thus depriving many deserving persons of needed work. And before they were warned to keep mum, officers of the Quartermaster Generals office have told why—simply because the uniforms can be made cheaper in Hong Kong, where chinese cheap labor can be had, than in the United States. But republican stump speakers will go right along talking about saving their hearers from the competition of foreign "pauper labor".

The administration has been so much worried by the wide publication of its official recognition of polygamy and slavery, under the American flag, by its treaty with the Sultan of the Sulu islands, which are a portion of the Philippine group, that Prof Schurman, president of the Philippine Commission was asked—perhaps ordered would be nearer correct—to make a statement in defense of the administration. He made a statement, which was an excuse rather than a defense. He admitted that a treaty had been made with the Sultan which would allow a continuation of both polygamy and slavery, but said in excuse therefore that this government had to do it, because Spain did it, or else to engage in a bloody war with the natives under the sultan's rule. In other words, Prof. Schurmann's intended-to-be friendly statement of facts agrees with the strongest statement made by those who have criticised the administration for sanctioning such a treaty.

The conversation of a party of gentlemen, in a Washington hotel, turned to municipal socialism, which one of them—a New Yorker—declared had been making rapid strides during the last five years without attracting much attention. He said: "Who would have thought even twenty years ago that American municipalities would be furnishing free musical entertainment to the townspeople? Had any one a quarter of a century ago predicted that the public funds would be used to give free baths to urban residents, the prophecy would have been laughed to scorn. Yet we see many cities that have free baths as an established institution, and public sentiment is favorable to the policy. The point I make is that, having gone so far, the tendency cannot be checked, and what will be the result by the middle of the next century no man can say. I will hazard a guess that not many decades will go by ere in most cities of the U. S. you will find a public bakery, run by the municipal government, which will supply bread to the people at actual cost. If any man thinks that a silly statement, let him revert to the baths and music, now furnished by many cities, neither of which is as essential as bread."

Because Admiral Dewey is shortly to marry a sister of Mr. John R. McLean, some men have taken to having some wonderful political visions. Men do not usually mix matrimony and politics, and there isn't the slightest reason to suppose that Admiral Dewey will do so.

The announcement that Mr. Hobart's death was only a question of time brought Boss Platt flying to Washington. He came ostensibly in connection with his fight against the architect chosen by Secretary Gage to draw the plans for the New York Custom House. Platt wants one of the strikers to have the job—but it is known that he laid a number of wires in connection with his scheme to get "Teddy" Roosevelt out of New York politics by making him the candidate for Vice President on the McKinley ticket. He had heard about the move of the anti-Platt republicans to put Fred Grant Forward as New York's candidate for the Vice Presidency, and he desired to find out whether Mr. McKinley had any hand in that little game. He thinks he found out, and isn't afraid of the Grant movement. There may be considerable scrapping among the republicans over this matter, now that Mr. Hobart's name is out of it for good and all.

Imperialistic Question.

An Iowa doctor has discovered that in many cases insanity may be cured by setting a dislocated bone in the neck. Who knows but what someone will discover that Bryanism may be cured by dislocating the jaw?—Litchfield News Ledger.

A Matter of Signs

"I NEVER knew such impudence! He wouldn't dare to do it if there were a man on the place. I am going to take it down this minute—"

She rushed from the room and the banging door drowned her mother's remonstrance. "Call her back, Matilda. We can't tell what she may do, and it is unwise to offend Taylor unnecessarily."

Matilda looked lazily out of the window.

"It is too late, mother. She is halfway across the cornfield now. Good gracious! she is climbing the fence, and there is the gate not ten yards away."

But ten yards was a long distance when Jo was in a hurry. Over she went, and on breathless, across another field which ran parallel with the railroad track. At its edge, in full view of passing trains, was a large barn, its sway-back roof rather the worse for lack of shingles, and on one side an enormous red sheet of canvas, with staring white letters which announced: "Grand barbecue at Scruggs' Station," and concluded with the democratic invitation: "Come One, Come All."

A man was putting the last tack into the canvas when the girl accosted him: "Hello, what are you doing?"

The reply came from the top of the ladder: "Nothin', I'm done." And he began to descend. "But I must insist upon your taking it down."

"What's the matter with it?" His insolent manner crimsoned her cheeks to the color of the sign she surveyed scornfully.

"A great deal; chief of all is the impertinence of placing it there without our consent."

"Well, them's my orders, and it's done. If you want it took down, you got to see the boss. Here he comes now." And he placed his ladder against the barn and went off without further parley.

"How do you do?" was the nonchalant greeting of the newcomer, standing at ease in the road beyond. The girl walked to the fence with a determined air.

"Good afternoon," she said, stiffly. "I was just ordering the man to remove this sign from our premises, but he declined, referring me to you as the 'boss'"—her pretty lip curled—"and I must ask you to see that the obnoxious thing is taken down at once."
